FIREMAN KILLED, 12 INJURED

INSULL CASH NO BAR TO SENATE, SMITH ARGUES

Adjourn Committee Hearings for Week.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Even if Frank L. Smith, senator-designate from Illinois, did accept campaign contributions from the public utility corporations subject to his regulation he is not thereby disqualified, he contends, for the office of United States senator.

This was the attitude assumed by the Illinois claimant, through counsel, when the senate committee on privileges and elections began consideration today of his right to a seat in the senate. The charge that he is morally disqualified by his conduct is disputed on the ground that moral fitness is not among the qualifications of senator enumerated in the constitution.

Smith Does Not Attend.

Mr. Smith, who is indisposed, did not attend the meeting of the committee. He was represented by his counsel, C. J. Doyle, J. G. Condon, Cyrus Dietz, and Harvey Wood. They brought with them former United States Solicitor General James M. Beck, who has been retained to direct the fight before the committee, and particularly to argue the constitutional points involved.

With Mr. Beck, who is a Pennsylvania Republican, bringing the heavy artillery of the constitutional authorities into play, the case now becomes the preliminary battle in the struggle to keep Vare of Pennsylvania, as well as Smith, out of the senate. It is the prevailing impression that the fate of Vare will be determined by the fate of Smith.

Attorney General Carlstrom of Illinois was on hand and entered an appearance. He will be heard later in an argument on behalf of the state that Smith is entitled to a seat because he possesses the constitutional qualifications, and that it is unconstitutional to deny the state an equal voice in the senate. He declined to discuss the report that he intends eventually, if Smith should be denied a seat, to institute proceedings in the supreme court to mandamus the Vice President to administer the oath.

Carlstrom Denies Quitting Fight.

Mr. Carlstrom, in a formal statement, denied that he has "abandoned interest" in the outcome of Col. Smith's fight for a seat, as was reported in eastern newspapers in dispatches from Springfield, Ill.

"Nothing could be farther from the truth than this alleged interview," the statement said, "and no authorized interview has been given out on the subject.

"As the attorney general of Illinois, and representing the sovereign rights of the state to representation of its own choosing in the United States senate, as provided and guaranteed by the constitution, I am now contending, and shall earnestly and vigorously continue to contend, for the right of the state to have Col. Smith seated in the United States senate.

"Under the facts of the case, we concede no right to exclude him and, with full confidence in the personal character and integrity of Col. Smith and his ability to creditably represent Illinois as one of its representatives in the United States senate, I shall stand by the rights of the state. I am in Washington today before the committee on privileges and elections of the United States senate in pursuance of that determination."

"No Charges Before Committee."

The Smith counsel proceeded on the theory that no charges of moral disqualification were before the committee. Senator Reed [Dem., Mo.], chairman of the select committee which investigated the Illinois primary slush fund scandal, was present in response to the invitation of Chairman Ernst [Rep., Ky.].

Mr. Reed stated, however, that he wishes to keep entirely out of the investigation by the privileges and elections committee and for that reason had offered the resolution in the senate referring the Smith credentials to the Ernst committee instead of the select committee. He wanted the new inquiry to be unprejudiced by the previous inquiry.

Senator Watson [Rep., Ind.], suggested that the Reed committee evidence might be accepted as constituting the charge of disqualification the privileges and elections committee is to investigate. Senator George [Dem., Ga.], thereupon moved that the Reed committee testimony be incorporated in the record of the proceedings be-

HUSBAND FOUND LIVING IN PEACE WITH TWO WIVES

Acting on complaints of the parents of a 22 year old girl, police of the South Chicago station yesterday raided the home of George Wine, 10621 South Michigan avenue, to find him living in apparent amity with two wives.

Wife No. 1, Mrs. Sophie Wine, is 33 years old. She said she had no objection to the presence of the other woman, Margaret Stellway, with whom Wine, by his own admission, went through a marriage ceremony in Crown Point in 1924.

"If I don't let her stay here," said Sophie, "George will leave me and live with her alone. I'm making the best of the situation."

Margaret is the mother of a baby about a year old. The trio were arraigned in the South Chicago court on a charge of disorderly conduct and were granted a jury trial. Judge Hartigan, however, ordered that Wine be booked for bigamy after he had told of the marriage in Crown Point. The Stellway girl was sent to the psychopathic hospital for examination. Her parents asserted that she joined the Wine household for the second time several weeks ago.

EXPECT CHICAGO TO ESCAPE COLD THAT HIT WEST

The severest cold wave of the winter, which drove the mercury far below the zero mark in the mountain states and the northwest, will leave Chicago almost unscathed, in the opinion of the weather bureau.

Today and tomorrow, according to prediction, will be mostly cloudy, with little change in temperature. Yesterday the official thermometer had a range of 20 to 26 degrees above zero, with the mean temperature at exactly the seasonal normal of 23.

In the mountains and the northwest the cold moderated greatly during the day. Earlier readings in Montana, Wyoming, and Idaho showed minima as low as 30 to 44 degrees below zero, however. In Minnesota and North Dakota the general range was from 10 to 21 degrees below.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Mabel Matheson, 18, Nova Scotia girl whose body was found in a swamp in the West Roxbury district today, was murdered, authorities were convinced tonight after an autopsy performed late today. The autopsy disclosed that a blow over the right eye, fracturing the skull, had caused her death.

Elihu Root Ill with Attack of Tonsillitis

New York, Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Elihu Root, former secretary of state, has been confined to his bed by an attack of tonsillitis for the last week, it was learned tonight. Mr. Root will be 82 years old Feb. 15.

Ten College Athletes Die in Train Crash

Round Rock, Tex., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Baylor university's athletic talent was wiped out today when an International and Great Northern railroad train crashed into a motor bus and killed ten students and injured five, one of whom is not expected to live.

Coach Ralph R. Wolf and his basketball players were scheduled to meet the University of Texas Longhorns tonight at Austin. They had completed all but twenty-two miles of their trip from Waco to the state capital in the university's bus. The driver apparently did not see the train until it was practically upon the buss crossing the tracks. The big machine was turned, but too late, the locomotive crashing into it amidships and dragging and tossing bodies of the dead down the tracks.

Driver Is Unhurt.

Joe Potter of West was driving the machine. He was taken from the wreck suffering from shock.

Six of the athletes were killed outright, two died at Taylor, Tex., and two in an ambulance en route to Georgetown, eleven miles away.

The dead:

Jimmie S. Walker of Greenville.
Ivey Foster of Taylor.
W. E. Murray of Gatesville.
Sam Dillow of Fort Worth.
J. Clyde Kelley of Waco.
Merle H. Dudley of Abilene.
Bob Hailey of Lott.
Jack Castellow of Ennis.
Bob Hannah.
William Winchester.

The injured.

Ed Cooch of Ennis.
Fred Acree of Waco.
Wesley Bradshaw of Waco.
Joe Potter of West, driver.
J. G. Berry of Smithville.

Football Captain Killed.

Walker, Dillow, and Hannah were members of the first string basketball five. Kelley was the outstanding athlete of the Baptist school. Last fall he was named all-southwestern fullback, largely because of his punting ability, and he was captain elect of the 1927 eleven. Kelley was a star catcher in baseball and played guard in basketball.

Several eye witnesses said that the driver, apparently seeing the train just before the bus reached the track, jammed on his brakes, and attempted to turn parallel with the track; but that the bus skidded on the wet pavement, and swerved directly into the train's path.

The train stopped within a half mile of the crossing and backed up. The crew saw four men extricate themselves from the wreckage. The dead and injured were placed in the baggage car and taken to Taylor.

W. R. Woolsey, Round Rock mayor, an eye witness of the crash, said the driver had started to drive the truck across the track apparently before he saw the train approaching.

"When it became evident that there would be a crash, the driver turned the machine and the train sideswiped it."

Two players, caught on the front of the speeding engine, were carried a distance of about 100 feet. Each had his arms locked around the other.

Students from Texas university and Southwestern university at Georgetown, about 30 miles from Austin, gathered in great numbers. Many were intimate friends of the dead.

RIOT RAGES IN SHANGHAI; RUSH BRITISH TROOPS

U. S. Stirred by New Chinese Outbreak.

BULLETIN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Following receipt of news of violent rioting in Shanghai orders were issued by Great Britain today to the first battalion of the Middlesex regiment, stationed at Catterick camp, and also the Cameronians and Green Howards, stationed at Catterick and Richmond, to stand by in readiness to proceed immediately to China. Indian troops are on the move to China. The Jhansi brigade will depart from Calcutta for China next week.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 22.—[Midnight.]—The first serious rioting in the Shanghai strike situation developed today. It was quelled by the police without fatalities, although three foreign policemen are in hospitals as a result of the stone throwing.

The rioting developed as a result of a parade by striking street car employés who seized a dozen street cars and paraded in the streets celebrating their victory in forcing the company to grant their demands.

When the parade reached Nanking road, in the center of the city, other strikers joined, causing disorders and precipitating the immediate mobilization of the police forces, who succeeded in dispersing the mob and recovering the street cars. Among the injured were two Japanese journalists, who were severely beaten.

Shanghai Disorders Grow Worse.

The Shanghai labor disorders continue to grow worse. The employés of the motor bus company went on strike today and completely tied up local transportation.

Although conditions are chaotic in practically every city along the Yangtze river, at Hankow the situation is improving as a result of the decision of the British banks, shopping companies, and business houses to reopen next Monday. This action was taken as a result of pressure exerted by the Chinese chamber of commerce in order to prevent a financial crisis incidental with the annual Chinese New Year settlement, scheduled for Feb. 1.

Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, head of the Nationalist army, threatened the closure of the leading British bank, declaring the necessity for breaking down the British financial monopoly to permit the development of Chinese native banking.

Cantonese Prepare New Attacks.

Reports from Hankow state the Nationalists are preparing for the early resumption of military activities against the northern militarists, both in the Shanghai area and in Honan province. The Nationalists apparently desire to obtain a decisive engagement before the Chinese New Year. Reports from Honan state that most of the forces of Marshal Wu Pei-fu are deserting to the southerners.

Japanese reports from Peking declare that the soviet is mobilizing an army on the Siberian border for the purpose of menacing Gen. Chang Tso-lin, Manchurian war lord, who now controls Peking, and to prevent him from sending more troops south against the Cantonese.

Riot Stirs U. S. Officials.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—News dispatches announcing that anti-foreign uprisings have broken out in Shanghai, where 4,000 Americans are endangered, caused new anxiety at the state department today where the Chinese situation was already regarded as extremely grave.

In the absence of official detailed reports from the American consul general at Shanghai, the department is unable to gauge the extent of the latest outbreak of rioting against foreigners in China. No reports of Americans being injured or molested at Shanghai have been received.

Should the disturbance turn out to be an active part of the general uprisings of sections of the Chinese population against foreigners, it may serve to bring from United States officials a decision as to the future policy of the administration in China.

Kellogg Studies Situation.

Secretary of State Kellogg today was uncertain as to when he would outline the future course of this government. At his press conference today, it was stated that he may possibly issue a statement in the near future outlining

Hebard Roof Falls in Blaze Near Hospitals

Fire which last night caused damage estimated at $100,000 to section B of the Hebard warehouse, 633 South Winchester avenue, brought death to one fireman, John Quinlan, driver for the sixth battalion, sent a dozen others to the hospital injured, and for six hours endangered the Cook County, West Side, and Presbyterian hospitals which circled the rear of the burning building.

At midnight, with the flames under control, the firemen were pouring streams of water into corners of the ruins in an effort to reach the body of their comrade, which had plunged through the roof, as it collapsed earlier in the evening.

Father of Victim on Scene.

From the alley below, Quinlan's father, Lieut. Michael Quinlan, for 30 years a fire fighter, but recently retired, made his way about the engines, shouting commands and pleadings to "get the body of my boy."

The dead man's two sons, aged 14 and 11, stood by, tearful, asking for word of their father.

The injured, given first aid by Dr. B. A. Kendall of the Palmer house and removed to the nearby hospitals, are as follows:

DIVISION MARSHAL JAMES WARD, burned trying to save Quinlan.

CHIEF F. J. HOSEY of 8th battalion, overcome by smoke.

CAPT. WILLIAM CHERNEY, Eng. Co. 34, burned in attempt to rescue Quinlan.

CAPT. E. LEISER of No. 31, badly burned.

HARRY IAYMON, Eng. Co. 31 of 2039 Congress street, overcome by smoke.

TOD DALEY, Eng. Co. 24, overcome by smoke.

LOUIS DANIELSON, Eng. Co. 34, overcome by smoke in trying to save Capt. Cherny.

H. COURTNEY, Fire Insurance Patrol 6, overcome by smoke.

WILLIAM MILLARD, Fire Insurance Patrol No. 6, overcome by smoke.

HARRY BROWN, Fire Insurance Patrol 6, overcome by smoke.

WILLIAM DEAL of No. 12, overcome by smoke and seriously injured in resultant fall from ladder.

PIPEMAN FRANK SBARRIO, Eng. Co. No. 34, injured by smoke and burns.

Victim Trapped on Roof.

The fire started on the sixth floor of section B, in the rear of section A, which has within the year been remodeled into a fireproof division. About 6 o'clock in the evening a watchman, sitting in the ground floor office in section A, was surprised by the arrival of Company 12, which had responded to an A. D. T. automatic call.

Quinland, chauffeur for Chief Ahern of the sixth battalion, answering the same call, was one of the first men on the roof. The flames had made considerable headway and in a short time a segment of the roof, in flames, crumpled up like a piece of burning paper and curved inward. Quinlan, on the edge of the curve, shot forward and down into the tower of flames as Chief Anthony Mullaney of the sixth battalion shouted a warning.

Capt. Cherny was nearby and he rushed forward to try to save Quinlan. He started a human chain, grabbed hold of Pipeman Raymond's hand, and shot downward into the flames. Several other firemen joined in and lengthened the chain. But Quinlan's body had disappeared. In a moment Cherny, with burns about his face and hands and suffocated with smoke, was dragged back. The others, too, were hauled up, limp and unconscious.

Priest on the Scene.

The Rev. William Gorman of the Resurrection of Our Lord Roman Catholic church, climbing up a ladder, hurried over to administer last rites to Cherny. But he was revived and taken to the West Side hospital.

By this time a 4-11 alarm had been sounded and engines from all parts of the city were appearing on the scene. The entire company of No. 31, one of the first to fight the blaze, were overcome by that time and were dragged down to the first floor and taken to hospitals.

Warden Michael Zimmer of the county hospital ordered all available nurses and internes to the receiving ward to give first aid to the men brought in there. In addition to the dozen injured, more than 30 firemen stopped in there for treatment.

Patients Are Reassured.

Nurses and physicians, in each of the three hospitals, patrolled the corridors reassuring the patients that they were in no imminent danger. Next door to the warehouse, a small frame cottage at 703 South Winchester avenue, Mrs. Mary Carlson worked frantically to rouse her invalid husband, John A. Carlson, bed ridden. She got him dressed and ready to carry out, when neighbors came in to assure her that the cottage was safe. Carlson had been an employé of the warehouse for 39 years.

William Hines, manager of the building, declined to give any estimate of the loss. Fire Chief Seyferlich, who narrowly escaped injury when a portion of the roof fell in near him, placed the loss at an approximate $100,000. Section C of the series of buildings containing the stored automobiles, was not harmed.

CRIPPLE SHOT BY DRY AGENT WHO ENTRAPPED HIM

Victim Near Death; Ask Prosecution.

Dry Guns' Toll 48

Records show that forty-eight persons have been killed by prohibition agents in a little more than two and one-half years. Nine of the deaths occurred in 1926. There has been one such slaying since the first of this year. The toll, with dates and places, is as follows:

Countrywide for the two years prior to June 14, 1926	38
Pittsburgh, June 18, 1926	1
Homestead, Fla., Aug. 5	3

Athens, O., Oct. 22	1
Detroit, Dec. 4	1
New Orleans, Jan. 7, 1927	1
Total	48

Frank Davis, a cripple, 32 years old, was a patient last night in the Augustana hospital in a serious condition and perhaps near death from a shot in the back.

He was shot by U. S. Prohibition Agent Jacob Maas. Maas first entrapped Davis into bringing him two bottles of whiskey and then shot him down.

The agent's story was that Davis had attempted to escape. It was later learned that Davis is club footed and could not have run. Maas has not been arrested. Neither police nor the state's attorney's office took action.

Davis' jaw was broken in the arrest. It is charged that it was broken by a blow from a revolver in the hands of either Agent Maas or his partner, Prohibition Agent Robert McNaught.

Will Urge Prosecution.

A. D. Plamondon, head of the Association Opposed to Prohibition, called upon Attorneys Frank D. Comerford, Thomas D. Nash and Michael Ahern for an opinion. The lawyers unanimously agreed that Agent Maas should be prosecuted for murder or manslaughter if Davis dies and of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill if Davis does not die.

Mr. Plamondon said he would urge prosecution of both agents. State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe was ill at home and said he would await report by Prohibition Administrator E. C. Yellowley before he took cognizance of the shooting.

Administrator Yellowley suspended Maas, saying he would not countenance promiscuous shooting by prohibition agents. Later he said the government's special intelligence unit had investigated and had recommended that Maas be reinstated.

Mr. Yellowley said at this time that he had not been informed Davis was club footed. He said he had only the report that Davis, who, he said, is a dope user, had tried to run away after being placed under arrest.

The Dry Agent's Statement.

The statement of Agent Maas, as given to newspapermen, is as follows:

"We had information that Davis was a bootlegger and we telephoned to him asking if he could get us two quarts of booze. He said he was out of bourbon but had some Scotch, so we drove in a taxicab to the Park Mansions hotel, 1746 North La Salle street, where Davis lives.

"He came out to us with two quarts and we gave him $14 in marked money. Then we told him he was under arrest. We put him in the cab with McNaught, and I went in to search his room.

"He broke away from McNaught and came running toward me, and I saw him reach for his hip pocket. I fired down at the sidewalk to scare him, but the bullet glanced up and hit him. When he fell he broke his jaw."

The Victim's Story.

At the hospital Davis told this story:

"I live at the Park Mansions hotel with my wife. Friday morning two men called our room while I was out and told my wife they wanted me to get them some booze. She told them I was out.

"They called three times, and in the evening I was there and answered them. I told them I would try and get them some, so they came to the hotel, and I went out to talk to them. I said I didn't have any, and one of them said, 'To hell with him; we'll get it somewhere else.' I said that was all right with me, to go somewhere else and get it. The other one said, 'No, he can get it for us; let's wait,' so I went to a friend and got one full pint and one pint that had about three drinks taken from it.

"I brought this to them and then they grabbed me and hit me and abused me. I said I would go willingly with them if they would let me go and get my coat and hat, and they agreed to let me go after them.

"I was nearly across the street when I was shot, and I fell to the ground. They came running over to me, and one of them said:

"'Get up, you ——; you're not hurt.'

"Then he hit me across the chin with his gun."

Warn Gathering Crowd.

A crowd gathered quickly after the shooting, residents of the hotel said, and the agents commanded, "Keep back; we're federal men." They called for the police, who took Davis to the hospital.

Then, according to M. Goldberg, owner of the hotel, the two prohibition agents went to Davis' room, told Mrs. Davis to get out, and ransacked the hotel.

Several residents of the hotel said they thought the two prohibition agents were intoxicated.

At 3 o'clock yesterday morning, Mr. Goldberg said, Maas and McNaught, with three other men who said they were also federal operatives, came back to the hotel.

Hotel Man Tells of Threats.

"They woke everybody in the hotel and they threatened to arrest me," Mr. Goldberg said. "They broke open Davis' trunk and when they didn't find what they wanted in it they accused me of having taken five cans of dope from it.

"I asked them if it was there when they went to the room the first time and they said it was. I asked why they hadn't taken it then. I nearly got hurt.

"I had taken Davis' trunk to my room. I did so because he owed me $40 and I wanted the trunk for security.

"Davis had been buying a Ford automobile and a victrola on time payments. A few weeks ago he couldn't meet his payments and I loaned him $40. I didn't think he was a bootlegger, but I think now he thought he could make a few dollars by getting whisky for the men who turned out to be prohibition agents."

Attorney Gives Opinion.

Mr. Plamondon, in urging prosecution of the prohibition agents, said it is but reasonable to expect such shootings when revolvers are given out generally.

Attorney Comerford's opinion, as given, is as follows:

"There is a difference between enforcing the prohibition law and committing manslaughter in its enforcement. If the facts stated are verified, Maas exceeded his authority, violated the law, and if Davis dies Maas should be prosecuted for manslaughter.

The Supreme court of the state of Illinois, in the case of the People vs. Klein, had this identical matter before it, and the court, in sustaining verdict sentencing Klein to the penitentiary for fourteen years, said:

"'An officer, generally, may use a deadly weapon, even to the extent of taking life, if necessary to effect the arrest of a felon, for the reason that the safety of the public is endangered while the felon is at large, but except in self-defense an officer cannot use a deadly weapon or take life to effect an arrest for a misdemeanor, whether his purpose is to kill or merely to stop the offender's flight, and even though the arrest cannot be made otherwise.'

"The only time an officer has a right to shoot is in defense of his life or in the apprehension of one who has committed a felony. Selling liquor under the prohibition act is not a felony. It is a misdemeanor."

Decisions Are Cited.

Attorneys Nash and Ahern cited several Supreme court decisions, and law precepts, some of the language being:

"As a general rule in the case of a misdemeanor, an officer has no right except in self-defense to kill the offender either in attempting to make an arrest or in preventing his escape after arrest. The possible excuse of self-defense is generally absent if the person whose arrest is sought is running away and not offering resistance at the time he is shot, and the killing of a fleeing person under such circumstances would amount to murder."

Another ruling by a Supreme court cited is:

"The law making power itself could not under the constitution inflict the death penalty as a punishment for a simple misdemeanor. And it ill becomes the majesty of the law to sacrifice a human life to avoid the failure of justice in the case of a petty offender."

Legal Error Corrected.

Another court citation by the lawyers:

"It is considered better to allow one guilty only of misdemeanor to escape altogether than to take his life. The prisoner (a police officer tried and convicted for shooting a man) doubtless acted under the belief that erroneously prevails as to the rights of a public officer: that is, that he may lawfully kill a prisoner who fails to obey his command to halt. This is a very erroneous and very fatal doctrine, and must be corrected."

Another decision says:

"An officer charged with the duty of arresting a misdemeanant has no more authority to shoot him down to prevent an escape than he would have the right to kill any other person who was casually walking or running away from the place where the officer happened to be."

In concluding his opinion, Attorney Nash who successfully contended before one jury that Scalise and Anselmi had a right to kill the policemen who were "unlawfully trying to arrest them," and who also obtained the acquittal of the Montanas who killed a policeman who broke into their home, said the shooting of Davis is the outgrowth of the system used in Chicago of committing any number of crimes to enforce the prohibition law.

Assails Police Methods.

"When the chief of police of the city sends his police without search warrants into the homes and places of business of our citizens and they wantonly break up fixtures and furniture and receive not censure or dismissal but praise, it is high time for citizens to wonder whether the rights guaranteed them by the constitution mean anything.

"There will be no relief from the terrorism inflicted by these enforcement officials until all the heads of the agencies are compelled to observe their oaths to abide by the constitution and the laws."

It was explained that if Maas is indicted by the Cook county grand jury he may have his case transferred to the federal court if he so desires.

U. S. Dry Raiders Seize 40; Takes Chicago Heights Rum

More than 100 prohibition agents, divided into 26 squads, entered 26 roadhouses, saloons, and cigar stores in Chicago Heights and vicinity late yesterday, arresting about forty persons, including two women, and seizing beer, moonshine, and whisky.

The raids were made on warrants issued by United States Commissioner Henry Beitler after Prohibition Administrator E. C. Yellowley claimed evidence against each place had been secured by investigators.

Former City Employé Taken.

E. H. Kirgis, a former clerk employed by the Chicago Heights city government, now a cigaret dealer in Mrs. M. O'Toole's Clover Inn, was questioned by the raiders who arrested Mrs. O'Toole. As a result, Hope Thompson, assistant United States district attorney, questioned several other prisoners in regard to rumors of a conspiracy with the city officials of Chicago Heights to violate the prohibition act. Thompson refused to comment on his questioning.

Practically all those arrested were released and ordered to appear before Mr. Beitler Monday morning.

Agents traced a gas line "leak" found 100 gallon still and 60 barrels of mash at 1237 West 103d street.

Seize Whisky, Wine, Too.

Among those arrested were Harry Green, druggist, 308 East 14th street, where two cases of whisky were seized; Joseph Cepek, saloonkeeper at Butler and 23d streets, where eight barrels of beer and some liquor were seized; Joseph Drums and Paul Shelan, owners of a roadhouse at 2647 Chicago road, South Chicago Heights, where eleven gallons of wine was found; Frank Lankert, in whose saloon at 309 East 14th street, two gallons of wine were found; Mrs. Ana Svododa, 213 East 24th street, where liquor was found.

Liquor was seized in a raid on the Dew Drop inn at 1637 East End avenue, but no one was arrested. A raid on the Burgel hotel at Brown's corners failed to uncover any liquor and no one was arrested.

Dying Man Runs Car Into Snow, Saves Wife

Paxton, Ill., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Realising that death was near, and that his wife, with him in their automobile, was in danger, W. L. Hammond, 65, a banker of Ludington, Mich., shifted the gears to neutral, and with his fast expiring strength swung the machine into a snow drift and died. The car came to a stop and Mrs. Hammond escaped injury.

LAKE RISES THIS WINTER FOR FIRST TIME IN HISTORY

Engineers Say Nature Is Winning for Chicago.

Fulfillment of predictions that the levels of the great lakes are entering upon a cumulative upward movement was revealed by sanitary district engineers yesterday from December hydrographic charts.

The charts show, according to Engineers Phillip J. Farrington and H. S. Ripley, that nature is bending backward to recover from the gradual lowering of the last nine years and the sudden drop of 1925.

For the first time in the recorded history of lake levels, Mr. Ripley pointed out, there has been an upward instead of a downward movement in December. The rise is not great, varying from .18 foot in Ontario to .04 in Huron, but it is significant, the engineers assert.

Greater Rise Expected.

Lake levels reach their peak in midsummer and fall to their lowest level in the winter. The average difference is about one foot. This season's cycle has been phenomenal, Mr. Ripley said, because the drop this year from the summer high to the winter low has been only .4 foot. Furthermore he said that lake experts are optimistic believing that the crescendo phase for this year has begun and will exceed even the 1926 rise which was abnormally great. There is no longer any doubt that the alarming depletion of 1925 was only a temporary disturbance, Mr. Ripley said.

The story as revealed on the hydrographic charts since 1861 brought up to date by the December records was outlined by Mr. Ripley. In the summer of 1917 the lakes reached the highest peak since 1909. Between those years there had been a falling and then a rising cycle. Since 1861 that experience has been typical running in about nine year periods.

After 1917 the lake levels fell gradually until in the winter of 1925 in what at the time seemed an alarming drop, the lakes reached their record low stage.

Then, the pendulum swung back. Last summer's advance of fifteen inches exceeded the normal increase by three inches. Now, with the unprecedented rise in December after a seasonal drop of only .4 foot instead of one foot, engineers are hopeful that the levels will continue to advance according to past experience to reach a peak in 1931.

LIMIT ON EVIDENCE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Charles Evans Hughes, special master for the United States Supreme court in the Chicago water diversion litigation, today ruled against the admission of highly speculative and conjectural evidence. This ruling, which will expedite the hearing, bars the introduction of speculative testimony regarding damages that may be caused to prospective power developments in the St. Lawrence and Niagara rivers by continued diversion at Chicago.

Strikes Out Cooper Evidence.

The ruling strikes out of the record all that part of the testimony introduced some days ago by Col. Hugh L. Cooper, builder of Muscle Shoals. Mr. Cooper stated that if the Chicago water diversion was utilized for power purposes in the Niagara and St. Lawrence rivers, it would generate virtually five times as much power as it now generates in Illinois. Depriving the east of this water caused an annual loss of a capitalized $14,000,000, he said.

Attorney Edmund D. Adcock of counsel for the Chicago Sanitary district asked Master Hughes to strike out speculative testimony and asserted that under our present treaty with Canada, we are using all the water possible for power development, and that even if the Chicago diversion was stopped, this water could not now be used for power development without a new agreement with Canada.

It is expected the hearings will be concluded in early March.

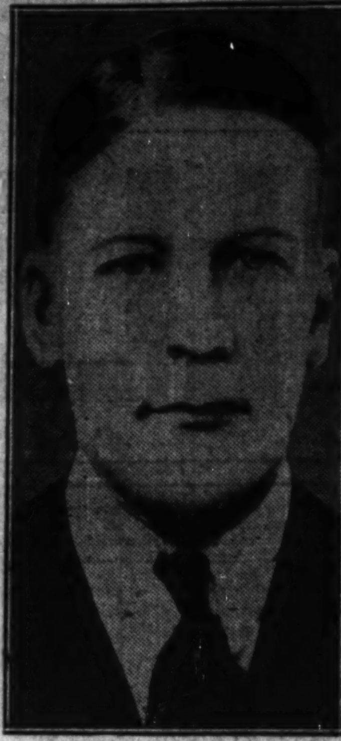
THRILL SEEKER



John B. Carrington Jr. of New York, a former Yale student, who has been playing the role of a broker by day and taxi driver by night. The chauffering was for a thrill, he says.

BROKER BY DAY, PILOTS TAXI AT NIGHT FOR THRILL

Yale Grad's Adventure Ends in Court.

New York, Jan. 22.—[Special.]—O. Henry would have loved J. Carrington. He could have understood how a gently reared, Yale trained lad of 28, thrust into the approved life of New York society, might have fought the stock market according to blue print all day and amused himself by night as a taxicab chauffeur.

The police, though, should not be blamed for not understanding. They have their orders, you know, and when a taxicab hogs the right of way from a motorcycle officer an arrest is inevitable. And that is how it became known that John Carrington has been carrying on as a broker by day and driving a taxi by night.

Court Thinks It's Mistake.

Carrington, haled into Traffic court, so astonished the magistrate by his immaculate attire that the court inquired if there wasn't a mistake. But Carrington explained that he was employed by the brokerage firm of Libaire & Co., 74 Broadway, by day, but had been driving a taxi at night for several months. He paid the $5 fine and returned to the brokers' office to be met by a delegation of reporters.

Friends suggested that Carrington had been driving the taxi as the result of a wager, but Carrington ended that story by saying he had done it for adventure and was sorry publicity would make it impossible for him to continue his fascinating experiences. An aviator during the world war, Carrington says that a passion for motor cars is really at the bottom of his taxi adventuring.

Has Two Cars of His Own.

Since he moved to New York from New Haven, where his parents still live and his father is a newspaper publisher, he has had at this disposal two expensive autos. These, however, were not the cars that brought him his latest trouble. Of course, it stands to reason that Jack Carrington would be arrested now and then for violation of this or that traffic regulation, even with a private car and a private party, but it was his taste for taxicabs that really did the work.

"I had ridden so much in taxicabs," he said, "that I became interested in taxi chauffeurs and wondered whether they really made any money to speak of. Besides, and what's more important, I had heard so often that a New York taxi chauffeur meets every type of humanity and sees so many angles of life that is denied to ordinary humans, I felt more and more, all along, that eventually I would try the life."

Finds Adventure in Job.

"Did you actually find adventure in New York?" the reporter interrupted.

"I did," Jack responded, and then began to repent of his indiscretion—not of driving taxis but of talking too much before the judge and to the reporter.

"Now," he continued, finally, "you newspaper men have spoiled my good time. I can't keep on driving taxis; they will know me. If this thing hadn't got into the newspapers I might have gone on forever having the time of my life."

The reporter pooh-poohed the idea of being ashamed of what he had done in the interest of adventure, and recalled that one of the authors of "Broadway" had served as a waiter in night clubs to get local color for the play he had in mind.

"For God's sake," cried one of Carrington's friends, "don't tell him that. He will be waiting in the night clubs next if you suggest anything like that."

Carrington has resigned his taxi position and gotten a vacation from his brokerage firm to go to New Haven to square things with his parents.

$50 MORE IS SENT IN TO CONSCIENCE FUND—BY SPECIAL DELIVERY

The city's conscience fund was increased $50 yesterday when Albert J. Keefe, chief clerk of the city treasurer's office, received a special delivery letter containing a $50 note with the words "conscience fund" written on a piece of paper.

This is the third contribution to the fund this week. Mayor Dever received a check for $438 and $300 in cash was paid at the controller's office Tuesday. Mr. Keefe forwarded the money to the controller.

British Discover Bones Believed to Be Pocohantas'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 22.—The story of Pocahontas, the Indian princess who saved Capt. John Smith and who later married John Rolfe of Norfolk, was revived here today. In making excavation near the White Post inn at Gravesend, it is believed the bones of the princess were discovered. She died at Gravesend in 1622 when about to sail for America, and was buried at St. George's church there. Many unsuccessful attempts have been made to discover her grave.

AGREE ON SPECIAL COMMISSION TO UNTANGLE RADIO

Conferees Provide Wide Powers First Year.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Senate and house conferees on radio legislation today agreed on a compromise form of control. Final approval is to be given on Wednesday.

The agreement provides for the creation of a commission of five members with broad powers for a period of one year and appellate duties thereafter. Administrative details would be handled from the start by the department of commerce, and after the first year the department also would have original jurisdiction.

The members of the commission are to be appointed by the President for six year terms at salaries of $10,000 for the first year and $30 per diem while giving service thereafter.

Powers of Commission.

The commission during the first year would have original jurisdiction over the granting, renewal, and revocation of all station licenses and the making of all regulations. Thereafter the commission would decide only controversial matters transferred to it by the secretary of commerce and appeals from decisions of the secretary, the rulings to be subject to a final appeal to the courts.

The secretary of commerce is given all administrative functions and full control over operators and licenses.

The bill would become effective as soon as signed by the President, but its penalties would not be applicable for sixty days thereafter, during which time all operating stations would be required to apply for new licenses. The new licenses would be made out for three years.

Postpone Telegraphers' Meeting.

Delay in completing preliminary arrangements has resulted in the decision to postpone the Washington radio telegraph conference from next spring until next fall, it was announced at the state department today. This step was made necessary, it was said, because the International Telegraph bureau at Berne has not finished its book of proposals, containing a compilation of suggestions for the use of the forty nations which will attend the conference.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRL INDIANA'S $1,000 PEACH

She's Frances Fell of Crawfordsville.

BY ROBERTA NANGLE.

Miss Frances Fell of Crawfordsville, Ind., whose likeness decorates page 1 of today's rotogravure picture section, has been selected by THE TRIBUNE as the most marvelous Peach in the Hoosier state. This honorary title has been substantiated by an award of $1,000, one of the major prizes in THE TRIBUNE's $20,000 search for the fifty-six prettiest Peaches of the central west.

In addition to this $1,000 award, Miss Fell also is a candidate for the additional grand prize of $10,000, which will be awarded to the Peach of Peaches, the prettiest of all the thousands of Peaches discovered in five great states of the middle west.

THE TRIBUNE's announcement of its search for pulchritude last September was answered by an avalanche of mail which brought in some 18,000 pictures before the search ended on Dec. 1, last.

The Judges.

The judges were Mrs. Pauline Palmer, well known portrait painter and for three years president of the Chicago Society of Artists; Karl F. Buehr, also a noted portrait painter, who is an instructor at the Chicago Art Institute, and Miss Antoinette Donnelly, THE TRIBUNE's beauty editor.

It was the duty of these well qualified judges to wade through a staggering assortment of feminine front-face and profile views, to cull from them the most likely countenances from an artistic standpoint, and finally by a slow and careful process of elimination, to select the loveliest Peach in Chicago and in each of the states of Indiana, Wisconsin, Michigan, Iowa and Illinois outside of Chicago.

Today's announcement concerns the first results of their work. The judges have elected Miss Frances Fell queen of Indiana's Peaches because she possesses all of the qualities which go to make up a beautiful girl. The good fairy who dispenses beauty to the human race must have been in a particularly lavish mood when she gave Miss Fell her perfect oval face, her small and exquisite features, her soft, unbobbed, ash-blonde hair, and above all, her sweetness and refinement of expression.

Miss Fell needs no makeup on her skin, with its faint natural color and its clear, fine texture. Her eyes are blue-gray, enhanced, as you will see from her picture, by well arched brows which have never known the prick of a tweezer. Her chin is daintily, charmingly rounded, and her neck and shoulder lines are the embodiment of young, fragile grace.

Prettiest Peach is Sweet 16.

She is 16 years old, measures about 5 feet 3 inches in height, and weighs 104 pounds.

One would not call Miss Fell a member of the flapper species; nor would it be fitting to wish on her the stigma, "old fashioned." She's modern enough, but is happily free of the blasé mannerisms which mark so many of the youthful would-be sophisticates of today. The most winning of Miss Fell's qualities are her unmistakable air of good breeding, her lack of self-consciousness, and her quiet, intelligent manner of speaking.

She has always lived in Crawfordsville, and at present is a junior in high school there. Her interests are those of the average student. Skating, dancing, and school parties intrigue her.

Her First Trip to Chicago.

A friend of her mother's chaperoned Miss Fell when she came to Chicago in response to the invitation of THE TRIBUNE's judges of Peaches. It was Frances' first trip to our town, and our civic sights so delighted her that she was frankly and prettily thrilled every minute of the time.

She had no idea then that there was a possibility of her being selected as Indiana's Peachiest Peach. In fact, she said she hadn't told a soul in Crawfordsville that THE TRIBUNE was even interested in her. If she has kept her visit to Chicago a secret all this time, this morning's TRIBUNE should bring a considerable amount of pride and joy to Crawfordsville.

Illinois Peaches Next Sunday.

OHIO MAYOR IS QUIZZED; JUDGE HINTS PERJURY

John W. Ekey, mayor of Straton, O., was questioned closely yesterday by Superior Judge Michael L. McKinley, who declared that perjury had been committed by some one in a habeas corpus hearing before him. Mayor Ekey was required to furnish a $1,000 personal bond pending a renewal of the investigation Feb. 8.

The hearing involved the petition of Louis Fikojana, 1102 West 18th street, to be released from the custody of police on an extradition warrant from Steubenville, O., accusing him of wife and child abandonment. Fikojana claimed he had never been a resident of Ohio and that he had always contributed to the support of his divorced wife and their children up to last April.

Mayor Ekey and Miss Amanda Strayer, prosecuting attorney of Steubenville, were the prosecuting witnesses in the effort to have the husband brought back to the Ohio town for trial. The mayor declared Fikojana had been in business in Straton and that he knew him well there. Witnesses were produced by the husband to show that he had never lived in Ohio. It was then that Judge McKinley ordered the investigation and intimated he would pnish some one in the case for perjury.

$10,000 DAMAGE BY FLAMES TO SCHOOL BUILDING

Fire last night destroyed the entire third floor, and water and smoke so damaged the first and second floors of the Paul Revere branch school on Dorchester avenue, between 74th and 75th streets that school officials were considering rebuilding.

The fire that broke out at 8 o'clock was fought for two hours by 18 fire companies answering a 2-11 alarm. The flames were confined to the three fresh air rooms comprising the third floor and destroyed all equipment there. Firemen estimated the loss at about $10,000, and suggested that the flames may have started from stoves on the second floor housing the domestic science department.

The building was erected in 1882.

SALVATION ARMY ASKS DISCARDED TOYS FOR POOR

Many Christmas toys are losing their glamour about this time, and have in many instances been discarded by the children.

The Salvation Army proposes that these toys be collected and given to poor youngsters who come to the army for relief.

The army appeals to all who have toys they would like to give away to bring or send these toys to the relief department of the Salvation Army at 713 North State street. The period for these toy donations will last one week —Jan. 24 to Jan. 31.

WIFE OF DOCTOR DEMANDS $25,000 FOR CHILLY FLAT

Because proper heat was not furnished in her apartment last winter, according to charges made by Mrs. Lucille B. Foust, wife of Dr. M. C. Foust, who has offices at 731 West 63d street, she filed suit yesterday in the Circuit court for $25,000 against Alex Machie, owner of the apartment at 1366 East 54th street. According to Attorney Ralph O. Butz, who filed the suit, Mrs. Foust was made ill by failure to heat the flat.

JAIL BIGAMIST AFTER WEALTHY WIFE DISAPPEARS

Missing Woman's Sister Traps Prisoner.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 22.—(AP)—A suspicious woman, aroused by her failure to hear from her sister, proved the nemesis of William N. Coffey, 48, confessed bigamist, held in jail at Mauston, Wis., while police of three states attempted to locate his missing second wife.

Having assumed the rôle of detective to trap the man who married her wealthy widowed sister, Mrs. Anna Holdridge of Rockford, Ill., was here today taking an active part in the investigation which she feels confident will disclose that her sister is dead.

No definite clew to the whereabouts of the sister, Mrs. Hattie Hales Coffey, has been disclosed by the investigation of District Attorney Robert P. Clark, who came here from Elroy, Wis., he said tonight. District Attorney Clark said Coffey tells conflicting stories of what happened to his wife, whom he married at Winona, Minn., despite the presence of a wife and three children in Madison.

Finds Clothing in Garage.

Mrs. Holdridge identified as possessions of her sister articles of clothing found in five suitcases in Coffey's automobile stored in a garage here. While she was working with District Attorney Clark here a brother, Ernest Roser of Elroy, was en route to Winona with the avowed intention of seeking a bigamy wararnt for Coffey.

The only charge on which Coffey is held at Mauston in default of $10,000 bail is forgery, preferred by Mrs. Holdridge as a result of alleged use of her sister's name to secure possession of her bonds and securities.

A rubber stamp aroused the suspicions of Mrs. Holdridge and started her on the trail of Coffey, she said here today in telling how she trapped the bogus husband of her older sister.

"I got three letters from Dubuque, Ia., last October, mailed by Coffey and signed 'B. and H.,' being the initials of my sister and Coffey," Mrs. Holdridge said. "Then I received a suit case with my sister's clothing in it. The letters each contained the phrase 'Hattie is sitting beside me as I write.'

Rubber Stamp Signature.

"I grew suspicious and wrote, asking that Hattie write me. I sent the letter to Dubuque, but never heard from her. Then I got a letter from Asheville, N. C., written on a typewriter, to which was affixed my sister's signature with a rubber stamp. The letter contained the explanation, 'My daddy has bought me a typewriter, so I can write to you often now.'

Mrs. Holdridge said she then planned the trip for Coffey. Her sister had investments in several concerns, so she wrote Coffey that a meeting of the board of directors of one concern would be held at Elroy and it was worth $500 for him to attend.

He came and was arrested.

"I am convinced my sister is dead, a victim of foul play," Mrs. Holdridge said.

Murder Warrant Hinted.

La Crosse, Wis., Jan. 22.—[Special.] —William N. Coffey, confessed bigamist, who is being held in the Juneau county jail, Mauston, Wis., pending an investigation concerning the disappearance in September of Mrs. Hattie Sherman Hales of this city, will have a third warrant, that for murder, issued against him, Sol. Burdick, La Crosse county poor commissioner, cousin of the missing woman, said today, if the body of Mrs. Hales is not found.

Coffey was well known here. He came to this city as agent for a prisoner's uplift association, appearing before civic clubs, churches, to solicit funds to aid in the work of rehabilitating ex-convicts and aiding them in finding jobs.

Mrs. Hales was information clerk in a department store before Coffey persuaded her to elope with him. Coffey has a wife and three children living in Madison. Mrs. Hales, according to reliable information, possessed money and bonds, which, relatives say, Coffey appropriated.

Some two months ago a bank rejected as a forgery an assignment of a mortgage held by Mrs. Hales, which was sent to La Crosse from some point in the south. The bank refused to acknowledge the signature which purported to be that of Mrs. Hales.

LARGER STREET FUND CAUSES HEAPS OF GARBAGE TO VANISH

Garbage and ashes, heaped high behind thousands of back doors to the distress of housewives and janitors, began to disappear yesterday as the city put its new street and alley cleaning schedule into operation.

Stirred by complaints, the city council appropriated $6,500,000 in the 1927 budget to pay for the work, an increase of $700,000 over 1926. Owing to last week's snowstorm, the trucks and wagons did not start their new schedule immediately, but Commissioner of Public Works A. A. Sprague announced yesterday that this handicap has been overcome.

"There has already been a decrease in the number of complaints," Thomas J. Byrne, superintendent of streets, reported. "Unless we have another storm we will have every alley in first class condition by Feb. 1."

The new schedule calls for the removal of ashes every six days in winter, while garbage trucks will call every six days in summer and every eight days in winter.

Streets having street car lines will be cleaned every day and the sweepers will go on even the streets of outlying wards at least once every two weeks in the summer.

"The best part of the new plan is that it removes waste disposal from ward politics," said Col. Sprague. The money is now spread over the city as a whole and the commissioner promises that there will be no favoritism.

Benefits of Actual Ownership Permanence of residence among desirable neighbors is a pleasing feature of 100 percent co-operative apartment ownership. The tenant-owned apartment is the property of the owner in every sense for as long as he wants it. He can alter it, change it about, redecorate it to suit his own tastes or do anything with it he pleases—except tear it down. If he desires to change his residence at any time he may sell or rent his apartment just as he would a private house—provided the purchaser or lessee is acceptable to the other owners.

PRIZE FIGHT FILM EXHIBITED HERE; IS HELD LEGAL

Dempsey-Tunney Picture Shown Under New Law.

Films of the Dempsey-Tunney fight, depicting the world's championship battle round by round, were exhibited to Chicago movie patrons yesterday. It was the first showing of a prize fight film here for several years.

Under the old state anti-boxing law, city censors have previously cut all pugilistic scenes at the point where the combatants stopped shaking hands and started to exchange blows. This law was knocked out in a referendum last April.

S. B. Griever products, a distributing concern, 831 South Wabash avenue, made the first application for a permit under the statute as revised and Corporation Counsel Busch notified Chief of Police Collins that its issuance was legal. The films were immediately put on the screen in a Madison street movie theater.

Can't Transport Films.

Fight fans looking forward to a general showing of historic ring battles, however, may be disappointed as there is a legal joker. Under federal regulations, it is unlawful to transport the films from one state to another.

Mr. Griever escaped the government regulation by proving that he did not transport the pictures, but purchased them in Chicago. Prosecution of the agent said to have transported and sold them is now pending in the federal courts.

Mr. Busch in his notification to Chief Collins held that the city had no objection to boxing pictures unless they are immoral or criminal.

"In a previous opinion from this office," Mr. Busch said, "it was held that the exhibition of moving pictures of the Jeffries-Johnson prize fight within the city of Chicago was unlawful.

Doesn't Violate City Code.

"The reasoning of this opinion was predicated in the main upon the fact that the criminal code of Illinois made engaging in a prize fight a crime and the argument proceeded that since prize fighting was a crime the exhibition of the pictures necessarily portrayed a crime.

"With the passage of the act in relation to athletic exhibitions and the creation of a state athletic commission, of course, the foundation for the reasoning in the opinion referred to is removed and cannot now prevail.

"Our opinion, therefore, is that the exhibition of the Dempsey-Tunney fight pictures does not violate any of the provisions of the Chicago municipal code."

CAPT. GARIBALDI SENTENCED FOR CATALAN PLOT

PARIS, Jan. 22.—(AP)—The Catalonian conspiracy of last November, which sought to wrest Catalonia from Spain, came to an inglorious end today when Capt. Ricciotti Garibaldi, Col. Macia, and sixteen conspirators were found guilty of possessing arms illegally and were given short prison terms which already have been more than served.

The two leaders of the plot were sentenced to two months' imprisonment and were fined 100 francs [about $3] each, and the others, all of whom were Catalonians, were sentenced to a month's imprisonment and a fine of 50 francs [about $1.50].

The real punishment of the three day trial was the word "traitor," which was hurled at Capt. Garibaldi repeatedly by his fellow conspirators. Garibaldi's signed confession that he had betrayed his comrades for money was ruled out of the evidence, but its sense dominated the trial. The captain objected to its introduction on the ground that it was tortured from him under mental duress.

Rabbi Refuses to Head New Senate of Hungary

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Jan. 22.—Unable to speak anything but Hebrew and Yiddish, Rabbi Koppel-Ruch of Budapest, who is entitled to preside over the first session of Hungary's newly reconstituted anti-Semitic senate, because he is senior member, declined the honor. He is unwilling to work with Archduke Albrecht, pretender to the throne and leader of Hungary's powerful anti-Semitic organizations, who is automatically secretary because he is the youngest magnate.

Two Doctors Agree to Repay Woman; Released

Dr. C. W. Klinetop and Dr. William Gecht, said to have been associated with Dr. Theodore Lee, who recently committed suicide, were released from further questioning yesterday by the state's attorney's office after they had promised to repay $250 to Mrs. Dorothy Mielky, 3659 South Leavitt street. She had complained that she paid Dr. Lee, head of the Lee institute, 190 North State street, $250 for a course in midwifery and that she was unable to get her money refunded.

Attend Opera

A delegation of 412 girl students from Stevens college at Columbia, Mo., arrived in Chicago in a special train at noon yesterday for twenty-four crowded hours of fun, sightseeing and grand opera. James E. Wood, president of the college, was in charge of the trip. It's part of the curriculum.

After a tour through Ida Noyes hall and the University of Chicago campus, the girls went to Marshall Field & Co. for luncheon and a style show and then attended the matinee performance of the Vagabond King. Dinner at the Morrison hotel was followed by an evening at the Auditorium theater. There they heard Eide Norena, Irene Pavloska, Antonio Cortis, and Luigi Montesanto sing leading rôles in Puccini's "La Boheme."

At noon today, after a sightseeing trip to the Field Museum and the Art Institute, the girls will depart for their college.

BOY, AFIRE, SAVED BY MOTHER.

Mrs. Vincenta Jinstare saved her four year old son, Jock, from death yesterday. When he rushed into their home with his clothing ablaze she smothered the flames with a blanket. The boy fell into a bonfire while dodging snowballs.

The Basement Piano Store Offers Good Used Pianos

—pianos that have been taken from Chicago's finest homes as part payment for Steinways, Lyon & Healys, Duo-Arts and other new pianos. These good pianos have been marked at prices that will move them fast—very fast. Just inside the Wabash Avenue entrance.

"It was easy. And all my life I've thought it was—well, impossible!

"I stopped one day at Lyon & Healy's to buy one of the new Orthophonic records and decided—just because I'd always longed for a Steinway—to run upstairs and just look at one. Of course, I never dreamed of buying one—although I've dreamed of owning one!

"A salesman there told me about the Lyon & Healy Plan of Ownership. Why—even with my moderate means I found I could afford a Steinway easily. It's a monthly payment plan—but it can be adjusted to suit your means. I never was so glad my credit was good! Think of it—a Steinway at last! And they last a long lifetime."

The Lyon & Healy Plan of Ownership Makes a Steinway Easy to Own

It applies not only to Steinways—but to every piano sold at Lyon & Healy's. It really puts a Steinway Grand Piano—or even a Duo-Art—within the reach of people with quite moderate incomes. Ask us about this easy plan.

The Lyon & Healy Grand

For those wishing to make a smaller investment than that required for the Steinway, the certain choice is the Lyon & Healy. Each of these two great pianos is a masterpiece. Each is worthy of a place in any home of refinement and charm. From $925 up.

SPRING STYLES ON SHOW IN PARIS; SKIRTS SHORTER

World Buyers Rush to the Fashion Capital.

[Copyright: 1927: By The New York Times.]

PARIS, Jan. 22.—A throng of buyers from all parts of the globe are waiting for the great dressmaking display of spring fashions. Drecoll, Redfern, Doucet and Lelong will exhibit their new models next week. The smaller houses, which are already showing their creations, reveal that skirts will be shorter than ever, barely covering the knees.

Crossen makes spring suits on the lines of a norfolk jacket or like jumper suits with fairly long belted jackets fitting snugly over the hips and skirts with wide flat pleats at the side or front. Checked materials in small plaids, tweeds and gabardines are used in these suits.

Like Men's Yachting Garb.

Rasmus makes swagger suits of plain flannel, imitating masculine yachting clothes, with a short double-breasted jacket. Several are tailored in royal blue with gold buttons. A flannel skirt in beige is pressed like Oxford trousers with the hem turned like a trouser cuff.

Lucile makes the same double-breasted jacket in black, with a black and white plaid skirt.

Silk and alpaca, preferably in changeable effects, are the new materials in many long coats. These are generally cut with a straight back and side pleats starting from the belt, which fastens in front.

Hosiery manufacturers announce that castor color verging to gray or brown will supersede the flesh colors in stockings for day wear.

Dressmakers Face Crisis.

The Paris dressmaking trade is facing a crisis because of the increased value of the franc. Materials bought when the franc was around 43 to the dollar must be sold at a tremendous loss now that the franc is up to 25. To buy at the present rate means an equally great loss to the buyers here.

It is advertised that prices have been cut as much as 30 per cent. Inquiry, however, shows this is not altogether true. Instances where a reduction is made are isolated. This is particularly noticeable in accessories and novelties.

Carroll Slated for Place on Deneen-Brundage Ticket

Deneen-Brundage Republicans said yesterday they had tentatively picked John A. Carroll, Hyde Park banker and real estate man, as their candidate for city treasurer. Final action on the slate is set for tomorrow. Harry E. Hoff, son-in-law of Recorder Joseph Haas, has declined to run for city clerk. Other names reported under consideration yesterday were those of John Gordon and Capt. W. S. Hetman.

TAX CUT INCREASED U. S. INCOME FOR 1926 BY $176,030,653

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Instead of reducing taxes by $387,811,000 in the revenue act of 1926 as it believed, congress produced a measure that yielded the government an increase of $346,423,185 in income taxes and dropped but $170,392,531 in miscellaneous receipts.

If any one had predicted during the tax debate last year this result from the lower income tax schedule he undoubtedly would have been laughed off the floor. President Coolidge was apprehensive when he signed the $387,811,000 reduction believing congress should not have sliced deeper than $300,000,000 and there was fear among officials that a deficit might be a consequence.

But today the internal revenue bureau's report shows an increase in income tax payments over 1925 by quarters as:

Quarter ending—	1926 increase.
March 31	$ 56,144,651.92
June 30	92,255,353.48
Sept. 30	108,254,803.30
Dec. 31	89,768,376.80
Total	$346,423,185.50

Total collections in 1926 were $2,172,127,321, compared with $1,825,704,135 in 1925. Collections on miscellaneous taxes in 1926 were $698,160,578, compared with $868,553,110 in 1925. The net gain was $176,030,653.

MEEKER NOW IN CANADIAN WEST, POLICE ASSERT

Glenn Martin Meeker, former president of the Commonwealth Reserve fund, 110 South Dearborn street, missing since the state's attorney began an investigation of the $500,000 shortage which caused the firm to close its doors, has been located in British Columbia, police announced yesterday in the Chicago avenue court. The police were granted a continuance until Feb. 28 by Judge Joseph L. McCarthy in the hearing of C. C. Woodmansee, vice president and treasurer of the concern, pending the arrest of Meeker. A detective has been sent to Canada to bring Meeker back.

Flames Rout 20 Families in Tenement; 1 Dies, 7 Hurt

New York, Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Flames swept away the interior of a five story tenement today, killing one person and injuring six others. On the top floor of the building firemen found the body of a woman believed to be that of Mrs. Anna Farrell. Her husband and his 7 year old daughter, Marion, are in a hospital, both painfully burned. The husband told police that when he raced from his second floor apartment with his daughter, Mrs. Farrell still was in bed. He shouted to her and he thought she was at his heels as he descended the stairs, through flames, then collapsed. About twenty families were evicted.

BANDITS HOLD A FIELD DAY; ROB ALL OVER TOWN

Woman Beaten by Holdup Man on Bridge.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Nathan Goldman, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in Pontiac reformatory by Judge William J. Lindsay.

Ernest DeLavergne, assault to murder, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in Pontiac reformatory by Judge Emanuel Eller.

Busy bandits staged a frontier field day in Chicago yesterday and last night.

Mrs. George Ahrens of New York, a guest at the Hotel La Salle, was crossing the Wells street bridge last evening when a Negro struck her on the head and seized her purse, containing $55, her ticket home, and a brooch valued at $1,000. The robber escaped by darting into an alley near Lake and Wells streets.

While fifty of his fraternity brothers were holding an initiation in the Phi Kappa Psi house at 5555 Woodlwn avenue, Mundy Peale of Hinsdale, a junior at the University of Chicago, was robbed of his automobile and $20 at the curb.

Two robbers were captured by the police, one after he had been shot and possibly fatally wounded. Three other men, two of whom have police records, also were arrested as suspects.

Grab $6,000 at Palmer House.

One pair of bandits, disguised as workmen, invaded the loop, terrorized the paymaster of a construction company in the unfinished section of the Palmer house at State and Monroe streets, took $6,000, and fled into the completed portion of the hotel. Despite the surrounding of the building by detectives the robbers escaped.

Two others walked nonchalantly into the office of the White Sewing Machine company at 4350 West Madison street, herded twenty-eight salesmen into a rear room and locked the door, then took $2,000 from Carl Rasmussen, the manager, and escaped by a rear entrance.

How Palmer House Robbers Worked.

In the Palmer house robbery the bandits caught John Kettrick, the paymaster for the Matthews Bros. Manufacturing company at the fourteenth floor level. He carried the $6,000 in a satchel. At first, thinking the men were practical jokers, he resisted, but a revolver poked against his ribs convinced him their intentions were serious. So he gave up the money.

Three workmen, who engaged in a battle royal at about the time the stickup was in progress, were questioned by the police, but were released. The police believe that the robbers mistook Kettrick for the paymaster in charge of a larger sum belonging to the general contractors.

A trio of bandits found Nick Foster, manager, and Miss Eleanor Goranson, cashier, of the Rainbow Wet Wash Laundry, in the concern's office at 4307 West Division street. They cut the telephone wires, threatened to kill Foster and the girl, and ran out with $900, the day's collection by drivers.

Force Manager to Give Up Cash.

When Thomas McBride was held up at 36th and Wallace streets by two men late last night he had only $2 in his pockets. The robbers questioned him and learned that he was manager of an Atlantic and Pacific Tea store at 3701 Lowe avenue. They took him into their automobile and drove to the store. There they checked over the books, learned that he had taken in $131, and compelled him to show where it was hidden. Then they gave him back the $2 and released him.

Managers of three other Atlantic and Pacific Tea stores that were robbed during the day reported that a girl about 22 years old, clad in a sealskin coat, acted as chauffeur for three bandits who made swift forays on the south side. Police are seeking her. The same gang is blamed for five store robberies on Friday.

Woman's Cries Foil Holdup.

Three holdup men fled without loot from the meat market of Frank Puhr, 4542 Wentworth avenue, when Mrs. May Pulow, 240 Swann street, screamed and refused to enter the ice box. Puhr and another customer had already obeyed the bandits, who left the $150 that was in the cash register.

A pair of stickup men entered the offices of the Newbury & Weber Coal company at 4007 Wallace street, compelled six men to lie on the floor and then escaped with $150 from the cash register.

Early last evening Harry Salnick, owner of a haberdashery at 202 South Halsted street, was forced into a rear room and robbed of $63 by three men.

Andrew Filion, attendant at a gasoline filling station at 7504 North Ashland avenue, was robbed of $75. L. E. Warren, 2819 North Kostner avenue, driver for a laundry company, gave up $50 to two men at Robey street and Touhy avenue. Harry Sarlin, tailor at 446 North State street, surrendered $100 and a watch to two armed men.

Otto Pascke, 4619 North Karlov avenue, was robbed of $61 at Lawrence and Magnolia avenues. Leo Altmeier, butcher at 3462 North Crawford avenue, gave up $60, and J. Habich, owner of a store at 2413 Milwaukee avenue, $26.

Resists and Bandits Flee.

Joseph Hertenstein, 534 Brompton place, suspecting that the weapons of two men who halted him at Addison street and Pine Grove avenue were of the toy variety, resisted and the pair fled.

Herman Ferdinand, 6428 South Hermitage avenue, was robbed of his automobile and $68 in the rear of his home.

Sergts. Wellington Britton and Dave Smith of the detective bureau shot one of two colored bandits whom they saw robbing Mrs. R. Grossman, 1431 South Homan avenue, in front of 1531 West Roosevelt road. She was stepping into an automobile when the pair walked up and took her fur coat and $97.

Sergts. Britton and Smith, passing in an automobile as the robbers fled, leaped out and pursued, firing as they ran. One of the men, Sylvester Harden, 1424 West Roosevelt road, was wounded in the shoulder. The other escaped.

Harold Manion, 19 years old, of 12 East Chicago avenue was carrying a toy pistol when he walked into the Bachelors' Friend laundry at 679 North Dearborn street. Louis Weinstein, manager, believed the pistol was real and gave up $25. But Manion was seen by Policemen Ford and Orszechowsky and was captured after a chase of three blocks, in which several shots were fired.

Nab Another Toy Pistoleer.

Lynn Albright, who said his home was in Rock Island, was arrested when a lodger at the Y. M. C. A. hotel reported him to be planning a series of holdups with a toy pistol. Police said they found the toy in his possession. Albright said he had left his wife and child in Rock Island while he came here in search of work.

Two others arrested as robbery suspects are William Emmerling and Eddie Kaufman, both of whom have police records here. Emmerling recently was acquitted of the murder of his wife. He was taken into custody at 43d and Halsted streets.

Kaufman, who was tried in connection with the Small jury bribery charges, is accused of having mulcted a number of saloonkeepers in an attempt to raise money to defend Frank McErlane, Chicago gangster, who faces trial for murder in Indiana.

INJURIES FATAL TO WORKMAN.

Tony Pochopian, 37 years old, 5014 Winchester avenue, died yesterday of injuries sustained on Jan. 10 while working as a car repairer.

WAR ON DIRECT PRIMARY OPENS IN THIRTY STATES

Slush Scandal in Senate Races Arouses Foes.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—A significant feature of the sessions of many state legislatures this winter will be a concerted assault on the institution of the direct primary election.

SENATOR HIRAM JOHNSON.
[Kadel & Herbert Photo.]

Ever since the exposure of Illinois and Pennsylvania and senatorial nomination scandals the reaction against the direct primary has been gathering momentum.

The legislatures of 44 states will meet this winter and in more than 30 of them an organized drive is to be made for repeal of material modification of existing laws providing for the direct nomination of candidates for office.

Vice President Dawes has struck the keynote of the campaign to do away with the direct primary. Gen. James G. Harbord, president of the Radio Corporation of America, is in the thick of the fight on the institution. The National Industrial council is organizing the attack by hundreds of industrial associations.

Beveridge Gets in Battle.

Equally valiant fighters are girding for the battle on a far flung front to preserve the direct primary and prevent return to the convention system of nominations. In the forefront of the army of defense are such men as former Senator Albert Beveridge of Indiana, Senator Borah of Idaho, Senator Johnson of California and Senator La Follette of Wisconsin. The American Federation of Labor, the Anti-Saloon league, the National League of Women Voters and the People's Legislative Service are exerting their influence to defeat repeal or modification of the direct primary laws.

Forty-five states adopted direct primary laws between 1890 and 1910. Connecticut, Rhode Island and New Mexico were the exceptions. New York and Idaho have partially repealed their direct primary laws in recent years and in many other states the laws have been materially modified.

The foremost objection to the direct method of nomination has always been that it lowers party responsibility, makes party leadership difficult or impossible and breaks down party control, thus exerting tendencies in opposition to the whole theory of party government. If a candidate is to owe his nomination, which amounts to election in many states, principally to his own effort, it is obvious that he will be less amenable to party discipline and may be a less consistent supporter of party measures.

By most of the supporters of the primary system it is admitted that direct nomination lowers party responsibility and tends to lessen party spirit, but in this they see an argument for its retention rather than its repeal.

Coupled with the argument based upon the lightness of the vote in the primaries is the argument that direct nominations impose an unjustifiable expense upon the states.

That the primary system is expensive to the states is not denied by its supporters, but they answer that expenditures for democratic operation of government are to be regarded as sound investments rather than burdensome outlays.

Call Primary Expensive.

It is generally, although not universally, admitted by the defenders of the primary that it imposes greater expenses upon the candidates and their supporters than the old convention system.

The remedy for excessive campaign expenditures is believed by the advocates of the primary system to lie not in the repeal of the primary but in the enactment of stringent corrupt practices acts.

That the rich man has an advantage over the poor man under the primary system is acknowledged by most of its defenders, but they assert that no system can be devised under which this rule will not apply.

An outstanding objection to the primary system, the validity of which is admitted by most of its supporters, is that it produces a ballot which is frequently of such unreasonable length as to make intelligent voting impossible.

Qualifications of Candidates.

"The most plausible argument advanced against the present primary law," said Gov. Dixon of Montana in his annual message of 1921, "is that the voters cannot know the personal qualifications of the long list of candidates for the various minor offices."

To meet this objection it has been proposed that it be made more difficult for candidates to participate in the primary, thus to save crowding the ballot with publicity seekers. It has been suggested that the law might require the filing of a petition, the length of which could be changed as experience might dictate before a candidate's name could appear on the ballot. A more effective remedy, often proposed, would be the adoption of the short ballot.

See Short Ballot as Remedy.

The short ballot, under which only the governor, members of the state and national legislatures and one or two county officials would be chosen at one time, thus permitting the voters to focus attention on the significant offices to be filled, requires the adoption of several other reforms before it can be put into effect. It implies a thoroughgoing administrative consolidation and reorganization, both of state and county governments, and the development and adoption of practical civil service tests to govern appointments to all the no-policy-determining offices which would cease to be elective.

The adoption of the short ballot, in the absence of a sound merit system of appointment, would materially strengthen the power of the machine politician who gained control of the increased patronage.

FOREMAN BANKS CELEBRATE 65TH YEAR IN BUSINESS

The Foreman banks yesterday informally celebrated the sixty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the institution. It was on Jan. 25, 1862, that Gerhard Foreman established his private bank that has grown into the present Foreman National bank and the Foreman Trust and Savings bank, with combined deposits of $100,905,740.

The first bank was operated as a private institution until Jan. 25, 1897, when it was incorporated as a state bank with Edwin G. Foreman as president. On Jan. 25, 1922, it celebrated the sixtieth year of its existence and its twenty-fifth year as a state bank. This celebration was a memorable event in Chicago financial circles.

The following year, on July 2, the Foreman National bank was organized and the Foreman Bros. Banking company changed to the Foreman Trust and Savings bank. The combined deposits then were $60,707,947. Thus the gains in deposits in less than four years were more than $40,000,000.

INSULL CASH NO BAR TO SENATE, SMITH ARGUES

fore the privileges and elections committee. This motion was adopted.

The Smith counsel took exception to this course. They contended that any charges growing out of the Illinois primary are not pertinent to the question of the right of Mr. Smith to fill the McKinley vacancy by appointment. In the first place they argued what took place in the primary is pertinent, if at all, to the right of Mr. Smith to a seat in the next congress by election. Even that they would not concede, however, on the theory that the primary is not a part of the election and therefore outside the jurisdiction of congress.

Their second argument was that charges growing out of the primary involve an issue of moral disqualification of which the senate cannot legally take cognizance.

Adjourn Hearing for Week.

Mr. Beck informed the committee that he would like to argue these questions at length and would like a week in which to prepare. He said that there is no more important question before the country today than that presented in the Smith case. The subcommittee thereupon adjourned the hearing until next Saturday.

The Smith counsel said their program is to seek the exclusion of the Reed committee testimony and the entire question of the primary campaign funds from the consideration by the privileges and elections committee of the right of the Illinois claimant to a seat under his appointment. If they fail in that endeavor they will submit evidence to combat the Reed committee findings.

If the committee should decide to hear testimony on the slush fund charges it would be impossible to dispose of the Smith case before March 4, when his commission by appointment will expire. Even if the inquiry should be limited as proposed by the Smith counsel, the session would be close to an end before the senate could decide the matter.

The battle in the senate on Wednesday and Thursday was over the prima facie right of Smith to take the oath of office. If the matter comes before the senate again this session the question will be the right of the senate to exclude a person on moral or other grounds not specified in the constitution.

Same Question in Gould Case.

The same question is involved in the move to exclude Senator Gould [Rep., Me.] on the ground that he bribed a Canadian official eight years ago. The charges against Mr. Gould are pending in the privileges and elections committee which will hear arguments on Monday on the question of the right to exclude on moral grounds. Whether the senate will pass on this question in the Gould case before the Smith case comes again to the floor is problematical. The senate might find the charges against Gould not proved and drop the proceedings without passing on the constitution question.

Considerable commotion in the Democratic cloak room of the senate was caused by a report that Gov. Small of Illinois is contemplating appointing Ed Wright or some other negro to fill the McKinley vacancy now that Smith has been barred from a [illegible] Senators Blease [Dem., S. C.], [illegible] [Dem., S. C.], and Overman [Dem., N. C.], voted to allow Smith to qualify on the ground that the senate has no right to withhold the oath from a preson presenting authentic credentials.

Southerners Are Agitated.

The question raised in the cloak room was whether these southern Democrats would, with equal enthusiasm, champion the right of a negro to qualify as senator and what attitude would be assumed by Democrats in border states with large numbers of negro voters. One southern Democrat approached an Illinois man in considerable agitation and inquired:

"Can theah possibly be any truth in the repoht, suh, that Gov. Small is going to appoint a niggah to the senate?"

The southerner was assured that the report appeared to be without foundation.

NEW INQUIRY OF IOWA MYSTERY IS INSTITUTED

Body of Elrod Will Be Exhumed.

Marshalltown, Ia., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—With the death of Charles Elrod, 28 year old electrician of Lewellen, Neb., as much a mystery as it was when his body was found in a Marshalltown hotel room three weeks ago, officials prepared today to retrace their steps and begin anew their investigation.

Roy L. Pell, county attorney, filed with the state board of health today a request for an order permitting authorities to exhume Elrod's body and send it to the state laboratories at Iowa City for examination by medical and chemical experts in another attempt to learn what caused Elrod's death.

Bar Girl from School.

Meanwhile the ruins of the dream castle which Elrod's nineteen year old sweetheart, Veda Bellefeuille, had erected continued to tumble down about her ears. The girl whose romancing inspired by the reading of "Love Story" magazines had created a phantom lover who never existed in order to endear herself to Elrod and to test his affection was asked today by school officials not to return to school at least for the present. Veda was a senior in high school and would have graduated this year.

With scientific opinion divided over the cause of Elrod's death and with little definite evidence on either side the second examination of the man's body was decided upon today by the county attorney, Judge B. O. Tankersley, the acting coroner, and George Atkins, agent of the state bureau of investigation.

Dean Wilbur J. Teeters of the University of Iowa college of pharmacy, who made an exhaustive analysis of Elrod's viscera for the coroner, reported that he had found no trace of poison.

Doctors Call It Poison.

On the other hand Dr. W. W. Southwick, the coroner's physician, and Dr. J. J. Noonan who assisted him, believe that the stomach congestion together with the symptoms described by Elrod in his death note indicate poisoning, possibly by arsenic. They also attach significance to the presence of a blood spot on Elrod's pillow which Dr. Noonan believes came from the dead man's tongue bitten in the death agony.

The difference of scientific opinion has resulted in the application to exhume the body in order that pathologists and toxicologists may make a more complete examination.

DENIED CLEMENCY

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

CLEMENCY DENIED CAR BARN BANDIT; GIRLS WIN DELAY

Clemency for Ernest DeLavergne, 21 years old, the lone male survivor of the sensational attempt last August to hold up the Noble street car barns of the surface lines, was denied yesterday by Judge Emanuel Eller in the Criminal court when he ordered the youth taken to Pontiac reformatory to serve a term of 1 to 14 years.

Findings of guilty were made on the pleas of Gladys Moody, 18, and Frances Quinn, 19, and an application for probation was continued until next Saturday. The judge, however, gave no intimation as to what his attitude would be on the plea for liberty for the girls, who confessed to the police, but denied yesterday on the witness stand that they knew what their companions were going out to do and that they took an active part in the crime by driving the bandit car.

The mother of De Lavergne fainted when Policeman Daniel F. Healy of the detective bureau testified how the police ambushed the bandits and killed her other son, Joseph De Lavergne. William Maloney, another of the bandits, was killed at the same time.

TO GRAND JURY ON CHECK CHARGE.

Charles O'Neil, 43 years old, was held to grand jury yesterday in bonds of $6,000. He attempted to cash a worthless check at a loop department store, it is charged.

SHEPHERD SUES AGAIN TO CONTROL BILLY'S MILLION

McClintock Relatives May Renew Fight.

After Probate Judge Henry Horner had ordered the will of William N. McClintock admitted to probate yesterday, William Darling Shepherd, guardian of the millionaire orphan, filed a petition asking that he be made executor of the estate.

Young McClintock, whose sudden death caused an investigation which resulted in the trial of Shepherd on charges of murder by typhoid germs and his subsequent acquittal, left his $1,000,000 estate to his guardian, with the exception of a trust fund bequeathed to his fiancée, Miss Isabelle Pope.

Lose First Fight on Will.

Relatives and Miss Pope contested admission of the will to probate, but the Illinois Supreme court finally decided that the will should be probated.

Judge Horner's order makes the legal status of the case such that the relatives now may file a suit in chancery to break the will on the grounds that it was drawn up at Shepherd's dictation. Such a suit will be filed soon, it was said.

Wants Transfer of Property.

Shepherd's petition to be made executor also contained a request that the property of the estate be transferred from the Northern Trust company to the Union Bank of Chicago and that he be required to furnish only a personal bond.

Action was deferred by Judge Horner until personal attorneys representing Miss Pope and the relatives may be present. The hearing was continued to Feb. 5.

GEORGE EHRAT, EX-CHICAGOAN, SHOT IN WEST

Pasadena, Cal., Jan. 22.—[U. P.]—George Ehrat, 70, wealthy retired business man of Chicago, today was shot and seriously injured by Nicholas Tuck, a former employé, who then attempted suicide by firing a bullet into his brain.

The two men had been friends for two years, and police started an investigation into the differences which led to the shooting. Tuck has been living with the Ehrat family for some months and was crazed with liquor when the shooting occurred, authorities were told.

YOUR furniture-buying opportunity is again at hand.

Our preparations for this great semi-annual event have been in progress for months. The manufacturers have been glad to co-operate with us. We go to them at their dull period; we confer with them as to the new designs, and present our own ideas for new models; we help them keep busy, when otherwise their operations would be much curtailed.

The result is that, for our sale, in addition to the merchandise which we have in our store, which is all comparatively new, fresh stock, we are able to offer a great wealth of entirely new things, just received from the makers' hands.

And there's this further advantage. We get furniture made on the latest, newest designs; even for a special sale, we offer advance patterns; wholly fresh ideas of our own and of the manufacturer's.

The prices on everything in the store are greatly reduced, especially for this sale.

CALIFORNIA MICE INVASION LAYS BARE 100 MILES

Rising of Old Lake Starts Migration.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Bakersfield, Cal., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—The overrunning of Kern county by myriads of mice continued today.

House cats, bobcats, hawks, crows, coyotes, and all natural enemies of the squeaking millions except man gave up their warfare on the mouse a day or two ago, leaving only man to work in his own behalf.

The mice have devastated 100 square miles of territory since they made their forays from a vast breeding ground in the drained bottom of Buena Vista lake last Thanksgiving day.

Hundreds of housewives have taken their children and left their homes until the vermin were turned away from Ford City, Maricopa, Fellows, McKittrick and Taft. These cities and settlements located to the west of Buena Lake bottom, were first to appeal for help from the mice. A month's fight was unable to keep the gray host back.

Dig Death Trenches.

The trenches in the anti-mouse warfare are now within twelve miles of Bakersfield. These trenches are dug by shovel or tractors. They are one and one-half feet deep and one and one-half to two feet across, with perpendicular sides. Poisoned grain is strewn in the bottom of the trenches. Most of the mice which are first to taste it never climb the far end. Six grains are calculated to kill a mouse. The computations allow for 1,000 dead mice to 75 feet of trench.

Until four years ago Buena Vista lake was a body of water expanded by overflow from the Kern river, which was sixteen miles long and ten or twelve across in its greatest width. Three years ago a construction company began to drain it and fill it in. Thousands of carp died as the waters receded, and the reclaimers smiled at the thought of the fine fertilizer.

As the lake bottom was filled and drained farmers—they call them ranchers out here—moved in to take advantage of the exceptionally rich soil. The Buena Vista lake bottom soon began to raise great crops of grain.

Longed-For Rain Invites Disaster.

Last fall the rain gods made good on a promise that the present winter season would be one of California's besought years of heavy watering. The bed of the old lake began to dampen in spots as the drainage from hundreds and hundreds of miles of mountain and foothill seeped down and gathered in the huge underground reservoir below the Buena bottoms.

Another heavy rain beat down on Thanksgiving day. It broke down the bottom's miles of grain stalks. Ranchers decided to ship in sheep to utilize the grain for grazing. When the sheep, thousands of them, arrived some days later, the grain was gone. Field mice, meadow mice and house mice by uncounted millions had come up out of burrows and had gorged on the grain.

Sweep On to New Fields.

The stamping sheep, the rising water, the gnawing of hunger sent the first waves of the mouse army on to new fields. Waves of millions at a time swept out of the lake bottoms. Millions more followed.

They began sweeping over the oil fields. They ate the oil workers out of their homes. Returning workers would find food, blankets, clothes, shoe leather gone in the maw of the mice. Even the wood of the oil shacks showed marks of teeth.

TAKE SEVEN DEAD FROM BUILDING RAZED BY BLAST

Six More Victims in Ruins at Toledo.

Toledo, O., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Seven known dead had been taken early tonight from the ruins of a two story brick building wrecked by a gas explosion in Point place, a suburb, at noon today. Five were reported injured. The dead included three women, two men, and a boy and a girl.

The first floor of the building was used for a pressing shop, a grocery store, and a barber shop. It is believed that several children may have been in the store and barber shop, and firemen were fearful that more bodies may be found at the bottom of the debris.

Two blasts were heard about thirty seconds apart. The building was demolished and other structures throughout the suburban district were rocked. The shock was felt in Bayview Park, two miles away.

A scene of confusion confronted those who raced to the spot. The smoking mass of brick, steel, and wood burst into flames before any one could enter it.

Firemen and ambulances were called but it was more than an hour before sufficient headway was made against the fire to permit any search for the victims.

No cause for the explosion had been found. The fact that gas had been turned on a few minutes before the blast led to a belief that a faulty connection might have been responsible, but it was said there were no gas stoves in the building.

DISCUSS UNION OF HOSPITAL AND U. C. TOMORROW

The details of the affiliation between the Chicago Lying-in hospital and the University of Chicago will be discussed at a meeting to be held at the Studebaker theater tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

George E. Vincent, president of the Rockefeller foundation; Dr. Max Mason, president of the University of Chicago, and Dr. J. B. De Lee of the Lying-in hospital will speak about the project.

The public is urgently invited to attend this meeting. To effect the affiliation, according to medical authorities, is to greatly strengthen and broaden lying-in hospital work and facilities in Chicago. The importance of this movement to all the people of this region will be emphasized by the speakers.

CHINA AND FOREIGN POWERS.

Mr. Eugene Chen, secretary of foreign affairs for the Cantonese government, summarizes for the London Express the Chinese intellectuals' view of the Chinese situation. He says that in consequence of the British military intervention and victories in the opium wars the British "imposed a system of invisible conquest in the form of a régime of international control known as the reign of imperialism. The typical features of this régime are expressed in British controlled Chinese customs, extraterritoriality, alien administered settlements, the concession consortium and other limitations on Chinese sovereignty contained in the general body of unequal treaties."

As accepted by our liberal minded, this summary presents an indictment of imperialism upon which all foreign nations with interests in or relations with China must at once plead guilty and follow up the plea with an immediate surrender of all rights. It is an indictment which is directed by Mr. Chen primarily against the British, but it is against Americans and others also.

Such of us as are disposed to understand the situation will do well to realize that Mr. Chen is an advocate or rather a prosecutor and therefore not concerned with bringing out the defense. When he complains of British control of customs he does not intimate that foreign loans needed by China, contracted by the government of China, and expended by that government in China for Chinese purposes, would never have been made unless some better assurance of repayment could be devised than Chinese official methods and morale could offer. The Chinese government or its agents and beneficiaries got foreign money only because they consented to have the customs placed under British control, a control, by the way, which no responsible Chinese would presume to allege is anything but capable and strictly honest. Under this British control Chinese revenue which would have been absorbed by greedy Chinese officials has been in part paid upon the loans and in part expended by the Chinese government.

Mr. Chen does not say how the foreign concessions arose or what they have done for China and the Chinese. They are in fact concessions of Chinese sovereignty without which foreigners could not live and carry on their affairs with any such measure of security and justice as they enjoy at home or in any other foreign lands. The alternative was keeping out of China. Probably some pressure was brought to bear on Chinese authority to induce it to permit foreigners to live in China and for such privileges and concessions as would permit them to live there. But China and the Chinese obtained advantages from foreign enterprise and this undoubtedly had much to do with the so-called unequal treaties and foreign concessions. In fact, while some wrongs were committed and some corrections may fairly be demanded, even Chinese intellectuals will own that China is by no means ready for the abolition of what Mr. Chen calls the régime of foreign imperialism. Naturally, in the struggle going on among the Chinese political and military leaders, there is a desire to get control of all existing resources of revenue, and it is this desire, not any wrongs to be honestly ascribed to foreign control, that actuates their demand for its abolition. With Chinese control foreign loans would have no protection, for the revenues would be used at once by whatever faction could control them for its own benefit.

We can see no moral justification for the abolition of foreign control of Chinese customs revenue, the sources of which are foreign trade, unless and until Mr. Chen and his associates or some other Chinese authority can give assurance that money lawfully loaned or invested or rights lawfully acquired in China will be given protection.

So far as the tariff is concerned, the foreign governments have offered to agree to increases as soon as a government which the Chinese generally recognize and support is created. The recent conference at Peking failed solely because the foreign representatives were unable to find such a government.

As a matter of fact, the responsible Chinese will admit that the major difficulties in China are domestic and not foreign. The outcry against foreign exploitation is very largely domestic politics, and it is a dangerous device. It directs Chinese thought toward a corollary of the Chinese problem and not to its basic factors. It breeds mob violence and postpones rearrangements with foreign interests, which they are willing and even anxious to make. The chief trouble with China is civil war, and if this is in any degree encouraged by foreign intrigue the Chinese themselves are chiefly to blame for its success. If the Chinese factional leaders will stop trying to destroy one another, will place the fundamental interests of China above their own ambition for wealth and power, will make it possible to trust one another and compromise their selfish claims, a régime of order and responsibility might be established with which it would be possible for foreign governments and nationals to treat.

Such a régime would be capable of protecting the legitimate interests of China and the Chinese people, and even though foreign demands might be in some cases unfair or excessive, it could effectively refuse them and compel the establishment of such relations as exist among other responsible nations. We think it would have better fortune. We think that the United States at any rate would act with justice and generosity, as it has conspicuously in the past, in correcting such conditions as may not be fair or conducive to Chinese progress and prosperity. We think Great Britain is now ready and anxious to go a long way toward meeting Chinese demands, and it is obviously the interest of Japan to come to a fair arrangement on all points with any government of China which represents responsibility and the will of the Chinese people.

But the foreign powers cannot treat with chaos. That is the first fact with which the Chinese ruling class or leadership must deal. Mr. Chen's statement is fundamentally impractical, if not insincere, in ignoring it.

A NATIONAL ASSET.

Testimony in the suit over the Lake Michigan diversion has shown that the water is needed for a successful Mississippi waterway and is not needed for maintaining the levels of the lakes. Inexpensive compensating works can be built which will raise the lakes to any level desired, but the engineers know no way to make the Mississippi route successful without the diversion.

Clearly, then, the diversion is needed to enable the nation to take advantage of one of its greatest natural resources. As Secretary Hoover has pointed out, the nation can easily provide itself with a water transportation system linking Chicago, New Orleans, Kansas City and Pittsburgh. It cannot obtain a railroad of equal usefulness for many times the cost of the waterway. The river system can become one of our great national assets, the complement to our ore and coal deposits, our wheat and corn fields. The operation of the waterway cannot fail to add to the national wealth by saving much of the cost of transportation. The waterway will ease the pressure on railroad terminals, already congested and certain, within a few years, to become much more so.

Some of the states which are fighting the diversion are doing so in the belief that the Mississippi waterway will divert their business to other regions. New York is said to be somewhat alarmed at the advantages which will accrue to New Orleans when the waterway is functioning. That is the argument of timidity. Experience has shown that the development of great natural resources, wherever placed, have benefited the country as a whole. We no longer think that one city grows by sucking the life-blood from another. The growth of the lake cities as steelmakers has not put Pittsburgh out of business. On the contrary, the last figures we saw showed Pittsburgh making more steel than at any time in her history. An increase in the wealth of one section results in the enrichment of all sections of a nation like ours. The gulf waterway today will benefit the whole nation just as the Union Pacific railroad enriched all sections and thereby merited national support.

SAVING THE OLD SHIP.

President Coolidge has bought a picture of the frigate Constitution for twenty-five cents. The lithographs have been printed, 4,000,000 of them, to be sold and thus complete the fund necessary for the preservation of the old warship. It was once saved by a poem. Now it needs saving again and is to be saved by pictures. The school children already have raised $270,000. The navy department is anxious to preserve the ship and keep it in condition as an inspiration. It is a part of the country's heritage, but the best congress has done is to grant permission to raise the money.

The navy is having hard enough work to keep the fleet up to requirements and does not dare ask for an appropriation to save a famous bit of the past. Any one who will buy a picture of the frigate will give his bit to its preservation. The United States is not very careful of its historic relics, but they are the vestiges of national continuity.

FOOTBALL SCHOLARSHIPS.

[New York World.]

The revelations made by Dr. Homer E. Wark, president of West Virginia Wesleyan college, in regard to consideration given to football players are of interest chiefly because they reflect a condition widespread among the smaller colleges. This place has thirty teachers and 350 students. Dr. Wark, one judges, has only recently become president. And when he took command he found that he was confronted by a football problem that had to be solved before any others could be tackled at all.

The players, in all essential respects, were hired. They did not receive money, but they received tuition, room rent, books, food, remission of fees, etc., to the amount of $500 a year apiece. Thus, in so small a place, a heavy burden was placed on the exchequer. Enough to pay a professor or two was involved in the arrangement, and in addition, scholastic standards must have suffered, and the shadow of snide athletics cast all over the campus. So now he appeals to the alumni for support of a program to clean house.

Will he get it? That remains to be seen. One recalls an identical situation recently, at a Maryland college, where the president found that he simply could not balance his books with the onus of a hired football team around his neck. So the hired team went. But before it went there was such a battle with those alumni who boasted college spirit that the place was almost wrecked. Football, it cannot be denied, presents a big problem to American education, whether in the big places that take in a half million dollars for the season, or the small places which take in hardly anything for the season, but which yet have alumni vain enough to desire a winning team. What are we going to do about it? It is a wise man who can prescribe a cure.

GET THIS RIGHT.

Tony, having his second son christened, was much concerned about getting the correct name on the birth certificate.

"Will you please nama da baby just a same I give you?"

"Surely," answered the minister; "why shouldn't I?"

"Well, you see, when I tella you my firsta boy I want heeza name Tom you writa 'Thomas' on heeza paper. I want deeza boy named Jack."—Capper's Weekly.

THE CAREFUL ARMY.

A colonel was transferred to a new command. On reaching his depot he found stacks of useless documents accumulated in the archives by his predecessors, so he wired to headquarters for permission to burn them.

The answer came back: "Yes, but make copies first."—Detroit News.

A GOOD HEALTH CODE.

E. E. P. sends in this health code:
Keep your head cool,
Your heart and feet warm,
Your stomach clean and sweet,
And all your channels open.

E. E. P. writes that this health code was given to him by his grandfather sixty-six years ago. The writer is now living on borrowed time. He is in good condition. He says he has followed this code and finds it works for health.

The first item obviously refers to mental hygiene. People who live in the tropics know the need of protecting the head against hot sunlight, but E. E. P. and his grandfather have lived their lives in rather cold climates. I presume that they meant to say that one should avoid emotional outbursts and especially frenzies of anger. We know a little about how the system is flooded by certain ductless gland secretions by frenzies. Perhaps there are other gland secretions which are dammed back by the same kind of an outbreak. It would be fair to assume that "keep your head cool" embraced living the laws of mental hygiene in their many ramifications. The advice is good.

"Keep your heart warm" means that it is inadvisable to get out of sympathy with those around you. You will be happier if you keep up some comradeship with people—neighbors, associates, and fellow craftsmen. The article of the code refers to what might be called social hygiene and is again related to mental hygiene.

"Keep your feet warm" refers to the dangers of exposure to inclement weather. Chilling of any part of the body alters the distribution of blood to all other parts of the body. Careful studies have shown that chilling the hands alters the temperature in the air passages.

Just how this affects infections with the bacteria of colds and pneumonia is a matter concerning which there is much controversy just now. Just what will come out of this controversy remains to be seen. But it is a safe bet that when the smoke of battle clears it will be found that "keep your feet warm" is still good advice.

"Keep your stomach clean and sweet" means that indigestion should be avoided. However, it means something more than that. It means there should be temperance in eating and drinking. No Thanksgiving gorges or Christmas excesses. Sensible eating as to quantity and quality. Avoidance of all those infections of the liver, gall bladder, and appendix which commonly go by such names as dyspepsia, acid stomach, gas on the stomach, and indigestion.

"Keep all your channels open" refers to the channels of excretion. These are the skin, the lungs, the kidneys, and the bowels. The reference is to the advantage of certain good habits and the disadvantage of certain bad habits. This advice falls in the realm of personal hygiene and bodily hygiene as distinguished from mental hygiene.

CAUSE OF BLUE BABIES.

Mrs. A. L. writes: 1. I have heard many discussions concerning blue babies. Are there really any born?
2. What is the cause?
3. Is there any cure for them?

REPLY.

1. Yes.
2. The wall between the right and left hearts fails to close.
3. Some cases get well. Some survive in spite of the defect. There is no cure, properly speaking.

HOT WATER BOTTLE HABIT.

L. K. writes: Some one advised me that it was very unhealthy to sleep with a hot water bottle at the feet. Will you please tell me whether or not this is true. I cannot sleep during the winter months without one.

REPLY.

The only objection to it is just the one you have found. You get the habit and that is inconvenient and at times a little worse.

What do you do when you are separated from your little brown jug?

BIDS ON PROPERTY.

Chicago, Jan. 9.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—1. When property is sold through the Probate court, can any one bid on it at any price or is it appraised by the court?

2. If the property is valued at $5,000, and a person bids on it only $1,000 and is the highest bidder, will he get the property or must the price bid be as much or more than the appraised value?
C. E. A.

1. Depends upon the nature of the property and upon the wording of the order under which the sale is made.

2. If there has been an appraisal for the purpose of the sale it seems probable that other facts are such that the sale must produce a stated amount. The attorney handling the sale will know these facts so as to be in a better position to advise you than we are.
TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

READ THE INSTRUCTIONS.

Bellwood, Ill., Jan. 13.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Please settle this argument, which I have heard so often. Is it necessary to file income tax returns or register each year if the party's income is below the taxable amount? If necessary, and party does not file, what is the penalty?
J. P.

He is under no obligation to file a return if he is exempt when only taking into account the personal exemption, but if he claims exemption for dependents he should file a return. Read the printed instructions accompanying the return.
TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FORGETS TO PAY FEE.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Last May I bought a car, and, as it was the same make and horsepower as my old car, I just took the license plates from the old car and transferred them to this other. I fully intended to notify the authorities at Springfield of the transaction, but just neglected to do so. I had no intention of defrauding the state of the fee.

Will a sworn statement to this effect, with the dollar fee, be accepted by the state when I apply for my 1927 license?
S. C. T.

We see no reason why it should not be accepted, but we are not in a position to say what the secretary of state will do.

THINKING THROUGH THE IMPLICATIONS OF DIVINE LOVE

BY THE REV. ARTHUR E. HOLT, PH. D.

[Professor of Social Ethics in the Chicago Congregational Theological Seminary.]

We are concluding in Chicago today a series of meetings dealing with industrial relations which have quite broadly covered the city. The meetings have been held in churches, theaters, halls, and in smaller groups. We have considered for the first time in our industrial week conferences the relation of the farmer as well as the manufacturer and business man to industry. Some of the most expert leaders of America and England have taken part in the conferences. What is it all about? Whatever may have been the discordant theories advocated by individuals, the main purpose of all the meetings has been to answer the question, "Has the church a message for industry?" We believe it has such a message, and the hope of this writing is to express its motive and ideal.

We are well aware some persons consider this is a distortion of the mission of the church. It is affirmed by dealing with industrial questions the church is invading politics and by so much is dealing with questions beyond its province. Let it not be forgotten, however, that the church itself is an organization which deals in money transactions involving millions of dollars. In its missionary, benevolent, publishing, church and college erection work it faces squarely the industrial questions. It deals in terms of money. Must the church, then, never ask where its money comes from? Must it never inquire whether the poor are given a fair wage or whether the rich acquire their wealth by oppression and unfair dealing? We cannot escape the question if we could.

It is the minister's business to preach what he finds in the Bible. Suppose, therefore, he takes as his text, "So is he that layeth up treasure for himself and is not rich towards God" (Luke xii., 21), or "For the love of money is the root of all evil" (I. Tim. vi., 10), or "How much, then, is a man better than a sheep?" (Mat. xii., 12). How can he avoid dealing with principles which have a bearing upon economics and industry?

The church seeks to avoid partisanship. It recognizes, however, if it is ever to bring in the kingdom of God on earth there must be coöperation, rather than antagonism.

It was not a church man but an eminent economist of a great university who has recently written in his book, "Social Control of Business," the statement: "The relation of religion to social control has been and is important. The modern Protestant church faces the hardest task of all—it must make men generally unselfish from within."

The great moral judgments are comparatively simple. They are not the result of consideration of utility; they demand not an advanced technical knowledge, but a faith in the dignity and worth of men, a belief that the other fellow feels as you do. The crisis in the application of the golden rule is not a crisis of the intellect but of the heart.

About two hundred years ago in the little village of Northhampton, N. J., there was born a man by the name of John Woolman. A boy of moderate intelligence, at the age of seven he began to be acquainted with the operation of divine love. Now, the interesting fact about John Woolman was that he insisted that this divine love in his heart was his most precious possession and that it had implications for all of his life. Whenever for any reason he failed to honor its promptings he found that he lost it and it left him uneasy and disturbed. On the other hand, he found that acting contrary to present outward interest from a motive of divine love and in regard to truth and righteousness opens the way to a treasure better than silver and to a friendship exceeding the friendship of men.

Thinking through the implications of divine love made John Woolman do some rather strange deeds. It made him first of all sensitive to the welfare of the slaves. There was nothing especially learned in his judgment about slaves and slavery. His judgment was not reached by the new statistical methods. It was based entirely upon the simple assumption that the slave was a fellow being like himself in his likes and dislikes. He used his imagination on how it must feel to be a slave. After doing so he decided he wouldn't write any more wills in which men handed on their slaves to their children. He decided he didn't care to accept hospitality which was built upon oppression of black men. He went about among his Quaker friends urging upon them slavery was wrong and that as good Quakers they should free their slaves. Twenty years after John Woolman's death the practice of slavery had ceased in the Society of Friends.

But John Woolman's experience of divine love made him sensitive to the welfare of other people. When he went to Europe he rode in the steerage and wrote, "I believe a communication with different parts of the world by sea is at times consistent with the will of our heavenly Father, and to educate our youth in the practice of sailing I believe may be right, but how impure are the channels through which trade is conducted! How great is the danger to which poor lads are exposed when placed on shipboard to learn the art of sailing!" In a similar way his sympathy went out to the Indians. He looked upon the Indian as a fellow being like himself and he rejoiced when he had fellowship with him.

No one denies that there is a technical side to all social organization where leadership must be in the hands of the scientist and engineer. But there is another side just as important, and here leadership still lies in the hands of the minister. Progress waits until religion can reawaken in the lives of thousands of men that social sympathy which was in the heart of John Woolman.

Few of us realize how pagan are the basic ideas on which modern life is trying to build and how futile the attempt is sure to be. An industry must be technically right, but it is just as necessary for an industry or a state to be morally right, Benjamin Kidd wrote in 1918.

"The pagan man is the man whose standard of right does not extend beyond his own interests.

"The pagan state is the state whose standard of right does not extend beyond its own interests."

The inevitable fruit of such operating principles will be in the future as in the past: society will break down through its own self-generated strife and class hatreds.

The church believes it has a contribution to make to a permanent civilization alongside of the social engineer, and if it does not make it all of us will be the losers. Its contribution is to create in the people who are in industry and politics the will for the good which makes them sensitive to moral issues wherever found, and it must then, like John Woolman, think through the implications of divine love in terms of the social organization in which men must live.

Now, if the religious man has a contribution to make to industry and the state he has the right to suggest changes in motive and changes in the organization of industry. We have too easily assumed that the only man who has the right to suggest changes in the organization of industry is the man who is interested in its efficiency from the standpoint of production. But the test of industry from the standpoint of the church is to be measured by the development of the people who are engaged in it. When the church, therefore, finds that conditions in industry inevitably work for the injury of the people who are doing the work it claims the right to criticize both the motives and the organization of the ongoing business world.

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 23, 1862.

WASHINGTON.—Senator Wade introduced a bill authorizing the President, when in his judgment the public safety requires, to take possession of telegraph and railroad lines.

WASHINGTON.—Judge Swayne of Ohio was appointed to the Supreme court bench, in the place of Judge McLean, deceased.

CHICAGO.—Gerhard Foreman announced that on Jan. 25 he will open a new bank in Chicago.

FREDERICK.—Latest reports from western Virginia are that Jackson, with 17,000 rebels, is at Romney and partially occupies the town, while Lander has fallen back a few miles toward Cumberland.

LOUISVILLE.—Gen. Thomas reports the federal loss in the battle near Somerset at 39 killed and 127 wounded. The rebel loss in addition to Gen. Zollicoffer, who was killed, is 114 dead, 116 wounded, and 45 taken prisoners. Gen. Thomas is now across the Cumberland river in pursuit of the rebels.

WASHINGTON.—A general order was issued by Secretary of War Stanton complimenting the officers and soldiers on the result of the battle at Mill Spring, near Somerset, Ky.

CHICAGO.—An immense assemblage gathered at the Tremont house to pay their respects to Gen. Lane, the rebellion crusher. From early morning until late at night the procession moved through the hotel to see the distinguished soldier.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

LONDON.—The first anniversary of the death of Queen Victoria and the accession of King Edward was celebrated. The royal borough of Windsor was in mourning for the late sovereign, while at the same time the church bells hailed the accession day of the present monarch.

CHICAGO.—J. Pierpont Morgan and other New York capitalists have secured a large block of stock in the Commercial National bank of this city. President James H. Eckels of the bank returned to Chicago from New York and confirmed a report that he had placed the stock with Mr. Morgan.

CHICAGO.—A committee of three members of the board of athletic control of Northwestern university appointed to investigate the football coach question will report in favor of retaining Dr. Hollister for another year.

CHICAGO.—Prof. Charles W. Pearson is ready to resign from the faculty of Northwestern university if an investigation shows that he stepped over the limits of propriety in questioning the infallibility of the Bible.

CHICAGO.—That the traction cable is antiquated and must be replaced by modern systems of motor power, preferably the underground trolley, is the conclusion presented to Mayor Harrison by Engineer Ericson after an exhaustive examination of the cable line plants.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 23, 1917.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—President Wilson, addressing the senate, gave to the world an outline of the only terms on which he believes the European belligerents can conclude a lasting peace and of the condition on which the United States, in his opinion, would join a league of nations to enforce peace. The Monroe Doctrine and freedom of the seas for all lands were asked. It developed that he sent the address abroad a week ago. Allied circles were much wrought up over the speech, their feelings hovering between doubt regarding just what he meant and resentment at alleged pro-German phrases in the speech.

WAR NEWS.—Berlin reports distress signals from a British transport, carrying 1,800 men in the English channel. The Germans were beaten off in two attacks on trenches northeast of Caurieres woods, near Verdun. A Russian submarine sank ten Turkish vessels in the Black sea.

CHICAGO.—Friends of Miss Roxana Wentworth, granddaughter of "Long John" Wentworth, once mayor of Chicago, received news of her engagement to William Stephen Van Rensselaer, scion of one of the oldest families in New York.

IN DEFENSE OF CHARLIE.

Jackson, Mich., Jan. 14.—Tonight, as I was putting my four year old son to bed, I remarked wearily that I had shoveled so much snow today that I could feel myself growing long, white fur. He stroked my arm and examined my neck and asked "where?" Then he said, with a reminiscent twinkle, "maybe Charlie will come tomorrow to shovel snow for you." I knew he was thinking of the Charlie of "The Gold Rush." I, too, have been thinking today of Charlie. He has always held a tremendous appeal for me, the appeal of a brave, forlorn small boy—that and the appeal of laughter. My earliest memory of him (I think I was 12) is of his carefully measuring the ingredients of a chocolate malted milk into a shaker and then, holding the shaker firmly steady, shaking himself. I think I had to be carried out.

I still enjoy his clowning but now I see other things in his pictures. I shall never forget his New Year's Eve party in "The Gold Rush." The dear thoughtfulness of that pathetic little man, not trying to be a social success, just trying with all his heart to give his friends a happy evening. Those poor little gifts! What an exquisite blending of tears and chuckles that scene gave me.

Of course the Charlie Chaplin of "The Gold Rush" is not the real Charlie Chaplin, although he does originate those bits. But can he be the fiend we are asked to believe him to be? Perhaps, in his unbelievably wretched childhood, he learned all the evil in the world, but we do not have to judge him. He has never used his early life as a bid for sympathy. Rather, he has tried to keep it from being known. He detests pity.

He is not to be judged by conventional standards. I, who am conventional, say that, but I can not sit passive and see some one who means so much to me, ruined by greediness and vindictiveness. A girl can hate a man who has wronged her, but she need not cross all the boundaries of honor in telling on him. She may take her children and as much of his money as she can get (that is according to custom) but she need not blast him forever. One cannot imagine a more complete revenge. It is impossible to comprehend hatred like that. It reminds one of the Borgias or medieval torture chambers or Chinese third degrees.

Charles has a genius for getting himself in wrong. He is not capable of being diplomatic in a case like this—he will only antagonize every one by saying the wrong thing and too much of it. They are both in the wrong, but it all comes back to this: Charlie Chaplin is unique; he is, to me, adorable. We know him only on the screen, and there he is all he pretends to be. Why must we let his sins and his misfortunes spoil our enjoyment of his wonderful ability?

THE FIVE CENT INDIAN.

Chicago, Dec. 10.—Last summer, while I was at Many Glacier hotel in the Glacier National park an interpreter for the Indians who live near the hotel in summer introduced Chief Two Guns White Calf of the Blackfeet tribe, and told an interested group of tourists that the profile on the buffalo nickel was that of the chief. This was later verified by Morton J. Elrod, a naturalist, who has written several books on the northwest, who happened to be at the hotel that day. No one at the hotel doubted the story and the chief autographed many photographs that were purchased at the hotel news stand.

Recently I read an article by Robert G. Harper, a descendant of the Mohawk tribe, who says the honor is his, because he is a perfect specimen of the red man. He also says that his profile is on the Bok medal.

A few days ago I heard a speaker say that the profile on the nickel was that of old Chief Iron Tail of the Pueblo Indians of Arizona. I wonder if any of your readers know who really did pose for James Earle Fraser, the man who designed the nickel?

McCUTCHEON'S STREET CAR.

Chicago, Jan. 11.—In this morning's column a perturbed but tolerant subscriber asks when street cars of the flexible type pictured in McCutcheon's cartoon were invented. I hasten to assure the gentleman that such conveyances do not really exist. It may be of some comfort to him, however, to know that representatives of various civic organizations are coupling their efforts with those of the local authorities and the Society for the Prevention of Distorted Cartooning to fix the blame, and promise that the miscreant, if apprehended, will be severely punished.

ECONOMIC INTERPRETATION OF THE HAWK.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—I am an outdoor man myself and will admit that a chicken hawk can raise awful havoc in a poultry flock, and in that way is vermin, and should be destroyed. But in this case he is a blessing in disguise. I personally believe that all this rumpus was started by the Cleaners and Dyers' association and the peanut vending machine manufacturers.

BUT THERE'S NO OIL IN CHINA AND NICARAGUA.

Glen Ellyn, Ill., Jan. 13.—Apropos of United States affairs in Mexico, China and Nicaragua, I suggest that Stephen Decatur's declaration be amended to read as follows: "Our oilmen! In their intercourse with foreign nations may they always be right; but our oilmen, right or wrong." Then send an engraved copy to Secretary Kellogg so Nervous Nellie can hang it next to his large duck.

PASTOR NORRIS CONFIDENT JURY WILL FREE HIM

Prosecution Hopes for a Disagreement.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Austin, Tex., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Evidence was practically closed in the Rev. J. Frank Norris trial today.

Two more defense witnesses, who are riding through a Texas "norther," which struck this section last night, will be heard Monday, and then will come the arguments and the verdict, which is expected Tuesday night or Wednesday.

The state failed to present any witnesses of importance in rebuttal, and when court was adjourned today the Fort Worth evangelist was congratulated by many as though he had already been acquitted of the murder of Dexter E. Chipps last July.

It's All Right, Pastor Says.

"Everything will be all right—thank you," said Dr. Norris, as a long string of admirers stopped him by the judge's bench and forced him into an impromptu reception.

His face today had regained its calm, poised look and he seemed greatly relieved, refreshed, and confident.

The state is not making any predictions of conviction. A mistrial it is said in prosecution ranks is a probability—an ex-sheriff of the county and a few other men that the prosecutors like are not expected to give Dr. Norris a clean bill of health.

Attacks Woman's Testimony.

The defense today took a state witness and made a telling point against the evidence of Mrs. Roxier Parker, elderly Fort Worth widow, whose story of the killing takes away the plea of self-defense.

Miss Melba Bullock, a school teacher, was this witness. She was formerly a member of Dr. Norris' church and still attends there when in town. Her family are members and her sister plays one of the twin grand pianos on the stage where Dr. Norris preaches to great crowds.

Miss Bullock testified she had gone to the church office building about 4:20 o'clock on the afternoon of the killing to get some music for her sister.

Saw Two Young Men.

On the way she noticed two young men in garage coverall uniforms standing and looking intently at the office of building stairway.

These men it was shown were H. H. Rains, who testified he heard Norris say "I have killed me a man," and C. B. Rogers.

Miss Bullock heard some one running down and she saw two boys, one Carl Glaze, whom she knew.

They ran past her. She went on up and Dr. Norris was in the hall and said to her, "What can I do for you?" He seemed calm, polite, and courteous as usual, she said, yet at this moment, as she soon learned, the body of Chipps was in the pastor's office.

Secretary Also Calm.

The minister directed her to see his secretary, Miss Jane Hartwell, and she passed into the main office. Miss Hartwell, too, gave her no news of a shooting and looked as usual. They hunted for the music and then the girl sat in the office and watched. She felt something had happened, but did not know what. She sat where she could look into the ante-room, and also catch a glimpse into the study.

Soon the police came rushing up and she saw one of them go to the body of Chipps.

And the defense brought out that she had not seen any woman appear there. She had not met any woman on the stairs. Mrs. Parker had testified that after she heard Chipps say, "I'll be back" and saw Norris shoot him, she ran down the stairs and bumped into a small boy.

Many witnesses have discredited the widow's story and her testimony remains the chief issue for argument.

Rogers supported Rains' testimony. He said he met Rains coming down the stairs and Rains said to him, "Norris said he had killed him a man."

The defense brought out that Rogers and Rains had roomed together and that Rains had been seen talking with H. C. Meacham, mayor of Fort Worth, who remains the figure of mystery in this tragedy and who is known as an implacable enemy of the pastor.

Neither side called Meacham, although he had been subpoenaed. Neither side called Balaam, the Negro janitor, who saw the shooting.

WINS FORTUNE IN BUSINESS, THEN FAME AS U. S. HISTORIAN

Brookline, Mass., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—James Ford Rhodes, who won fame as a historian after he had won fortune as a business man, died here today.

Mr. Rhodes was born in Cleveland, O., seventy-eight years ago. He attended New York university and the University of Chicago, but was graduated from neither. He entered the business world in Cleveland and became a partner of the late Mark Hanna, his brother-in-law.

It was in 1898 when Mr. Rhodes began his great work, a history of the United States. That appeared at intervals until completed in 1920, and it won Mr. Rhodes a place as one of the highest authorities on American history. Other works by Mr. Rhodes were his "History of the Civil War," in one volume; his "Historical Essays," and a volume containing his lectures on the American civil war delivered at Oxford.

Dr. Rhodes received the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws from Harvard, Yale, Wisconsin, Princeton, California, Western Reserve and New York university, and that of Doctor of Literature from Oxford, Kenyon and Brown.

The Berlin academy of sciences awarded him the Loubat prize in 1901. The National Institute of Arts and Letters gave him its gold medal in 1910, and he won the Pulitzer prize for history in 1918.

RITES HELD FOR STANLEY CLAGUE, A. B. C. MANAGER

Funeral services for Stanley Clague, managing director of the Audit Bureau of Circulations, were held yesterday afternoon at St. Luke's church, Evanston. Services were conducted by the Rev. George Craig Stewart, pastor of the church, assisted by Dr. J. W. F. Davies of Winnetka. Burial was in Graceland cemetery.

Mr. Clague, who died on Thursday at his home, 819 Michigan avenue, Evanston, following a short illness, was one of the founders of the A. B. C. He had been managing director for ten years.

Death Takes Annie Nourse, Veteran Mission Worker

Miss Annie E. Nourse, 4436 North Hermitage avenue, sister of the late Benjamin F. and John A. Nourse of Chicago, and for more than 20 years connected officially with the mission work of the Congregational church, died on Friday. For 19 years Miss Nourse was secretary of literature of the woman's board of missions of the church. She also was active in the commission on interior missions. She is survived by several nephews and nieces. Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 1:30 p. m. in the chapel at 4227 Cottage Grove avenue.

"MAD EMPRESS" IS BURIED; ESCORTED BY HER TROOPS

BRUSSELS, Jan. 22.—(AP)—A score of Maximilian's legionaries—all that are left of the adventurous regiment that went to Mexico to fight for him in 1864—today followed their "empress," the tragic Charlotte, to her last rest.

The aged veterans, playing a sad part in the last scene of the opera-like story of the "mad empress" of Mexico, placed flowers on the huge casket in which Charlotte was carried to the crypt of the church at Laeken, the town in which she was born 86 years ago.

The veterans, headed by Gen. Mary, the lifelong friend of the former empress, gave its last salute as Charlotte's body was placed beside that of her brother, the late King Leopold II. of Belgium.

Huge crowds braved the cold and snow to follow the body of the beloved princess through the forest to Laeken, where public rites were held.

The first ceremony at the castle, which was private, was attended by King Albert, Charlotte's nephew; Queen Elizabeth, Crown Prince Leopold, state officials, and Charlotte's household servants. After this the coffin, covered with the Mexican and Belgian flags, was borne to Laeken under a cavalry escort.

B. W. SCHUMACHER, CHICAGO LAWYER, DIES IN FLORIDA

Attorney Bowen W. Schumacher, head of the firm of Schumacher & Murphy, with offices at 112 West Adams street, died on Friday at Captiva, Fla., where he had gone for the winter in the hope of regaining his health. He had practiced law in Chicago for more than thirty years.

Mr. Schumacher was born in Jackson, Mich., in 1859, and was graduated from the University of Michigan in 1885. He was a member of the Union League club, the Chicago Bar association, the Highland Park club, the Chicago Literary society, and Psi Upsilon fraternity.

Surviving are a son, Bowen E. Schumacher, and a daughter, Mrs. Catherine H. Gilroy, both of Highland Park. Mrs. Schumacher died in 1924.

The family home is at 188 Laurel avenue, Highland Park. Funeral services will be held at Jackson.

Dean F. T. Oldt, Noted Educator, Dies at Dubuque

Dubuque, Ia., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Dean Franklin T. Oldt, 74, of the College of Liberal Arts of the University of Dubuque, died suddenly last night. He had served as superintendent of schools at Lanark and Freeport, Ill., and Green Bay, Wis., before coming to Dubuque in 1895. He was a former president of the Northern Illinois and Iowa Teachers' association.

Brewster Davenport, U. S. Artist, Is Dead in Paris

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 22.—Brewster Davenport, an American artist and son of Dr. and Mrs. F. H. Davenport of Boston, died of pneumonia at his studio here. Mr. Davenport served in the A. E. F. The funeral services will be held at the American cathedral under the auspices of the American Legion.

Funeral services for Dr. Edward Wyllys Andrews, veteran Chicago surgeon, will be held at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow from the home of his son, Dr. Edmund Andrews, 561 Surf street. Burial in Graceland cemetery will be private. Dr. Andrews, who was 70 years old, died on Friday at the Churchill hotel, 1255 North State street, where he made his home.

PUBLISHER LEAVES $100,000 FUND FOR PASTORS' PENSIONS

Columbus, O., Jan. 22.—(AP)—One hundred thousand dollars of the personal estate of the late Robert F. Wolfe, Columbus publisher, will be used for the pensioning of retired Presbyterian ministers. The amount is bequeathed to the proposed $15,000,000 pension fund in the will, filed for probate today.

The will disposes of only the personal estate of the publisher. Several years ago trusts were created for the holding of his interest in both the Columbus Dispatch and the Ohio State Journal and of his share in manufacturing, banking, and other enterprises. All of these will be operated by trustees. No appraisal has been made.

Numerous bequests are made to relatives, friends, associates, employés, and servants, and the residue is left to Edgar T. Wolfe, his son.

LADY WIMBORNE, FAMED HOSTESS, DIES IN LONDON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Cornelia Henrietta Maria, baroness of Wimborne, and one of the greatest hostesses of the later Victorian era, died in London today, aged 79. Lady Wimborne was the eldest of the five daughters of the seventh duke of Marlborough—the famous Churchill sisters, as they are called. Lady Sarah Wilson is now the sole survivor of them.

Lady Wimborne was married in 1868 to the baron of Wimborne, the great iron master, who left her all his property, valued at millions. Lady Wimborne was equally famous as a hostess in her London Arlington street house, and in her country manor at Dorset.

The balls at the Wimborne house were features of the London social season during the nineties, being attended by princes and princesses and other royal personages.

It was here that Lady Wimborne instituted the fashion, at big dinners before a ball, of seating the guests at small, round tables rather than at one long table.

Anson Wood Burchard, Electric Magnate, Dies

New York, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Anson Wood Burchard, 62, vice chairman of the board of directors of the General Electric company and chairman of the board of the International General Electric company, died of acute indigestion at the home of Mortimer L. Schiff, financier, today. Mr. Burchard was stricken before the luncheon at the Schiff home was ended and died soon afterward.

E. P. Mitchell, 75, Former New York Sun Editor, Dies

New York, Jan. 22.—(AP)—E. P. Mitchell, 75, for many years editor of the New York Sun, died today at New London, Conn., after a long illness. He was born at Bath, Me., March 24, 1852, and began his newspaper career on the Boston Advertiser in 1871. He was continuously engaged in editorial work for the New York Sun from 1875 to 1921. From 1903 until 1920 he was editor in chief.

Who Leads in Funerals in Chicago?
Hursen, of Course!

There is always a reason why one institution leads all the rest. Also, the greater the distance between the Leader and those who tread behind, the more important and outstanding is the reason for this leadership.

Hursen, some years ago, burst suddenly into leadership when he launched his revolution in methods, manners, environment, service, quality, equipment, and in price, establishing a new code in the conduct of funerals which Chicago had never before experienced.

This statement is not made in boast. It is stated as a fact. It is history. Since the earlier days Hursen has led by a wide margin. He still leads, and by an ever increasing margin! He has never yet been successfully imitated! Today "Hursen's" is the largest, as well as the greatest, institution of its kind in America!

The reason for this was, and is, that Hursen gave, and gives today, every day, what the public had never before been permitted to have, namely, the greatest possible elegance and quality in every detail that pertains to funerals at a fraction of the charges usually made elsewhere. The new, specially built "Hursen-Lincoln" passenger autos and the "Hursen-Lincoln" limousine-hearses are but one of the features of "Hursen" funerals which proves these statements to be true. So, call Hursen, of course!

The Famous Keeley Treatment for Liquor and Drugs

More patients came to The Keeley Institute in 1926—than in any year since 1917.

For more than 50 years, The Keeley Institute has been the Mecca for men and women facing physical, mental or financial ruin, because of drink or drugs. They have come to Dwight, and at the end of the treatment, have gone their several ways with no more desire for a drink or drug, than if they had never used it. No restraint—no bad after effects—moderate cost—correspondence confidential. Address—

50 YEARS OF DIGNIFIED SERVICE AND INTELLIGENT UNDERSTANDING

When the Inevitable Happens-

Let Skeeles-Biddle Shoulder Your Cares

WHEN a loved one has passed on, and hearts hang heavy with sorrow, there is no greater consolation than knowing that our final tribute has been a fitting expression of love and respect. And, in the hour of stress, it is a mighty relief to know that you can safely and unhesitatingly surrender the burden of planning, arranging and directing.

THE SKEELES-BIDDLE COMPANY has emerged from 50 years of faithful service and intelligent understanding as one of the greatest organizations of its kind. Its splendid Funeral Service Establishments are monumental proof of wholehearted public appreciation as the result of earnest endeavor and traditional fairness.

THE SKEELES-BIDDLE organization is composed of three long-experienced heads, who are actively engaged in personally serving Chicago families in the time of bereavement.

TO facilitate your making arrangements, we provide an automobile to bring you to and from our establishment. Complete estimates are given at the time arrangements are concluded. Skeeles-Biddle quality is everything you could wish for. Prices are consistently lower when equal quality is considered.

NO MATTER where you live, we are fully equipped to render the utmost in service. No matter whether the last honors of the departed are planned on a magnificent scale or in a simple, unpretentious manner—your plans are our plans, and the funeral direction afforded at all times is smooth, complete and flawless—a fact to which thousands have enthusiastically testified.

RIOT RAGES IN SHANGHAI; RUSH BRITISH TROOPS

New Outbreak in China Arouses U. S.

the department's future course of action. This was accompanied, however, by the observation that conditions in China are now so chaotic that a policy of silence may be the best one for this government to adopt.

As Shanghai is the international center of the orient, an outbreak there would be viewed by officials with great concern. Should an attempt be made to drive all foreigners out of this city it might bring a showdown on the question of whether force is to be used by the various governments in protecting their nationals.

CALL CRISIS SERIOUS

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1927: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Great Britain continued today to look upon the general tendency of the situation in China as decidedly serious.

The idea of armed intervention was again deplored in government circles today. The use of force in China under the present circumstances would be like seeking Jack Dempsey in a haystack full of broken glass and razor blades, according to one description of the situation.

THE TRIBUNE learns that one of the main reasons for last night's hopeful government statement was to counteract the popular impression here that Great Britain is mobilizing on a wholesale scale its military and naval forces for the purpose of armed action. It is insisted that the troops are only going to protect the lives and property in the foreign concessions.

Threaten Counter Boycott.

Other means of coercion against the Cantonese are being sought. THE TRIBUNE learns Great Britain has informed China, through Counselor O'Malley, probably as a result of yesterday's cabinet meeting, that the limit of its concessions to China has been reached and unless the Cantonese government agrees to cease the anti-British demonstrations a complete counter boycott by the British banks and business interests will follow; also that there will be no further evacuations from threatened sections, and that stern measures will be taken to prevent demonstrations at other British concessions. The British, it is said, are prepared to concede the claims on the Hankow concessions if Canton agrees to these conditions.

The diplomatic maneuvering between Foreign Minister Eugene Chen of the Cantonese Nationalists and Mr. O'Malley has certain ironical features. Mr. Chen wants to retain the benefits of the foreign commercial and banking services, while abolishing their present form, thus vindicating the Chinese independence. Great Britain would relinquish the form, but wants to retain its commercial position. In other words, Mr. Chen wants to retain the substance and abolish the form, while Sir Austen Chamberlain, British foreign secretary, wants to do precisely the same thing.

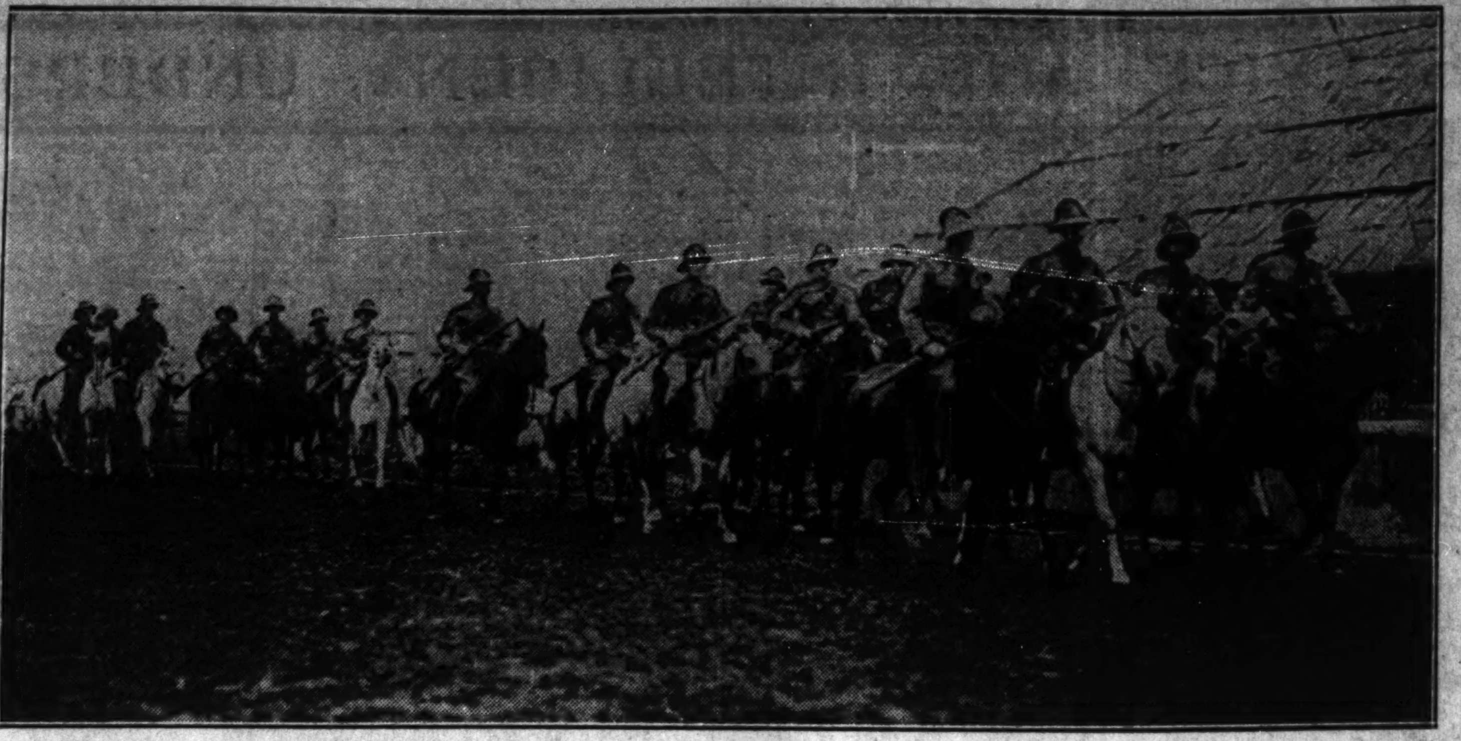
British Press Not Satisfied.

In any case, the cabinet's optimistic statement yesterday is not consistent with the logic of events and the sudden summoning of the unexpetced meeting denotes important developments along the lines of the boycott threat. The British press does not accept the government statement, the London Daily Telegraph stating "it may be assured that the state of affairs in China requires further reviewing without loss of time."

The very fact of the reiterated insistence that the troops and ships have no further mission than to protect lives and property is considered here as a diplomatic way of emphasizing the seriousnes of the situation.

One thousand marines will sail from Portsmouth for China Monday in the troopship Zealand, following a parade through the streets. One hunded sailors will accompany them to replace the men whose time has expired.

FOREIGNERS IN SHANGHAI ON GUARD AS CHINESE RIOT



Volunteer cavalry troop in Shanghai composed of representatives of many nations which is guarding foreign settlements against rioting Chinese strikers. A riot broke out yesterday but was quelled by police. This picture was taken last June when the troop was on parade after disturbances in which one American volunteer was shot.

BAR ASSOCIATION PICKS LAWYERS FOR VOTE INQUIRY

Attorneys John R. Montgomery and Charles Center Case will assist County Judge Jarecki in the investigation of election frauds disclosed by the recount of the November ballots.

At the request of the county court they were nominated by the board of managers of the Chicago Bar association and will act without compensation.

Mr. Montgomery will act in an advisory capacity as amicus curiae while Mr. Case will devote his entire time to the inquiry. He is a former assistant state's attorney thoroughly familiar with the election law. Mr. Montgomery is a former president of the association and Mr. Case formerly was its secretary.

WOMEN TO RAISE IRONSIDES FUND AT FETE TODAY

A patriotic benefit performance will be given at the Illinois Women's Athletic club this afternoon to raise funds to preserve Old Ironsides. Admission will be charged to visitors, and it is hoped by club officials to raise $500, which will be contributed to the national fund now being raised under an act of congress to maintain the historic battleship. A valuable four foot model of the ship will be on display in the club pool.

Commander Rufus King will tell the story of Old Ironsides. There will be music by the American Legion quartet and the Great Lakes Naval Training station band.

Mrs. Edward Fifield, president of the club, has extended an invitation to all patriotic citizens to attend.

Mrs. James Edgar Hyer Gets Divorce, $25,000 Home

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Mrs. Annie M. Hyer has been granted a divorce from James Edgar Hyer, whom she described as representative of the Chicago Historical society, in a decree granted by Judge W. S. Summerfield here. Mrs. Hyer was awarded a home valued at $25,000 and $200 a month alimony. She charged cruelty.

MURDER SUSPECT HELD TO GRAND JURY

Following a verdict of a coroner's jury which recommended that Frank Reeves, colored, 30 years, 4530 South Michigan avenue, be charged with the murder of Morris W. Hartwell, a south side coal man, who was found shot to death in front of 3606 South Wabash avenue Christmas eve, Judge John F. Haas of the Pekin court held him to the grand jury without bail on a charge of murder.

VETERAN SOCIAL WORKER HELD ON 2 GIRLS' CHARGES

In the presence of more than 100 of his friends, many of whom he had helped as children, John (Brother) McMurray, 63 years old, for 27 years head of the Off the Street club, on the west side, was held to the grand jury yesterday by Municipal Judge Max Luster on a charge of taking indecent liberties with two little girls.

After his two little accusers, 6 and 7 years old, had told their stories and Judge Luster had given his decision, holding him in two bonds of $10,000 each, McMurray, who denied the charges, sat with bowed head as women spectators sobbed and several left their seats to gather around McMurray and assure him of their confidence.

Warrants for McMurray were sworn out by the mother of one of the children after her daughter had told of incidents at the "club."

"No doubt this defendant has done considerable constructive work, even if guilty here," said Judge Luster. "At present we have no institution to which he, if proved guilty, may be sent, and that is unfortunate."

A subcommittee of prominent physicians, judges, and others were drafting a proposed "moron" bill yesterday following a conference on Friday called by County Commissioner John W. Gibson, chief sponsor of the measure. It would provide a jail and a hospital for the mentally abnormal.

TWO STRUCK BY TRUCK DIE; TOLL INCREASED TO 45

Carl Deininger, 36 years old, of 3334 Southport avenue, died at the Montrose hospital yesterday, the second victim of an automobile accident at Irving Park boulevard and Western avenue which occurred Friday. Deininger and Albert Swinke, 6233 Grace street, were fatally injured when struck by a truck while trying to flip a ride on another. Eric Ecklund, 1824 West 35th street, was the truck driver. The two deaths increased the county toll due to automobile accidents to 45 since Jan. 1.

Jock Malone, 1116 North State street, prize fighter, was ordered to pay $1,500 to Mrs. Rachel Secor, 70 years old, of 6042 Justine street, in a verdict returned yesterday by a jury before Superior Judge Joseph B. David. Malone's automobile struck Mrs. Secor in November, 1925.

CHAPLIN DEMON FOR PUNISHMENT; HE'D LOVE AGAIN

Life Is Empty Without Women, He Says.

New York, Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Charlie Chaplin's trouble with Lita Grey Chaplin has not made him a misogynist. He still hopes to find love and happiness. Just now he's a "little woozy" but after all, "what is one's art but a love letter to some fair woman?"

In his first interview since his collapse a week ago the comedian expressed his views to thirty reporters and photographers who saw him this afternoon in the apartment of his lawyer, Nathan Burkan.

"What do you think of women now—do you like them?" he was asked.

"Of course, naturally," came the reply. "If you didn't like them, life wouldn't be worth living."

"Do you expect to fall in love again?"

"I hope so—unless senility overcomes me."

No One in Mind Just Now.

He denied, however, that he had any one in mind at this time.

"Do you still love your wife?" another questioner asked.

"Under the circumstances," Charlie replied, "I don't think that is a fair question."

"First," said Chaplin in his formal address, "I want to thank the public and the press for their fairness in suspending judgment on me until the trial."

"How do you feel?" asked a reporter.

"A little woozy," he replied. "I'm able to take rides now. In fact, I feel fine."

"What about your income tax?" came another query.

"Why, that's a complete surprise to me," he said. "I have a lot of accountants and they didn't tell me anything about it. So it's a sort of surprise. I don't pay any attention to the monetary end. No, I don't know anything about it."

"Have all your assets been tied up?" was asked.

Mr. Chaplin turned to his personal agent, with a worried look. "Have all my assets been tied up?" he whispered. Then aloud:

"O, yes. Very complicated. My assets have all been tied, to be sure."

Chaplin's lawyer announced that he would accompany Chaplin to California as soon as his lawyers there so advised. He said they had offered Mrs. Chaplin all the money necessary to the upkeep of herself and children but that she had refused it.

"I don't see why she needs $4,000 a month," Chaplin remarked.

He expressed fear that his marital difficulties might react upon him in a professional way, declaring that "my ability as an actor is very aerial, very frail—you don't know whether the spark will die."

U. S. Won't Aid Mrs. Chaplin.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—The treasury department will not help Mrs. Lita Grey Chaplin in her efforts to collect alimony from the funds of Charles Chaplin, according to word transmitted to her today by Commissioner of Internal Revenue Blair. Mrs. Chaplin has appealed for the release of sufficient funds to permit the payment of the temporary allowance awarded by the courts.

Mr. Blair informed Mrs. Chaplin that the government liens would have to come ahead of all other claims against Chaplin. The film comedian's money is held under liens filed by the internal revenue bureau, which is seeking to collect more than $1,000,000 in back income taxes.

Charlie Doesn't Own Café.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Attempts by Lita Grey Chaplin's attorneys to secure unrevealed information of Charlie Chaplin's assets or personal affairs by way of a deposition taken from Henry Bergman, friend of the film comedian, failed today. The deposition was taken in connection with Mrs. Chaplin's suit for divorce and division of property.

Bergman in a deposition taken before attorneys representing both Mrs. Chaplin and the comedian stated that his present occupation is an actor and that "Henry's," his restaurant, is only a side line and that Chaplin never had shared ownership of the same nor deposited any of his assets with him.

$30,000,000 OF CHICAGO MONEY IS REVIVING DIXIE

Transforms Gulf Coast Into Beauty Garden.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

Edgewater Gulf Hotel, Miss., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Within two years thirty millions of Chicago money has gone into the thirty mile gulf coast area sentineled on the west by Pass Christian and on the east by Biloxi.

So THE TRIBUNE thought a reporter ought to go down and see about it.

The money has been spent on railroads, highways, seawalls, hotels, causeways, golf links, bridges, harbors, villas, schools, and business blocks.

The immediate result of this release of capital has been so thorough that it has reconciled the natives in these parts to what happened at Appomattox and now "they think God and Santa Claus come from Chicago."

Developed by Cornelius.

The phrase is J. F. Cornelius'. He is one of the Chicago go-getters now active on this extraordinary scene. He helped develop the park district, which now environs stone terraces and gardens set with rose bushes where a year and a half ago was scrub brush. Chicagoans who for the benefit of their golf and their bronchial tubes can afford to lazy away ten days at $15 a day are promenading the terraces.

In the gardens four white gardeners attended by two colored men are setting out more rose bushes. The six horticulturists are natives. For half an hour I have been watching them with absorbed interest not unmixed with awe. There are ages of leisure behind every meditative lift the six achieve.

Aristocracy of Motion.

This, say I, is the aristocracy of motion, suave, slow, unvexed, unsweated.

The sixth rose bush is just being patted into the soil.

"How's she look to you, Rob?" murmurs the head gardener to his white colleague.

"Looks fine to me, Tom."

Tom, in a swift passion of energy, as of a man risking all on a single throw of the dice—"then let her ride."

The slow movie of the triumph of the horticulturists has its bearings on the triumph of the Chicagoans who dumped their millions down on the sand and scrub and made palaces rise. The local tradition of the sanctity of leisure, which amounts to a religion, was only one of the obstacles against which the northerners had to contend.

Roads and Bridges Built.

Erection of actual buildings was the least part of their task. They had to build roads. They had to replace ramshackle wooden bridges that dated almost as far back as the civil war with stone bridges so substantial and so majestic that they compare well with the best work of the kind that you see today in European countries at once the oldest and most advanced.

They had to dredge channels for the transportation of building materials. Those building materials they had to bring in large part from Chicago, Atlanta, Birmingham, and New Orleans.

They had to bring from 60 to 65 per cent of their labor from the north. Above all they had to bestir the natives to do their share. That share has not been inconsiderable. Part of it was the erection of a thirty mile sea wall extending from Pass Christian to Biloxi. The sea was steadily eating away the ancient contour of the Mississippi sound counties of Jackson, Harrison, and Hancock.

Why They Built It.

The inhabitants of those shires, although not by nature alarmists, did awake to the fact that unless they took action against the sea they some day would lack seacoast land to sell to the northern developers. That awakening befell in 1925, after ten years of talk on the subject. Construction began in August, 1925. The bulk of the work was finished by last August.

The result is a noble achievement in concrete which is broad enough to carry spacious walks and driveways and which, when the ornamental work and the tree planting are completed, will be a pleasure drive comparable in length and stateliness to the grand esplanades which skirt the Adriatic for miles in the vicinity of Trieste.

Gas Tax Paid Bill.

Gasoline did this work. The three seaboard counties imposed a gasoline tax of 6 cents a gallon on motorists, 4 cents of which went into highways construction and 2 cents into the building of the 30 mile sea wall.

The sea wall has cost nearly three and a half millions. Behind it to a depth of half a mile are hotels and Spanish villas surrounded by gardens, tennis courts and golf links. Land that five years ago was selling lazily for $50 a front foot in the most attractive areas now is selling briskly for $500 a front foot.

After three days' survey of the construction of roads, bridges, seawalls and causeways which has been accomplished in the last two years, all done so substantially and sanely, I am inclined to think this gulf coast area into which so much Chicago money and so many Chicago hopes have gone, is not the land of prospects, but the land of results.

Helped By Legislature.

Local bankers and large farmers are welcoming the new development and the legislators are passing helpful laws, albeit, the Mississippi legislature only a few years ago, was indulging in the familiar rustic pastime of "riding big business."

Our people and the native magnates are getting on together so amicably that the natives are thinking vividly in the terms of Chicagoland. They say they wish to be incorporated into Chicagoland as its midwinter playground and that people who are separated only by the time between luncheon of one day and breakfast of the next are, in this age of the world, really neighbors.

What they mean is that you can close your desk in Chicago on Friday noon and be on the links of half a dozen magnificent hotels between Pass Christian and Biloxi on Saturday morning in a temperature of 60 to 70 degrees.

That they say is true neighborliness. When you consider that it is the neighbors of the late Jefferson Davis—whose old mansion house is in the heart of this new Chicagoland playground—who are talking this way, you will understand that they are talking new and refreshing American history.

BODY IS FOUND IN RIVER.

Before leaving the home of his mother at 815 Lessing street, on Dec. 22, John Wojcik remarked apathetically: "I'd just as soon be dead." Yesterday his body was taken from the Chicago river at Halsted street by Policemen James Leary and Peter Madden.

New Luxury of Line and Color Distinguishes this Sedan

New and distinctive beauty, freshness of design and unusually complete equipment now make the Hupmobile Six Sedan as outstanding for luxury as for its brilliant and enduring qualities of performance.

In line with the most advanced ideas of custom body builders, a ball-back body gives graceful, sweeping lines.

Rich mohair upholstery covers the deeply cushioned seats and the high quality of interior trim and hardware emphasizes the beauty and utility found everywhere throughout the car.

Women, especially, appreciate the smartly individual appearance of the Six Sedan—set off by a choice of three attractive color combinations—two-tone green, blue or two-tone grey.

And over and above these new luxury features is the recognized high quality standards of Hupmobile manufacture—10% higher than usually required in materials, workmanship and inspection.

You will realize why the Hupmobile Six is referred to as the closest-priced six on the market—when you inspect its new completeness of appointment and test its thrilling performance and riding ease.

Safe

The Sundstrand's full automatic operation and complete control of oil, ignition and flame assures complete safety to the home. The Sundstrand giant ignition assembly safeguards against failure of ignition. The oil safety switch quickly stops the burner if even a small amount of oil collects in the fire bowl.

Quiet

Sundstrand "Progressive Combustion Assures Quiet Operation. The noise of burning oil is eliminated in the Sundstrand through low pressure atomizing--partial ignition and gradual development of the flame all the way down to the fire bowl where final combustion takes place in a "slow" flame which does not touch the fire pot and is suspended on a cushion of slowly swirling air.

Efficient

The "slow" flame, produced by the Sundstrand, permits direct distribution of intense heat over the entire heating surface of the fire box in the furnace. This enables the Sundstrand to produce more "applied" heat per gallon of oil burned than any other type of burner. The flame can be regulated easily to fit the size of the fire box.

Dependable

The Sundstrand is built by the same well-known organization of exacting engineers who build the Sundstrand Adding Machine -- known the world over. By reducing, by nearly half, the number of parts formerly thought necessary in an oil burner the Sundstrand engineers have avoided the trouble-inviting complications of former types of burners and thus produced a quiet, economical, safe oil heat generator. Sundstrand engineering assures long, trouble free service.

Sundstrand Oil Heat Generator

Absolutely NO Radio Interference

Extremely quiet in operation, the Sundstrand Oil Heat Generator never interferes in the slightest with long distance reception over the most delicately tuned radio. It never interrupts conversation nor conflicts with musical programs. The Sundstrand Generates abundant Heat to produce the desired temperature in your home without noise of any kind which might annoy a nervous person or break your restful sleep.

Burns Cheaper Grades Of Fuel Oil

The Sundstrand Oil Heat Generator is equipped with a motor-driven pump that forces the flow of oil which is atomized under pressure. It successfully burns a wider range of oils than other burners not so equipped. You are not forced to buy one or two high priced grades of oil when your home is heated by the Sundstrand Oil Heat Generator.

Service and Repair

Costs Only $4.82 Per Year

Three years spent in eliminating causes for service calls and repairs have perfected the Sundstrand to the point to where the average cost per burner was only $4.82 for the last twelve months. This means that Sundstrand Oil Heat Generator owners are not bothered with the "troubles" common to oil burners of the past, and dealers make a profit on each installation.

What this Means to DEALERS

Several good oil burners have been listed as standard by the National Board of Fire Underwriters' Laboratories. But it remained for the Sundstrand Oil Heat Generator to be one of the first to reach the standard of manufacture, safety and operation insisted upon by the Underwriters' Laboratories before they would permit the use of their label on the burner.

The Sundstrand is a compact unit of "Built in" parts with a heavy cast and machined base. Motor, blower fan, four-cylinder compression air pump, spiral gear oil pump, etc., all are connected DIRECTLY by an extra heavy drive shaft of tool steel. There are no "triggers," "vibrators," "coils" or other actuating or safety devices of doubtful action.

If you are interested in handling a burner that allows you to keep your profits by eliminating costly service and repairs, send the coupon below for information about the Sundstrand dealer's Franchise and a Demonstration in Your Own Store.

INJUNCTIONS TO OIL FIRMS DENIED BY MEXICO COURT

Sought to Stay Action of New Law.

BY JOHN CORNYN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 22.—The fate awaiting the petroleum companies that have refused to accept the new petroleum legislation was forecast in a court decision here today. The court refused unconditionally to grant injunction to the three largest companies in Mexico, El Aguila, the Mexican Petroleum company, and the Commercial Investment and Petroleum company. The companies appealed to the courts against the law itself and sought to restrain the department of industry and commerce from enforcing the law.

A Tampico court today refused to make permanent a temporary injunction against the law obtained recently by the Sinclair Oil company.

Apparently the companies had no expectation of obtaining a restraining order, but presented the appeal to show exactly what all the companies not conforming with the law may expect at the hands of the Mexican courts, which are bound to uphold the law and department administrating it.

Asks Half of Mexico's Churches.

Joaquin Perez, patriarch of the so-called Mexican Orthodox church, which the Catholics characterize as a schismatic church, has asked the government for 50 per cent of the Catholic churches of Mexico. Patriarch Perez assures the officials that he has been consecrated in the United States as patriarch of Mexico and has, in turn, consecrated several bishops to aid in the work of reopening the Mexican churches. So far the patriarch has had no success in getting a following among the Mexican Catholics. Catholics say the labor organizations are backing the patriarch's request for possession of the Mexican Catholic churches.

76 Rebels Surrender.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Announcement of the surrender of seventy-six rebels and official denial of reports that the army was to be increased from 50,000 to 75,000 men are the late developments of the revolutionary activities, which are believed to be subsiding rapidly. It is unofficially estimated that 500 rebels have been killed in the last few weeks.

Puebla military authorities have denied reports of rebellious activities in that state and the state of Tlaxcala. They declare that three groups of bandits, totaling not more than 100 men, are active, but are being pursued by federal soldiers.

Sixteen rebels operating in the Ajusco mountains of the federal district have surrendered, while Gen. Escobar reports that sixty more have submitted in Durango. These submissions, he says, are due to his promise that all rebels surrendering within ten days will be pardoned.

Dispatches from Tierra Blanca, in the state of Vera Cruz, say one person was killed and four were wounded in a clash between railway strikers and strike breakers. Federal troops charged with bayonets to restore order.

Many Foreigners Register.

Between 8,000 and 10,000 foreigners had compiled with the new alien land law up to midnight last night when the term for foreigners to register a declaration of their land ownership with the authorities expired.

Foreign shareholders in the Banco de Mexico met last night to consider the effect on them of the alien provisions of Article 27 of the constitution.

According to Rafael Fernandez del Castillo, who represented the government at the meeting, all the foreign shareholders, Spanish, French, and British, unanimously decided to consider themselves Mexicans as regards their connection with the bank, renouncing the right of appeal to their respective governments.

The department of the interior is investigating an alleged plot of unnamed Americans alleged to have been posing as communists in Mexico for the purpose of creating the impression that an important communist movement exists in Mexico, thereby injuring Mexico abroad.

U. S. Investments in Mexico Estimated at $1,500,000,000

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—American investments in Mexico aggregating $1,500,000,000 are seriously threatened, much American property has already been illegally expropriated and many of the 12,000 or 13,000 American citizens resident in Mexico are subjected to religious persecution, according to J. Wilbur Carr, assistant secretary of state, whose testimony before the house appropriations committee in an executive session recently was made public today.

Under the so called agrarian laws, the Mexican federal and state governments have expropriated "enormous real properties belonging to American citizens," Mr. Carr asserted. He added that "according to the records of the department, not a single American citizen has been compensated for such expropriations."

Investments Are Threatened.

"There are in Mexico at the present time some 12,000 to 13,000 American citizens," declared Mr. Carr. "It has been estimated that American investments in Mexico now approximate the enormous total of $1,500,000,000. Under legislation which has been enacted in Mexico during the last 15 months, the security of these investments is seriously threatened. Part of this adverse legislation is the so called alien land and petroleum laws and regulations.

"Other legislation adverse to American citizens is in the form of religious persecutions which threaten to deprive American citizens, of whatever religious persuasion, of their church property without compensation. There are also other laws which threaten to place undue burdens upon those engaged in such enterprise. It is unnecessary to state that every American having interests in Mexico or any other foreign country looks to the department of state to take such steps as may be necessary to protect the rights of Americans in these circumstances."

A recent survey by state department consular agents shows that of the 12,000 or 13,000 Americans in Mexico, about 4,100 are located in the Tampico oil fields district and about 2,500 in the Mexico City consular district. About 800 were found resident in Matamoros, 800 in Ciudad Juarez and an equal number in Nogales. The balance were scattered about the country in groups of from 30 to 500.

Mr. Carr recalled the testimony of Henry Lane Wilson, former ambassador to Mexico, before a senate committee in 1920, that there were 75,000 persons of American origin in Mexico during the period from November, 1909, to November, 1913.

Democrats Renew Attacks.

During the day Democrats renewed their attack on the administration's policy in Mexico-Nicaragua controversy. Representative Huddleston [Dem., Ala.] challenged President Coolidge to declare openly whether he favors arbitration of the Mexican phase and Representative Moore [Dem., Va.] pressed for the "inside of the Nicaraguan question."

Representative Huddleston, in an impassioned speech, warned the President that "if wishes to get the present congress off his hands, he had better tell us whether he is for war or for peace." He declared that congress would never adjourn as long as it seemed likely it might be recalled to a special session to declare war against Mexico.

Moore Asks Data.

Representative Moore offered two resolutions, one demanding from the secretary of state a statement revealing what, if any, action, the United States government took to insure the selection of Adolfo Dias as president of Nicaragua. It also asked what American lives or property have been endangered by the Sacasa revolution as well as the number of United States naval vessels and marines now assigned to duty in Nicaraguan territory.

The other Moore resolution would have the congress declare that the Monroe doctrine does not commit the United States to interference in the domestic affairs of Central or South American nations.

STATE REJECTS $700 CLAIM FOR LOSS OF ILLINOIS WOMAN'S HAT

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Members of the state court of claims are too prosaic to believe a lady's last season hat is worth $700.

That's the sum Isabell Williams asked the state for the loss of a hat when her automobile went over an embankment near Carrollton in 1923. She also asked $70 for lost hosiery, $50 for gloves, $45 for a waist, and various amounts for silk underwear.

The court rejected a personal damage claim yesterday, holding that proper warning signs had been posted by the highway department, and suggested her value on feminine finery seemed exaggerated.

Seize Suspects in Attack on Woman by Negro Bandit

Several suspects answering the description of the Negro who beat, robbed, and attacked Mrs. Mary Mechling, a clerk in a women's hat shop at 6823 Stony Island avenue Friday, were taken into custody by the Woodlawn police yesterday. Mrs. Mechling was too ill at her home, 1536 East 59th street, to accompany the police to the station to try and make the identification.

MEXICAN WOMEN SLAP U. S. SISTERS AT Y. W. C. A. MEET

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 22. — The Young Women's Christian association, founded here some time ago, has run into rough seas. There has been friction between members for a long time and this week it reached a crisis. At a general meeting patronesses of three opposing elements were literally at one another's threats.

Some of the Mexican women, who are Catholics, denounced the president of the United States, Secretary of State Kellogg, and President Calles of Mexico. The names used to characterize them were said not to be fit for polite society.

The American women defended the United States officials and the discussion got so hot that the Mexican women slapped the faces of the American women. Other Mexican women, who have husbands in the army and government, took up the cudgels in defense of President Calles and his administration, and a free-for-all fist fight occurred.

The American women then left the association out of their activities, saying that they would see to it that the Y. W. C. A. did not get any further American support, and the wives of the generals and government officials also washed their hands of the religious controversy.

CZECHS NAB "SPIES"; THEIR ONLY WEAPONS ARE YANKEE BIBLES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PRAGUE, Czecho-Slovakia, Jan. 22.—Czecho-Slovakia's latest spy sensation has blown up. Six Germans bagged by Prague's crafty counter espionage agents near the frontier proved to be zealous workers of the American society for world distribution of Bibles and religious tracts, with headquarters in Brooklyn.

After listening to explanations by the society's outraged chief at the Magdebourg headquarters, where he directs the flooding of Germany, Austria, and Czecho-Slovakia with evangelical literature, the government ordered its crest fallen bloodhounds to release their prey.

Elaborate maps of the frontier territory were in the possession of the suspects when they were caught prowling on Bohemian country roads. It was explained that the maps were essential to them, as they traveled afoot.

The exhortations to spread "munitions" to the far corners of Bohemia found in their instructions referred in reality to the Bibles as munitions in the war upon the devil, it was revealed.

Hosiery Salesmen Wanted

We can use two additional high grade men with good hosiery sales experience. Single men between 35 and 40 years of age preferred because we do not have definite territories in mind. If interested, write us giving age, education, religion, complete record of business experience from first position to last, with duties, dates, salaries and half a dozen references other than past employers. Please do not reply without giving complete information as requested.

NICARAGUA ROW LIKE RIDDLE; IT HINGES ON WORD

What Does 'Falta' Mean? Leadens Disagree.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 21.—Exact meaning of the Spanish word "falta" appearing in the Nicaraguan constitution has become a matter of controversy among members of congress. On it hinges much of the legal force behind the policy of President Coolidge in Nicaragua.

The question has a bearing upon the circumstances surrounding the departure of Sacasa from Nicaragua while vice president, and his failure to be recognized as president.

Senator Borah [Rep., Idaho], chairman of the committee on foreign relations, translates the word as "default," while Senator Bingham [Rep., Conn.], a student of Spanish, says no Spanish dictionary gives this translation. Senator Bingham says the word means "absent."

How Borah Translates It.

As translated by Senator Borah, the Nicaraguan constitution provides that "in case of the absolute or temporary default of the president of the republic, the executive power shall devolve upon the vice president, and in default of the latter upon one of the designates in the order of their election."

This version is believed to give more support to the claims of Dr. Juan B. Sacasa, the present rebel leader, that as vice president-elect in 1925 election he properly is president of Nicaragua, owing to the withdrawal of the president-elect, Carlos Solorzano. But if "falta" means absence, this would seem to eliminate Dr. Sacasa, as he was absent.

Fundamentally, the question is: Was Dr. Sacasa absent under duress or of his own free will?

THE TRIBUNE correspondents in Nicaragua have put this question to various principals with the following results:

RULE OF FORCE

BY GERALD MARTIN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1927: By The Chicago Tribune.]

MANAGUA, Jan. 21.—Friends and foes of the former Conservative president, Carlos Solorzano, and former Liberal vice president, Juan B. Sacasa, alike pay tribute to their honesty of purpose in governing this Central American country, where a "man on horseback" is likely to appear at any moment.

THE TRIBUNE correspondent investigated their actions during and following Gen. Emilio Chamorro's coup d' etat, when the general defeated the Conservative leader previous to the present election. He swept down upon Managua following an unthinkable scene at a diplomatic ball at the International club, in August, 1925, when an imaginative editor, Gabry Rives, reputed to be a former dishwasher from San Francisco, garbed a la William S. Hart, surrounded the club with fifty swashbucklers. Rivas entered, shot up the ceiling and, after creating a furore among the guests, captured two Liberal ministers of the Solorzano cabinet. American Minister Charles C. Eberhardt and other diplomats, together with prominent members of Nicaraguan and foreign society, were present. Now Mr. Rivas controls the leading government newspaper.

Two months later Gen. Chamorro captured the fortress at Loma. It was said that bribed officers let him in. Following this he issued an ultimatum to President Solorzano to discharge all the Liberals, to make Gen. Chamorro commander in chief of the army and to pay the expenses of his coup, which were $10,000. President Solorzano accepted this in spite of the fact that Minister Eberhardt urged him to take a firm hand. After that President Solorzano gave way to Gen. Chamorro's every wish, while Señor Sacasa hid among his Liberal friends in Leon, later trekking across the country to Honduras on mule back.

The chief executive quietly left Managua one midnight for Corinto and San Francisco, going, according to the Conservatives, "under moral suasion." The Nicaraguan vice president was badly paid and inactive, and while the Conservatives claim that former President Solorzano's departure from the country saved the nation from the Liberals and anti-Americans, the Liberals claim that Gen. Chamorro's policy of holding the army fort and purse strings meant that Señor Solorzano's presidency was a mere farce. However, responsible Conservative business men told THE TRIBUNE correspondent that Señor Solorzano slowly but surely was handing over the government to former Vice President Sacasa and his Liberal followers.

Claim Sacasa Fled for Life.

Liberals said that Señor Sacasa's escape meant the saving of his life and that his remaining would have meant death or imprisonment—probably "accidental death." Conservatives and American business men when interviewed today, in recalling the incidents, said that it was seldom that political leaders were actually killed, and, had Gen. Chamorro killed former Vice President Sacasa, it would have damned the general forever. They say that former President Solorzano and former Vice President Sacasa quit of their free will, later being impeached by congress and that Gen. Chamorro unnecessarily pushed out of congress all the opposition minority. The Conservatives say that between Señor Solorzano and Señor Sacasa, the former has first claim to the presidency. They blame the dual government system.

The strength of the parties here is not known, but it is probably fifty-fifty. A fair free election is never held, the party in power always controlling and seeing to it that government men are reëlected. Force alone is understood.

A Bitter Factionalism.

Here federal power controls the appointment of governors and others, even in districts where the opposition is in the majority. Leon is solidly Liberal, Granada is Conservative, with Managua fifty-fifty. Party feeling since the country gained independence is the most bitter imaginable, with both sides charging tortures, injuries, and robberies to the other, and creating a feeling that cannot be imagined in the United States. A Conservative never marries into a Liberal family, and vice versa, for there is a gulf which will take ages to cross.

THE TRIBUNE correspondent this afternoon delved into government documents which revealed the fact that Gen. Chamorro was more or less constitutionally elected to the presidency as things go in this part of the world, and that he met the constitutional forms. The basic mistake is ascribed to the squeamishness of the Washington department of state. The flying executives could have been reinstated or others selected through congress. However, the indefinite Washington policy prepared the way for the present struggle by permitting the absentees to conspire with Mexican and other friends, thus bringing back into the country the old-time atmosphere of battling between the historic parties, with the uneducated, unclothed and unfed peons paying the price.

DR. SACASA'S SIDE

BY ROY BLANK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1927: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PUERTO CABEZAS, Nicaragua, Jan. 20.—Juan B. Sacasa, leader of the Nicaraguan Liberal rebels and elected vice president in the last election, was asked by THE TRIBUNE correspondent whether he was compelled to go, or voluntarily left Managua just before the coup d'état led by Gen. Emilio Chamorro.

"The day after the Chamorro-Diaz coup," Señor Sacasa said, "I was compelled to leave the vice president's home for Leon, Nicaragua, pursued by Gen. Chamorro's Conservative troops, who had orders from the general to take me dead or alive. I was the legal vice president at that time."

Denies He Ever Resigned.

Dr. Sacasa declared he never resigned. "I did not resign, neither before nor after my exile," he said. "In order to lay bare this audacious falsehood by traitors, I sent to his excellency, Charles Eberhardt, United States minister to Nicaragua, on Nov. 30, 1925, my protest, which said:

"A commission composed of Gen. Chamorro, Senator Demetrio, Caudra and Deputy Eduardo Castillo, presented to the national and legal directory of the liberal nationalist party an ultimatum in which the revolution demanded in the name of its chief, Gen. Chamorro, my resignation from the post of vice president, to which I was elected by the people of Nicaragua. The commission alleged this post was in my possession contrary to the irrevocable purposes of predomination, present and past, of the conservative party of this republic.

"As this is a violation of the constitution, provided against in article two of the convention of peace and amity signed at Washington, I consider it my duty to present the government's protest to the state department through your excellency against the happenings herein related. I will act in like manner as regards the governments of Central America signatories to the aforementioned convention."

EACH FACTION IN NICARAGUA SPURNS PEACE PLAN OF FOE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 22.—The refusal of Dr. Juan B. Sacasa, "liberal president," to entertain President Diaz' peace proposals, demanding elections supervised by the United States and Central America, together with his acceptance of the good offices of Guatemala, today brought out a strong reply from Señor Diaz, who said he never would accept the assistance of governments "hostile to my government and under President Calles' influence."

President Diaz went over the political attitudes of the Central American countries and declared "No Central Americans could offer neutral independent mediation in the pending Nicaragua conflict. San Salvador and Honduras promptly recognized my government following the United States' invitation, yet we do not propose such mediation by them. The case is quite different with Guatemala and Costa Rica for both declined to grant us recognition. The Nicaraguan problems must be settled by Nicaraguans with Nicaragua, but for such a conference we are willing to have a neutral zone declared and maintained by the United States.

"Mexico, without national political interests and with few private investments here has lately manifested an intention to direct our political affairs by fitting out revolutionary expeditions towards setting up another government under Dr. Sacasa and following its failure is demanding mediation by countries where Mexican influence dominates."

CHAS. W. HADLEY URGED FOR POST OF U. S. ATTORNEY

Appointment of Charles W. Hadley of Wheaton as United States district attorney to succeed Edwin A. Olson, whose term has expired, was urged upon Deneen leaders yesterday by a group of business and professional men. Mr. Hadley was state's attorney of Du Page county for many years, and as assistant attorney general he is credited with winning the civil suit against Gov. Small for approximately $1,000,000 interest which the Supreme court has found the governor owes the state.

Word from Washington is that Senator Deneen expects to hold the district attorneyship in abeyance until the case of Frank L. Smith is settled.

WOMAN DIES FROM BURNS.

Mirando Williams, colored, 60 years old, 1712 Fulton street, died in the county hospital yesterday from burns incurred several days ago in her home.

HEALTH PLAYLETS TO AID DENTISTS' GATHERING HERE

More than 8,000 dentists meet here Wednesday for two and a half days to compare methods and learn the latest technique.

Health playlets, posters and other exhibits in connection with dentistry will be presented by students from Peoria, Freeport, LaGrange, Lake Forest, Pontiac and other towns.

The sixty-third annual convention will attract dentists also from Canada, and some from Europe. That convention opens in the Drake hotel Wednesday morning, continuing until Friday noon. It will include 220 clinics, the reading and discussion of 53 papers.

Among those who will talk at the sessions are Dr. Otto U. King, Dr. Herbert E. Phillips, Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, Dr. H. L. Friedinger, and Dr. Arthur D. Black.

BANKER HARRIS WRITES PLEA FOR CAR PERMIT LAW

Calls Low Credit Chief Transit Problem.

Mr. Harris, who discusses one phase of Chicago's transportation in the following article, is chairman of the board of directors of the Harris Trust and Savings bank and chairman of the First Mortgage Bondholders' Protective committee of the Chicago Railways company.

BY ALBERT W. HARRIS.

I do not care to make any special observations regarding the physical, legal, or political phases of the transportation situation, but I have some very definite views on the financial credit which the transportation companies should have in order to be able to secure the funds that are necessary to make the needed extensions. Credit, after all, is the basis of the whole negotiations. If this is lacking when they are finished, all the time and effort spent will have been wasted.

Ownership and Control.

I understand the folks having the franchise negotiations in hand are making very good progress; in fact, there is only one important item which is giving them trouble, and that is who will really run the properties when they get them put together and operating under the proposed franchise.

Naturally the people who own the properties and who will be expected to put additional millions in them will expect their representative officials to have something to say about it. Some large measure of control of their business should be in the hands of the people who own it; otherwise it will be impossible to get new money invested in the enterprise. If the city owned the property or had any money invested in it, the city would, of course, want some representation in the management and should have it in proportion to the money it has invested in it. Vesting the control and regulation of one of the contracting parties in the hands of the other is unsound both legally and financially.

Credit Is Big Problem.

It would certainly be unwise to grant a franchise to any company unless it was properly organized and capable of carrying out the provisions of the ordinance, which it could not do unless the company was permitted to earn enough to insure the credit necessary.

This is going to be one of the most difficult of undertakings, because street railway securities have the poorest credit of any form of public utility issues on the market; in fact, the credit is so poor for such securities that, unless the entire situation is favorable, they really cannot be sold on any legitimate basis. So it seems quite essential to call attention to the absolute necessity that any plan arrived at should be not only equitable but creditable.

As to the legislation, there are in my opinion only two things needed. The first is the right of the city to grant street railways an indeterminate franchise, and the other is the right of the city to grant what is termed a service-at-cost franchise, with the right to agree with the companies as to valuation and rate of return. It might be desirable to agree what these figures shall be before going to Springfield for the legislation, but there should be no great difficulty in getting together on these points.

Would Push Legislation.

In any event, in case such legislation is secured, these questions would then be a matter which the city would have a right to settle with the companies, a right which is now lacking, and that is really the whole trouble.

If the city had had the right to grant a service-at-cost franchise without a time limit, which is really all the authority that is necessary, this matter would have been settled long ago.

Now that the legislature is in session, it is highly desirable to obtain this legislation before it adjourns, so that the city will be in position to grant the kind of franchise that will provide the companies with the credit necessary to secure the funds to make the needed improvements to the service.

LAKE STREET OWNERS DEMAND SUBWAY TO REPLACE "L" IN LOOP

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The Lake Street Property Owners' association yesterday announced its unanimous judgment in a resolution as follows:

"Plans for immediate construction of subways under the loop should be perfected at once according to the suggestions of the Tyson-Strong report.

"Loop property owners are ready and willing to stand their full share of the cost under the special assessment plan.

"The first subway should take care of all elevated loop traffic, permitting the removal of the steel structure from Lake, Wells and Van Buren streets and Wabash avenue."

Benjamin Bills, president of the association, urged not only the removal of the elevated structure but later all surface lines through the loop. This same idea was recommended in the transit plan of Henry A. Blair.

"The Tyson-Strong subway plan calls for the expenditure of about $30,000,000," said Col. H. G. Sperling at the association meeting in the Hotel Sherman, "but the plan does not provide for putting the west side elevated lines underground. The additional amount required to put all the elevated lines of the loop underground will be more than offset by the benefits which will be received. The elevated loop is the largest obstacle to the growth of the central business district."

NEW ECONOMIC ERA CALLED KEY TO WORLD UNITY

U. of C. Professor Outlines Racial Situation.

A complete scientific reorganization of the entire economic structure of the planet is the only practical, workable basis on which world unity can be realized, in the opinion of Dr. Eustace Haydon of the University of Chicago.

His views on the subject were expressed in an address yesterday at the conference on world unity at the Morrison hotel. A meeting this afternoon, at which President Max Mason of the University of Chicago and Rabbi Louis L. Mann will be speakers, and another this evening, will conclude the conference.

Every great religion in the world, Dr. Haydon pointed out in his address, holds as a great ideal the brotherhood of man, the essential unity and equality of all men.

Ideal Only a Dream.

"But," he emphasized, "an ideal that cannot get into the muscles and the actions and the behavior of men is only an ineffectual dream. It is easy for we Americans to love people over in Africa—but what of the Negro in Chicago? The United States has loved the Armenians—extravagantly; but the Turk does not love them. He has to live with them.

"If you want to discover how to promote racial friendship, analyze the causes of the differences and the friction between them. You will find that they are not based on color, or consciousness of racial differences, not altogether on a superiority complex grounded in ignorance, but that it is the conflict of interests of group against group. In other words, it is largely economic.

Understanding Is Need.

"A genuine understanding of one people for another, understanding of their history, their culture; understanding of their contributions to progress, and of their cultural and spiritual values is a great step on the way toward racial friendship.

"We need to find a way of reorganizing the material and social structure of the planet so that every people may have the opportunity for developing a full and complete life with its own portion of the material resources of the earth. Social science is driving that way. We are beginning to understand that we must reorganize in terms of humanity if we are to progress beyond the petty patriotisms and nationalisms, and go forward into a better world."

Cambridge Educator Speaks.

Dr. J. C. Chatterji, a master of arts of Cambridge university, and an authority on oriental research and archaeology, discussed "Historical evidences of the unity of man," asserting that from his own research efforts and the archaeological discoveries of the last few years, it was becoming clear to himself and other scholars that all races had a common homeland in remote antiquity, in what is now called Armenia.

It was here, he recalled, that Biblical accounts left Noah and his descendants after the great flood, and he asserted his belief that at some future time excavations at a spot west of Mount Ararat may disclose concrete proof of such facts.

And while this proves at best only a common origin for the culture of the various races, and not the races themselves, it is highly improbable, but not impossible, that even this gap may yet be bridged, Dr. Chatterji observed.

A WORLD LEAGUE PLEA

A perfectly functioning league of nations could, with one sweep of the pan, accomplish what it would take the nations, working separately, several centuries to attain, Prof. Quiny Wright, professor of political science at the University of Chicago, declared yesterday at the "week-end school of foreign affairs" held at the Congress hotel under the auspices of the Chicago League of Women Voters forum.

The league, Prof. Wright explained, could enter into one great treaty with 60 nations as parties, where it would take more than 1,200 treaties in each country worked independently.

Speaking yesterday noon at a luncheon of the Chicago Council of Foreign Relations, held at the Hotel La Salle, Grover Clark, editor of the Pekin Leader, Pekin, China, called the next few months the important period in China's international policies.

"China may turn," said Mr. Clark, "in the direction of friendship with the other nations. Or, incensed at what she considers continuing unjust treatment, she may move into the leadership of an orient determined on revenge for past wrongs."

13 U. S. Army Planes to Make Flight Into Canada

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—(AP)—The war department formally approved today a flight of 13 army planes from Selfridge field, Mich., to Ottawa and Montreal, under sanction of the Canadian government. The machines probably will leave Selfridge field next Monday.

PLAN HOSPITAL NEAR M'KINLOCK CAMPUS OF N. U.

At the annual meeting of the board of Wesley Memorial hospital yesterday at the Chicago Temple, Chairman George W. Dixon announced his hopes that Northwestern university trustees soon will agree to the removal of the hospital from 25th and Dearborn streets to land adjoining McKinlock campus, at the foot of Chicago avenue.

"When the contract is signed," Mr. Dixon added, "we will plan for a large, thoroughly modern hospital."

Mr. Dixon declared that Chicago has insufficient hospital facilities compared with New York, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Boston, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, and Los Angeles. "There is a shortage of 5,000 to 6,000 beds here," he concluded.

Dr. F. S. Gilmore, superintendent of the Wesley hospital, said income for 1926 was $769,021.71 and expenditures $713.950.63. He reported the total amount spent from the free or partly free bed fund was $118,200. That sum, he said, was supplied by interest on the Deering $1,000,000 bequest and $500,000 gifts from churches. The hospital's total endowment was increased $58,582 in 1926. Nearly 140,000 patients have been treated since the hospital was founded.

9 CHICAGO SEA SCOUTS TO GO ON BORDEN VOYAGE

Nine Chicago Sea Scouts will man the John Borden-Field museum arctic expedition ship, the Northern Light, when it sails from San Francisco in the spring for a voyage to the frozen north. This announcement was made yesterday by Thomas J. Keane, national director of Sea Scouts.

Mr. Borden decided to take Chicago scouts in recognition of their especial adeptness in seafaring as well as scouting, Mr. Keane said. The youths, who will be chosen from the 250 Sea Scouts in Chicago, will be between 17 and 20 years of age.

Mr. Borden will be in command of the expedition, which will sail April 1, and in addition to the scouts will be accompanied by two mates, a navigator, Mrs. Borden, Miss Edith Cummings, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barney Goodspeed, and Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Slaughter.

Hunting polar and kodiac bears will be the main object of the expedition.

FEAR HIGHWAY PATROLMAN AND WIFE WERE SLAIN

Marion, Ill., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Highway Patrolman Lory L. Price and his wife, who were abducted from their home here last Monday night and have not been heard from since, are given up for dead by relatives and friends. Officers conducting the search for them fear they were murdered by gangsters.

Price was the last man known to have left Charles Birger's fortified roadhouse on the night of Jan. 8, before the place was dynamited, burned and four persons in it killed. He had not said much about his visit there or what he saw just before he left.

"He knew too much," is the significant comment of officers here.

Carry 125 Patients from Burning Hospital

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 22.—[U. P.]—One hundred and twenty-five patients were removed in an orderly manner and without injury when fire wrecked the St. Vincent's hospital here late today.

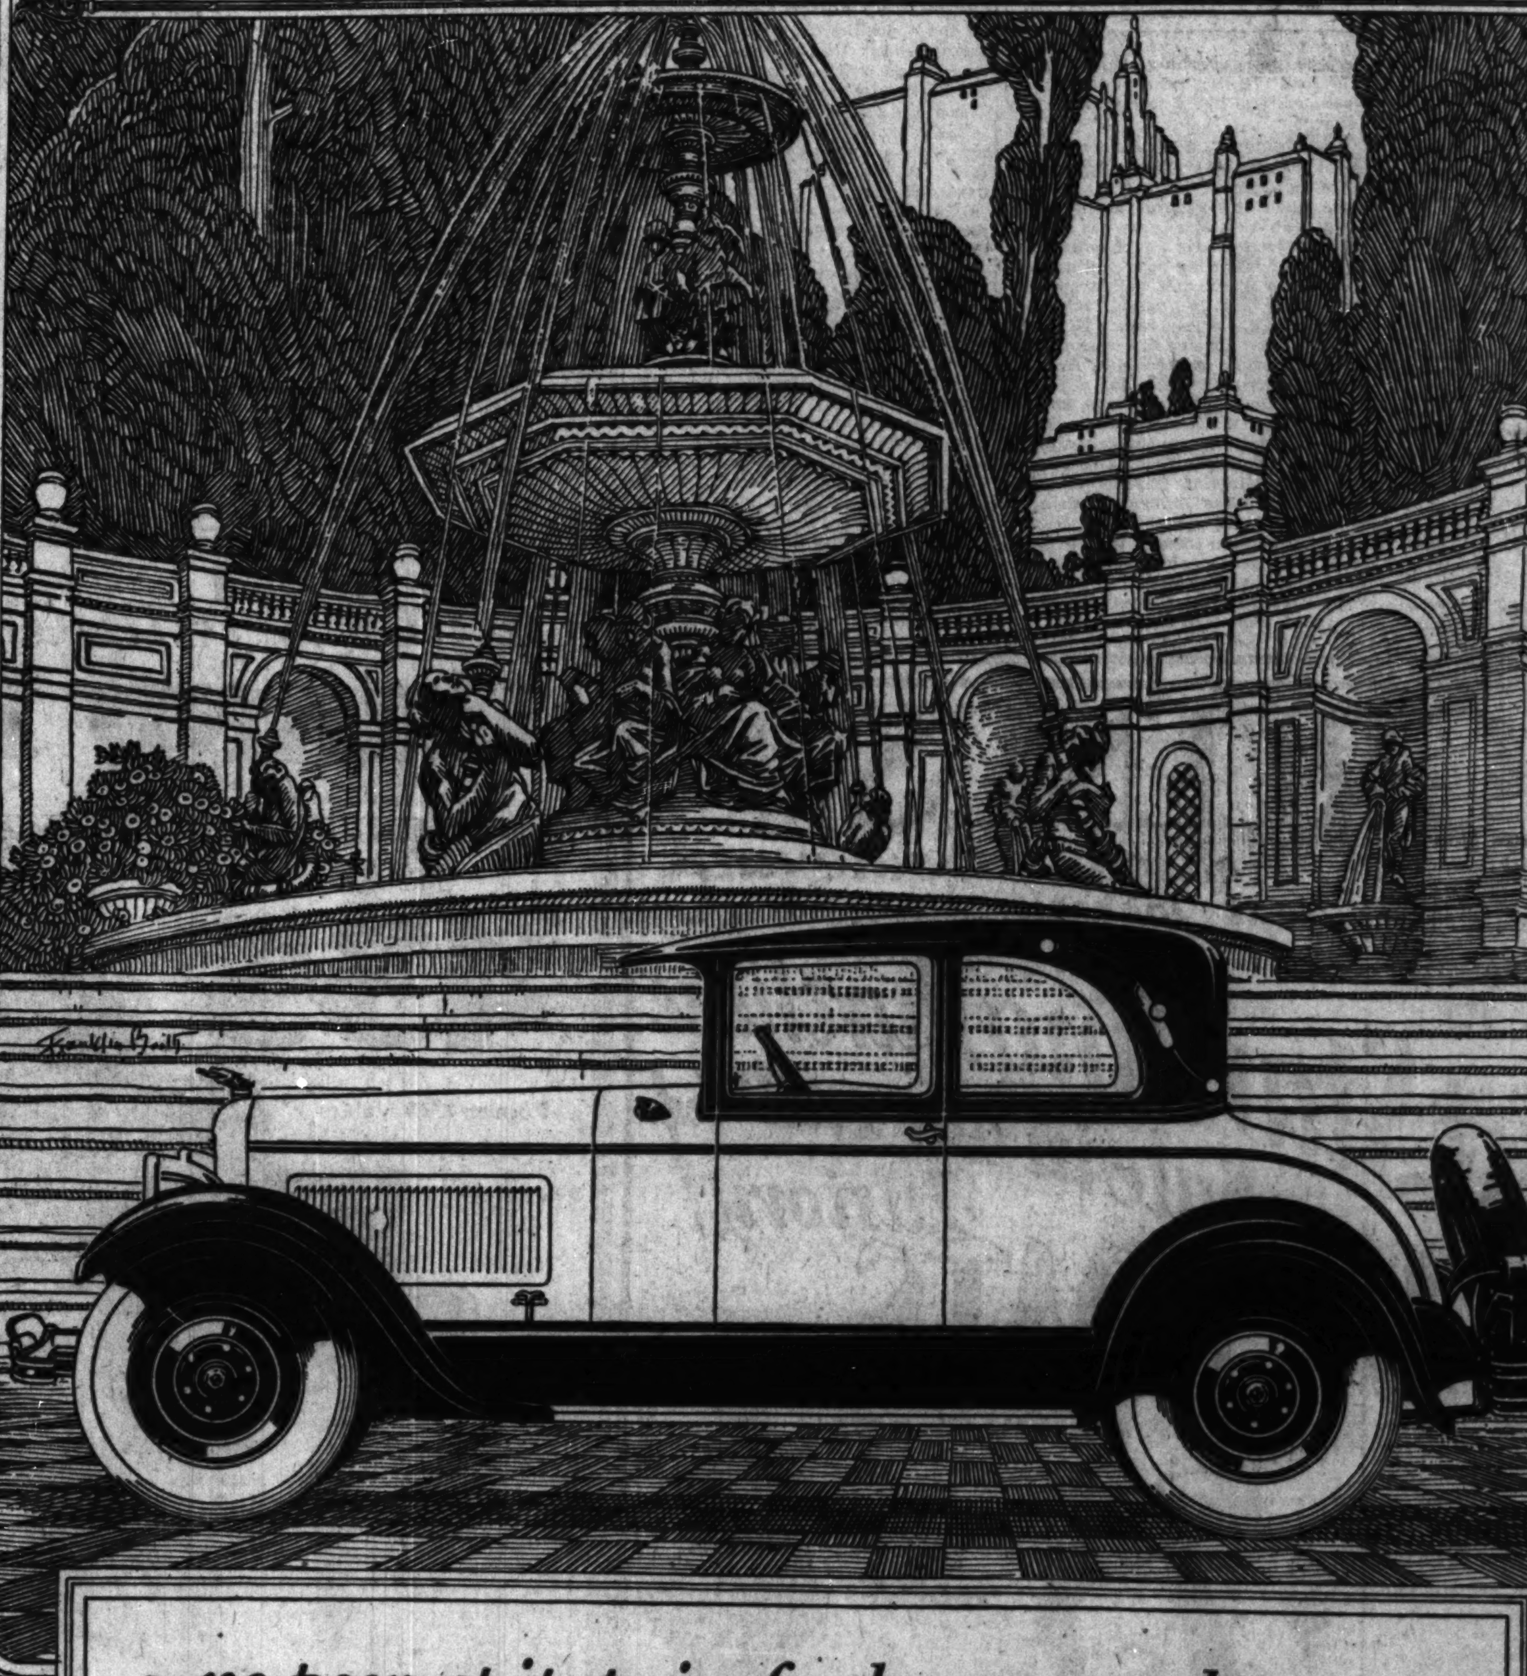
THE CHANCELLOR
~a Studebaker Big Six Custom Victoria



~no peer at its price for beauty and power!

FOR all its custom beauty, its extra equipment and its famed Big Six power, The Chancellor carries a democratic One-Profit price—$1735.

There is nothing smarter on wheels than this Big Six Victoria for four. Its low-swung, full-vision steel body, lacquered in rich Pyramid Gray and Desert Sand—and its richly appointed interior of fine broadcloth, with broadlace trim and silver-finish inlaid hardware, is nothing short of an invitation to get in and relax. An exclusive feature is the patented no-draft ventilating windshield, which admits abundant fresh air, and keeps out rain—even in a downpour.

The Chancellor is powered by the famous Studebaker Big Six motor—first to beat the schedules of the crack Limiteds from coast to coast. Only seven American cars equal it in rated horsepower—and they cost from two to five times more! Every phase of its Big Six performance has been tested on Studebaker's million-dollar Proving Ground—and proved again by many of the Big Sixes included in the 944 Studebakers which have been driven 100,000 miles or more.

Women should see The Chancellor to know what is newest in the custom mode—men should see it to appreciate how Studebaker One-Profit manufacture has raised the standard of fine car value.

Equipment; No-draft ventilating windshield, exclusively Studebaker; front and rear bumpers; engine thermometer and hydrostatic gasoline gauge on the dash; coincidental lock; oil filter; automatic windshield cleaner; rear-vision mirror; vanity case; toggle grip; rear traffic signal light; 4-wheel brakes; full-size balloon tires; snubbers and two-beam nickel-plated acorn headlights, controlled from steering wheel.

WILKERSON WILL SIFT FREEDOM FOR WESTBROOK

"Aware of Influences for Ex-Warden," Judge Says

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson yesterday again took his turn in the Druggan-Lake-Hoffman-et al. whirling of events and made the day seem dark and dreary for former Jail Warden Wesley H. Westbrook, certain assistant district attorneys, and a paid informer or two reported to have been helping the ex-warden.

The occasion for Judge Wilkerson's denunciation and rebuke developed from circumstances surrounding the immunity received by Westbrook in connection with the conspiracy trial in which former Sheriff Peter M. Hoffman, Terry Druggan, Frank Lake, and five others were acquitted on Dec. 17. The jurist said that some of the details of the Westbrook whitewash offered one of the most difficult cases he had met in all his experience on the federal bench.

Delays Druggan Decision.

Judge Wilkerson, after his criticism of the handling of the Westbrook phase of the case, put over until Feb. 1 his decision on Druggan and Lake in connection with the original contempt of court citation, but discharged Henry Foerst, Westbrook's former secretary, and Hans Thompson, former assistant jail superintendent.

At the time the former sheriff and the former warden were sentenced to jail terms, a year and a half ago, Foerst and Thompson both admitted they had received bribes and attached blame for conditions to Westbrook. On the basis of their release attorneys and friends were optimistic about the chances of Druggan and Lake, who also testified, to gain their release.

Guilt Calls for Prison.

Discussing the Westbrook immunity Judge Wilkerson said:

"This court is not unaware of influences which have been exerted in behalf of Westbrook.

"Westbrook, if he is guilty of the things testified to, and there was some corroborative testimony, should have gone to the penitentiary. The allegations were sent to the grand jury because I believed that they contained things serious enough to warrant penitentiary sentence, while under contempt proceedings, a jail sentence was the maximum.

"It is evident that some one in the prosecution of this case is working to keep Westbrook out of jail on the conspiracy charges that were entered against him. Only the President of the United States has the power to interfere with the court in such a matter.

"Let's go to the bottom of this thing and determine just what has happened."

Young Assistant Faces Storm.

First Assistant District Attorney Hope Thompson, who directed the prosecution of Hoffman, Druggan, and all the original jail scandal defendants except Westbrook, was not in court when the blistering was done. La Verne Norris, a youthful assistant, was detailed to face the storm. The professional reformers also were among those absent.

CITES HOFFMAN CASE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Two of the "notable cases" cited by J. E. Hoover, director of the department of justice bureau of investigation, to the house appropriations committee as "outstanding accomplishments" of the bureau during the last year are the jail sentence for contempt of former Sheriff Peter M. Hoffman of Cook county in the Druggan-Lake jail scandal and the conviction of Martin Durkin, slayer of a department of justice operative.

"We have had a number of cases during the past year in which the sheriffs or the wardens of county and city jails would allow the prisoners to leave the jail while they were supposed to be serving their terms," declared Mr. Hoover, according to the minutes of an executive session of the committee made public today.

Similarly, according to Mr. Hoover, the warden of the New Orleans, La., jail was cited for contempt of court "for allowing bootleggers free access to and from the jail."

COUPLE HELD FOR ARSON.

Charged with arson in connection with a mysterious fire which destroyed their grocery at 401 Harrison street, Oak Park, Jan. 16, Samuel Janous and his wife, Dorothy, were held to the grand jury by Police Magistrate Frank A. McKee.

Glencoe to Have Its Own Water Works; Buys Site

With the purchase of a site for a pumping station at 69 Park avenue, Glencoe, for a reported $113,000, President Merle B. Waltz of the village, announced yesterday that the city will in the future have its own water supply. Glencoe has heretofore been dependant on Winnetka. The initial outlay of $300,000 for the site and the plant will in the end prove a thrifty investment, Mr. Waltz believes.

BOYS SAY POLICE TORTURE FORCED MURDER STORIES

Court to Rule Tomorrow on 9 Confessions.

Four of the nine boys on trial before Judge John J. Sullivan in the criminal court for murder took the witness stand yesterday and said the police tortured them to obtain confessions. Each boy said that the twenty or more policeman who have preceded them upon the witness stand did not tell the truth when they testified that the confessions were voluntary.

Court to Decide Tomorrow.

Judge Sullivan will decide tomorrow whether the jury, which has been excluded during the hearing on the confession, will be allowed to hear the boys' signed admission of how, last Halloween night, they beat to death Stanley Ciesla, 1955 West 19th street, to obtain $40 and a watch.

John Janowicz, 1522 West Fourteenth street, said that the police accused him of being the "tough guy" of the outfit of street corner hoodlums. He was punched in the face, kicked on the legs and finally made to put his arms around the body of the victim, he said.

Tells Hanging Threat.

John Stancil charged that the police put a rope around his neck and told him that unless he confessed, a hanging would take place immediately. He is the last of the defendants to testify on the confessions and will conclude his testimony tomorrow morning.

FINDS HUSBAND IS A WOMAN; ASKS FOR ANNULMENT

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 22.—(AP)—A woman who married to find that her mate was not a man today sought annulment of the marriage in Judge John J. Gregory's court here. Helen M. Devore, who married Keneth Devore, three years ago in Chicago, seeks the annulment, charging that the marriage license was obtained by "fraud and deceit."

Charles B. Perry, attorney for the woman, asserted that Mrs. Devore left her "husband" the first day after she discovered "he" was a woman. The whereabouts of the person she married are not known to Mrs. Devore.

(A Business Editorial)

EXAGGERATION

Exaggerated statements offend against truth and give a mean idea of one's understanding.

Undue praise arouses lively curiosity—creates desire.

If, afterwards, the value does not correspond to the price—as often happens—expectation revolts, and has a measure of revenge by underestimating the thing recommended and the firm recommending.

Prudence prefers to err by omission rather than commission.

'Tis true rare things are valuable, but extraordinary things are rare. Therefore, most things being ordinary, moderation in statement is wise.

Exaggeration is a branch of lying. One loses by it, not only the credit of good taste, but also of good sense, which is the more important.

WORLD'S LABOR MAKES ITS PEACE WITH FASCISTS

Let Black Shirts Speak for Italian Workers.

BY JOHN CLAYTON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Jan. 22.—International labor, as represented by the Geneva bureau of labor, is ready to make peace with Fascist syndicalism, THE TRIBUNE learned today from a high authority.

Albert Thomas, representing the international bureau of labor, recently negotiated with Fascist leaders here and an engagement was reached to permit the Fascist syndicalists, headed by Edmondo Rossoni, to represent Italian labor at Geneva. This would mean the dissolution of the Italian general confederation of labor, with the recall of their representative, Sig. Daragona.

Seek Protection for Workers.

Negotiations between the Fascist and the general confederation of labor have been going on for some time. They were interrupted by the flight of Buozzi Treves and other labor leaders following the adoption of the safety of state law. Resumed through Mr. Thomas, they have come to a happy conclusion and Mr. Thomas has returned to Geneva.

Mr. Thomas pointed out that all the international bureau sought was protection for the Italian working man and asked assurances that the new "carta del lavoro" would supply this protection. He was assured the workmen would be given every protection by this Magna Charta of labor. He probably will be shown a copy of the document before it is made public. He already is familiar with the outstanding details to an extent that he will be able to assure his colleagues in Geneva that there is no reason for longer opposing the syndicalist representatives as spokesmen for the Italian workers.

Ends Row with Labor.

The agreement between the Fascists and the international labor bureau will bring to an end a very difficult international situation. For some time the general confederation of labor has had no authority in Italy. Its unions have been suppressed and succeeded by the Fascist syndicates.

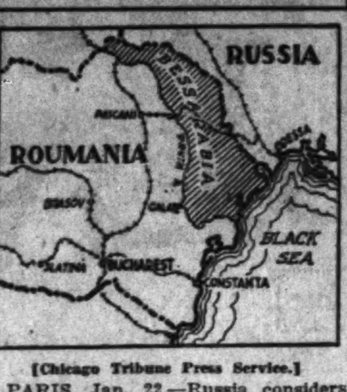
At the same time Sig. Daragona, as president, was recognized at Geneva as the representative of the Italian workers. An extensive international campaign against Fascism was conducted by the Second Internationale at Amsterdam—a parent of the international labor bureau—causing some embarrassment abroad.

Recognition by the international body of the principles of Fascist syndicalism as representative of Italian labor brings to a close one of the bitterest phases of the campaign against Italian Fascism in other European countries.

Hope Blair Will Leave Hospital in Week or So

New York, Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Watson F. Blair of Chicago was said by Roosevelt hospital attendants today to be much improved. He has been ill at the hospital for several days. Mrs. Blair, who has taken an apartment at Hotel Plaza, a few blocks distant from the hospital, said tonight that she expected Mr. Blair would be able to leave the hospital in a week or ten days.

RUSSIA PROTESTS



[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 22.—Russia considers the Franco-Roumanian treaty an unfriendly act on the part of the French government, Ambassador Christian Rakovsky informed Foreign Minister Aristide Briand today. Moscow is angered because Quai d' Orsay recognized as legal the Bucharest government's seizure of Bessarabia, the old Russian province, which the bolsheviks have constantly threatened to recapture by force.

"By promising aid to Roumania in case of war and proclaiming a community of interests between France and Roumania without reservation on Bessarabia, France encourages aggressive tendencies on the part of Bucharest, compromises the success of a peaceful solution of the Bessarabia problem, and aggravates the menace against peace in eastern Europe," M. Rakovsky told Foreign Minister Briand. "The soviet government can not consider the guarantee treaty a friendly act as it is directed against Russian interests and against the well being of the inhabitants of Bessarabia."

M. Rakovsky stressed the fact that the United States, Italy and Japan do not recognize Roumania's sovereignty over Bessarabia.

MEXICO DRIVES ON RUM; CLOSES 127 GROG SHOPS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 22.—One hundred and twenty-seven saloons and other places where drink is sold have been closed by the order of the governor of the federal district. More will be closed in the next few days.

One of the recent radical laws forbids drinking places within 200 meters of a school or a railway or other traffic station. As Mexico City is crossed by many railway and street car lines, the law cuts to the roots of the drink question in the federal district, and particularly in the city, where working men spend more than 50 per cent of their wages in low drinking dens. The aim of the government is said to be really to reduce the amount of drinking by all.

By the new move the government loses considerable revenue, but President Calles is said to count the loss as little compared with the good it is expected to do for the working classes. The federation of labor is said to be behind the action.

J. D. Schneider Operated On; Taken Ill in Florida

James D. Schneider, secretary of the Illinois waterway commission and former secretary to the late Senator Medill McCormick, was taken suddenly ill at Jacksonville, Fla., a few days ago and was operated on yesterday at Henrotin hospital. According to hospital attachés the operation was successful.

SIR HARI SINGH'S INDIAN REGIME IS SUCCESSFUL

'Mr. A.' of Divorce Fame Is Strong for Reform.

SIR HARI SINGH.
[Kadel & Herbert Photo.]

SRINAGAR, India, Jan. 22.—It is now a year since His Highness Maharajah of Kashmir, Sir Hari Singh—"Mr. A"—came to the throne. Ever since 1921 he was president of the executive council and had supported the cause of reform in every way. But since the disclosure of the notorious Robinson divorce case, he went into retirement for more than six months, undergoing religious penance in order to appease his rigidly orthodox uncle and his still more eccentric coterie of old Hindu pundits.

Many were the almost unheard of old and curious customs in this border state of Kashmir, which had to be faced by the young Maharajah. It may be interesting to note that on the death of his old uncle, the chief executive office of the state issued a general order of "Bhadan," or the shaving of the beard, the moustache and the head of every Hindu male over 16 years of age on the tenth day after the Maharajah's death.

The clients for the barber were many and their charges rose about 1,000 per cent, and many had not succeeded in finishing their tonsorial ceremony before 11 a. m., the time fixed for the tenth day functions. Some of the palace officials were dismissed for not obeying that order.

Disbands Swan Battalion.

Then again among the various responsibilities which the maharajah inherited was the special Swan battalion of 300 swans, absolutely white, headed by a creamy colored one, a pet scheme of his old uncle, who believed them to be sacred birds belonging to Brahma, the creator of the Hindu trinity. They had a special guard with swans as their emblem and the whole battalion was taken to the royal tanks in the morning from the special inclosure in the maharajah's palace and escorted back in the evening. The roads on these occasions were closed to all traffic while the majestic birds waddled forth.

Sir Hari Singh wanted to get rid of the swans, but the pundits forbade it, saying that they were sacred. Sir Hari turned the tables on them nicely by making presents of them to all the old orthodox councillors of his uncle who had taken prominent part in making him do penance for his sins in England. He said that they were the custodians of the faith of his uncle and as a mark of royal favor he quietly distributed the swans amongst them, asking them to take special care of the sacred birds. This removed one of the stock attractions of Jammu, but decreased an enormous waste of palace money on the upkeep of the swans.

One of the main departments of the state was forests. Kashmir is well known for its valuable forests, but the old maharajah had given precious little attention to it. Under Sir Hari Singh the situation improved and by the end of October, after a year of his rule, the department returns showed a profit of $300,000 instead of only £10,000, recorded in the year previous. The Kashmir forest department controls about 10,000 square miles of jungle, or over six million acres.

The village used to burn large areas for making clearings to cultivate grass fodder. The new maharajah introduced resin tapping as a new industry and instead of the 100 square miles of forest burnt by villagers the year previous there was not a single square mile burnt during this year.

Smuggling Serious Problem.

One of the chief difficulties Kashmir has to deal with is the numerous smugglers who come across the border. Several raids were made by the forest authorities, but this was not stopped until at last military detachments with Lewis guns were dispatched and in the fight, which took place near the Sin Kiang border, forty-eight raiders were captured, several wounded and killed. It was believed that this trouble arose over agents inspired from abroad and located in Chinese Turkestan.

The strengthening of the forest department has resulted in stopping this smuggling and raiding and, with the newly appointed staff of European officers, it is hoped that this will cease.

Lives Simple Life.

The young maharajah has become the most popular figure in the state at the present time. Possessor of almost untold wealth, his highness is the embodiment of simplicity in his personal life. He is wearing white homespun cloth called khaddar, so much favored by Mahatma Gandi.

He goes on observing all the old religious rites laid down by Hinduism, with punctilious regard for the old rites and ceremonies. He went on a pilgrimage on foot to the Shri Nathy's cave in the United Provinces accompanied by a large retinue and thousands of pilgrims and gave away valuable presents, including an all gold coat studded with jewels valued over £25,000.

AMERICAN PRINCE TO PRESS AGENT ROYAL FIDDLER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 22—Prince Louis de Bourbon, who was exiled from Spain as a pretender to the Spanish throne, will sail for the United States on the President Harding on Wednesday to prepare for a reception by the American world of art for Prince Joachim Albrecht, second cousin of the former kaiser. Prince Joachim Albrecht, who is a violinist and composer, is going to America to present his own composition.

Prince Louis, who is an American citizen, plays an important part in monarchistic circles throughout eastern Europe, where monarchists point to him as the "man who knows all secrets," traveling on difficult missions from one group to another.

Prince Louis will travel on the President Harding with an impressive retinue of noblemen from most of the European countries.

Germany Caring for 792,000 Soldiers Maimed in War

[Copyright: 1927: By The New York Times.]

BERLIN, Jan. 22.—Germany's latest census of the war cripples and dependents shows 792,000 injured soldiers and 1,067,680 children are receiving pensions. The number of cripples listed increased by 16,000 during the last two years, due to the fact that during the days of the inflation a number failed to register on account of the small value of German money. A number of others, pronounced cured and able bodied, have asked for aid, on account of relapses in health.

Viscount Curzon Injured When Auto Overturns

LONDON, Jan. 22.—[U. P.]—Thrown out of his automobile when it skidded and overturned, Viscount Curzon, member of parliament, today suffered a dislocated shoulder and severe injuries to his ribs. He was taken to a hospital, where his condition was said to be "as comfortable as can be expected."

RADICALS FIGHT MILITARISTS AT KIEL; 60 HURT

KIEL, Germany, Jan. 22.—[U. P.]—Sixty persons were injured, many seriously, when a free-for-all fight between communists and Socialists on one side and the "steel helmeters" [a militarist organization] on the other broke up their joint meeting here today.

Charges by walter Vonkurodi, a former military officer, who was addressing the "steel helmeters," that the Republican organization "reichsbanner" was guilty of treason precipitated the clash.

The communists and Socialists in the gathering demanded the right to reply. The chairman refused. The rebuffed Socialists then retaliated by flinging chairs from the galleries and the fight became general.

WOMEN FIGHT TO WIN EQUAL RIGHTS TO GENEVA JOBS

Ousting of New Yorker, Miss Wilson, Stirs Row.

GENEVA, Jan. 22.—(AP)—The principle of the equality of women with men in international life is behind a fight now being waged between officials of the league of nations and international women's organizations representing millions of women.

So stirred have the international organizations become over the league's decision to terminate the services of Miss Florence Wilson of New York as librarian of the league that a protest has been sent to Sir Eric Drummond, league secretary. Sentiment has become so strong that it is possible the matter may be aired at the next assembly.

Fight for Women's Right.

The protest, it was stated, is not based on the fact that Miss Wilson is an American, but solely because a woman has been forced to leave the service of the league without being replaced by another woman and because the action is felt to represent a violation of the covenant, which declares that all positions in connection with the league shall be open equally to men and women.

The protest was sent from London by the international joint standing committee of the International Women's organizations, having its seat in London and including the international Council of Women, the Women's Suffrage association, the Young Women's Christian association, the Federation of University Women, the League for Peace and Freedom, the International Nurses' association, and the World Union for International Concord, of which Mme. Darcis of Geneva is president.

Spurn League Alibi.

The communication does not accept the league's explanation that Miss Wilson's contract had expired, insisting that the contract of a man expired simultaneously and yet was renewed.

Mme. Darcis said that it should be clearly understood that the women's organizations are fighting for Miss Wilson, not because she is an American but because she is a woman and the various women's organizations wished to fight for the equality of women with men in international life.

Mme. Darcis added that the London standing committee regularly sends to the league the names of women who are believed to qualify as specialists or to sit on league commissions.

Make Place for Man.

Miss Wilson, who helped the American delegation at the Paris peace conference, organized the league library along American lines, and her talent is said to be unquestioned. The indication is that Miss Wilson, as a citizen of a nonmember country, was dropped to make an opening for a male citizen of Germany, which recently joined the league. It is further alleged that Germany has overlooked the job, that it does not want it, and prefers appointments having more political significance.

Miss Alice Bartlett of New York, assistant librarian, will also be dropped. Miss Wilson has obtained a half time position as a lecturer on library economy in Paris.

John Coolidge Sells Old Clothes to Dealer

5 WOLF HUNTERS READY FOR CHASE NEAR PALOS PARK

A drive against wolves that have been killing sheep, chickens and dogs near Palos Park will be made tomorrow by five hunters, headed by Ransom Kennicott, chief forester of the forest preserve.

High powered rifles will be used by the hunters. The wolf pack, consisting of a male, female, and four cubs have been killing domestic animals for a month.

The hunters, Kennicott, Ransom Kennicott Jr., Harrison Kennicott, Arthur Korsgard, and Assistant Forester Peter M. Hoffman shot two wolves last week on the Samuel Insull estate near Libertyville.

Moody Institute Celebrates Founder's Week Feb. 1-5

Nearly 2,000 pastors, Bible teachers and other church and Sunday school workers, including many alumni of the Moody Bible institute, will attend the annual founder's week conference, Feb. 1 to 5, to pay tribute to the memory of Dwight L. Moody. The Rev. J. Stuart Holden, vicar of St. Paul's church, Portman square, London, and many well known American pastors will address the conference, which will be held at the institute. Much of the program will be broadcast over the institute's radio station, WMBI.

$83,459,390 APPROPRIATION BILL REPORTED

House Measure Covers Four Departments.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Appropriations aggregating $83,459,390 for the state, justice, commerce and labor departments were reported to the house today by its appropriations committee. The total of the bill, while it exceeds the current allowances by $448,609, is $402,815 less than the budget bureau had estimated would be necessary for the four departments during the coming year.

The bill, in its present form, would make available for the state department, $11,877,886; for the department of justice and the federal judiciary, $26,345,889; for the department of commerce, $36,192,075, and for the department of labor, $9,043,540.

Would Examine Aliens Abroad.

Appropriations for the labor department include an item of $484,720 to permit the department to examine abroad immigrants desiring to enter the United States before they obtain visas or purchase transportation. The examination system is operating in Great Britain, Ireland, Belgium, Holland, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Germany, and Poland. According to the report of the appropriations committee, about 79 per cent of all immigrants arriving in the United States are given final examinations before they leave their home land.

"The advantages of this system," the report declared, "are obvious, preventing, as it does, innumerable aliens from coming to the United States only to be turned away on account of some physical defect or quota excess."

Cut Aid for Civil Aviation.

In recommending appropriations $3,568,165 for the development of commercial aviation the committee explained that, after an exhaustive investigation, it had concluded that too ambitious a program had been outlined. Accordingly, it reduced the budget estimate for the aviation phase of the department by $239,860 and for the installation of air navigation facilities by $207,725.

With the lighting and planning of airways still in the experimental stage, the committee, in its report, declared "it feels itself justified in being somewhat conservative for the time being."

BRITONS ATTACK ENGLAND'S DRIVE ON U. S. MOVIES

Tell Britain Its Films Are Poor Jobs.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1927: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Jan. 22.—The government's movement to rehabilitate the British motion picture industry and to wean the British public from its taste for Hollywood pictures is causing strong protests by movie patrons. The economic committee of the imperial conference recently tried to find a plan to curb American competition, but made only three or four suggestions for government action.

The board of trade now is preparing a bill designed to establish compulsory "British films;" that is, to compel the purchase and exhibition of home made films which might not gain entry into the competitive market. Deputations of film producers and exhibitors are making regular calls on the board of trade, and a hot squabble has arisen over the question.

Subsidy to Incompetence.

The London Times, in a truculent editorial, scored the scheme as a subsidy to incompetence and likely to injure production. The Times assailed the Hollywood films, but said that the British efforts so far have not been much better, and advocated more art and highbrow elements in pictures. The paper said that if a Shakespeare of the films should arise today the film directors would make him have Ophelia rescued from drowning by Laertes' dog.

Princess Antoine Bibesco took up the cudgels saying, "distress, not art, is a field for charity."

Sir Max Musprat, president of the Board of Federated Industries, answered the Times for objecting to the "system," saying the paper is "nullifying the effort to check the gradual Americanization of our empire."

Meanwhile, Lord Askwith, who is president of the film institute which is supposed to bolster up British films, says that Princess Bibesco is all wrong

"British Must Make Good."

The Times today, in another editorial, replies to Sir Max, that "there is no remedy for the moral, artistic and commercial evils of the screen," and insists that the British must make good films if they want to sell them.

Climaxing the row, the London Daily News has jumped in, asserting the films are all right as they are, and designating the preaching of the Times as dangerous cant. Meanwhile the American pictures continue to attract large audiences.

MOTHER PLEADS SON BE JAILED TO AVOID WOMAN

Bound that her son should have no more traffic with a woman bootlegger, Mrs. Clara Price, an actress, 830 North Dearborn street, insisted yesterday that Judge Joseph L. McCarthy in the Desplaines street court sentence her son Arthur to the Bridewell, inasmuch as the judge protested his lack of authority to punish the woman who sold the liquor. Young Price was sentenced to the Bridewell to work out a $100 fine.

Price was arrested Friday night in the flat of Mrs. Delia Eudaire, 3 West Walton place. Arraigned before Judge McCarthy yesterday morning, Mrs. Eudaire's attorney gained a postponement of her case until Jan. 28. She is charged with violation of the prohibition act.

WIFE ENDS LIFE BY SWALLOWING POISON IN HOME

Mrs. Mary Dooley, 33 years old, locked herself in the bathroom of her home, 4706 North Paulina street, early yesterday and drank poison. She was taken to the Ravenswood hospital where she died an hour later. Mrs. Dooley, accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Stella Schwein, and her husband John, had been visiting friends earlier in the evening and appeared in good spirits. Her husband told the police that she had undergone an operation a short time ago and had been subject to spells of despondency.

STORM PASSES IN DEMOCRATIC WOMEN'S CLUB

The recent internecine strife in the ranks of the Illinois Women's Democratic club was reported subsiding yesterday. Mrs. Mary Onahan Gallery, who withdrew her candidacy for reelection to the presidency, declared that the case was closed as far as she was concerned. Neither she nor her friends contemplate anything as drastic as a resignation.

"I hope it will be made plain, however," she said, "that the reported objections to Mrs. Dever's presence at the speakers' table were not because Mrs. Dever is a wet. Mrs. Dever is not in public life and has never declared herself wet or dry. The question was one of having downstate instead of Chicago women at the speakers' table at a luncheon given in honor of downstate women."

From Mrs. George E. Brennan, who is understood to be principal sponsor for Mrs. Elizabeth Conkey, now sole candidate for the presidency, came additional word that the storm clouds had passed.

PAIR HELD IN $15,000 THEFT.

Dorothy Moore, 30, and Harry Meyers, 35, who were arrested last Friday on a fugitive warrant charging them with participating in a $15,000 theft at Mankato, Minn., were arraigned yesterday in the South Clark street court and their hearing continued until Feb. 3. Miss Moore's bond was set at $10,000 and Meyers' at $5,000.

ASKS JOINT RAIL AND BARGE RATES INTO NORTHWEST

Increased rail rates have created a situation in the northwest that demands alleviation, declared Frank B. Townsend, director of traffic of the Minneapolis Traffic association, at an interstate commerce commission hearing yesterday.

Mr. Townsend's testimony was in support of the plea of the Inland Waterways corporation that four railroads be required to establish joint rates with the Mississippi-Warrior river barge line via Dubuque, Ia. The Twin cities and the territory fed by the upper Mississippi river are handicapped by being forced to obtain their supplies from a distance, according to Mr. Townsend.

He said that long hauls at high rates make the northwest region unable to compete with districts close to coal fields and in advantageous positions for receiving raw materials. He asserted that barge service alone is not sufficient, and that the best results are obtained when railroads coöperate with water transport.

YOUTH, 18, SENT TO CELL.

Joseph Wdowik, 18 years old, 1626 Dickson street, was sentenced to the House of Correction for six months yesterday. Wdowik had been placed on probation last week after he was said to have threatened his stepfather with a revolver. Later he was arrested and still carried the gun.

FOG PARALYZES NEW YORK PORT FOR THIRD DAY

New York, Jan. 22.—[Special.]—For a third successive day the heavy fog which has paralyzed harbor traffic hung over the city today. Ferryboat schedules were thrown into confusion, while three incoming and fourteen outgoing liners, carrying about 6,000 passengers, were delayed from half an hour to ten hours.

A small freighter grounded and many collisions were narrowly averted. It was not until after 4 o'clock that the wind suddenly shifted to the west and the fog was blown away. Incoming ships quickly docked while the outbound vessels moved out of the harbor.

Tropical Germ in Bradley Case Baffles Scientists

Specialists in consultation at the bedside of Herbert E. Bradley, noted African explorer, have been unable to identify with certainty the germ causing the fever with which he was stricken six weeks ago, Mrs. Bradley said yesterday. Contracted in the Congo nineteen months ago, the fever is a wasting disease, Mrs. Bradley said, and Mr. Bradley's weight now is only 113 pounds. He is being treated for tropical malaria.

ROBERTSON TELLS JACKSON BLVD. WIDENING PLANS

Plans to widen Jackson boulevard west of the loop to a uniform 120 feet and the straightening of the kinks and bottle neck sections of Washington boulevard were revealed last night by John Dill Robertson, president of the west Chicago park commission. He spoke at the dedication of the new clubhouse of the Motorist Association of Illinois at 2400 South Michigan avenue. It is expected that work will start in the spring, Dr. Robertson said.

Another street improvement program was announced by David H. Jackson, president of the Lincoln park commission, who said that plans were under consideration for the separation of grade entrances and exits to Lincoln park.

Axel Swanson, a dealer in auto accessories, was elected first president of the club last night. The organization, which succeeds the Illinois Automobile club, has a membership of 20,000. Three hundred were present at the dinner, followed by a dance.

LOYOLA TO DEBATE DRY ISSUE.

Next Thursday evening Loyola university and Wheaton college teams will debate the question: "Resolved, That the Volstead act be amended to permit the manufacture and sale of light wines and beer." The debate will be held at St. Ignatius auditorium, Loyola and Glenwood avenues.

MICHIGAN UPSETS INDIANA, 31 TO 27

THEY'RE OFF—FOR SILVER SKATES

Robert Bee of Henry playground winning the first heat of the boys' juvenile races in the eleventh annual Tribune Silver Skates Derbies at the Washington park lagoon yesterday. Hundreds lined the racing course for the preliminary events which determined entries for the final races this afternoon. Ideal weather and perfect ice facilitated handling of the preliminaries and insure completion of one of the most successful Derbies in history today. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

ANN ARBOR FIVE CLIMBS OVER HOOSIERS INTO BIG 10 CAGE LEAD

Bloomington, Ind., Jan. 22.—(AP)—The University of Michigan took undisputed lead in the Western Conference basketball race by defeating Indiana here tonight, 31 to 27, the quintet of six footers comprising the Wolverine quintet, keeping the visitors in the lead once they assumed it early in the second half.

ART BECKNER.

Clemon, Michigan back guard, was largely responsible for the triumph, his thrusts, from beneath his own goal paralyzing the offense of the Crimson's midget forwards. In addition to his stalwart defense, he was the high individual scorer with four field goals and two foul tosses.

Indiana assumed an early lead, piling up eight points before Petrie slipped around Beckner for an open shot. The Wolverines closed the gap only to have Krueger and Beckner shoot the Crimson into a 17 to 14 lead at half time. Indiana wore down rapidly in the second period, however, and the goal getting proclivities fell off as the players were forced to do their shooting far from the basket. Lineup:

Northwestern Scares Wisconsin but Falls, 25-24.

BADGERS, 25; PURPLE, 24

Madison, Wis., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Northwestern's defense cracked in the final minutes of play tonight and Wisconsin broke through for a 25 to 24 victory in the Badgers' fifth Western conference game.

LOUIS BEHR.

Louin Behr, Rockford flash, gave the Badgers their winning margin when an easy, under the basket shot dropped through the net. He also accounted for twelve other points.

Taking the lead at the beginning of the game, with Gleichman's basket from mid floor, Northwestern wasn't headed until shortly before the gun cracked. At half time, the Purple led 16 to 10.

Wisconsin's shots were wild and the short passing game was erratic. Ralph Merkel, playing his last conference game for the Badgers, because of graduation, was put out on four personal fouls, early in the second half. Fisher and Levison went out via the same route a few minutes later.

Gleichman missed an opportunity to tie the score a few seconds before the end, when his free throw went wi'd. The game left Northwestern without a conference victory so far this season. Lineup:

Tigers' 'Dirty' Play Cause of Big 3 Break?

New York, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Assertion that "dirty football" played by Princeton, not the jibes of the Harvard Lampoon, was responsible for the break in athletic relations between the Tiger and Crimson is made in an article written by Wynant D. Hubbard, varsity guard on the 1919-20 Crimson teams, and published by Liberty magazine. The Lampoon, he says, merely has been made the "goat."

CHARLEY BUELL.
[P. & A. Photo.]

Charging that the only two "dirty" games of his own playing career were "the ones with Princeton," Hubbard lodges a number of specific accusations against the Tigers. These cover mainly the period of 1922 to 1926, inclusive, and involve instances of gouged eyes, broken limbs, and other injuries which Hubbard says were suffered by Harvard players in freshman as well as varsity gridiron contests.

Cites Rough Playing.

Among Hubbard's accusations, which he declares are the "root of the trouble," are the following:

1. That when playing Princeton the players on the Harvard team almost invariably come out of the game torn and scratched badly about the eyes. That the Harvard team, although it played seven other colleges every year, never had this happen except when playing against Princeton. That, in one game with Princeton, seven men were torn.

2. That, in the 1925 game, Miller, Harvard's full back, came out of the game with the clear imprint of a signet ring on his nose, and Daley, star Harvard guard, was "scissored" by two Princeton linemen while going down on the opening kickoff.

3. That, in the 1924 Princeton game, three of the members of the Harvard team received badly twisted knees and one a broken leg. All of the knee injuries were alike. The men

American League Chiefs to Hear Johnson's Case Today

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Part one of baseball's two act seriocomedy entitled "Get Ban," will open here today when the American league directors meet with their chief, Ban Johnson, to determine whether or not he spoke out of turn, and if so with provocation.

Act two of the same little affair is scheduled tomorrow when the American leaguers are to go before Commissioner K. M. Landis for the purpose of letting him quiz them on any evidence they may have against Cobb or Tris Speaker aside from the damaging Dutch Leonard letters that recently caused the two stars to be dropped as managers.

Today's act, however, is the more important of the two because the directors must either indicate an intention to stand by their own league and its acts or throw the burden on President Johnson, for whom Landis is reported gunning.

Blowup Prospects Slim.

If the American leaguers in their session today—and seven will be there either as present directors or as members of the 1926 board that gave Landis the Leonard letters which were published—broadcast to the world that there is nothing to fight about, that the league itself and not Johnson is at stake there will not be much shooting the day following.

If the league throws down Johnson as it did two years ago when Landis demanded his resignation, the act will be an invitation to the commissioner to cut loose tomorrow and assail the American league executive in the open meeting at which newspapermen will be present. Such a turn of affairs might precipitate an unsavory situation that will not die hurriedly.

But prospects of a real blowoff are slim. Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the Yanks, a liberal minded but firm gentleman who knew where to stop in the political fight of two years ago, is expected to put on the muffler again. Ruppert was one of the directors when decision was reached to give the Leonard letters to Landis last December.

Navin in Peculiar Place.

Frank Navin, owner of the Detroit club, and a present director, is in a peculiar position. He knew as early as last June of the Leonard letters. He knew before the end of August that George Moriarty would manage the Tigers in 1927. He was present when the American league directors on Dec. 15 last called Landis before them and told him he would be given the evidence against the two players.

It was Navin money that satisfied Leonard and sent him back home without his incriminating letters. Leonard came east with a prepared brief showing that Cobb, before others, had made threats to put him out of baseball. Attorneys for the Detroit club advised a settlement as the easiest means of avoiding a lawsuit. Henry Killilea, a Milwaukee attorney, was called in. He paid $20,000 for Leonard's claims against the Detroit club and induced Leonard to part with the letters. At least that is the story so far as is known. If Landis has a different version it is his own secret, because he has refused to discuss the case.

READY TO TALK

B. B. JOHNSON.

Johnson Isn't Excited.

President Johnson last night faced the one hundred and eighty-ninth crisis of his career with no apparent sign of excitement. He admitted that he had no idea of what might happen, but he did admit that he would give the directors whatever additional evidence he may have against Speaker. It is presumed that this evidence involves habitual betting on horse races, which the league regards as unbecoming conduct for a manager. There is nothing against Cobb except his letter to Leonard in which he talked of money bet on a game between Detroit and Cleveland in September of 1919.

The directors who will meet today are Phil Ball of St. Louis, Tom Shibe of Philadelphia, Frank Navin of Detroit, and Clark Griffith of Washington. The other owners who will attend because they were members of the board until last month are Ruppert, Bob Quinn of Boston, and E. S. Barnard of Cleveland.

Hawks Battle Boston to 2-2 Tie at Hockey

BY HARLAND ROHM.

When the zebra striped Blackhawks discover some means of eliminating the first period of a hockey game they'll never lose a game. As usual, against the Boston Bruins at the Coliseum arena last night they got away two goals to the bad in the first period and then began to play hockey. They scored one goal in the second period, one in the third, and then fought twenty minutes overtime to a 2 to 2 tie.

The graying Dick Irwin wore his captain's bars well last night, for he led the offense almost all the time he was on the ice, with noble assistance from Bob Trapp and Eddie Rodden, the Minneapolis Miller, who joined the team yesterday.

Shore Scores Goal.

The defense had the time of its life, however, handling the rushes of husky Eddie Shore, Frank Frederickson, and Fred Hitchman, whose smashing charges took the puck into Chicago's territory. Shore and the powerful Frederickson accounted for both of Boston's goals within a few minutes. Shore smashed down for the first one, followed in a drive, and scored on the rebound, at the same time skidding on his ear into the boards. A few minutes later Shore again made a drive down the ice, passed to Frederickson in front of the net, and the huge Icelander scored.

The Hawks got a chance when Shore and Oliver were chased, but with two men just in front of the blue line and two back the Bruins held. In the second period Shore and Hitchman were chased, and this time the Hawks made use of the advantage. After several scrambles in front of the goal in which nothing happened, Rodden passed to Dye and Babe put it in on a short shot.

Injuries Mar Game.

The third goal came on a speedy drive by Dick Irwin early in the third period. The captain carried the puck down the side and passed to McVeigh from behind the net and the Rabbit scored.

The game was clean, but four times some one got hit hard enough to require time out. Once the six foot three Hitchman crashed into Rabbit McVeigh and knocked him out. Another time Puss Traub's stick caught Shore in the eye, whereupon Shore took a cut at Traub's legs and they both went to the penalty box, where conversation tending to continue the row was squelched. A short time later one of Babe Dye's rifle shots for the net caught Shore in the eye and just before the end of the game Hitchman was dumped into the boards and limped to the bench doubled up.

THE TRIBUNE's eleventh annual Silver Skates Derbies, which have attracted an entry of 2,641 boy and girl contestants from Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana, Iowa, and Canada, will be held over a six lap course on the west lagoon in Washington park this afternoon starting at 1 o'clock.

JOHN V. CLINNIN.
[Wallinger Photo.]

The growth of this skating classic has been amazing. When the first derby was held in 1917, little interest was shown. More than 100 boys sent in their entries and about sixty competed. Only one race was held and it was an open event, regardless of age or size of the contestants.

In 1918 a similar race was held, and it drew close to 500 entries. During that contest it was noted that smaller boys had no chance to compete on even terms with their larger opponents, and in 1919 two Derbies were listed, one for senior boys and another for junior boys. The entry increased each year until 1921, when the girls put in a protest and petitioned THE TRIBUNE to arrange a race for the fair sex. They were accommodated, and Rose Johnson has the distinction of winning the first girls' Derby.

New Classes Added.

So many smaller girls competed in the event that it was decided to divide this Derby into two sections, junior and senior. Miss Evelyn Cox was the victor in the first girls' junior race of 1922, and this race has proven one of the most attractive contests on the program.

Because of the keen interest shown by the boys, it became necessary to make a further classification. The intermediate class, open to skaters 15 and 16 years of age, was added to the program in 1923. Then the youngsters were taken into consideration and a division known as the juvenile was added to the list of events. This competition is open to boys under 14 years of age.

As the event grows older it may be necessary to classify the skaters further so that all may be given equal chances to win prizes. Through the efforts of Western Skating association officials, a check is kept on the contestants' ages. Those who have been found guilty of falsifying have been dealt with by the Western Skating association.

Derby Develops Stars.

In the past TRIBUNE Derbies have been responsible for the development of skaters who have won national and international fame. Some were selected for the American Olympic team and most of the winners of the boys' senior event have won honors in other sections of this country and in Canada. In some instances these skaters started as juniors, graduated to the intermediate division and then won first place in the boys' senior race which terminated their competition in TRIBUNE races, as any winner of the feature contest is barred from further racing in this Derby.

For the first time in the history of the event, every skater who goes to the mark in today's six races will be given a bronze button, a souvenir of the event. Award of this trophy is expected to bring out more of the entry and give some of the skaters the experience which will be valuable in future races. No awards will be given to any entrant who does not report at the starting line.

Five Places Count.

In each of the six races prizes will be given the winners of the five places which will count in the point column. The victor of the boys' senior race will be given a pair of solid silver skates. Second place winner will be rewarded with a pair of nickel plated runners and third position with a pair of bronze blades. Medals will go to the winners of the fourth and fifth positions. The skater who sets pace for the greatest number of laps in this race will be given a gold medal.

The winners of the boys' intermediate, junior and juvenile races will be presented with silver plated skates while prizes for other places will be the same as in the big race. The victor of the girls' senior event will be rewarded with a pair of silver skates and the winner of the junior girls' race a pair of silver plated runners. Prizes for other places will be the same as in the boys' races.

The first five places in every race will count in the point total. First place will be credited with eight points, second with five, third with three, fourth with two, and fifth with one. Prizes will be presented by Michael L. Igoe, a member of the south park board. This presentation ceremony will take place on a specially erected stand just west of the warming house.

With such a large field of skaters to handle no delays will be tolerated. Contestants must call for their numbers before 12:30 o'clock this afternoon and they must respond promptly when their numbers are called. Any delay in obeying commands of officials will result in the forfeiture of right to compete in any race.

A six lap track will be laid out this morning by Paul Staff, chief of the surveyors of the Western Skating association. Harry Berz and his staff of number clerks will be on hand at 10 o'clock to distribute numbers, while Eddie Mahlke, president of the Western Skating association, who will be chief clerk of course, also will be on hand early to arrange the heats. All officials are requested to report to Brig. Gen. John V. Clinnin, referee, not later than 1:45 o'clock.

Public Skating Barred.

The ice on the racing lagoon will be put in as good shape as possible by Harry S. Richards, assistant general superintendent of the south park system, and his corps of assistants. No public skating will be permitted on the racing lagoon this morning and none of the contestants will be permitted to use the track for practice.

Today's competition will open with heats in the intermediate Derby. Before the program starts and during the races John Bramhall's band will entertain. There will be no other side features, as the races must be run off rapidly to complete the program before dusk. The entries:

RESULTS OF JUNIOR AND JUVENILE DERBY PRELIMINARIES

Preliminary trials and one round of semi-final heats in the boys' juvenile derby and boys' junior derby were held yesterday afternoon. It took thirty-five preliminary heats and thirteen trials in the first semi-final round to reduce the huge field of skaters to forty-one for today's second semi-final round in the juvenile race. Twenty-four preliminary heats and nine semi-finals were needed to bring the field down to thirty-nine skaters for the second semi-final round in the boys' junior.

As usual, the races were run off with dispatch by the very competent corps of officials and the ice was in perfect shape due to the untiring efforts of Harry S. Richards, assistant general superintendent of the south park system. Following is the complete summary of yesterday's trials in the boys' juvenile and junior derbies:

W. L. T. A. URGES MODIFICATION OF AMATEUR RULE

Stewart Is Re-elected President.

J. C. STEWART. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

The rigid amateur rule of the United States Lawn Tennis association, which has come in for much discussion since the jingle of C. C. Pyle's cash lured Vincent Richards and other tennis stars from the fold of the simon pures last fall, received a blow yesterday when the Western Lawn Tennis association, in its annual meeting at the Chicago Town and Tennis club, urged modification of the present drastic clause.

The amateur rule, if literally enforced would exclude at least 50 per cent of the nation's leading players from sanctioned tournament competition, according to the W. L. T. A. officials. The association recommended that the rule either be drastically enforced or that the U. S. L. T. A. take immediate steps to amend the rule to modify its terms.

Stewart Western Representative.

The present rule, if strictly enforced, "would mean the virtual end of our tournaments," the delegates declared, in proposing its amendment.

James C. Stewart of Chicago was selected as western representative on the national executive committee and the association authorized him to demand such steps toward modification as taken by the national body.

The convention ruled that the national clay court championships, if awarded to the Western association again, would be played in Detroit. The western clay court tourney was given to Indianapolis. The Chicago Town and Tennis club again will stage the intersectional team matches. The state tournaments were awarded as follows: Illinois state at Skokie Country club, Glencoe; Ohio state at Columbus; Wisconsin state at Milwaukee; Indiana state at Fort Wayne.

Association Officers Elected.

James C. Stewart again was elected president of the Western association. The remainder of the slate of officers for the year follows:

First vice president—Harry S. Walsh, Chicago.

Second vice president—Ed Wuensch, Indianapolis.

Third vice president—F. D. Burns, Detroit.

Secretary—Harry S. Knox, Chicago.

Treasurer—Walter T. Hayes, Chicago.

Delegates at large—Henry C. Wick Jr., Cleveland; Lieut. Harry A. Leighton, Culver; Maurice S. Miller, Glencoe; G. M. Gooder, Cincinnati.

N. DAME BEATS WABASH, 37-26; CONROY STARS

Notre Dame, Ind., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Notre Dame tonight advanced its claim to the state basketball title by defeating Wabash, 37 to 26.

Coach Keogan started Jachym at Crane's forward position and he crossed up the opponents by using his guards as the point annexers. During the first eight minutes not a shot was attempted by the Irish forwards. Conroy sank two from mid-floor and Dahman repeated.

Red Robinson, Wabash's star forward, although closely guarded, played a fine floor game, with Devol as his costar. Louie Conroy, Notre Dame's twice all-western guard, lived up to his caliber, despite his injured leg and eyes. Jachym tied Capt. Johnnie Nyikos in scoring. Lineup:

LOYOLA CAGERS BEAT ST. THOMAS QUINTET, 27 TO 11

The Loyola university basketeers defeated the quintet of St. Thomas college of St. Paul, Minn., 27 to 11, on the north side floor last night. The teams stood in silence for a moment in memory of the Baylor athletes killed in a wreck yesterday.

The locals completely outclassed the St. Paul five, taking the lead from the start and holding it throughout. Left Forward Lawless of the Loyolas played a stellar game, sinking five baskets and two penalty tosses. Center Murray starred for St. Thomas. Lineup:

The SPORTING GOODS by WESTBROOK PEGLER

NO MORE WHISPERING.

FROM the petulant utterances of some of the important men in the baseball business I gather that the newspapers have become a serious nuisance to this industry, with their cynical questionings and their insinuations of unethical goings on both on the ball field and in the council rooms.

Judge Landis is annoyed and some of the other governors of the game deplore the dissemination of scandalous baseball news as being very bad for business. Yet the questioning and the insinuations continue, and it appears that the baseball business henceforth will have to give an account of itself or forfeit its status as a public institution.

This denotes a great change in the attitude of the newspapers toward the baseball business, for in the past it was the custom of the baseball business to conduct its trials and investigations in secret and even to file away secret verdicts in some cases, and the baseball reporters believed what they were told.

I HAVE gone around to the offices of the baseball clubs a great many times looking for news and have come away with a nice warm inward glow derived from the hospitality of the firms, but with such meager news as the purchase of Pedro Pimento, a Cuban shortstop, or the unconditional release of a second string bat boy.

They put me in good humor and treated me pleasantly, but they didn't tell me that they had had private detectives counting the towels in the locker room to make sure that the athletes hadn't been stealing the same, nor did they let me know that their secret service was checking up on the personal associates of the players all the time. This would have been news indeed, and if they had told me about it I would have made no notes on the purchase of Pedro Pimento or the release of the second string bat hostler.

Now, Mr. Ban Johnson, the president of the American league, says that when his league decided to get rid of Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker it was intended to do the thing quietly, so that the families of the men would not suffer, which was a laudable motive, if true. But, in view of the fact that ball players have been whispered out of the league unjustly in the past, the customers obviously have a right to know about such proceedings as the Cobb and Speaker investigations, so that they may judge for themselves whether the players are getting a square deal.

Mr. Johnson and Judge Landis agree on few matters, but they are agreed that the ball player can suffer no wrong at the hands of the magnates. The customers, however, are not quite convinced of that, for they have seen cases in which ball players were whispered out unjustly. I believe Rube Benton, who used to pitch for the Giants, was sentenced to spend a couple of years in the American association, only to be exonerated of whatever charge there was against him and permitted to work for the Cincinnati Reds.

Anyway, if a man charged with murder is given a public trial in the public courts, there should be no objection to public trials for men accused of such trivial offenses as those alleged against Cobb and Speaker, who are accused only of having used bad judgment in managing their ball teams, according to the latest word from Mr. Johnson.

THE baseball business ought to realize that it has a pretty bad reputation, due largely to secrecy, and that secrecy usually indicates that there is something to hide. Secrecy is the way of the horse racing business, which is carried on in whispers out of the corner of the mouth or in confidence exchanged behind the barn.

The baseball business forbids betting, and the very sight of Little Abe Attell sitting in a pavilion seat at the Polo grounds would be enough to bring the fly cops a-running from all directions, because Little Abe is a gambler. Gambling also is the way of the horse running profession. Now, if the baseball industry has such a horror of betting, which is so characteristic of the horse running racket, why does it cling to the custom of doing business in whispers, which is another characteristic of racing?

Of course, baseball is not going to die out, but something is going to give way as a result of this all-winter rumpus arising from the Cobb-Speaker case and I think the baseball proprietors will have to make the concession because the reporters have been made skeptical and they will take nothing for granted from now on.

Hereafter, if one club sells off half a dozen stars to another club, enabling the other club to win several pennants and make several million dollars, the reporters are going to look into the records and find out whether the second ball club owns any mortgages on the first ball club's property.

This will be pretty good for baseball, too.

The magnates say they are determined to keep players honest and that is very fine of them.

Now all that remains is for the reporters to keep the magnates honest.

MISS LAMBERT SETS TWO SWIM MARKS AT MIAMI

Miami, Fla., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Two American swimming records for women were lowered here tonight by Adelaide Lambert of Panama, when she set a new backstroke mark of 7:33 1-5 in the 500 meter race and also eclipsed the former 200 meter time for back stroke swimming with 3:19 4-5.

ADELAIDE LAMBERT.

The old 500 meter record was held by Ethel McGary with a timing of 7:58. Sybil Bauer held the previous 200 meter mark at 3:26. Both old records were made in the pool here within the last two years.

CHICAGO CURLERS LOSE BY A POINT TO MILWAUKEE

For the first time in ten years the Milwaukee Curling club defeated the Chicago Curling club on the latter's ice yesterday in six contests, but only by a margin of one point. The final score was 70 to 69.

The Milwaukee curlers got away to a big lead in the three morning games, finishing with 41 points to 35. The Chicagoans pulled up in the afternoon, scoring 34 points to the Badgers' 29, but fell one point short of winning the match.

Tigers' 'Dirty' Play Cause of Big 3 Break?

so injured were Daley, Adie, Robb, and Gherke.

4. That, in the 1922 freshman game with Princeton, Jack Maher of the Harvard team had his wrist seized with two hands and dislocated.

5. That Charlie Buell, star player on the Harvard team, had his ankle broken in the first half of the 1922 game with Princeton; that Buell had played six years of football previous to this without an injury. Photographs of this play show Smith, Princeton end, diving onto Buel's outstretched ankle as the latter was in the act of making a forward pass. No attempt to tackle Buell or block the pass is evidenced.

6. That it is common knowledge that Princeton players direct a constant flow of abusive language at members of the Harvard teams with the express purpose of getting their goats, making them angry, or otherwise distracting their attention from the game.

7. That Princeton tackles coming in on kicks often do not try to block punts, but with high, powerful knee action rough up the defending half backs. In the 1926 Princeton game, Guarnaccia was so badly kneed while protecting one of Coady's punts that two of his ribs were broken, and in a similar way French was badly kneed in the head.

Points Out Harvard's Mistakes.

On the other hand, Hubbard avers, "Harvard undoubtedly is to blame for many things," among them "mistakes in her policies and tactless acts," but the Crimson, he adds, "has not high hatted Princeton."

"It is my belief," the former Harvard player concludes, "that if Princeton will look squarely into this whole football situation at home, and pay more attention to methods and practices than to the winning of games, relations between Harvard and Princeton eventually may be resumed."

PRINCETON SILENT

Princeton, N. J., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Charles W. Kennedy, chairman of the faculty board of athletic control at Princeton, commenting tonight on the article, "Dirty Football," which had been brought to his attention, said he was not yet prepared to make any statement on the charges, "which are of a serious nature."

Coach Roper said he had not read the article and "I have no interest in it. Furthermore, I have no statement to make concerning the charges."

The attitude among the Princeton students and the faculty members is that the attack is from an individual and that it has no connection with Harvard in any way.

South Shore C. C. Wins Team Shoot at Onwentsia

The South Shore Country club, with 475 points, won the weekly five man team shoot of the Country Club league at the Onwentsia club yesterday. Onwentsia was second with 469, Exmoor third with 467, while Glen View broke 463 targets to win fourth place. Dr. H. E. Timm of South Shore won the high score trophy.

HINSDALE HEAVIES DEFEAT DOWNERS GROVE, 26 TO 25

Take West Suburban Lead by Victory.

Hinsdale High school went into first place in the heavyweight division of the West Suburban Basketball league by nosing out Downers Grove, 26 to 25, last night in a bitterly fought game at Hinsdale. After leading, 20 to 12, at the half, the home team almost was overtaken by Downers Grove, who was led by Towsley with five baskets. Hinsdale also won the lightweight game, 12 to 8, but Downers Grove maintains their hold on first place. Heavyweight lineup:

York Defeats Maine.

Maine township High fell before York in two West Suburban league games at Elmhurst last night. In the heavyweight game York won, 29 to 18, while the lights copped 15 to 7.

ELGIN WINS TWO.

Elgin won a double header from Dundee at Elgin last night. The heavies won, 19 to 16 after the lights had gained 23 to 11 decision.

CHICAGO BEATS MILWAUKEE IN GYMNASTIC MEET

The University of Chicago gymnastic and fencing teams handed the Milwaukee Y. M. C. A. a double barreled defeat at Bartlett gym last night. The Maroons won the gymnastic meet, 1,141 to 997 5-10, and took the fencing bout, 2 and 1.

Flexner led the Maroon gymnasts to their overwhelming victory by taking first place in the horizontal bar, parallel bar, and flying rings. The Maroons won every first place and all but one second.

GLYNN DANVILLE PRO.

Danville, Ill., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Jerry Glynn, for several years golf professional at Olympia Fields, Chicago, has been named to fill a like position at the Danville Country club. He will take up his duties here April 1.

In the Wake of the News

BASEBALL HISTORY.

BASEBALL history is in the making at today's session of the board of directors of the American league. They are called upon to decide whether to show loyalty to the president who has guided their league since its inception and has devoted thirty-four years of his life to baseball's problems, or to yield abjectly to his enemies.

The merits of the original differences between Commissioner Landis and President Johnson have long since been lost in the shuffle. The issue has become one of baseball politics. Some National league members avowedly want to put Johnson out of baseball. Aligned with the commissioner are men who probably would not be with him except for such reasons. These men and those who sincerely believe him the right man for baseball's czar, compose a majority of the two major leagues. Thus the commissioner has a tactical advantage.

The humor of the situation, if there can be any humor in such a situation, is that Johnson's latest outburst which aroused the wrath of his enemies was in defense of his own league—a protest against publicity of charges against two players respected by the public, which the American leaguers themselves had resolved should not be published.

What particularly irritates the Johnson supporters is the rehashing of scandal which was investigated by the commissioner himself nearly six years ago, while the O'Connell-Dolan case, in the National league, of more recent memory, never got anywhere farther than the banishment of a couple of inconsequential factors.

The Wake regrets this constant stirring of muddy waters. We think the public has become tired of the whole mess. There should be room in baseball for both Landis and Johnson, despite their different methods.

"Good morning; have you seen the hawk?" inquires Helper G. M. N.

Perhaps You Saved Money.

Dear Wake: Sent our Swedish janitor after a Racing Form. He could not understand, so I explained it was a racing paper. He came back with three rubber erasers.

Basketball Record?

Dear Harvey: Saw West Chicago and Dundee battle on a basket floor to a 55 to 52 score. This is the first game I ever saw in which both teams scored over 50 points. Stevenson, former De Kalb Normal flash, and Ted Curtiss, one time Maroon star, piled up the score for West Chicago. Dick from Downers.

That First Robin.

Recently a Helper inferred that "Dukes" Weidner of Mendota was seeing things when he reported the first robin. Whereupon "Dukes," a popular officer of the Mendota Elks, took out his trusty kodak and photographed a bird sitting in a tree, which has been duly forwarded to us. We accept the oracular proof and apologize for our contributor. (Although we must make the mental reservation that the robin in the picture looks about the size of the hawk committing depredations on our lake front.)

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

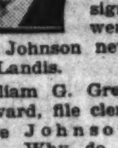
The Question.

What do you think will be the outcome of the Landis-Johnson showdown?

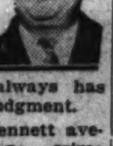
Where Asked.

In the county building.

The Answers.



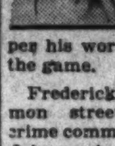
Sergeant Joseph Whitelaw, attached to state's attorney's office—It looks like Johnson is through as a power in baseball. Did he think the fans wouldn't inquire why Speaker and Cobb resigned when both still were top ranking players? Johnson never has coöperated with Landis.



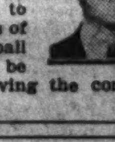
William G. Gregori, 3933 Jackson boulevard, file clerk—I believe Johnson is right. Why do they want to drag out troubles of years ago? As president of the American league it was Johnson's duty to safeguard the game as much as possible. He always has shown courage and good judgment.

A. F. Roubertson, 7818 Bennett avenue, Chicago crime commission — Landis will come out on top. Johnson brought his trouble on himself by talking out of turn. He has been discontended since Landis was appointed commissioner. It will be a good thing for baseball if Monday's meeting puts an end to the wrangling among officials.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question J. D. McAuley, 1251 S. Tripp avenue, Chicago, was awarded $5.



Ollie Kostling, 3633 W. 18th street, stenographer—I look for Johnson to be let out as American league president. Landis has made an honest effort to keep baseball clean and merits public support. Anybody who tries to hamper his work should be removed from the game.



Frederick Pretzie Jr., 1116 S. Sangamon street, Chicago crime commission—Ban Johnson is through as president of the American league. If the fans expect Landis to continue his business of cleaning up baseball Johnson should be turned out, thus giving the commissioner a free hand.

Lott Defeats Crocker for Canadian Net Title

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 22.—(AP)—George Lott of Chicago today won the Canadian indoor tennis championship by defeating Willard Crocker of Montreal, Davis cup team member. The scores were 12—10, 5—7, 4—6, 6—4, and 6—3.

N. U. WINS RELAY TO BEAT N. DAME ON TRACK, 46-39

Reynolds' Speed Clinches Purple Victory.

A fighting, bespectacled runner, who for three years has worried Purple track fans because of his inability to go the route, last night flashed a burst of speed that won the mile relay and gave Northwestern its first dual track victory over Notre Dame in recent years. The score of the meet, held at Patten gymnasium, was 46 1-3 to 39 2-3.

Throughout the nine regular events the two teams battled on even terms, with the decision left to the five points allotted for the relay.

McCauley, running third for Notre Dame, made up the fifteen yards Joe Abbott, his lead-off man, had lost by a spill on the third turn, and gave his anchor man an extra yard in addition; but Frank Reynolds, Northwestern's last runner, with the fastest quarter he has ever turned, finished five yards to the good.

Notre Dame made a clean sweep of the forty yard dash, while the four best shot putters wore the purple. All times, heights, and distances registered were about average. Bill Droegemueller was vaulting in good form, but stopped under coach's orders when he cleared 12 feet 8 inches. Summary:

40 YARD DASH—Won by Riley, Notre Dame; Elder, Notre Dame, second; Capt. Della Maria, Notre Dame, third. Time, :04.8.

440 YARD RUN—Won by McDonald, Notre Dame; McCauley, Notre Dame, second; Gorby, Northwestern, third. Time, :53.

HALF MILE RUN — Won by Reynolds, Northwestern; Abbot, Notre Dame, second; Quigley Notre Dame, third. Time, 2:02.8.

ONE MILE RUN—Won by Young, Notre Dame; Furrey Northwestern, second; Reynolds, Northwestern, third. Time, 4:31.5.

TWO MILE RUN—Won by Young, Notre Dame; Sparling Northwestern, second; J. Brown, Notre Dame, third. Time, 9:58.

ONE MILE RELAY—Won by Northwestern [Tannehil, Gorby, Furrey, and Reynolds]. Time, 3:40 2-5.

SIXTEEN POUND SHOTPUT—Won by Lewis, Northwestern; Karsten, Northwestern, second; Bagge, Northwestern, third. Distance, 43 feet 8 inches.

POLE VAULT — Won by Droegemueller, Northwestern; 12 feet 8 inches; Boy, Notre Dame, second, 11 feet 6 inches; Bannon, Notre Dame, third, 11 feet.

RUNNING HIGH JUMP—Won by Bettis, Northwestern, 5 feet 8 inches; Lewis and Verdell, Northwestern and Lahey, Dowan, Griffin and McSweeney, tied for second, height, 5 feet 6 inches.

40 YARD HURDLES — Won by Lewis, Northwestern; Verdell, Northwestern, second, and Griffin, Notre Dame, third. Time, :05.5.

DARTMOUTH STAR BREAKS WORLD'S HURDLE RECORD

Boston, Mass., Jan. 22.—(AP)—E. M. Wells of Dartmouth hung up a world's record for the 45 yard high hurdles when he raced over the sticks in 5 4-5 seconds in his semi-final heat of the opening event at the sixth annual indoor meet of the Massachusetts council, Knights of Columbus, here tonight. Fifteen minutes later, in the final heat, Wells again raced to the tape in 5 4-5 seconds.

Wells continued his exhibition by again racing over the 45 yard high sticks in 5 4-5 seconds in the finals of the New England A. A. U. scratch event.

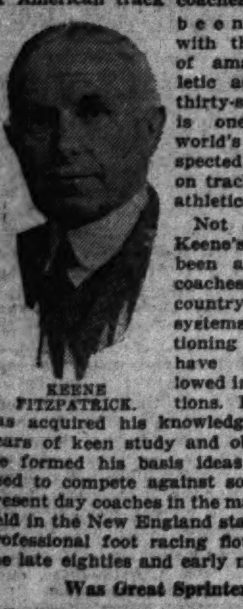
FITZPATRICK COACH OF STARS FOR 37 YEARS

Builds Track Champions at Princeton.

(This is the sixth of a series of articles on the country's leading track and field coaches.)

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.



KEENE FITZPATRICK.

Keene Fitzpatrick of Princeton, dean of American track coaches, who has been identified with this branch of amateur athletic activity for thirty-seven years is one of the world's most respected authorities on track and field athletics.

Not only have Keene's methods been adopted by coaches in this country, but his systems of conditioning athletes have been followed in other nations. Fitzpatrick has acquired his knowledge through years of keen study and observation. He formed his basis ideas when he used to compete against some of the present day coaches in the many events held in the New England states, where professional foot racing flourished in the late eighties and early nineties.

Was Great Sprinter.

The Tiger coach has a remarkable personality and his easy manner has led his athletes to extend themselves to the point of exhaustion to win or place in various events. Athletes whom Fitz trains have the utmost confidence in his coaching ability and this is one of the reasons why Keene has been so successful.

In his competitive days, Fitzpatrick was a sprinter and ran on several of the hose teams which competed in the different tournaments held in the New England states. He was considered extremely fast and generally was given a lead position on his teams. It was his love for the sport which finally resulted in his making a life work of this branch of athletics.

Veteran track and field enthusiasts will remember Fitzpatrick as the track and field coach at Michigan. While with the Maize and Blue, Keene developed some wonderful athletes, among the most prominent being Ralph Rose, the present holder of the world's record in the shotput at 51 feet. Archie Hahn, one of the greatest sprinters who ever pulled on a spiked shoe, is a product of the present Princeton coach.

Coached Many Stars.

To list the intercollegiate, national and Olympic triumphs which have been scored by Fitzpatrick-trained men in the course of his thirty-seven years of coaching would be to repeat a liberal portion of the athletic almanacs which have been published since that time, because teams and individuals instructed by the veteran Princeton coach generally have been in the foreground.

Aside from Rose and Hahn, other notable athletes developed by Fitzpatrick are Ralph Craig, who succeeded Hahn at Michigan; C. E. Dvorak, national collegiate and Olympic champion in the pole vault; Garrells, McLean and Hammer, collegiate hurdles champions; Horner and Dunlap, collegiate shot put champions; Rowe and Coe, long distance title holders; Kellogg, the long distance star who now is director of athletics at Purdue university; Snow, one of the greatest all around performers who ever attended Michigan, and Vigley, a fast dash man.

Started as Yale Coach.

That splendid record has been maintained at Princeton, where Fitz developed S. Harrison Thompson, collegiate and national all around champion and hurdle winner; Ralph Hills, the intercollegiate and national champion in the shot put; Bill Stevenson, the great quarter miler; Tyler and Erdman, intercollegiate champions in the hurdles; Gates, the hammer thrower; Brown and Moore, the sprinters, and Blake, an excellent high jumper.

Fitzpatrick started his coaching career at Yale, where he remained for four years. He served sixteen years at Michigan and seventeen at Princeton. Keene's work has extended beyond the athletic field of the three universities he has served. He always has taken a personal interest in his boys and has been a remarkable influence for good in their lives. Clean sportsmanship always has marked the conduct of his teams and there is not an athlete who has come under his direction who does not look back upon that contact as a highly profitable one. He is to Princeton something more than an athletic coach, for he is considered the campus father and counselor of every Princeton man and possibly the most influential member of the Tiger teaching staff.

Aids in Grid Coaching.

Aside from developing the track and field team at Princeton, Fitzpatrick has a hand in the molding of Tiger football teams. Keene is always placed in charge of the punters, field goal kickers and forward passers. His is the last word when it comes to determining the physical fitness of the gridiron players.

Fitzpatrick was the first president of the American Track Coaches' association and is a member of the faculty committee on athletics at Princeton. Since 1908, Keene has been tendered the position of head coach or assistant of American Olympic teams.

TUNNEY PASSES THROUGH CITY ON WAY EAST

Gene Tunney, the world's heavyweight champion, passed through Chicago yesterday on his way east to confer with Manager Billy Gibson regarding his future plans. Tunney engaged in an exhibition match in Minneapolis last week and does not expect to defend his title until he boxes an opponent selected by Promoter Tex Rickard. This bout will take place in the summer, according to Tunney.

A New Hawk

Eddie Rodden, a forward, was obtained yesterday by the Blackhawks from the Minneapolis team of the American Hockey association. Rodden came to the Chicago National leaguers in exchange for Ken Doraty, a forward, and an unnamed player who is to be delivered to the Millers at the close of the season.

Cards Battle Duluth Hockey Team Tonight

After battling three twenty-minute periods and ten minutes overtime to a 2 to 2 tie Friday night, the Chicago Cardinals hockey team and the Duluth Hornets will renew their feud at the Coliseum rink at 8:15 tonight.

TEDDY GRAHAM.

Earlier in the season the Cardinals and Hornets divided a two game series, and the tie game of this series has put both teams on their toes, determined to take the odd game. Incidentally, that was the first tie the Cardinals have played this season, and with all their players recovered from minor injuries which handicapped them early in the season they are again fit to battle any team in the league.

Friday's game proved that for speed there are few teams which can equal either of the combinations. Bobby Burns burned up the ice for the Cardinals, while Herbie Lewis, the Hornet's crack center, gave a brilliant exhibition for the northerners. Lewis had difficulty in getting by the Cardinals' defense, but, for that matter, the Cardinals had their difficulties with Moose Jamieson, the Hornets' Gibraltar defense man.

With Capt. Russell Stephenson back at center, Teddy Graham moved from defense to wing, and Wentworth, Brydson, Lessard, and Reid, the Cardinals' lineup, dopes as strong as the Hornets' with their speedy Lewis, Goodman, La France, Loucks, and others.

ATHERTON AND SAYERS MEET IN RING TOMORROW

Happy Atherton of Indianapolis and Jimmy Sayers of Lafayette will meet in the banner event of Johnny Coulon's boxing show at the White City arena tomorrow night. They will box ten rounds to a judges' decision and will scale 118 pounds at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Haaken Hansen of Norway and Emil Baksic of South Chicago meet in the semi-windup, which will be supported by three other contests.

Becker Extolls Winter Camping Trip in North

BY BOB BECKER.

Would you like to go camping at this time of the year with tent, dog team and snowshoes as the main tools of the trade? One of the Ely, Minn., outdoor boys was in Chicago the other day extolling [to us] the sport of winter camping and winter trips through the Superior national forest and the Quetico provencal park, which stretch along and beyond the northern part of Minnesota. Here, he said, men are men, wolves howl at night and the mercury at this time of the year hits the bottom of the tube.

Several parties of fur swaddled winter travelers are going through the forest this winter behind good dog teams. One of the largest is the group made up by the forestry service of Minnesota.

The service has some wonderful sled dogs. We looked 'em over last summer when we were on our fishing trip through the forest.

Interesting items about banded mallard ducks are being compiled in the biological survey offices. Kenneth Roahen, United States game warden, with headquarters on the Illinois river, reports this one, which is different, to say the least. A drake mallard was banded by a survey worker at Crane lake, near Bath, Ill., Jan. 8, 1926. May 1, 1926, a return was made on this bird from Spooner, Wis. Edward Morrell of that town found this mallard caught in a steel trap which, with its chain, weighed ten ounces.

Now begins the homestretch of the rabbit hunting season. No more gunning for cottontails after Jan. 31.

$2,500 MONTHLY OPERATING COST OF IDEAL STABLE

Ten Men Required to Handle Twelve Horses.

This is the fifth and last of a series of articles on American racing stables.

BY FRENCH LANE.

To maintain the ideal racing stable of 12 horses there will be an operating expense of $2,500 each month

It includes the salary of 10 men and boys, giving each horse almost exclusive service of one individual, and takes care of the feed bill and other incidental expenses. If there is much jumping around the country from one track to another it will call for a much greater outlay.

Here's about how the working force will shape up in such a stable and the monthly salaries paid:

Trainer	$500
Six stable hands	540
Two exercise boys	300
One stable jockey	500
Total	$1,840

"And if your stable doesn't win its way, if you don't get the odds you expect on one of your horses that wins, put the blame on the trainer or jockey," a well known turfman says.

Hard to Keep Attendants Loyal.

"There are so many angles for them to make money, and big money, it is no easy job to keep them loyal to their employers.

"A trainer gets a horse ready to win. Perhaps you've carried the horse along for three months or longer and it is only natural you should expect long odds for any wager you might want to make on him when the trainer finally tells you to bet.

"But many trainers not only will tell you when to bet but they have what the turf follower calls clients in a dozen cities about the country. He lets them all in on the stable secret, each makes his individual bet on the horse and a small wager for the trainer. This frequently forces the odds down. The money gets back to the track. When your horse wins perhaps you collect at odds of 8 to 5 or 2 to 1 when you believe you should have collected at 15 to 1 or better in the mutuals.

If the jockey is of the same type he also will notify his friends about the country, and there is double the amount of money bet on the horse. Then the odds may even be shorter, according to this turfman.

"Put a square shooting trainer and jockey into a stable of this size and it should prosper, unless the horses are hopeless," he said. "Of course there are more honest trainers and jockeys than those of the dishonest variety, but the temptation is so great to win bets on a horse that seems to have better than an even chance of winning a race, that even many of the trainers and jockeys generally classed as honest go out and tell their friends or their clients to bet."

This turfman believes there are few crooked races run on the American turf. He doesn't believe many horses are "pulled" in a race which they might have won.

But he does believe that racing and betting are so closely aligned that it is all but impossible to keep your stable affairs strictly secret and put a horse over at odds of 50 to 1 or 100 to 1, except in remote cases.

Trainer Also Gets Cut on Purse.

"And that is one of the reasons it is impossible to beat the races," he adds.

The salaries alone will not cover your complete operating expense, according to his figures. It is customary to pay the trainer, in addition to his salary, 10 per cent of the purses your horses win. It is another custom to give the jockey and most of the others in the stable force a complimentary bet when a horse is supposed to be ready to win. This often amounts to many hundreds of dollars, particularly if the horse does win and the odds are long.

All of which, summarized, shows that the owner of a stable that doesn't win rich stakes or who isn't a spectacular plunger sees most of his money going out and little of it coming back in return. And for that reason racing is called "the sport of kings."

MOTOR CARS

Everyone says-
"Buick is Reliable"

Buick reliability is one reason why the majority of new Buicks every year are purchased by old Buick owners.

For they have discovered the great pleasure of owning a car with one safeguard after another in its design, to prevent trouble.

Buick is the car with the Sealed Chassis, which encases every operating part inside an iron or steel housing, to keep out dirt.

Buick is the car with the high-speed starting motor, for reliability in starting—with mechanical 4-wheel-brakes, for certainty in stopping—and with a six-cylinder Valve-in-Head engine, for engine performance that is the envy of the motor car industry.

Buy a Buick! It is a more dependable and more enjoyable motor car.

Snow Blanket on Midwest Trails Slows Up Traffic

State Crews Labor to Keep Illinois Cars Moving.

THE heavy snowfall of the last week covers the entire north central section of the United States and through trails remain in doubtful condition, according to the touring bureau of the Chicago Motor club.

Throughout Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan, only highways which have been plowed open are passable. Important trunk lines in Illinois and Indiana are being opened as fast as possible, and motor traffic will be resumed again after a few days except in case of more snow or high winds.

Considerable snowfall is reported over the northern section of the southern states. Main highways in this area remain in traversable condition. The trouble caused by rains in Georgia and Alabama has not cleared.

The entire eastern and northeastern states are covered with snow. Main highways and trails, however, are being opened rapidly, and travel can be resumed after a few days. Motorists are advised to make inquiry at the clubs along the route to avoid snow blocked roads. Southeastern trails generally remain in good condition.

Heavy snowfall covers the entire western and northwestern states. Important trails through the central plains states are being opened for travel, and will be passable after a few days. Southwestern trails are improving and remain generally in good condition for travel.

Illinois road conditions are as follows:

Desplaines river road, open entire distance.

Chicago to St. Louis via Ill. 1, Ill. 17, Ill. 25 and Ill. 11 now open. Busses running on schedule.

Illinois 1—Open and passable but slow traveling.

Illinois 4—On Saturday, Jan. 15, this highway was closed by snow and stalled cars between Dwight and Bloomington. With this condition existing, the route is inadvisable for travel for several days.

Illinois 5—Open and passable to Rockford.

Illinois 6—Open to west Kane county line; remainder doubtful.

Illinois 7—Open for travel between Joliet and Ottawa.

Illinois 9—Open for travel between Peoria and Macomb.

Illinois 10—Bridge out at 5 miles west of Danville. Detour marked through Catlin over good county paved road.

Illinois 18—Between Naperville and Aurora was scheduled to be clear of snow and passable on Jan. 17.

Illinois 17—Scheduled to be cleared of snow and traversable on Jan. 17.

Illinois 19—Scheduled to be cleared of snow and passable on Jan. 16.

Illinois 21—Open and traversable, but slow.

Illinois 22—Scheduled to be clear of snow and passable between Joliet and Chicago Heights on Jan. 17.

Illinois 23—Open between Streator and Ottawa.

Illinois 25—Open between Kankakee and Gilman; remainder uncertain.

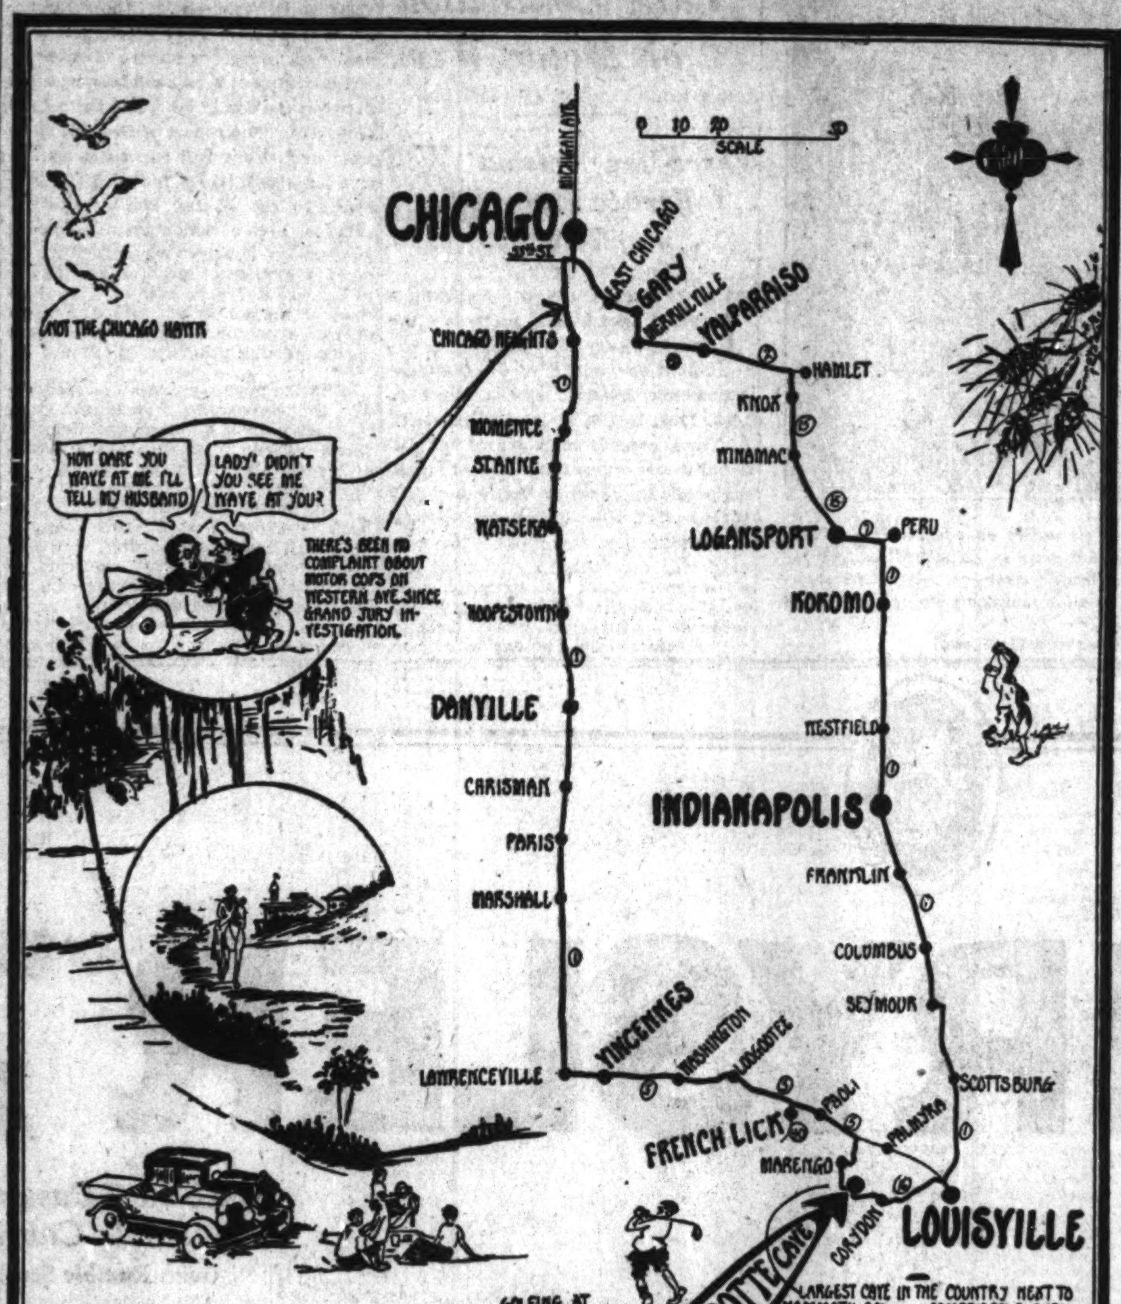
Illinois 42 [Sheridan road]—Open and traversable.

Illinois 42 A [Waukegan road]—Open and traversable.

Illinois 46 [Manheim road]—Open entire distance but slow for travel.

TRIBUNE TOURS

XLIII.—ROUTES TO WINTER RECREATION



UNLESS more snow and high winds enter the highway picture this week main trails to the south will be safe for through automobile travel by Jan. 25, according to reports from Illinois road crews, who are rapidly clearing away the last of the drifts on the Dixie highway and Egyptian trail.

This midwinter tour suggestion shows the best options for the popular run to French Lick and the famous Wyandotte cave on the Ohio river. Illinois pavements shown are safe at all seasons except immediately after heavy snows and the Indiana roads are reported in fair condition.

Signal Early.

When intending to turn to the left, give signal at least 40 feet before reaching the turning point, move over to the center line of the street [unless the local rule requires otherwise] slow down passing the intersection of the street and turn carefully to the left.

FRENCH ROADS.

There are 372,000 miles of highway in France, as compared with 24,800 miles of railroads. The money derived from taxing cars helps to keep the roads in fair condition. Shareholders of the railroads fear that the automobile will eventually reduce their dividends and a number of politicians are now endeavoring to have taxes on motor vehicles increased enough to restore the railroads to their old importance.

RECORD SEASON.

All records for tourist traffic in Nevada have been broken this year, it is announced by W. M. David, secretary of the Nevada Automobile association. The bulk of the traffic came from California. With the completion of the Victory and Lincoln highways next year and the opening of an outlet for the Lincoln highway in Utah, it is predicted that 1927 will be greater still.

Body Styles to Feature Annual Salon in Drake

WITH the attention of motorists now largely centering in body design, finish, and appointments, the presentation of the new styles in custom coach work at the Automobile salon, opening in Chicago at the Drake on Jan. 29, will be of unusual interest.

Catering exclusively to that comparatively small class of motorists who possess both wealth and discriminating taste, the exhibitors at this famous salon of motor cars de luxe have spared neither effort nor cost in designing and building coach work which will embody the maximum in style, convenience, and comfort. Starting with the latest products of the world's leading high priced chassis makers, they have had the coöperation of the principal paint and varnish manufacturers, the weavers of fine upholstery materials, and the makers of interior and exterior fittings and equipment in producing what may be termed the superlative in motor car coach work.

The annual salon has been accorded the title of the world's arbiter in motor car fashions. For this reason the new styles, the new tendencies in finish and fittings, and the developments in upholstery as disclosed at this exhibition will be of unusual interest. For the coming year these will be en vogue for the motor equipage of the well-to-do. Afterwards many of these new ideas and developments will be adopted in part in the quantity production of moderate priced cars. Thus it has always been, and for this reason the salon serves the entire industry while catering to a particular class of motorists.

A special feature this season will be the exhibits of two firms building exclusively fabric bodies. Altogether fourteen prominent custom body builders will have exhibits at this salon, showing over seventy jobs, each a distinctive creation and no two alike. In addition one chassis maker will show its own custom coach work and three makers of foreign chassis will mount bodies by European carrossiers. A record attendance is expected this season in view of the constantly growing demand in the Chicago territory for motor cars in which their owners can have embodied that expression of good taste and individuality which rises above the commonplace.

News and Views of the Auto Trade

ANOTHER milestone flashed past the speeding automobile industry at the height of Automobile show preparations when Chevrolet, international leader in the production of three speed transmission cars, announced completion of its three millionth model. The car was driven off the Flint plant production line by W. S. Knudsen, president of the company, and its first passenger was C. F. Barth, vice president in charge of production. The last million cars produced by Chevrolet have been turned out at nine second intervals in working days during the last 14 months of production.

President Myron E. Forbes of the Pierce-Arrow company has formally announced the appointment of O. E. McCarthy as general manager of the company's factory branch at 2420 Michigan avenue.

E. L. Cord, president of Auburn and the man credited with that company's spectacular rise in the industry during 1926, announced yesterday that export sales of his concern in the year just past chalked up an increase of 141 per cent over their volume in 1925. The industry generally averaged a gain of 3 per cent in export business. He added that between 3,500 and 4,000 Auburn cars will figure in export sales during 1927.

Super-SHELL GASOLINE

Stops Knocks • • Starts Quicker
Makes Any Car Run Better

MOTORISTS—a new experience ... a new thrill awaits you...when you fill your tank with SUPER-SHELL ... the most recent addition to the Shell line of quality products.

SUPER-SHELL is wonderful...different... in a class by itself. Stops knocks and quiets the motor in a natural way... without added chemicals or other foreign ingredients. Vaporizes instantly... starts at a touch in cold weather. Accelerates quickly...you're off and ahead of the traffic when the signal says "GO."

Gives increased power the full length of the piston stroke. And it burns cleanly... with less carbon ... no fouled spark plugs or pitted valves.

You'll never know how smoothly, quietly and powerfully your car can run until you use SUPER-SHELL. Try it today. Put it to the test. Judge it for yourself. Let it tell its own story of wonderfully improved performance.

SHELL GASOLINE

Of course, SHELL GASOLINE ...the kind you have used and like so well, is still on sale at the regular price.

Super-Shell costs you only three cents a gallon more. On sale at Shell yellow and red stations everywhere .. and at Shell dealers wherever the Super-Shell sign is displayed.

Battle of Motor Giants Predicted at Detroit Show

Car Values Soar as Four Million Auto Year Opens.

BY WHITCOMB WILLIAMS.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Following the successful staging of the twenty-seventh annual automobile show in New York, the scene shifted to Detroit, where the twenty-sixth annual exhibition opened its doors in Convention hall today. Following advance notices the show this year is everything that can be expected, and well ahead of shows of other years. More than 300 cars looked their prettiest, new models, of course, monopolizing the center of attraction.

The industry, as a whole, while expressing the greatest confidence in future business, has been progressing slowly waiting for the reaction from the big shows. Orders received since the first of the month indicate the production of cars for the first quarter of 1927 will be approximately 1,200,000 units.

Announcements of the many special exhibits have stimulated great interest, not only among members of the industry, but the general public as well. Show visitors find a surprisingly large majority of the passenger cars on hand with not only new body designs but new mechanical features. Nearly every exhibitor at the three big shows is showing a more complete line this year than ever before, and with expectation at a high pitch each one is attempting to outdo the other in the matter of attractive show exhibits.

Present indications are that the pace set by all of the strong companies is going to prove too strenuous for some of the weaker ones, which means that there will be some eliminations after the going gets too rough. Competition is doing it. The casualties of 1926 numbered about a dozen different models, and the prediction for this year is that a like number will be eliminated. But, despite the advancements in both mechanical and body designs, prices are lower than they have ever been in the history of the automobile industry.

Along with the display of automobiles at this year's show is the latest development in the two other modes of transportation—the airplane and motor boats. With the rapid strides which are being made in aircraft the exhibits of new models are proving of great interest.

With the beginning of the year there was a stepping up of activities all along the line. Nearly 125,000 employes have been recalled, the number for the last week being 7,301 as officially reported by the labor barometer, the Employers' association. This brought the total to 211,197, compared with 257,927 a year ago. Most of the plants are working five days per week. Expansions of plants which have been in progress by many concerns for the last several months, are practically completed and everything is in readiness for any demand which may be made on them.

Although a 4,000,000 car year is anticipated by manufacturers, they are of the belief that the production and sales figures, will not equal those of either 1925 or 1926, both banner years. Conditions in both those years were exceptionally favorable, but a decrease of 8½ per cent production this year compared with 1926 will satisfy car builders, and run the total up to about 4,100,000. Passenger car output is expected to aggregate 3,600,000 vehicles, and truck production half a million.

The trend towards closed cars continues, with indications that 80 per cent of this year's output will be of this model. Smaller, lighter cars are gaining favor rapidly, and manufacturers of these types are making their schedules accordingly. There is sure to be a noticeable increase in the number of "small" six cylinder cars offered the public. Mergers, too, are looked for, the result of some of the smaller concerns being unable to ride out the storm of competition.

A careful analysis of the situation shows that the expansion in the industry, which has shown a steady increase almost without interruption during the last few years, will be checked in 1927.

During the sessions of the annual meeting of the Society of Automotive Engineers, to be held here during the week, small car designs and performance are to have the concentrated attention of several hundred members in attendance. Probably more interest will be taken in this subject than in any of the ten others scheduled during the week, because of the small car trend in this country.

Indications are that the Michigan automobile plants will be operating at their normal capacities in the early spring, while a few will be operating above that of one year ago. The Packard plant is turning out 2,300 cars a month at present, with capacity production in sight during the early weeks of spring.

Studebaker, now operating on a 5 day week schedule, will soon be working six, made necessary by the production program of its new model, the Erskine Six, which will be in production by the first of February.

Willys-Overland's newcomer, the Whippet Six, is being produced at the rate of 300 daily. The new line of Hudson-Essex cars is now in production at the rate of 400 cars daily. The company has set a January schedule of 11,000 cars.

The Chevrolet is continuing its remarkably high production where it left off before the holidays, and, with increased facilities, promises to make 1927 its greatest selling year.

Unofficial reports from the Ford plants announce a nearly normal production, which is steadily increasing. No announcements have been made of anything resembling a change in models or improvement of the present line. The employment list at these two mammoth Detroit plants is increasing daily, with indications that it will soon be back to what it was six months ago.

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question D. I. Frankel, 72 West Adams street, Chicago, was awarded $5.

The Question.

Do you consider the new Illinois license plates an improvement over the old type?

Where Asked.

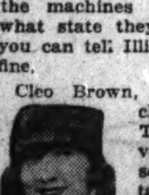
Ohio and Michigan avenue.

The Answers.

W. P. Moran, 2404 N. Clark street, police officer—I believe that they are, because you can see them a long distance, and the color is easy on the eyes. The little outline of the Illinois state is an improvement; it helps advertise our wonderful state if you happen to be in another.

Eddie Townsley, 946 Irving Park boulevard, salesman—They are an improvement, can be read easy, especially at night, but no license plate will be an improvement if the police do not make the people keep the plates clean. I believe that this is important in case you want the number after an accident.

Dorothy Mayr, 645 Cass street, secretary—They are pretty. I think the color scheme is wonderful, and the little state in the corner is very attractive, don't you think so? When I am riding I always look at the machines to see what state they are from and now you can tell Illinois at a glance. It's fine.



Cleo Brown, 524 Addison street, clerk—Yes, I like them. They are distinct and very attractive, can be seen at a great distance, which is a good point alone. It will be necessary for all of us to keep them clean, because this color will not look good smeared with dirt. We will take pride in driving in another state now, showing the map of Illinois.

Edward Kloud, 5754 S. Sacramento boulevard, auditor—I don't think they are an improvement, the color does not blend with most of the colors on the cars, it is almost impossible to see the numbers when they get a little dirty, and with the slush around now, well, try and read them. Last year's old white numbers always stood out and blended in with any color auto. I hope next year we have the old black and white numbers back.

Throw Out Gear.

It is bad policy to leave a parked car in gear on a main street, because if it is struck by another vehicle the transmission and engine may suffer.

HEAVY WEAR.

Tests made at the State college of Washington show that an average touring car, traveling 1,000 miles over a macadam road, wears away one-half pound more rubber per tire than when traveling the same distance on a concrete road. For every 1,000 miles traveled two pounds of tire rubber per car could be saved if the macadam stretches were paved with concrete.

EASIER RIDING.

Underinflating a high pressure tire to make the car ride easier, causes the side walls to bend to such an extent that they give out long before they should and the life of the tire is greatly reduced. There is also considerable waste of fuel in running on soft high pressure tires.

Drivers' License Law Demanded by Three A Leaders

Make License 'Easy to Get, Easy to Lose,' Say Directors.

THE state of the Union, as far as the car owner is concerned, came in for an exhaustive survey at the mid-winter meeting of the board of directors of the American Automobile association, held at the Roosevelt hotel in New York.

Automobile club executives, representing the 850 clubs affiliated under the A. A. A. emblem, discussed at length some of the outstanding problems that are being agitated at present relative to the ownership and operation of automobiles. The board unanimously favored an intensive drive on the part of the association on the following major policies:

First, reiterating the position of the association against radical proposals for compulsory automobile insurance. A committee of five was appointed to have charge of the A. A. A.'s campaign throughout the country, the main purpose of which will be to educate the public as to the fact that compulsory insurance has nothing whatever to do with the promotion of safety or the safeguarding of life or limb on the highway; also to formulate such a policy as will protect the victims of accidents without saddling all car owners with such an enormous burden as compulsory insurance would involve.

Second, adoption nationally of a drivers' license law. The support of the board for a drivers' license law in principle did not apply to the mental and physical examination feature of such laws, but it did strongly warn against the use of such a law for revenue purposes, either by individual communities or by "gyp" courts.

"We favor the adoption of the principle that a drivers' license should be easy to secure, easy to lose and hard to recover," the board declared, pointing out that as a matter of record and identification, together with the fear of losing it a drivers' license has a vital relation to safe driving.

Third, the board urged all A. A. A. clubs to work for the early completion of the federal and state numbering systems and particularly stressed the importance of carrying these numbers through incorporated communities. Under the same resolution, a strong demand was made for immediate action for the sign posting of cities and congested areas where the motor tourists in 1926 encountered so much trouble. A. A. A. clubs, it was unanimously agreed, should take the leadership in this sign posting movement.

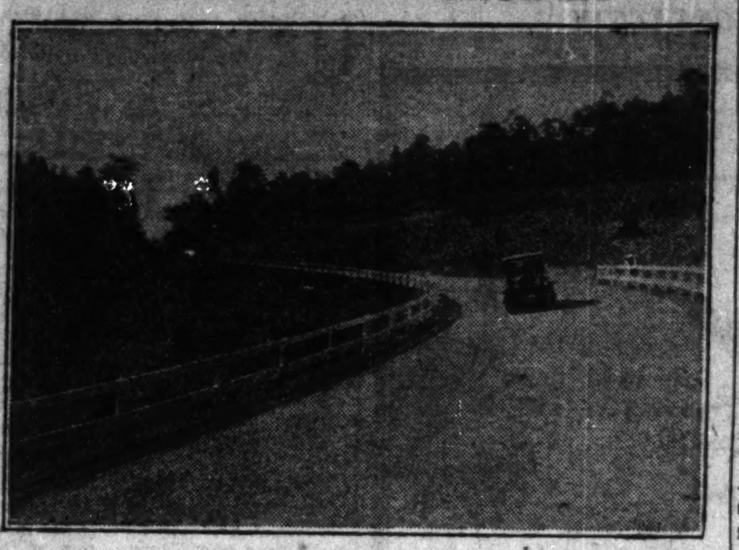
Fourth, dangerous, unsightly and misleading signs on the highway brought a strong statement of denunciation from the members of the board, all of whom were agreed that the haphazard, uncontrolled practice of setting up sign posts for commercial purposes, many of these imitating warning and direction signs, constitutes a standing danger to millions of wayfarers.

Fifth, the board expressed the view that there is a crying need for a more determined effort looking to the adoption of the uniform motor vehicle code, and with this in view, Thomas P. Henry, president of the A. A. A., who presided at the meeting, was authorized to appoint five nationally known safety experts on the A. A. A. board on traffic safety and city planning. Steps were taken to assure that the board, which will be a continuous body, will not conflict with the special committee of the Hoover conference, but will work in coöperation with this committee and centralize in a permanent committee the safety activities conducted by the 850 clubs affiliated with the national motoring organization.

Sixth, all legislatures were urged to take steps to clarify the law relative to the confiscation of cars in such a way that innocent owners of automobiles will not be penalized when their vehicles are used for illegal purposes without their knowledge or their consent.

Many other subjects of serious import were on the agenda of the conference, but owing to the limited time set aside for the mid-winter meeting, many of these will hold over until the annual convention of the A. A. A. The board decided that the annual convention will be held in Philadelphia on June 16 and 17. Philadelphia was only one of a score of cities from the Pacific coast to the Atlantic that had put in a strong bid for the annual convention of the association.

PROGRESS IN VIRGINIA



Speed and beauty are combined in this newly opened stretch of Virginia's great north and south highway that runs in an unbroken line for 527 miles through the heart of the picturesque west sections of the state. The road is now fully improved, following a long campaign by counties and the state.

Auto Dealers Plan Chief Convention of Motor Week

Three-Day Session Will Influence Entire Sales Year.

THREE days crowded with business information make up the program for the jubilee tenth annual convention of the National Automobile Dealers' association Feb. 1-2-3, 1927, in the Hotel La Salle. C. A. Vane, general manager of the national dealer organization, says in making public the program that it probably surpasses all other high powered meetings of the last ten years. The program for the jubilee convention, like all other N. A. D. A. national meetings, sounds the keynote for the 1927 business practices and profit ideas.

The sessions on Tuesday afternoon, as usual, are mostly devoted to organizing the convention. This session will include the address of President Charles B. Warren of the Warren-Nash company, New York. It will deal with the many phases of coöperative adjustment that have been handled between the dealer body and the manufacturers. The report of General Manager C. A. Vane will cover the legislative activities, which included the carrying to the United States Supreme court of a case which involves dealer equities in automobiles seized in alleged violation of prohibition regulations. This report also will go into some of the details of labor conditions in the automobile business and the merchandising practices of 1926.

With the morning session of Wednesday the convention will launch into the high gear of its merchandising features. These will include a forecast and prediction of sales, profits, and dealer conditions for 1927.

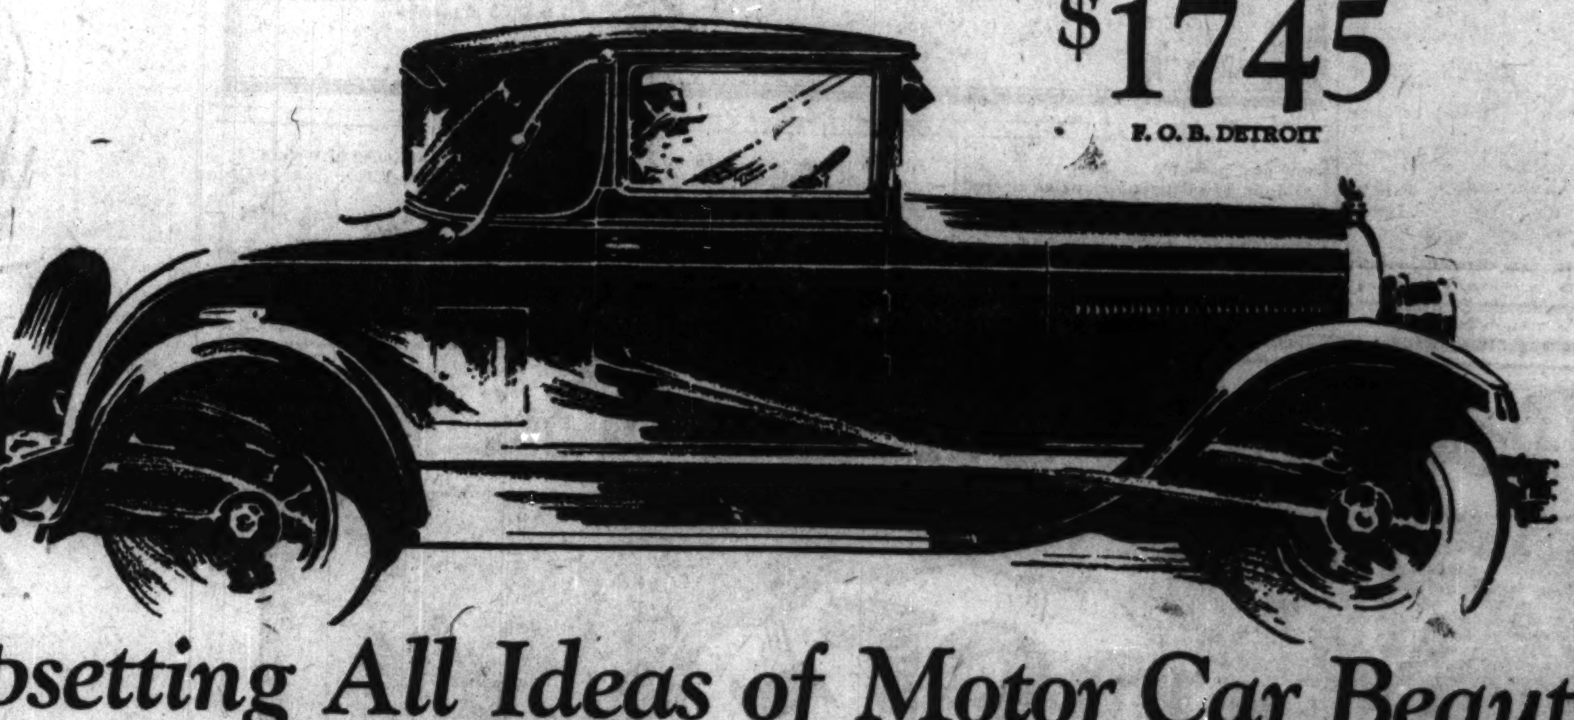
This particular section always has been of exceptional interest. And a part of it is the accounting, in which "get your profit first" methods of handling sales and expenses will be developed, pointing dealers to avenues of possible increased net profit in 1927.

Expenses of selling in the automobile business have been materially increasing, and this angle of the subject will be approached on the basis of the proper selection of men for sales work. Nationally known business executives who have records of successful practice in the selection and building of sales organizations in many parts of the world have been obtained to handle these subjects.

The annual trade frolic and banquet will be on Wednesday night. It will have three big attractions: "The man who makes the whole industry laugh"; the honoring of the ten automobile business leaders who have served as president of the N. A. D. A., and an outstanding figure in world and business affairs. Of equal prestige with these three is Alfred Reeves, general manager of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, always an interesting figure in any automobile business gathering and a particular favorite with the dealers.

On Wednesday will be market analysis, sales analysis and kindred subjects, devoting almost the entire day to features of selling.

The shop equipment and shop tool discussions will take up all of the day on Friday, presenting men who have made notable successes in flat rate operations, and the tools and equipment necessary for the efficient and economic service to automobile owners.



CHRYSLER "70"

The New 2-Passenger Convertible Cabriolet (with Rumble Seat)

$1745

F. O. B. DETROIT

Upsetting All Ideas of Motor Car Beauty

The real reason for the remarkable interest aroused by the new, finer Chrysler "70" is the quick recognition that here is a car whose newer smartness and beauty establish a vogue in motoring design even more emphatic than that of the first Chrysler.

Three years ago that first Chrysler initiated in its price class such outstanding improvements as 7-bearing crankshaft, oil-filter, air-cleaner, thermostatic heat control, tubular front axle for hydraulic 4-wheel brakes, new type of spring mounting, indirectly-lighted instrument board, new lowness of design, and an entirely new idea of color harmonies.

Today—the new, finer Chrysler "70" compels a complete revolution in all previous ideas of appearance that is bound to be reflected in tomorrow's motor cars.

Finer, more exquisitely graceful bodies—finer, more distinctive silhouette with military front and cadet visor—finer design with smaller wheels—greater luxury of comfort—greater riding ease—rich upholstery—greater perfection of appointment—more refinements in controls and lighting, with a lock conveniently placed on the dash—more attractive color blendings far in advance of current harmonies.

Combined with this newer standard of appearance is the same performance whose sheer speed and power, flexibility, economy, dependability and long life have been a never-ending marvel and delight to the hundreds of thousands of enthusiastic owners.

Phaeton $1395; Sport Phaeton $1495; Two-passenger Roadster (with Rumble Seat) $1495; Brougham $1525; Two-passenger Coupe (with Rumble Seat) $1545; Royal Sedan $1595; Two-passenger Convertible Cabriolet (with Rumble Seat) $1745; Crown Sedan $1795.

All prices f. o. b. Detroit, subject to current Federal excise tax.

AMERICA TELLS WORLD SUCCESS GOES TO YOUNG

BY HARPER LEECH.

Electricity other than for telegraphy and a few trifling chemical uses emerged from the laboratory in America 45 years ago. At the beginning of the new year the industries which can date their origin from that commercial venture represented an investment of $19,500,000,000.

This is about $6,000,000,000 less than the value of the steam railroad plant, which is 55 years older.

The investment in the electrical industries now is equal to half of the national wealth in the year they began. It is over twice the value of the railroad plant then existing. Since the electrical industries began to function, our steam railroad plant has about tripled in value, and the automobile industry with its related modern highway system has grown from nothing to a value approaching $30,000,000,000.

So much for the snow ball attributes of modern American industrialism. What has done it?

A great banker was quoted the other day as saying credit has been the great motive power. He thinks this is the golden age of American industry — because we have the gold, an efficient reserve system, which is in effect the central bank of the world—the only central bank which never was under the primary compulsion of protecting its reserves and therefore it has been able to sustain an unprecedented liberality.

The scientist or the engineer would be inclined to smile at such an estimate of the importance of finance in national development. The statesman would wonder what had been the part of industrial liberty and protection of property rights in all this. Others would wonder whether the real answer has not been overlooked when all the factors of credit, science, invention, efficiency and political liberty had been taken into consideration.

What about the men who have done it all? The migration which peopled America. Whether with good or bad stock, high or low, bright or stupid, were certainly selective to this degree. Those population currents moved parts of peoples, not whole tribes. They moved nonconformists of one kind or another. The steady ejection from Europe to America of highly individualized types, kept up long after the age of cheap mass transportation.

It is a fact that the most violent critics of the early American stock admit its fundamental excellence, when they make their worst charges. If all they say is true—it was vastly different, and that was enough.

America was all set to welcome the new age of capitalism—it had fewer previous institutions and customs to scrap—it had a population less habituated to conformity with any rigid system.

Today we are far from being a homogeneous people. Our divisions, rivalries and bickerings consume an enormous amount of intellectual energy which might otherwise go into the creation and maintenance of some rigid national culture. Eventually no doubt modern industrialism will superimpose on its economic base a cult of some kind, but perhaps that will be when its primary energies are feebler than now.

PRODUCE MARKETS

Egg prices have been on the down grade for several days, and in two days fresh firsts have dropped from 39c to 35c. Large offerings, with holders anxious to sell, have lowered prices, and increased consumption. There were 57 cars in all positions on track.

Butter values were without change, with good offerings on track and in store, while the demand was fair. In the poultry market trade was fair and prices unchanged.

Potatoes sold slowly, as hauling is difficult owing to recent heavy snows. Arrivals were 90 cars, and 271 cars were on track.

COTTON PRICES IRREGULAR

Movement of cotton prices in the different markets was irregular. January in Chicago was bid up 16 points and closed the same as March at 13.46c. Futures in Chicago generally were 4@9 points higher on the deferred deliveries, with New Orleans easy and 1@3 points lower, with spots unchanged to 13.40c. New York advanced 5 points to 13.65c. Liverpool was weak and sharply lower. There was rain over a large part of the cotton belt.

Trade estimates on ginning report due at the opening on Monday ranged from 15,500,000 to 16,880,000 bales, which were compared with 15,543,000 bales ginned to Dec. 15. Prices in leading markets follow:

The spread in hog prices reached the narrowest point in history as the week closed, top and average prices being only 5c apart, against a spread of $1.20 the corresponding day a year ago, and $3.00 less than five months ago, when price range was about the widest on record. Light and light light closed weak to 5c lower than the previous Saturday, while butcher grades show 5@10c gain, with packing hogs up 10@30c for the week.

Week-end hog receipts at 7,000, including 4,400 "directs," cleared at little price changes, weakness in light being offset by strength in butchers, with general average steady at $12.05. Extreme top at $12.10 was paid for 160@290 lb averages, against a top of $13.25 a year ago, when best light outsold heavy hogs $1.15. Most of the 2,500 left in the pens were pig weights and pen holders.

Cold Weather Retards Shipments.

Last week's decrease of 21,100 in hog receipts, which were apparently curtailed by zero weather and snowstorms in the west, advanced the general average price to $12.05, highest since the first week of last November. Buyers struggled to hold prices down in face of dwindling supplies, switching to cheaper grades in many instances, causing a sharp narrowing of the price range. While extreme top at $12.25 stands $1.00 below a year ago last week, the general average is the same as the corresponding week in 1926. Estimated average weight of hogs at 233 lbs., compares with 245 lbs a year ago.

Both yearlings and heavy steers established new high marks for the year in last week's price list, the latter at $12.65 being highest since December, 1925. Prime 1,453 lb steers reached the peak, with 1,113 lb yearlings at $12.60. The previous week's top at $12.50, paid for 750 lb baby beeves, was the only sale above $12.25, top heavy showing a 40c jump.

Cattle prices reacted following an advance of 25@40c first half of the week, all but top-notchers finishing weak to 25c lower. General average price of good beef cattle advanced 10c at $10.35, highest of the year and above any corresponding period in over five years. Butcher stock closed unevenly 15@50c lower, heifers off most. Calves 50@75c higher for the week.

Despite sharp declines in killing lambs after mid-week, due to unsatisfactory outlet for dressed stock, last week's market as a whole averaged $12.55, equal to the highest weekly average in nearly two months. Prices were more contracted than at any time of the season, with quality grading decidedly better, a usual occurrence at this time of year.

Urgent call for feeding stock in face of the slump in killing lambs featured the trade, 60@65 lbs., feeders outselling best killers by 25@35c as the week closed. Compared with a week ago, fat lambs are 25@40c lower; feeders 25@35c higher; aged sheep 25@50c higher and yearlings steady to 25c lower.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 25,000 cattle, 60,000 hogs and 23,000 sheep, against 28,218 cattle, 47,522 hogs and 16,329 sheep a week ago and 19,696 cattle, 43,308 hogs and 12,041 sheep the corresponding day a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 62,000 cattle, 200,000 hogs and 85,000 sheep, against 56,098 cattle, 187,554 hogs, and 77,113 sheep a year ago.

SUGAR MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—SUGAR—Sugar markets were unsettled and closed easy with net losses on Saturday, as compared with Friday, of 1 to 2 points. Speculative trading has dropped off and a feeling exists that all bullish conditions are well represented in the price for the present. In the refined sugars buying increased on the part of consumers and distributors with a disposition in some instances to contract ahead. A better tone existed in the export trade as to futures, with some improvement in prices. Range for Saturday as given by Lamborn & Co. follows:

WHEAT FUTURES RISE DESPITE SLOW TRADING

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Grain markets were decidedly dull, and held within narrow price limits, but there was no material pressure, and wheat closed within a fraction of the top with net gains of ⅛c after a range of ¼@⅝c for the day.

May finished at $1.39⅞@1.40; July, $1.30⅝, and September, $1.27⅝. Corn and oats gained ⅛@¼c with May corn, 81¼@81⅜c; July, 84⅝c, and September, 86⅝c, while May oats were 49c, and July, 48¼c. Rye advanced 2c over the early low, showing independent strength, and closed 1¼@1½c higher with May, $1.05⅝, and July, $1.01⅝.

While price changes in wheat the past week were very rapid at times the range was small, only 1⅝c on the May, and at the last trades were ⅝@½c higher than the close of the previous week. Corn was unchanged to ⅝c higher; oats ⅝@1c higher, and rye up 1¼@3c with May leading. Provisions were unsettled, with lard 2½@7½c lower; ribs 87½c higher to 10c lower, and bellies 75c higher to 25c lower.

Gulf Wheat Firmer.

Foreign wheat markets were somewhat firmer than expected, Liverpool closing only ¼d lower, while Buenos Ayres surprised the trade by advancing 1⅝c, which led to some buying. There was selling of futures early on the larger movement in the southwest with 120 cars received at Hutchinson, Kas. There was buying here by houses with northwestern connections, and local bears were not inclined to operate freely, making offerings small at times. Winnipeg showed more strength than Chicago and was up ⅛@⅝c, although no export business was indicated.

Premiums on hard winter wheat at the gulf were firmer, with Feb. 25-March 10 loading selling at 9¼c over Chicago May, and while there were sales for nearly loading late Friday at 8½c over, further bids at that figure failed to secure any grain, and the seaboard reported moderate sales made abroad, some on direct cables.

The trade looks for liberal world's shipments of wheat Monday, and for a good increase in the quantities on ocean passage. Domestic visible will probably show a fairly good reduction, due in part to the movement of durum all rail from Duluth and other points for export.

Wheat Bulge Helps Corn.

Country offerings of cash corn were somewhat less in evidence, with the bulk of the grain held above buyers' views. St. Louis, however, reported larger offerings. Future held within a range of ⅝@½c with the firmness in wheat offsetting local pressure, and a decline of 1@2c in the spot basis on the low grades. Trade in oats was limited with market influenced largely by action of other grains.

Rye developed independent strength and sold up to $1.06⅛ for May, a new high on the present movement on a good class of commission house buying induced by reports of an active cash demand, and of numerous export bids. Milwaukee sold a cargo for shipment at the opening of lake navigation, and it was understood some business had been put through at Duluth. Longs were the best sellers on the bulge.

CHICAGO CURB MARKET

Bank shares again featured the trading in the local unlisted securities market last week. The more active issues were in excellent demand, advancing substantially, and in some instances reaching new high levels.

Illinois Merchants Trust changed hands at 660, a record high. This represents an advance of 25 points. At the close stock was wanted at 662 with limited offerings at 668. Foreman National was in demand at 510. The rights were slightly easier at 27 bid, 29 asked. First National moved up 10 points to sales at 631, and closed in demand at 630. Union Trust was unchanged and quiet at 450 bid, 453 asked. Standard Trust and Savings gained about 5 points to 245 bid, 250 asked. Central Trust of Illinois was again traded in between 300 and 303. National Bank of the Republic was offered at 300, with buyers at 297. Peoples Trust and Savings was firm at 345 to 350. Continental and Commercial National advanced to transactions around 460, and Northern Trust moved up 7 points to 492 bid, with stock available at 495.

In the miscellaneous group Acme Steel Goods improved 2 points to sales at 70. At the close stock was offered at this price, with bids of 68. American Furniture Mart was fractionally easier at 3⅞ to 4. Benjamin Electric preferred moved up a point to 103 bid, 105 asked. Brunswick-Balke-Collender preferred was slightly higher at 104½ to 105½. H. Channon common was again wanted at 7½ without attracting sellers. Chicago Daily News common changed hands at 15—an advance of 2 points, while the preferred ranged between 94⅞ and 95½. Deere & Co. common was neglected at 68 bid, 70 asked. Little interest was displayed in Elgin National Watch, being quoted 78 to 79.

After selling as high as 172, Fansteel Products declined to 163 bid, offered at 166. Great Lakes Transit was easier, losing a point and a half at 24 bid, 25 asked. The preferred, however, was unchanged at 86 to 88. W. F. Hall Printing relinquished its previous gain, selling at 26½. Interstate Iron and Steel common continued heavy, being offered 2 points lower at 93. The preferred was steady at 100½ to 101½. Northwestern Yeast showed a firm tone, being traded in at 172. Palmolive new common was freely offered throughout the week and lost 2 points at 58⅝ to 59½. Van Ess relinquished another half point at 8¾ to 9¼. The advance continued in Wahl preferred, with high sales at 62.

Creamery Package issues were dull, a few shares of stock being offered at 31⅛, with best bids showing at 30⅛. The common followed closely with 29¼ bid and 31½ asked. Sullivan Machinery, although ex dividend, was slightly higher with 50 bid, 52 asked. Illinois Power and Light preferred was in demand at 99⅛, with some stock available at 100⅛. Chicago Mill and Lumber preferred was in demand at 102 and offered at 104. Reliance Manufacturing preferred continued strong, 93 being freely bid, with cheapest stock offered at 96. Albert Pick preferred was easier, declining from early transactions around 93 to reported sales at 90, the market closing with 79 bid and 91 asked.

STEEL MARKET.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Steel prices unchanged.

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

While there was some hard winter wheat sold for export via the Gulf, figures were not given out and the seaboard also failed to report any business of consequence.

Chicago handlers sold 1,000 bu wheat, 17,000 bu corn, 32,000 bu oats, and 5,000 bu barley to the domestic trade with 10,000 bu wheat and 200,000 bu oats to go to store. Deliveries on January contracts were 20,000 bu corn.

Basis on cash wheat here was easier, with No. 2 red 1½@2c under and No. 3 red 4@5c under May, while No. 2 hard was 3@5c over and No. 3 hard 1c over to 4c under May. Kansas City reported the basis as steady to ½c lower in that market, while St. Louis was unchanged.

Demand for cash corn was much less aggressive, and the spot basis was ½ to 2c lower, with the poorer kinds showing the most decline. No. 3 grades brought 9@12c under, No. 4 grades, 12@14c under, No. 5 grades, 12½@15c under, and No. 6 grades, 14½@16c under May. Outside markets were unchanged to 2c lower, with St. Louis leading.

Offerings of cash oats were fair, with the basis ½c higher to 1c lower. No 2 white sold at 1@3c over, and No. 3 white at ½@4½c under May.

Official receipts of grain at Chicago Saturday: Wheat, 28 cars; corn, 149 cars; oats, 53 cars; rye, 2 cars; barley, 2 cars.

LARD MARKET LOWER

Lard was sold by packing interests with the buying credited to shorts. The trade throughout the provision list was light with lard 5c lower at the close, cash and January being $12.27½. Liverpool was unchanged. Short ribs gained 12½c and bellies were unchanged. Green hams declined ½c, losing the recent advance. Selling of product was based to a considerable extent on expectations of 210,000 hogs for the coming week, against receipts of 181,200 for the past week. Local receipts were 8,500, with 60,000 expected Monday. The western run of 36,300 for the day was slightly more than the previous week and last year.

Packing in Chicago for the winter season to date was 1,459,000 hogs, against 1,687,000 last year. Hog prices were strong, with the top $12.20. Export clearances of lard from the seaboard were 227,525 lbs and bacon, 113,500 lbs. Prices follow:

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Grain markets are in need of new motives to induce enlarged speculative trading and indications are that they may appear in the near future. Until then the trade is expected to practically mark time, with fluctuations controlled largely by the privileges. This is the way a few of the close observers view the situation.

There were buying orders for May corn at 81c, which took the market surplus and made a rally. Trade sentiment in corn is more mixed owing to larger offerings from the country, which ordinarily would not be a big factor, but with the present light trade pit operators are disposed to sell a great deal more corn for future delivery than is daily bought to arrive.

Winnipeg messages said all the big mills were in the market there for wheat, with no pool selling. This, it was said, indicates that there is a big direct business in cash wheat.

The trade will vote on Monday on the proposition to do away with deliveries of No. 4 corn on future contracts. The measure is said to be favored by a great many speculators and cash handlers.

"There was much talk on Friday by people bearishly inclined regarding weakening in the gulf premiums," says Bartlett-Frazier. "They did weaken some, but yesterday rallied ½c from the lower basis and this morning the best offer in the market is at an advance of 1c. In other words, 9c over as against 8c earlier in the week. We are credibly informed that the inquiry from abroad is much more general, both from the United Kingdom and the continent."

A Philadelphia wire said that Philadelphia, Baltimore, New Orleans, and Galveston cleared 416,000 bu of domestic wheat for export, of which 270,000 bu were soft winters.

Russells of New York reports a sample of new crop Rosa Fe wheat was received here this morning. Grain looked very much like No. 2 dark hard winter, appeared to be very heavy in weight, and was very even grain.

The rye position in Germany is daily becoming more critical, says Broomhall, and native supplies are now practically unobtainable. Consumers are in the market for foreign rye and a good trade is being done. Offers of native wheat are limited and the quality of arrivals is mostly poor.

PRIMARIES FOR WEEK

Primary receipts of grain last week were 14,414,000 bu, the lightest at this time in five years, although there was an increase of 751,000 bu as compared with the previous week and 3,331,000 bu reduction from the same time last year. Receipts of corn and oats were the smallest at this time in five years, and of wheat were a good average. Details follow:

Seeks U. S. O. K. for Branch Line in Big Coal Field

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—(AP)—The Virginian railroad through a subsidiary, the Virginian and Western, asked the interstate commerce commission for permission to construct a 40 mile extension of its Guyandot river branch in West Virginia, to run from Itmann to Gilbert. The Chesapeake and Ohio now touches Gilbert. The extension would allow a three way movement of coal, to the east, west, and north, without back hauling. And the Virginian promised to grant both to the Chesapeake and Ohio, which has an application for two lines in the same territory, and the Norfolk and Western trackage over the new line on fair terms.

Hibbard-Spencer-Bartlett Reduces Its Dividend Rate

A reduction in the dividend rate of Hibbard, Spencer, Bartlett & Co., the big wholesale hardware house, from $4.20 to $3.60 a share a year, attracts attention because of special conditions which the jobbing business has had to contend against. This condition is a lowered profit margin on various lines of merchandise due to increased competition.

The company has declared three monthly dividends of 30 cents each, compared with 35 cents previously paid. Extra dividends of 20 cents a share were distributed quarterly during 1925 and 1926.

COFFEE MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—COFFEE—Realizing sales made an easier market with the close unchanged to 4 points lower except on May delivery which gained 2 points. Prices as wired to Lamborn & Co., follow:

METAL MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—COPPER—Demand declined during week; no general selling pressure; leading producers maintained asking prices of 13⅝c for electrolytic delivered at Connecticut valley points. Shaded by some; rumors of small lot sales at 13½c. TIN—Easy; prices reaching low point of the month. LEAD—Easy; London and St. Louis and leading producers toward the end of the week cut contract prices sharply. ZINC—Recovered from an early decline owing to a better demand at the lower prices. ANTIMONY—Ruled firm. Chinese political situation caused much nervousness.

WALL STREET NOTES

New York, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Corporate and government securities totalling nearly $6,000,000,000 were listed on the New York Stock exchange during 1926, an increase of 12 per cent over 1925 listings. Foreign and domestic corporate listings reached a new high record of $4,303,119,408, while foreign and United States government bonds increased to $1,108,000,000 from $608,000,000 the year before.

Private dispatches from Youngstown to the financial district say competition from strip steel has forced down the price of automobile steel. Wide strips for fenders have been offered at 4.75c a pound, which, allowing for the usual differential, works back to 3.80c for No. 20 gauge body steel.

Imports of gold during the week totaled $14,628,000, of which $12,000,000 came from Canada. Chile contributed $2,500,000. Since the first of the year Canada has shipped $31,500,000 to New York. Another gold shipment of $2,500,000 has been made to Germany by the New York Federal Reserve bank for the account of the reichsbank. A total of $12,500,000 on the current movement.

There were 612 commercial failures in the United States during the week, according to figures compiled by R. G. Dun & Co., compared with 581 last week and 513 during the corresponding week last year. Bank clearings are again reduced. The total at leading cities for this week is $9,778,083,000, a decrease of 4.2 per cent, compared with a year ago. Fairly steady price conditions featured the wholesale commodity markets this week, 35 out of the 67 changes that appear in the list of quotations being advances against 32 declined. In last week's compilation there were 43 increases and 29 reductions; in a similar comparison for the corresponding week a year ago 44 recessions contrasted with 21 gains.

Standard Oil Company of New Jersey has reduced kerosene for export ½c a gallon, making the new price of refined oil 18.65c a gallon and water white 20.15c. The Federal Sugar Refining company has reduced the price of refined sugar 5 points to 6.20 cents, New York basis. Small lots of spot standard furnace coke are moving at Pittsburgh at $3.25 to $3.35 a ton, a decrease of 25 cents a ton.

In regard to the special charge in Montgomery Ward's report of $690,191 for 1917, 1918 and 1919 additional taxes, an official states this is final payment on this claim. The case dragged for some years, but Ward finally settled it for close to a million dollars, the balance coming out of tax reserves. The claim grew out of old complications on excess profit tax on invested capital. There are no other tax claims pending.

Stockholders of the Electric Bond and Share company have approved an increase in capital from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000. The additional 500,000 shares will be divided equally in preferred and common, each of $100 par. About $15,000,000 of preferred already has been sold.

The Worthington Pump and Machinery corporation has purchased the assets of the Harris Air Pump company. The transaction involved a cash payment, although the amount was not made public.

New York, Jan. 22.—(AP)—The stock market displayed another sharp reversal of form today, heading upward under the leadership of the low priced merger rails in the first hour and then turning reactionary when selling pressure was renewed against the motors and other leading industrials in the last few minutes of trading. Trading was fairly heavy for a half holiday session, total sales running above 1,100,000 shares.

Wheeling and Lake Erie issues resumed their advance, the common touching a new high at 49⅝ and then easing to 48⅛, up 6⅝ net, and the preferred touching a new top at 68, up 5⅛ points net. Pittsburgh and West Virginia, which is mentioned as a likely purchaser of Wheeling and Lake Erie shares, jumped 7 points to 130, closing a point below the top.

Other Low Priced Issues Rise.

Western Maryland common crossed 26 to a new peak and then slipped back to 24⅝ and the second preferred fell from a high of 32⅞ to 31½, up ⅝ net. Wall street was filled with rumors about stocks of these three roads, but all lacked confirmation from responsible sources.

Widespread speculative activity also took place in other low priced railroad issues. Erie common touched 42½, the highest price in ten years, and the highest prices in a year or more were recorded by Wabash preferred B, Denver and Rio Grande preferred and Big Four. On the other hand, several of the high grade investment issues were heavy, net declines of a point or more being recorded by Atchison, Baltimore and Ohio, and Lackawanna. Atlantic Coast Line dropped 3 points.

Industrial Shares Are Weak.

A sudden outburst of selling in General Motors carried that stock down nearly 4 points to 148. Savage Arms dropped 2⅝ to a new low at 64. Heaviness also developed in such recent strong spots as American Smelting, Colin, and Aikman, Pierce Arrow preferred, Pullman, F. H. Shattuck and Woolworth. U. S. Cast Iron Pipe dropped 4 points. Pressed Steel Car and Producers and Refiners touched their highest prices in a year or longer.

On the curb exchange profit taking offerings were readily absorbed and in some instances quotations rose to new high levels.

Johns Manville, new shares, reached a new high at 66. United States distributing advanced a fraction to 15⅝. Wheeling and Lake Erie prior lien sold at 171 to 165, General Silk at 10⅞, and Stern Brothers A at 45. Western Maryland preferred sold at 116½, up 2½ points. Galena Signal Oil gained a point to 13. Wilcox and Cities Service rose to new high figures on fractional advances.

Railroad Bonds Move Up.

Further active demand for high grade railway mortgages today carried the bond market to another peak average since the spring of 1915. Activity in obligations of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul continued to lead the way in the railway division. Strength also was manifested by the Chicago Great Western 4s, and Missouri, Kansas and Texas adjustment 5s, while Western Maryland 4s scored a point gain.

There was a fair demand for federal government securities, most of it confined to the Liberty group. Prices were firm. Recovering of French liens was a feature of the short session. Belgian and German issues also were in some demand.

Foreign exchanges held steady, demand sterling ruling just under $4.85 and French francs around 3.97c. Strength of Peruvian exchange was in an anticipation of some Peruvian financing here during the next few weeks.

New York Reserves Rise.

A decrease of $175,387,000 in loans, discounts, investments, etc., was shown today in the weekly statement of the New York clearing house banks and trust companies. Surplus reserve increased $27,391,120 to $39,601,140 and aggregate reserve is $635,374,000. Net demand deposits decreased $145,744,000 and time deposits dropped $8,316,000.

Loans, discounts, investments, etc, totaled $5,416,625,000; net demand deposits, $4,413,350,000; time deposits, $658,-841,000; circulation, $20,613,000.

DRY GOODS MARKET.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Cotton goods sales this week were substantially in excess of production in the gray goods division. Prices closed higher. Finished goods are now beginning to move more freely, especially in wash fabrics and dress goods. Raw silk was slightly more active. Silk goods are beginning to move a little better. New lines of spring silks will be shown by a leading style house on Tuesday. Burlaps were firmer, due to the sinking of a ship carrying several thousand yards of needed goods.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Reinvest Your Interest.

It is a good plan to separate your investment fund from your general funds.

Set aside as much as you feel you can afford to invest from time to time.

Invest it carefully in sound, income-producing securities and let it work for you.

Do not spend the interest or dividends received from your investments, but put that to work also.—Reinvest it.

If the income from your investments is put into your general fund and spent, your holdings will increase only through the investment of additional principal.

If the interest is reinvested, however, your holdings will increase themselves and will swell with increasing rapidity as time goes on.

It is surprising how rapidly your estate will grow if this course is steadily pursued.

Let the money earned by your investments earn more money for you, just as you allow the interest on your savings account to remain in the bank to earn more interest.

RAILROAD NOTES

Net income of the Illinois Central in 1926 was approximately $17,000,000, as against $17,551,743 in 1925, according to L. A. Downs, president. The gross was higher than in the previous year. In view of the fact that some preferred stock has been converted into common during 1926, there has been some slight increase in the number of common shares outstanding, based on estimates of such conversion. Net for 1926 will be equal to approximately $12.40 on the common, as against $12.86 in 1926.

Chicago and Great Western railroad has been authorized by the interstate commerce commission to issue $2,387,609 of promissory notes, payable to the Pullman Car and Manufacturing corporation in payment for certain equipments. Chicago and Northwestern railroad has been authorized to procure authentication and delivery of $1,375,000 of general mortgage 4½ per cent gold bonds of 1987. The bonds are to be held in the road's treasury.

Union Refrigerator Transit company has ordered 500 refrigerator cars from the American Car and Foundry company. Chicago and Northern railroad is making inquiries for 500 hopper cars and 500 underframes and Swift & Co. is inquiring for 300 refrigerator cars and 100 to 300 underframes. Chicago, South Shore and South Bend has placed an order for twenty steel passenger cars with the Pullman Car and Manufacturing corporation, costing approximately $715,000.

Six Investment Opportunities

Below are described six new first mortgage bond issues, in which you may invest your available funds safely at an assured 6% to 6½% rate of income. By trading in your low-rate bonds now at a profit you can also obtain these well-secured higher income bonds, without additional cost.

The Coronado Apartments, Chicago

$575,000 First Mortgage Sinking Fund 6½% Gold Bonds, secured by direct closed first mortgage on land and 9-story fireproof building, containing 112 apartments, already up to the roof. The total security has been appraised at $910,000. Location is ideal, within two blocks from Sheridan Road and Lake Michigan. Excellent transportation facilities.

Cottage Grove & 79th Street Com'l Bldg., Chicago

$450,000 Series "A" First Mortgage 6½% Gold Bonds, secured by first mortgage on land at one of the most rapidly developing transfer corners in the city and 2-story office and store building being erected. Land alone has been valued by independent and well-known appraisers at $500,000.

Daniel Boone Apartments, St. Louis

$685,000 First Mortgage 6½% Sinking Fund Bonds, secured by land and 14-story fireproof unfurnished kitchenette apartment building to be erected at 3733-3737 Lindell Boulevard. Adjoining the property is the Coronado Hotel, and in the immediate vicinity are many fine residences, apartment buildings, hotels, churches and public institutions.

Trianon Commercial Properties, Chicago

Security for these $1,450,000 First Mortgage 6½% Sinking Fund Bonds are three separate Chicago properties, all owned in fee, and located close to important transfer corners. One of the properties is the well-known and popular Trianon Ballroom. The total security has been appraised by outstanding and highly successful realtors at $2,130,000.

Lorraine Business Block, Chicago

$300,000 First Mortgage 6½% Gold Bonds, secured by large plot of land and 3-story office, store and apartment building being erected. Located at important transfer corner. Land values constantly increasing in this district. Net income is estimated at over twice the largest yearly interest charge on this issue.

Washington Hotel, Chicago

$600,000 First Mortgage 6% Gold Bonds, secured by land and completed 11-story fireproof hotel building located in Loop district. Excellent location, accessible to theatres, financial houses, railroad stations and other hotels. Recent improvements in the immediate neighborhood have greatly enhanced real estate values.

Complete descriptive circular of each issue will be sent upon request. No obligation. C. T. 478.

Autumn Tint Shingle Slabs

Have you seen the AUTUMN TINT ROOF? Natural colored crushed slate in tan, red, grey-green and blue-black drifted together in a blend like a frosted maple leaf. We offer this week AUTUMN TINT SHINGLE SLAB seconds at a very low price.

Each slab is thirty-six inches long and eleven and one-third inches wide at the widest point. The slab shows two tabs on the exposed edge. When laid, they form a seven-inch hexagon over the roof, giving the appearance of individual hexagonal shingles. The easiest slab on the market to lay because they are self spacing both ways. Sorted as seconds at our factory because of slight imperfections, scarcely noticeable. Will blend with any color scheme of house painting.

Autumn Tint Slab Shingles, per square of 100 sq. ft.. $3.85

Also other styles, asphalt slate coated shingles as low as, per sq.....$2.95

First quality shingles, in all styles at proportionately low prices.

Storm and Porch Sash

During this sale we offer to quick buyers unusual bargains in storm and porch sash. Stock includes a complete line of 2 light and 4 light storm sash, also the popular new style 4, 5 and 6 light porch sash. All priced unusually low and offered subject to prior sale. All sash 1⅛ in. thick.

OLD WORLD AND NEW MERGED IN THIS BUNGALOW

English Charm and American Utility.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

LOUISE BARGELT.
[Chambers Photo.]

Skillfully fashioned to appeal to the family whose preference is the one story house, this home of English domestic type is one of the ten prize winning designs in the five room division of THE TRIBUNE'S Homes competition.

The architect's name and the prize awarded this design will be announced on this page on Feb. 27, together with the names of architects whose prize designs will appear anonymously for the next four Sundays.

Repeating the request made last week, keep this and the next four anonymous designs. Compare all six homes which will have been published and write THE TRIBUNE a letter telling which design you prefer and giving the reasons for your choice. For the three best letters received prizes of $25, $15, and $10 will be given.

This home shown today was awarded a prize not only because of the charm of its exterior rendering, but because of the excellence of the floor plan. Its many points of convenience are easily observable, a convenience which, coupled with attractiveness of fenestration and artistic fineness of finish, cause it to stand out not only as an excellent example of modern American home building but as an instance of individual expression merged happily with old tradition.

Cost Is Moderate.

Serene and unshaken by the many written and spoken words of disparagement directed toward the bungalow type of house, partisans of this style remain stanchly loyal. They admire the cottage type exterior, which admittedly fits cozily into almost any kind of site, and they prefer a layout of rooms on one floor, which admittedly does away with the constant routine of stair climbing.

With such enthusiastic advocates in mind, this small English home was chosen, one which can be built for between $8,000 and $9,000, according to the architect's estimate.

The materials of the exterior add to the interest, accentuating the simplicity of its treatment. The walls are of white washed brick. Weathered, this brick will take on the softness of the natural tones. The roof is of variegated slate. Windows are of casement steel and an entrance door shows English restraint, but is invitingly friendly. The garage is of the same exterior construction.

Entrance to Living Room.

The entrance to the living room is through a small but sufficient vestibule. A direct entrance into the living room is in this way avoided. Notice should be taken of the wrap closet adjoining the vestibule.

The front entrance is completely separated from the service portion of the house, but immediately back of it is a side entrance, conveniently placed in relation to the kitchen and leading down into the basement.

The living room and dining room are in one, achieving an unusually spacious room which runs the entire length of the house and leads to a sun porch and flagstone walk in the back. In this way, while there are long French windows at the front of the house, the living room also overlooks the privacy of a landscaped garden in the rear. Removable casements would make it possible to use this porch for a sunroom or fernery in the winter.

Opinions differ on this point of combining the dining room and living room, but its vogue is established and appears to be growing. The spacious effect created is always appealing, while the lessened effort and expense involved in building and maintaining a dining room are further points in its favor.

Generous Fireplace.

The ceiling of this room is beamed, the fireplace generous and well located. The walls are of hand wrought plaster and the floors and trim are of dark stained oak. The walls and floors of the vestibule and hall are of the same oak, while in the bedrooms the floors are maple and the walls papered.

A central hallway dominates the service and sleeping portion of the house, insuring privacy for the rooms, which are all reached through this hall and more than compensating for the hall overall.

The kitchen is well ventilated and is protected in winter by the side entrance. Its suggested flooring is linoleum, with enameled walls. There is ample service space, with deep table and cabinet provision.

Plenty of Air.

One bedroom has windows only on one side, but a cross draft is possible on warm nights through the living room. The second bedroom is larger, with two generous closets, windows on two sides, and wall space for necessary furniture.

There is a movable stairway leading to an attic which can be used for storage space. Also careful division of the basement area makes use of all the space below.

This home can be built on a 30 foot

New Town May Be Formed of No Man's Land

Steps are now under way toward the annexation of a huge tract of 5,860 acres of land in the "no man's land" north of Melrose Park, south of Franklin Park, and west of the Des Plaines river, to one of the neighboring municipalities.

An organization known as the Greater North Avenue Super Highway Development association has been formed. John Mills of Mills & Sons, C. C. Doering, vice president of Sears, Roebuck & Co.; William Jarvis Gibbs of Marshall Field & Co., Daniel V. Harkin, Thomas C. Stibbs, manager of the Chicago Clearing House association; S. M. Gunderson, Donald Stratton, J. Albert Campbell, Nathan Shure, Robert M. Sweitzer, Harry J. Judd, T. R. Leth, George R. Hemingway, Mrs. W. H. Wright, Albert F. Keeney, Bert Collett, John Meier, O. C. Braese, and C. P. Corning are among the organizers of the association.

In case negotiations with River Forest, Melrose Park, Franklin Park, River Grove, or Elmwood Park fail to bring annexation, it has been suggested that a new village be incorporated.

When either a new village is formed or annexation is brought about, several thousand acres are expected to be subdivided.

DWIGHT PERKINS FORMS NEW FIRM OF ARCHITECTS

Dwight H. Perkins, for several decades a member of the architectural firm of Perkins, Fellows & Hamilton, nationally known for their school and college work, has withdrawn from that concern. He is now associated with Melville C. Chatten and C. Herrick Hammond, who comprised the firm of Chatten & Hammond, with offices in the Burnham building. The new architectural firm name is Perkins, Chatten & Hammond. Mr. Perkins lives at 2319 Lincoln street, Evanston. He has been active in civic affairs for many years. He was one of the original members of the City club and at one time was president of that organization.

CZECHO-SLOVAK BUILDING LEAGUE ELECTS OFFICERS

Officers of the United Czecho-Slovak Building and Loan league of Cook county were elected at the organization's annual meeting which was held recently at the Pilsen Turner hall, at South Ashland avenue and West 18th street. The league has a membership of 130 building and loan associations which are said to have assets of almost $70,000,000. More than 200 representatives were present at the election. The next meeting of the league will be held in Cicero next May.

Frank J. Petru, president; Otto Kecilk, vice president; Adolph Macal, recording secretary; Charles A. Zak, financial secretary, and James A. Calek, treasurer.

MISS CHICKERING SALES MANAGER FOR REALTY FIRM

Miriam Chickering, a daughter of the late F. W. Chickering, piano manufacturer, has entered the real estate business, becoming associated with Edward P. Brizzolara & Co. She is to be a sales manager. Miss Chickering, who has been prominent in south side social circles, follows the lead of a number of other Chicago society girls who are earning their way through the sale of real estate. She is a native Chicagoan.

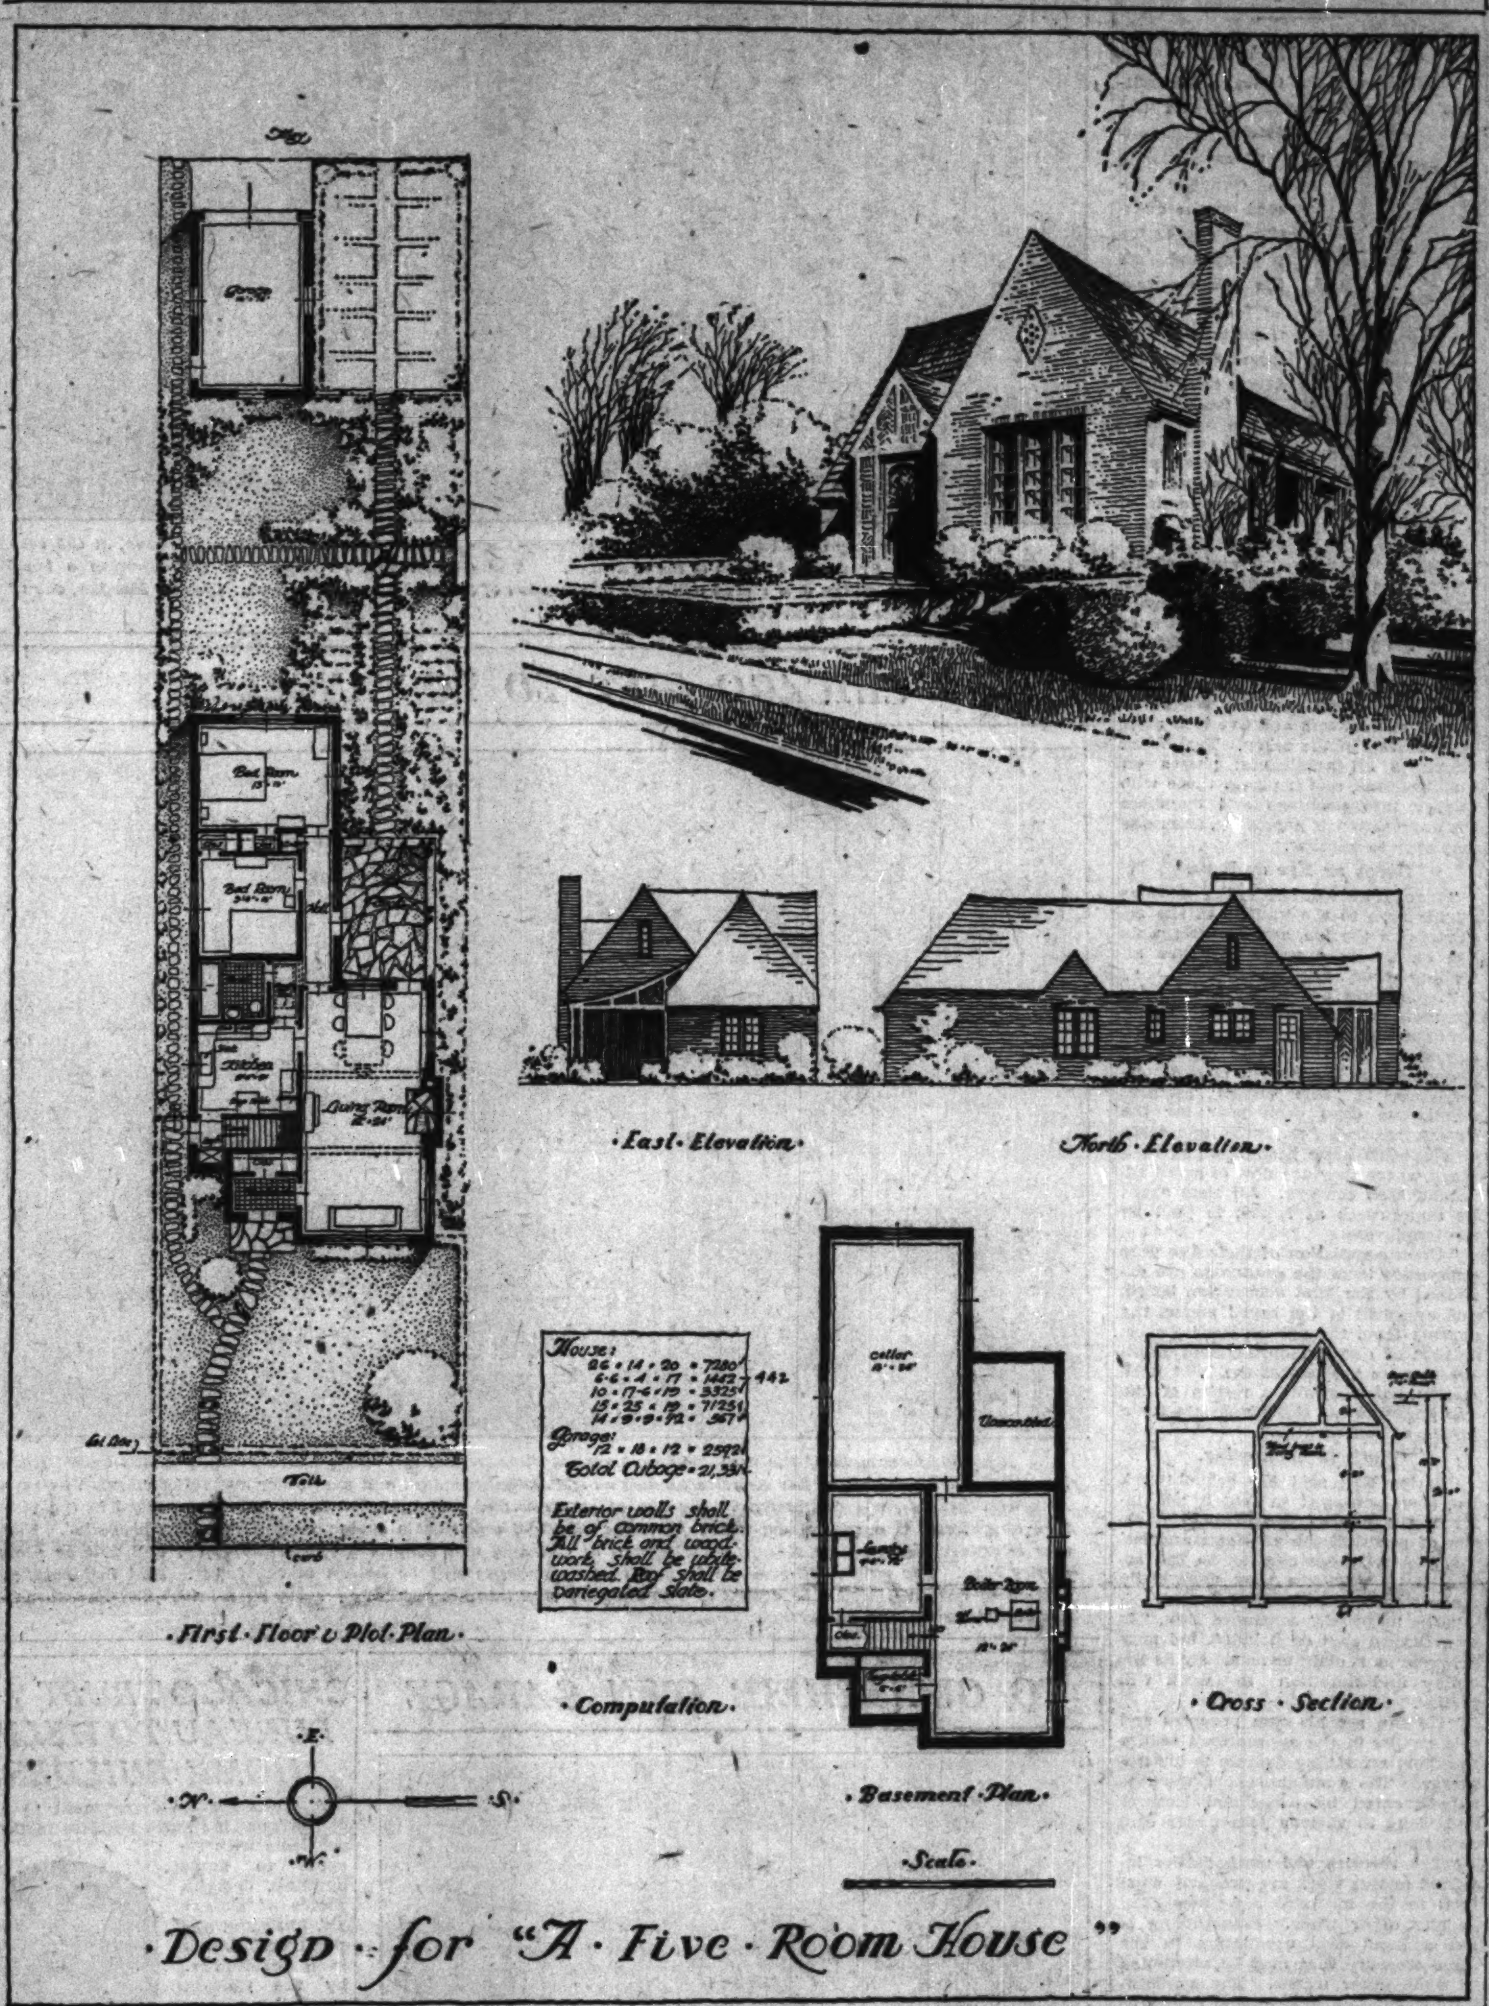
Syndicate Adds to Its Fox River Acreage Holdings

Gustav H. Jacobsen of Glen View and his associates have added to their holdings on the east bank of the Fox river, between Dundee and Elgin, and now have approximately 1,500 acres. It is announced that $250,000 already has been spent in beautifying the land and making it into home sites.

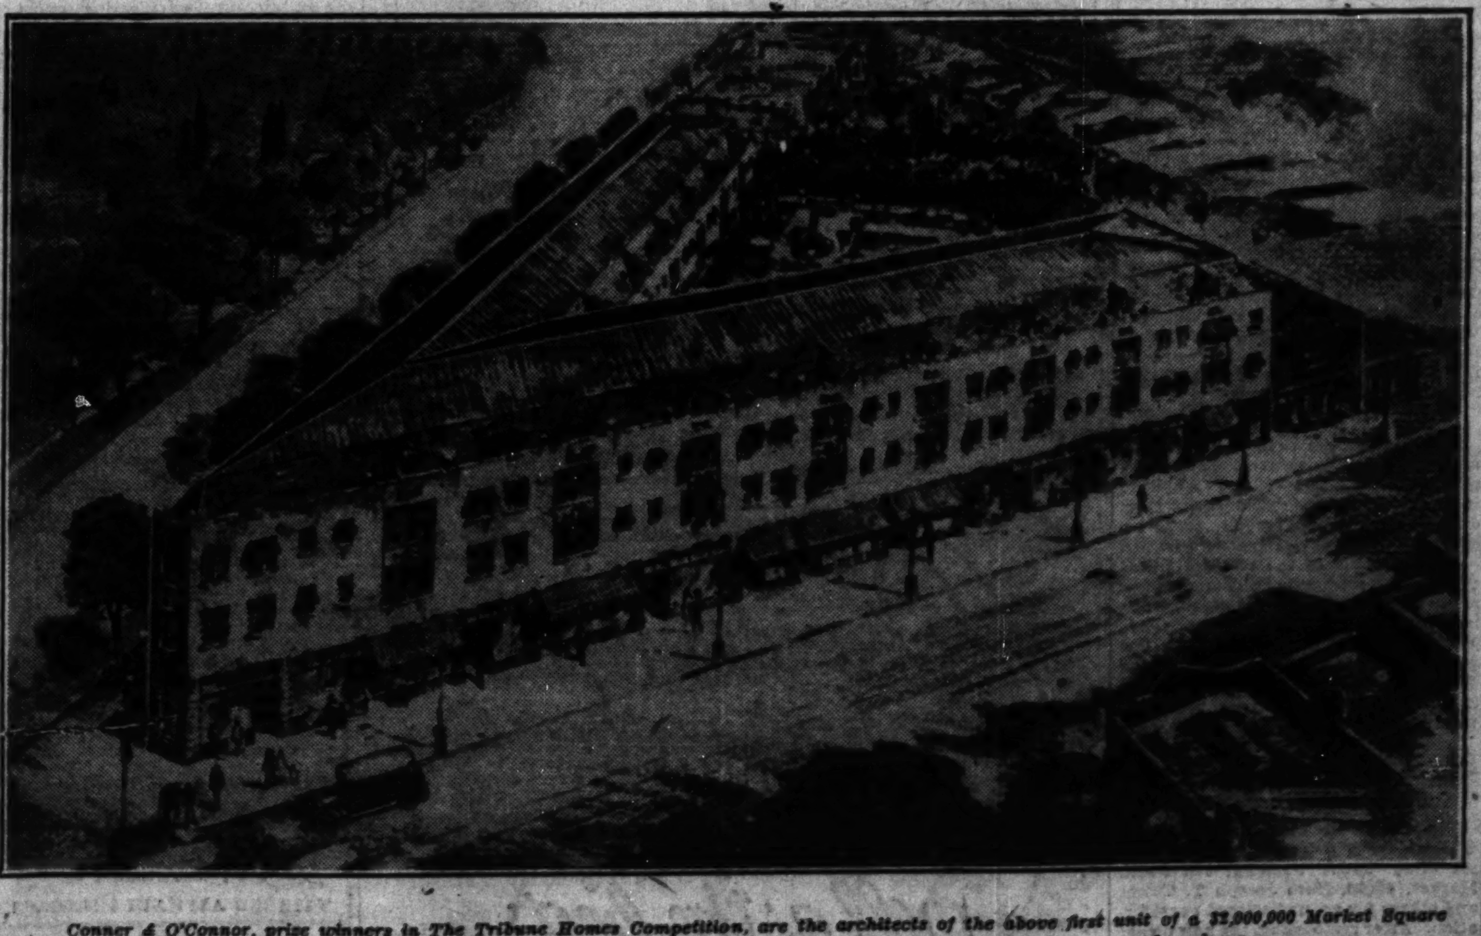
NO. 2—A PRIZE WINNING DESIGN FOR A FIVE ROOM HOUSE



This is one of the ten prize winning designs in the five room division of The Tribune's Home Competition. In English domestic style, its walls are of whitewashed brick and its roof of variegated slate. It has been skillfully designed to meet the preferences of the many families who prefer the bungalow type of home. Estimated cost of building between $8,000 and $9,000.

As announced last Sunday, the name of the architect and the place this design won in the prize list will appear on this page Feb. 27. Don't fail to save these designs until four more have appeared. Then write The Tribune your preference—and why! Three prizes of $25, $15, and $10 will be given for the best letters received.

EVANSTONIAN'S CONTRIBUTION TO UPTOWN



Conner & O'Connor, prize winners in The Tribune Homes Competition, are the architects of the above first unit of a $2,000,000 Market Square development to be carried out by Victor C. Carlson at Clark, Ridge, Ashland, and Peterson. Details are given in a nearby column.

Du Page County Realtors to Dine at Downers Grove

The Du Page county real estate board will hold its monthly meeting immediately following a 7 p. m. dinner at Wa-Brook inn, in the Downers Grove Masonic temple, next Wednesday, according to B. C. Downes, president of the organization.

Store and Flat Building at Wells-Locust Is Sold

Anshel Shamberg has bought the southeast corner of Wells and Locust, 100x92, improved with a four story building containing twenty flats and five stores, from Eldridge H. Sperry for an undisclosed price, through George P. McCauley & Co., brokers.

Co-Op Garage Is Planned for Gold Coasters

Residents of the gold coast are to have a 100 per cent coöperative garage for their limousines, town cars and roadsters which the promoters claim is the first of its kind in America. There'll be only sixty-five owners, with space for seventy-four cars, and each of the tenant-landlords will own his own little fireproof garage, a cubicle of steel and wire glass inside the big three story fireproof building.

Myron H. Spades, real estate dealer and owner of the Harrison-Wabash garage, owns the 75x151 site for the proposed co-op garage, at 1324 North Clark, between Goethe and Schiller. He has had plans drawn by Rebori, Wentworth, Dewey & McCormick for a three story structure of light brick, with stone trim, work on which will start in about thirty days. Completion is set for June 1.

Tentative plans call for the selling of the individual garages at different prices. For instance, those on the first floor will sell at $5,500, those on the second at $5,100 and the third floor ones will sell for $5,000, according to Mr. Spades. The upper floors will be reached by two elevators. There'll be a chauffeurs' room on the first floor and each floor will have wash racks for cars.

Mr. Spades figures that if the tenant-owners buy their gas and oil and have their cars washed at their own garage, at current prices, the project will not only be self-sustaining but will show a slight profit at the end of each year.

SKETCH CLUB HOLDS EXHIBIT AT CHICAGO ARCHITECTS' CLUB

Three of the younger Chicago architects have an exhibition of their work in water colors and pencil at the Architects' club of Chicago, 1801 Prairie avenue, which is expected to be on view until the middle of next month. There are 150 sketches on the walls. The three men are Joseph F. Booton, Eugene Fuhrer and Ferdinand Eiseman.

FERDINAND EISEMAN.

Mr. Booton won the Stewardson memorial scholarship in 1924, open to the residents of Pennsylvania, and his sketches now on exhibition were done while traveling on that scholarship. He is now with John A. Nyden & Co.

Mr. Fuhrer is a graduate of Armour institute, where he won several of the school's competitions and prizes, most important of which are the 1923 traveling and scholarship, Hutchinson medal, and the A. I. A. medal. He was associated with Alfred S. Alschuler for several years. He recently returned from a six months' European trip and his entire group of pictures was made during that tour.

Mr. Eiseman was awarded the Chicago Architectural club traveling scholarship in 1924 and spent the following two years in study and travel.

The exhibition is given under the auspices of the Architectural Sketch club of Chicago, of which Rudolph J. Nedved is president.

SKOKIE VALLEY NOBLE FARM TO BE SUBDIVIDED

The seventy-five acre farm belonging to the George Noble estate on the north side of Dundee road and on both sides of the new Skokie Valley interurban line was sold yesterday to an eastern syndicate, title being taken by R. E. Read. The price, according to Lewis T. Dodds, manager of the north shore office of Quinlan & Tyson, the only broker in the deal, was $272,574, or approximately $3,634 an acre.

The property has been in possession of the Noble family for sixty years. The sellers are Mrs. Ellen Noble, widow of George Noble; her daughter, Margaret, and three sons, Ralph, Walter, and William.

WOOLWORTH WILL HAVE NEW STORE ON 79TH STREET

Isadore Schuman bought 75 feet of frontage on 79th street, 100 feet west of Racine, south front, from Clayton D. Eulette for a reported $75,000. He plans to erect a two story store and office building on the site to cost about $100,000. Mr. Schuman leased to the Woolworth company 28 feet for a term of twenty years at an aggregate rental of $102,000. Woolworth's propose to open a 5 and 10 cent store there. E. C. Sumerfield was broker and Haffenberg, Kopald & Burns were attorneys for Mr. Schuman.

VICTOR CARLSON TO BUILD FIRST UNIT AT ONCE

Tribune Prize Winners the Architects.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

What is perhaps one of the most elaborate schemes for the development of a new uptown shopping center, involving an ultimate expenditure of approximately $2,000,000 in buildings, is announced by Victor C. Carlson, Evanston and Chicago builder and realtor, for the intersection of Clark, Ashland, Ridge, and Peterson avenues. This big project is to be called "Market Square."

VICTOR C. CARLSON

The architects of Market Square, by the way, are Conner & O'Connor, prize winners in The Tribune Homes competition.

The first unit of the proposed new shopping center is to be erected at the southeast corner of Clark and Ridge and will be a three story fireproof structure of Italian design.

Other Units to Follow.

Later on work will start on the second and third units. A large fireproof market building will be unit No. 2 and will occupy the entire block of northeast frontage on Ridge avenue, extending from Clark to Paulina street.

Unit No. 3 will be a large automobile sales and service building just south of the market building, fronting on Clark and Ashland.

Excavation has started for unit No. 1, which will have a frontage on Clark street of 254 feet and on Ridge of 246. It will be three stories, with a mansard slate roof, and will contain fifty-two apartments on the second and third floors.

Mr. Carlson will use face brick on all exterior walls, with plate glass and steel sash throughout. The ground floor store fronts will be of skeleton steel construction, permitting the changing of store sizes to suit tenants. The V. C. C. Construction company is the general contractor.

Upper Level Courtyard.

An interesting and unusual idea is making the courtyard of this "V" shaped building level with the second floor. In other words, the first floor of the building will cover the entire lot. The second and third floors will occupy only the outside of the "V" shaped lot, with the inside used for a court, which will be landscaped and open to the south.

In connection with the construction of the first unit the Chicago Trust company has underwritten a bond issue of $300,000.

Mr. Carlson recently has developed one of the most attractive shopping centers outside the loop, at Church street and Orrington avenue, known as Library square. The Library Plaza and Orrington hotels and the Carlson building, fronting on this square, were erected by him.

TALL BUILDING MAY GO UP ON EAST 53D ST.

Hyde Park is to have another tall building within a few years as a result of a ninety-nine year lease being closed at 1600-08 East 53d street yesterday through the Frear-Delaplane company.

The Cooper-Carlton Garage company, which now operates a garage on the property, has signed a lease dated Jan. 1, 1927, for ninety-nine years, at an annual rental of $10,000, without revaluation, or an approximate term rental of $1,000,000. Thomas C. Worden is lessor.

The lease calls for the erection of a building within ten years to cost not less than $150,000. It is understood that a structure of at least ten stories is contemplated. Conditions at the time, of course, will determine the character of the building. The property fronts 110 feet on 53d and 150 along the east line of the I. C. right of way. It is just a little west of Cornell. Newman, Poppenhusen, Stein & Johnson, and Gardner & Carton were attorneys.

REJUVENATION OF OLD TIMER LEADS TO FULL LEASING

As an example of how rejuvenation of an old time building puts it back in the running with its more modern neighbors, Alfred L. Miltenberg & Co. call attention to leases they've just made at 111-17 South Wells street. The property is owned by Washington Porter II., who is remodeling and creating a jobbers' building, to be finished in white terra cotta with halls in marble.

H. Halvorsen & Co., linings, have leased the store, basement and second floor at No. 111 for a term of years. Harry Rodems, Inc., has taken the store, basement and second floor at No. 117. The firm deals in office furniture. The Chicago Knicker company has taken the third floor, the Lieberson Novelty company the fourth floor, the Meyer-Paul company the fifth, and the Atlas Tailoring company the sixth floor.

HOME BUILDERS' DEPARTMENT

THERMOSTAT IS INVALUABLE IN RUNNING FURNACE

Reduces Bills and Keeps Heat at Even Point.

BY HOMER GRANT.

Any feature which contributes to heating comfort and to heating economy in the home deserves consideration, for these two factors in home upkeep are of vital importance to every owner for at least eight months out of every year.

While so-called sweeping assertions are dangerous to make, because of the exceptions which follow most rules, it is probably safe to say from a conservative standpoint that the home owner can save from 18 per cent to 25 per cent of his fuel bill by the modern thermostatic heat regulators.

The varying results in the economy achieved are because of the wide difference in size, construction and design of heating plants. With warm air furnaces, hot water, steam and vapor plants, fueled by coal, coke, oil and gas, the saving effected in homes cannot be fixed. The degree of warmth desired in the house by day and by night, as well as the size of the heating plant in proportion to the size of the house, determines how economically a house may be heated even after the thermostat has been installed.

Control Is Automatic.

Any detailed description of a thermostat's operation is hardly necessary, as this instrument is by no means a novel feature. Control of dampers, valves, and drafts is automatic. The indicator is set at the temperature desired, usually 70 degrees, and the thermostat actuates the motor to advance the fire.

If it becomes warmer outside and less heat is needed the thermostat checks the fire. A house is kept at 70 degrees in the daytime, and on the family's retirement lowered to 50 or 60 degrees. At the hour specified in the morning it automatically raises the temperature.

While coal and coke burning furnaces have had thermostatic attachments for a good many years, these heat regulators have come into greater prominence and assumed an added degree of importance since the widespread use of oil and gas fired burners.

The economy factor in the thermostat installation is shown by the fact that many oil burner manufacturers and most gas burner companies insist on the thermostat attachment being used in conjunction with their burners.

Helps Save Fuel.

The reason for this is obvious. Without these regulators the average man would consume much more oil or gas in the course of a season, with the possible and natural result that he would become discouraged over his bills and throw out the gas or oil burner in a short time.

Furthermore, in addition to its advantage from an economy standpoint, the comfort contributing aspect is great.

An even temperature is maintained in January weather as well as in April and October. The discomforts of rising in the morning in a cold house are eliminated as well as those of retiring at night in a house greatly cooled off through the need of letting the fire die down to some extent before the fire can be properly banked.

Besides this many fires start in a home through the forcing of the heating plant. With a heating plant large enough for the house and thermostatic regulation, there is no need of this forcing even in zero weather.

What Must Be Known.

There are some fundamental facts which must be known and recognized before a house is heated properly and economically, even with thermostatic control.

One is that not only must the heating plant be the right size for the house, but that it must also be the right type and its installation must be correct.

Another fundamental is that the owner understand it. No furnace can operate without intelligence behind it. It must be kept clean and in repair.

A clean ash pit, if coal or coke is used, means that there is no interference with air circulation and that the combustion is proper.

A too warm cellar means that the house is not receiving enough of the furnace heat. Often too scanty insulation on pipes and heating plants causes this, or there may be a cold air duct which is not properly constructed.

If one has a warm air furnace the supply of air should be taken from inside the house in cold or windy weather. Regulate the cold air intake so that too much outside cold air will not have to be heated.

Keep Joints Tight.

Again the joints should be kept tight so that no dust or smoke gets into the heated air. The warm air pipes should be insulated and every pipe should have an inside hand damper so that any room can be shut off if desired.

With a steam or vapor plant it is poor economy to install cheap radiator valves. They are apt to leak and then air will not be expelled and the radiator is cold.

With a hot water system the radiator will not become thoroughly heated until the cold air is out of the coils. Clean water is desirable in the boiler three or four times a year, and at least twice at a minimum. When a window is thrown open a blanket over the radiator will prevent a cool draft which is apt to cool the entire plant.

Whatever the plant, a wise study of the manufacturer's directions is necessary. Once installed, correctly and with thermostatic control, there should be no difficulty in maintaining an even adequate temperature throughout the house the entire cold weather season. It is claimed that a thermostat pays for itself in from two to two and a half years in the fuel saving accomplished.

These Homes Made Profit for Owners

The Tribune will print experiences of home owners—letters telling how the home was financed, how the initial payment was gathered, how the mortgages were paid off, how the upkeep was managed. For each letter printed The Tribune will pay $10. Letters should not exceed 300 words. Address them to Small Homes Department, Sunday Tribune, Chicago.

Making a Profit of $1,500.

CHICAGO.—In 1920, when rents were just beginning to soar, our savings consisted of two $50 Liberty bonds and less than $400 in cash. The task of making a moderate salary cover rent, food, and clothing for a family of six had always been a problem, but when our rent was raised to $65 (nearly twice what it had been) it became a formidable one, indeed.

We were determined to stop paying rent and buy a home. But this, we found, was more easily said than done, for the smallest down payment any one wanted to accept was $1,000, and we had less than $500.

For weeks we scanned the advertisement columns, haunted real estate offices, and tramped the streets, and at last we found a house, well located but old and in need of repair, for $5,000—$500 down and $40 a month, including interest. The taxes were about $60 a year.

Our friends were horrified at the price, and assured us we would be sorry, but we cheerfully sold our Liberty bonds, and, by borrowing on our insurance policies, we managed the initial payment and moved in.

My husband, a carpenter, was employed in a sash and door factory, so was able to buy material at cost, and to do all the necessary work himself. New paint, French doors in the living room, a new buffet in the dining room, a wider opening here, a dormer there, and under his hands, what had been an ordinary frame cottage became such a comfortable and attractive home that in three years we sold it for $6,500 cash, a profit of $1,500, and bought the charming bungalow in which we are now living. E. F. L.

Worth the Struggle.

WESTERN SPRINGS, Ill.—We have been married six years. The first two years we lived in a four room apartment which did not have a porch of any kind where we could get a breath of fresh air. They raised the rent each year, so we decided to buy an inexpensive place if we could find one.

I saw an ad in THE TRIBUNE for a six room frame house for sale for $4,800. It was a nice house for the money, although it needed painting and decorating on the inside.

We had to pay $1,000 down. My husband was earning $125 a month at the time, and we didn't have a cent saved up, but that did not stop us. We borrowed $500 from the bank and my mother lent us the balance to make $1,000. We paid the thousand down, and as there was a $2,000 mortgage, we contracted to pay the $1,800 balance at $40 a month.

We painted the three rooms and bath upstairs ourselves and rented them to a young couple for $45 a month. With this money we paid the bank back at the rate of $40 a month.

We bought steel stock from the company my husband was working for, having a certain amount taken out of his salary each month. When these shares were paid for we sold them at a good profit and paid my mother back, along with the $300 soldiers' bonus my husband received at that time.

We lived in this house three years and sold it for $6,500. That gave us an equity of $4,500. We then bought our present home, a dandy new five room bungalow in the suburbs, and we are certainly happy that we took the chance when we didn't have a cent.

Answers to Questions on Home Owning

A Concrete First Floor.

Dear Mrs. Bargelt: We have been advised to have a concrete structural first floor in our home to protect our house against the dangers of fire which might start in the basement. Would you advise about this? Would it be very expensive? Can a concrete floor be successfully waxed or enamel finished? G. F.

Ans.: A concrete structural first floor is a protection against fire and as some 70 per cent of fires start in the basement, its importance can be readily seen. Usually the cost does not exceed 1½ or 2 per cent of the cost of the house. A plain concrete floor may be stained with a good brown stain and then waxed with ordinary floor wax. Enameled finishes are also used successfully. Wood may be used on concrete, nailed to strips laid in the floor. Concrete tiles are obtainable in a wide range of colors and terrazzo provides a great variety of design.

PEOPLE'S LOAN ASSOCIATION TO MEET TOMORROW

Judge Henry Horner of the Probate court is to be the principal speaker at the annual meeting of the People's Saving and Loan association, which will be held tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at the South Side Pythian hall, 11039 Michigan avenue. Joseph P. Mallek, secretary of the Alliance Building and Loan association, 1724 Cortland street, also will talk. The People's association was formed six years ago and now has assets estimated at $1,494,104.

BOYS STUDYING STEAMFITTING GET UNIONS' AID

Official Lauds Work of City Trade School.

BY THOMAS WREN.

CHARLES RAU.

Officialdom of the Chicago Steamfitters' Protective association and the Master Steamfitters' association is in complete accord on the question of apprentice training and both the union executives and the representatives of the master steamfitters have given their full support to the apprentice classes attending the Washburne Continuation and Trade school at 655 West 14th street.

"Training of the apprentices for the trade of steamfitting," said Charles Rau, business manager of the steamfitters' union, "comes under the jurisdiction of the joint arbitration board, which is composed of ten members.

"Five of these men represent the master steamfitters and five look after the interests of the union. This board examines all applicants; passes on qualifications, and it places those who qualify into positions and transfers the apprentices, if necessary, from one employer to another.

Keeps an Eye on Boys.

"A supervisor of apprentices devotes all his time to the welfare of the beginners on the job, and also keeps an eye on the boys while they are attending school.

"Applicants are given a trial for six months prior to their enrollment as apprentices. Then they are assigned to the steamfitter apprentice classes at the Washburne school. Attendance at this school requires twenty-five days each year for the course. Absence, tardiness, and cases of discipline have been brought to a stage where they are now of small administration concern. All time spent by apprentices at school is paid by the employers.

"Upon completion of their five year apprentice term the graduates are examined by the joint arbitration board, and approval of the board means the passing from the apprenticeship class to that of regular journeymen. Failure to pass the test of the joint arbitration board means a return of the apprentice to his former classes for a period of six months."

Work Is Interesting.

Charles Rau said the school work has been arranged so that it will interest the apprentices through a series of practical job problems and lesson sheets, whose relation to the actual work problems they meet daily make a definite and direct appeal.

"The material," continued Rau, "is so arranged that each individual may progress as rapidly or as slowly as his ability and ambition to work will justify.

"He can see his own progress and this results in the apprentice's ability to report something definite to his employer. The regular school work is supplemented by occasional lectures and visits to various jobs under construction.

"The theories and mathematics involved in this work are probably more vital to the mechanic's welfare than in any other trade. Steamfitting is not a hand skill occupation in the same measure that may be attributed to some other trades. The steamfitter's worth as a mechanic is measured by his perfect understanding of why and how to install the work of his trade.

Teaches Mathematics.

"The general aim of the school work has been to teach mathematics, science, and drawing, as applied in the steamfitting trade, so that the apprentices may be able to understand and work out the practical problems they meet daily in their work. Proper installation of power, heating and cooling systems, methods of improving construction of pipe layouts are some of the basic principles in the selection of school studies.

"Then, too," Rau asserted, "there is the reading of plans and the making of sketches, the study of handbooks and trade journals, the study of faulty working conditions, the reasons for locations of traps, valves and specialties, and practice in writing of letters. Social and civic obligations and the promoting of good citizenship are presented in an informal manner as opportunity arises in the class work.

"The school for training of apprentices in the steamfitting trade is operated by the Chicago board of education. William Bachrack is the director of the continuation schools. Edward G. Bauman is the head of the Washburne school.

An Eight Hour Class.

"At the present time there are 500 steamfitter apprentices attending school classes. The latter are divided into twenty groups. Two classes meet daily and each class meeting is for an eight hour day, once every two weeks.

"The success of the steamfitter apprentice school has been demonstrated many times by the interest the students have manifested in their school work. With continued support of both employer and journeymen groups the Washburne school should be recognized as the leading apprentice school in the country."

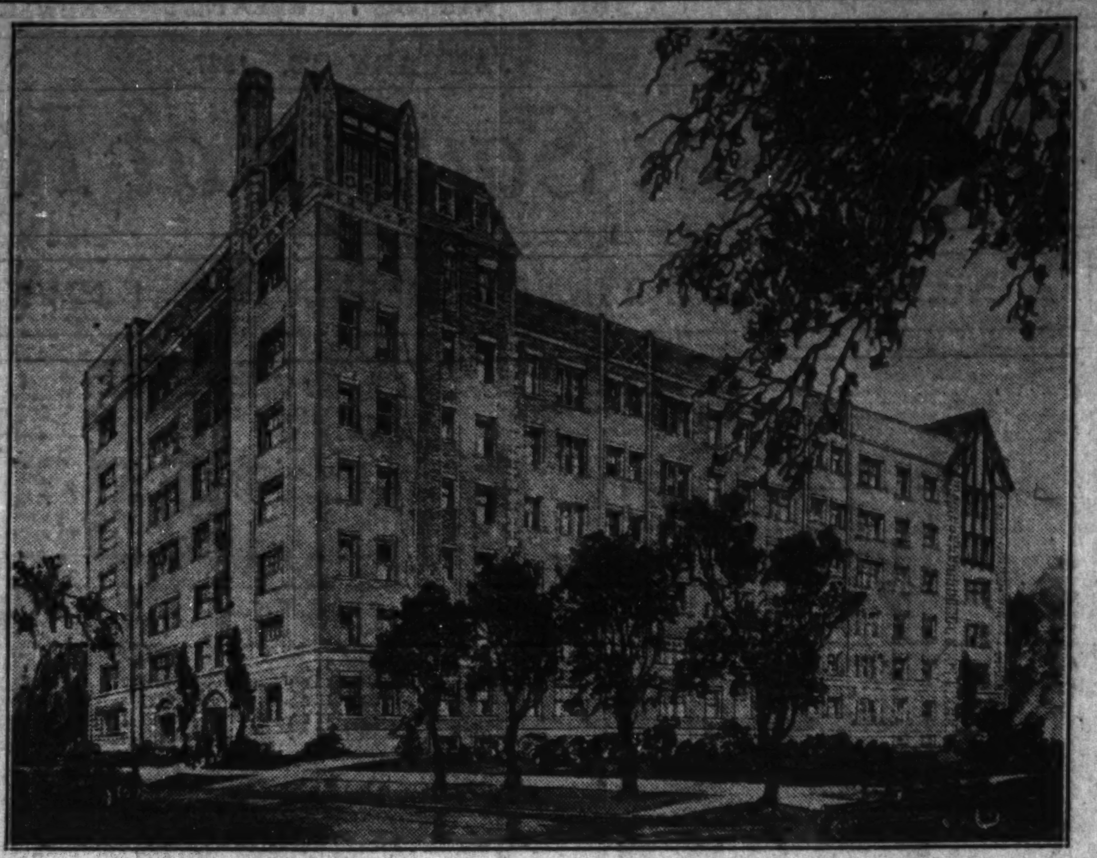
Dry Goods Concern Buys Market Street Building

The Dessauer-Kalven company, wholesale dry goods, has bought the six story Tower building, 133 South Market, 48x90, from Joseph T. Tower and others for an undisclosed consideration. After remodeling, the new owner will occupy the entire structure. Ward T. Huston and Frankenstein & Co. were brokers.

BUYS TWO STORY FACTORY.

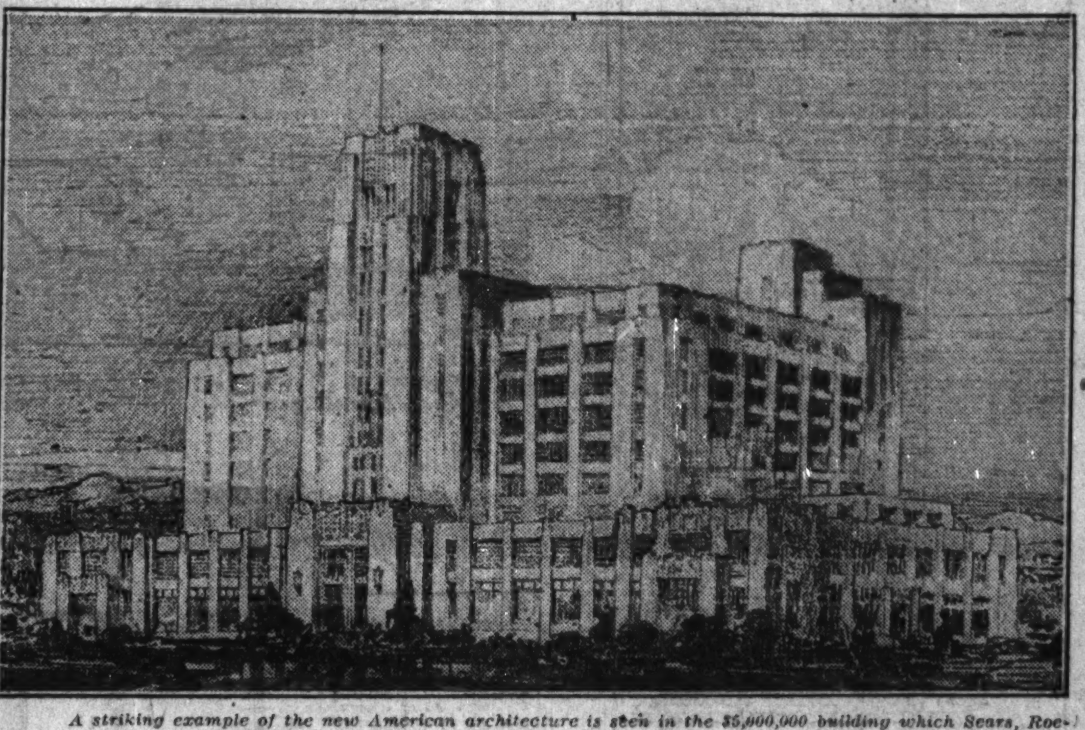
The R. Stephens company, makers of automobile specialties, has bought the new two story factory building at 2750 West Van Buren from Miska Bros. for a reported $20,500. E. N. Duerlein & Co. were brokers.

OVERLOOKING UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO



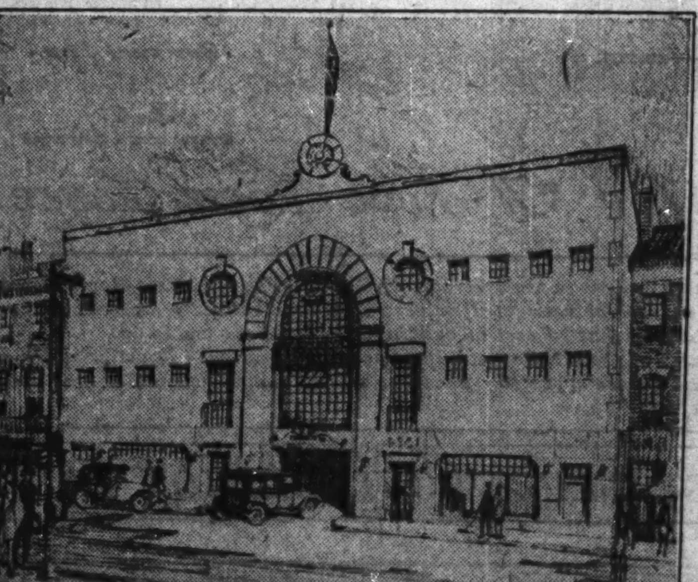
Work is under way on a building to contain seventy-five apartments at 6020-22 Drexel avenue, at the corner of the Midway. Frederick Stanton is the architect. The Garard Trust company is underwriting a bond issue on the project, which it is stated will have a valuation of $500,000 upon completion. Charles Morgan, one of the owners, made the above rendering.

CHICAGO GIFT TO LOS ANGELES



A striking example of the new American architecture is seen in the $5,000,000 building which Sears, Roebuck & Co. are erecting in Los Angeles for use as a distributing plant and mail order and retail store. The new American feeling finds expression in the use of setbacks and perpendicular lines, as may be noted in the picture above, and is a radical departure from the classical and Gothic designs which formerly prevailed. The new structure, designed by George C. Nimmons of Chicago, will contain 400,000 square feet and will be nine stories high. The ugly penthouses and other roof appendages will be hidden in the tower. And incidentally, though of course it would be denied in Los Angeles that there is necessity for any such intent, the structure is designed to withstand an earthquake assault.

TO OWN THEIR OWN GARAGE



Andrew N. Rebori of Rebori, Wentworth, Dewey & McCormick designed the above coöperative garage is to be erected at 1324 North Clark street for Gold Coast residents. More is told about this is another column.

Erecting 19 Apartment Building in La Grange

Laura T. Parker and Harold Bowlus are erecting an apartment building to contain seven five room and twelve four room flats at Oak, Ashland and 5th avenues, La Grange, to cost a reported $130,000. The Hoppe Bond & Mortgage company is underwriting a $72,000 bond issue on the project. This is said to be La Grange's fourth apartment building.

Plan Stores and Flats at Belmont and Lamon

A store and apartment building is planned for the southeast corner of Belmont and Lamon avenues, lot 52½x125 feet, which Christ N. and George N. Gravenites bought from Peter Zimmar for a reported $23,000. Gust Patsios and Tom Gravens were brokers, while Charles Waldman handled the legal details.

MIDWAY-DREXEL CORNER TO HAVE BIG APARTMENT

Penthouses to Be Hidden by Tower at Corner.

Again we have announced for the south side a large apartment where the artistic sensibilities of the fellow Chicagoans are given consideration by the owners. Last week it was the Cranston, a tall building which is to be erected at 6317-19 Cra don avenue. This week we have the Drexel-Midway apartments, work on which has started at 6020-22 Drexel avenue, at the Midway Plaisance.

And the consideration this comes once more in the form of concealed penthouses and the elimination of other unsightly appendages on the roof and the use of face brick for the sides of the building exposed to the public view.

The Drexel-Midway is to front feet on Drexel avenue and along the Midway. The main portion is to be six stories tall, but on the Drexel side it will be seven with a tower going up another at the Drexel and Midway corner.

Apartment in Tower.

The tower will contain a three room apartment, and it will also serve the happy purpose of hiding the above mentioned objectionable penthouses. Similarly to several apartment building projects on the north side, a chimney is being erected which will provide a bit of ornamentation as well as the strictly utilitarian.

Frederick Stanton is the architect and his design is Tudor Gothic, the Tudor effect being obtained in a bit of half beam work at one end of the building. The exterior is to be of dull red face brick, with Bedford stone trim. Three sides, the only ones exposed, are to be entirely of face brick so there will be no staring blank walls to mar the beauty of the district. And as this treatment involves some increase in the building's cost, the owners deserve a kind word for their thoughtfulness.

The structure will contain seventy-five apartments of two and three rooms, all to be completely furnished. And there will be mechanical refrigeration and mechanical ventilation.

Will Cost $500,000.

The apartments on the northern side of the building will have a grand view of the Midway Plaisance and the University of Chicago campus, which is becoming more and more something to look at. A little bit to the west is Mr. Taft's Fountain of Time.

The entrance will be on Drexel avenue and will have adjoining it a lobby and lounging room for tenants.

It is stated that the project will represent an investment of about $500,000 on completion, which will be some time in the middle of the summer. The owners include Albert and Michael, Alfred C. Julian, Fred W ston, and Charles Morgan. The financing is being assisted by a first mortgage bond issue, which is being underwritten by the Garard Trust company. The general contractors are W & Co.

Beg Your Pardon

Harry Auspitz, through his attorney, Harry J. Lurie, states that the announcement printed in last Sunday's real estate section and furnished THE TRIBUNE by his former partner, Clifford W. Oakes, is incorrect.

"Mr. Oakes did not purchase the entire interest of Mr. Auspitz," writes Mr. Lurie, "nor will Oakes, nor Clifford W. Oakes & Co., market the properties in the Westchester district owned by the former firm of Auspitz & Oakes. All of the properties marketed by Auspitz & Oakes in the Westchester districts were retained by Harry Auspitz, and will continue to be marketed by the Harry Auspitz company. None of these properties were taken over or acquired by Clifford W. Oakes or Clifford W. Oakes & Co."

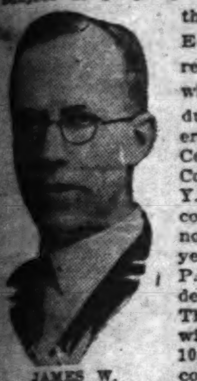
REALTY SCHOOL HAS NEW CLASS ON MANAGEMENT

James W. Belanger Will Be in Charge of Course.



JAMES W. BELANGER.
[Walinger Photo.]

Special stress is to be laid on the subject of property management in the Chicago Real Estate board's realty classes, which are conducted in coöperation with the Central College of Commerce of the Y. M. C. A., according to an announcement made yesterday by John P. Hooker, president of the board. The classes, which will open on Feb. 10, are held at the college at 19 South La Salle street.

Mr. Hooker states that since the present day market in the field of office building and apartment property has become so competitive it is increasingly important that persons engaged in this line be specialists so that they may extract the highest returns from the large investments made.

For this reason especial attention is being given this subject, which will deal with office buildings and apartment, residential, and industrial property. The classes are expected to be of special interest to managers of these lines of property.

Belanger Is Instructor.

The instructor in charge of the course will be James W. Belanger of Gordon Strong & Co. Mr. Belanger is one of the best known men in Chicago in the field of property management. He is a member of the Chicago Real Estate board and the National Association of Real Estate Boards, which he has served in important official capacities. Mr. Belanger is a former vice president of the Chicago Real Estate board and has been chairman of the property management division of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Arrangements have been made with a number of other well known specialists in the field of property management to deliver lectures before this class. The opportunity to hear these lecturers discuss topics with which they are thoroughly familiar from every day experience adds to the attractiveness of the course.

Others Who Will Talk.

The first lecture will be on "The Field of Property Management," by Mr. Belanger. Other lecturers and their subjects are:

"Chicago City Property, Economic Development of Property," by Joseph B. Hall of Hamilton Bond and Mortgage company.

"Fire Prevention and Insurance," by W. C. Gielow of Cioldt, Gielow & Co.

"Construction and Structural Maintenance," by M. C. Johnson of Ralph Renwick company.

"Renting—Leases," by Henry Lunt, Chicago Real Estate board.

"Renting—Tenants and Campaigns," by Lee Sheridan, S. W. Straus & Co.

"Accounting Procedure and Office Organization," by Graham Aldis of Aldis & Co.

"Managing Residential and Apartment Property," by J. J. Carroll of Carroll, Adendorf & Boenicke, Inc.

"Managing Business Property," by W. A. Hiles of A. H. Wetten & Co.

"Managing Industrial Property," by L. G. Varty of John R. Magill & Co.

"City Ordinances Affecting Property Management," by R. F. Bippus of Basler, Bippus & Rose.

Subjects which will be covered by lectures other than those for which lecturers have been announced are: "Taxation," "Mechanical Equipment, Maintenance and Operation," "Service—Regular and Special," and "Managing Office Buildings."

MODEL FUR SHOP AND APARTMENTS FOR NORTH ROBEY

Ravenswood is to have a handsome combination commercial and apartment building, designed by William Campbell Wright, which is to be erected at 4746-47 North Robey street, just south of Lawrence. The owner is Max Schwartz, a furrier, and the one store in the building will be his fur shop.

And this fur shop is the last word in fur shops, according to the owner. It's to be of Moorish design and will be highly decorated. There will be a number of workrooms off the mezzanine floor, and in the basement there will be a vault with a capacity of 3,000 or 4,000 garments.

And, having taken care of the fur shop, we'll go on with the rest of the building, which will have twelve four-room apartments. The architecture will be Spanish and the apartments will face on a Spanish court which is to be hidden from the street by a high wall of the type familiar to the land which helped to make the sun famous.

The apartments are to have all the latest conveniences, which means mechanical refrigeration and radio equipment. Construction will be of face brick with terra cotta trim. The cost will be a reported $160 000.

McJunkin Leases Space in New Builders' Building

The McJunkin Advertising agency has leased the major portion of the 19th floor of the Builders' building, now under construction at La Salle and Wacker drive. This will be its second move in twenty-five years.

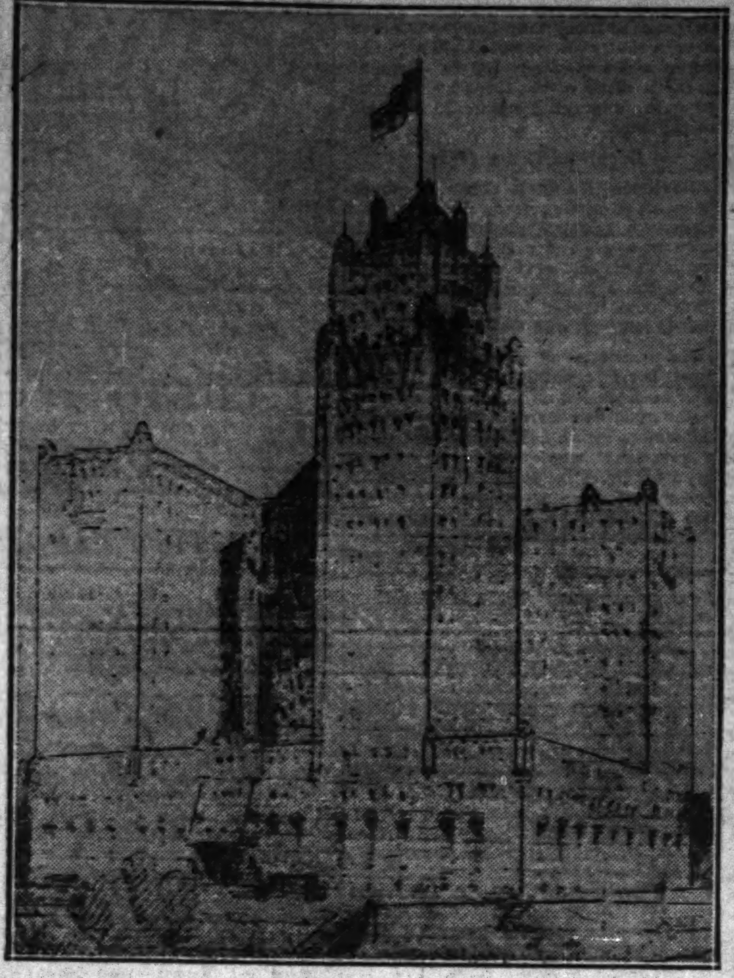
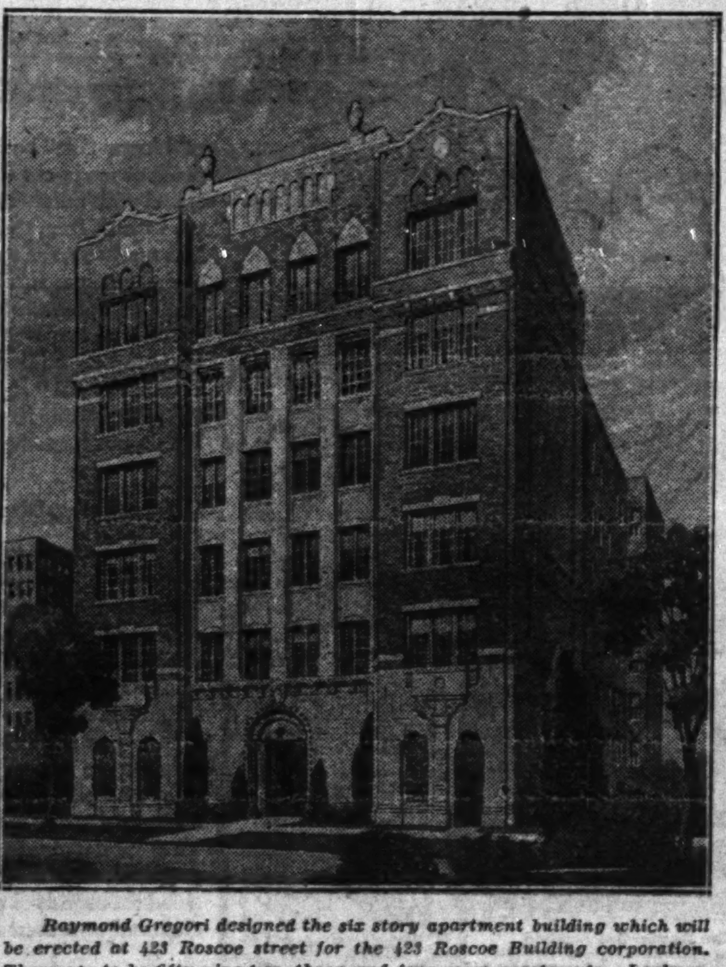
MICHIGAN SHORE CLUB



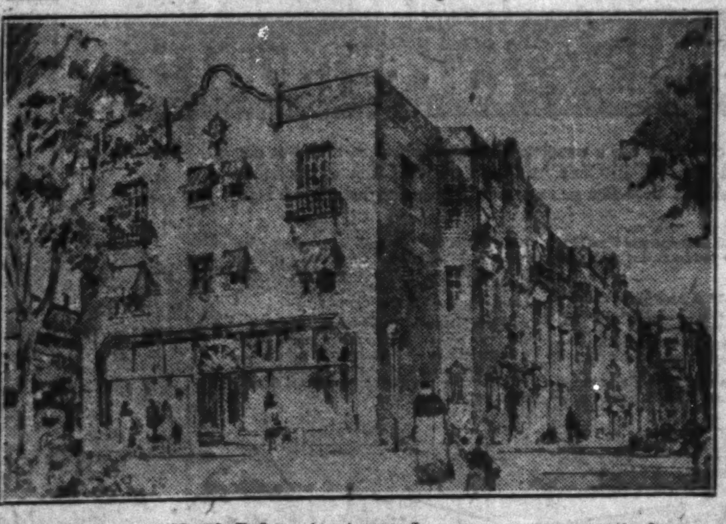
Above is a sketch of the Michigan Shore club which is proposed for the northwest corner of Jarvis avenue and the lake. The plans call for a building fifteen stories high, with 600 guest rooms. The membership will be open to both men and women. There are to be all the features of the beach club, including ball rooms, dining halls, bathing facilities, etc. The board of governors includes Walter Willett, A. L. Fell, John Conroy, George J. Gross, Anton Wille, William Jensen, A. F. Klink, A. W. Higby, and F. W. Janusch. Hooper & Janusch, Inc., are the architects.

ROSCOE STREET APARTMENTS



Raymond Gregori designed the six story apartment building which will be erected at 423 Roscoe street for the 423 Roscoe Building corporation. There are to be fifty-nine two, three, and four room apartments. Lackner, Butz & Co. are underwriting a $355,000 bond issue on the project. Edgar L. Bloomster made the above rendering.

RISING IN RAVENSWOOD



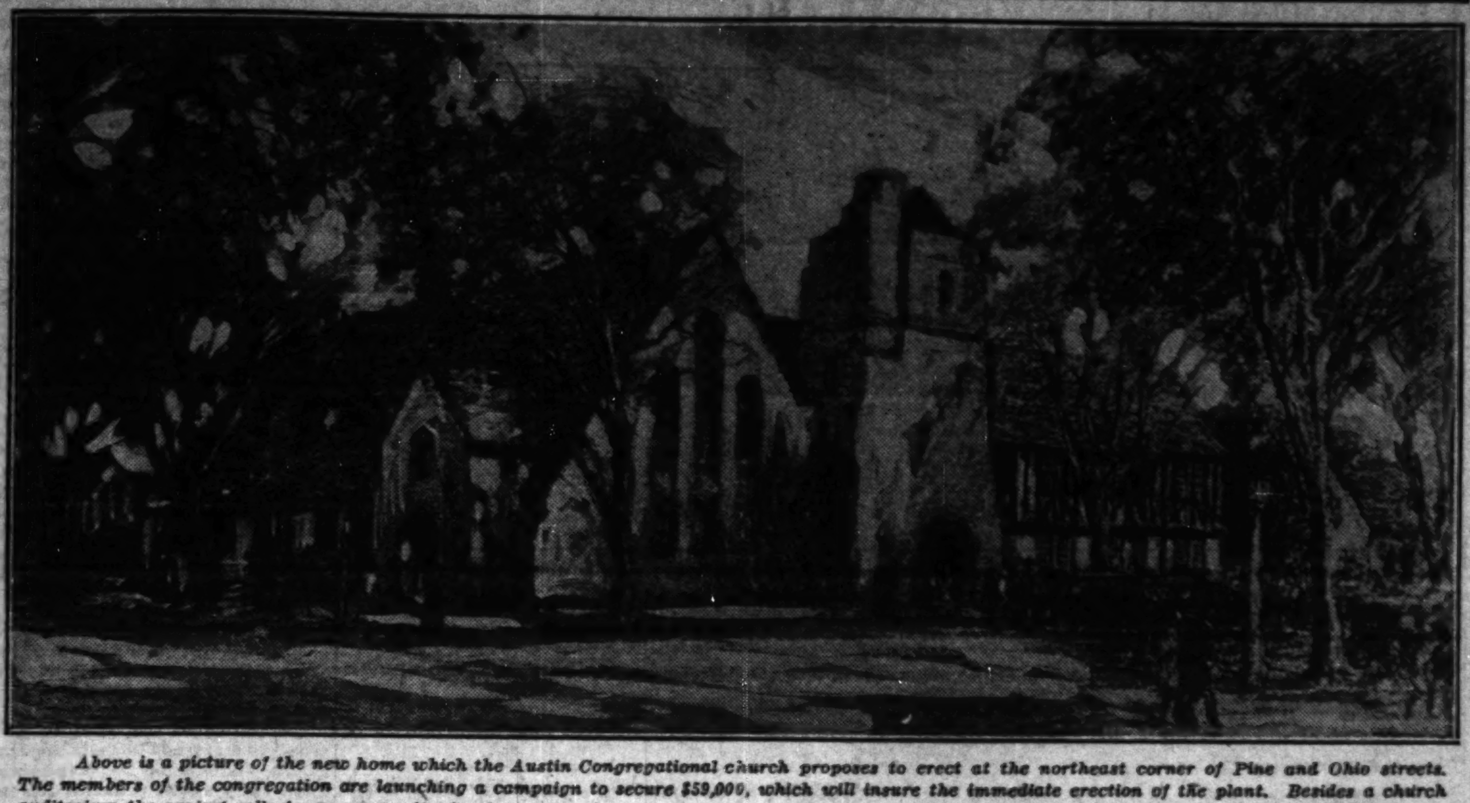
Residents of North Robey street near Lawrence avenue are to have a novel bit of architecture in their midst in a combination commercial and apartment building which is to rise at 4745-47. The design is Spanish, and the structure is to contain the fur shop of Max Schwartz, owner of the building, and twelve apartments. William Campbell Wright is the architect.

WHAT APPRAISER MUST KNOW WILL BE TOLD BY LEVY

MARK LEVY.
[Walinger Photo.]

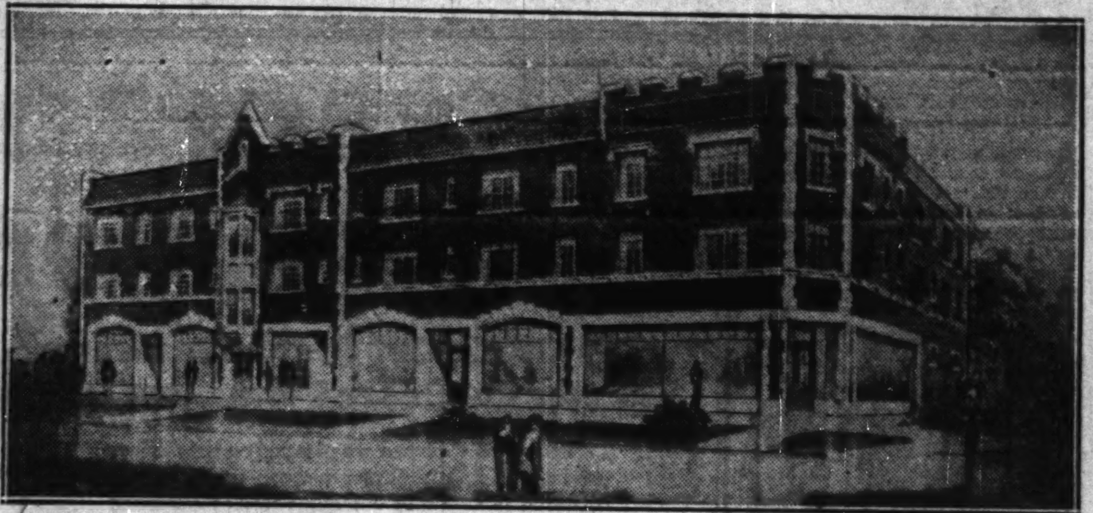
Mark Levy of Mark Levy & Bro., is to talk before the Real Property institute of the Cook County Real Estate board on Tuesday evening, Jan. 25, when he will continue the discussion began last week on real estate appraisals. Mr. Levy will discuss the practical experiences of the real estate appraiser, explaining by illustrations, what qualifications the competent valuator needs. H. O. Walther, of Gordon Strong & Co., and secretary of the joint tax commission recently appointed by Anton Cermak, president of the county board, spoke before the institute last week.

WILL AID FIGHT FOR A BETTER CHICAGO



Above is a picture of the new home which the Austin Congregational church proposes to erect at the northeast corner of Pine and Ohio streets. The members of the congregation are launching a campaign to secure $59,000, which will insure the immediate erection of the plant. Besides a church auditorium the project calls for a community development to have a gymnasium and other features. Emery Stanford Hall, Bisbee & Rhenisch are the architects. The pastor of the church is the Rev. James F. Herbert.

NORTH SHORE SUBURBAN APARTMENT



Above is a store and apartment building which is being erected by the estate of Matthew H. McKillip at the southeast corner of Central and Green Bay, Highland Park. The structure will contain six shops, sixteen two room kitchenette apartments and twelve single living rooms. It was designed by Paul Frederick Olsen and will represent an investment of $250,000, it is stated. It will be called the Highland and completion is set for May 1.

B. E. BENSINGER.

Benjamin E. Bensinger, president of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender company, sold to Mrs. Ella M. Sutherland, wife of William J. Sutherland, his residence at 4628 Drexel boulevard. It is an attractive twelve room stone structure on a lot 50x200 feet, and while the consideration is not disclosed it is understood to have been $31,000.

The Chicago Motor Bus company, which has obtained a twenty year franchise to operate busses from the downtown district through the Lincoln park system of boulevards and over Sheridan road to Devon avenue, has purchased an L-shaped parcel surrounding the northeast corner of Broadway and Rosemont avenue for $40,000 as a site for its garage and office building. The proposed building, which was designed by Jarvis Hunt, will cost about $100,000.

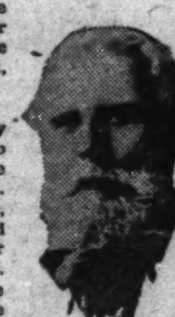
To Jan. 23, 1907; 20 Years Ago Today

E. H. GARY.

While not involving Chicago real estate, the sale of the remainder of the packers' tract in the new town of Gary to the United States Steel corporation was easily the feature of the week in Chicago real estate. The exact price paid is not known, but it is said it will approximate $3,000,000, or at the rate of about $1,200 an acre. Its acquirement gives the steel company about 8,000 acres upon which to build it industrial city which will, if present plans are carried out, represent an investment of $75,000,000.

Mrs. Catherine A. Patterson sold to James A. Brophy and William E. Hal' the store and flat property at 3813-17 Cottage Grove avenue, fronting sixty-six feet, with a depth of 130 feet, for $35,000.

To Jan. 23, 1897; 30 Years Ago Today



LYMAN J. GAGE.

L. S. Aldridge & Co. have sold for Lyman J. Gage, president of the First National bank, the southeast corner of Wabash avenue and 70th street, 160x96 feet.

George R. Day has arranged to build four fine residences in St. Lawrence avenue, between 49th and 50th streets, after plans by S. N. Crowen. The buildings will be two stories high and will each cover an area 20x66 feet. The exterior will be of stone, relieved by arched windows. The buildings will cost $35,000.

The Cambridge apartment house at the northwest corner of 35th and Ellis avenue figured in the real estate market last week. It was exchanged by the Clark syndicate, represented by H. P. Simmons, for the Grand Cloak store at the southwest corner of State and Adams streets.

GLICKMAN RENTS THE LOGAN VISTA; TERM OF 15 YEARS

Logan Vista apartments, which is now nearing completion and which will be the tallest building in the Logan Square district, has been leased by Bernard Edidin and Nathan S. Schoenbrod to Theodore A. Glickman, a hotel operator, for a gross term rental of $720,000. The structure is at the northwest corner of Kedzie boulevard and Wrightwood avenue, facing the square. It will open April 1. There are to be ninety furnished apartments of one, two and three rooms.

Humphrey & Barnes represented all parties in arranging the lease. The legal details were handled by Schoenbrod & Rosengard for the owners and Sidney J. Sabath for the lessee.

WORK TO BEGIN IN SPRING ON BIG TEN GOLF COURSE

Contracts for the construction of the eighteen hole golf course of the Big Ten Country club, which is limited to men who attended conference college, were let last week by Williams and Squiers, fiscal agents for the club, to the American Park Builders. Myron H. West, president, represented the park builders. Work on the course will start in the spring.

The club has secured through Williams & Squiers 135 acres fronting on the Dundee road four miles west of Glencoe and one and one-half miles east of Wheeling.

Chicago Realtor Plans Bridge for Island "Sab"

Edward J. Kloss, south side realtor, announces that he intends building a bridge connecting the island in Diamond lake, near Cassopolis, Mich., with the mainland. Following this step he states he will subdivide the entire forty-four acre island, with provision made for two large playgrounds and three swimming beaches.

ROSCOE STREET TO HAVE 6 STORY FLAT BUILDING

Design Will Be Italian Romanesque.

Roscoe street is where the building to be told about in these paragraphs will be located, which means that it'll be one of those tall affairs where they have elevators, mechanical refrigeration, radio connections already installed and other residential novelties known to the majority of us only by way of print.

And since the building will occupy a bit of ground on our gold coast, it won't be so plebeian as to have an ordinary name, but will take for its designation the numerals contained in its address—in this case 423.

The owner is the 423 Roscoe Street Building corporation and its development will consist of a six story building that will contain fifty-nine apartments of two, three, and four rooms. Some of the apartments may be furnished, while others will permit the prospective tenants to feather their own nests.

Italian Romanesque Design.

Raymond Gregori is the architect and his design is Italian Romanesque. The front elevation will be of dark red face brick with a generous use of Bedford stone for trim. The first floor exterior will be entirely of Bedford stone.

There are to be a lounge and a lobby on the main floor, where the present mode for things Spanish will find expression. What's an apartment house or hotel lounge now without its great fireplace? The owner of 423 Roscoe will go along with the rest, so there will be a fireplace and doubtless there'll be a model of a Spanish galleon to adorn it.

Will Have Arched Doors.

A feature of the apartments will be their arched doors. These constitute the latest wrinkle of what's what for flats, according to the authority of Philip Corper of Lackner, Butz & Co., which is underwriting a $355,000 bond issue on the project.

The site of the building lot is 50x166 feet and it is stated that the project will represent an investment of $535,000. The contractor is the Callner Construction company. Completion is scheduled for some time next summer.

Lease Hotel on Winthrop for 20 Years; Rent $428,000

Arthur S. Hayes and Glenn F. Warren have leased from Abe L. Himelblau, the Winthrop, 101 room hotel at 4940-42 Winthrop avenue. The lease is from May 1, 1927 to April 30, 1947 and the term rental is $428,000. The Chicago Trust company made a $120,000 loan for ten years at six per cent on the property.

AUSTIN CHURCH PLANS NEW HOME AT PINE AND OHIO

Congregationalists Start Drive for $59,000.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

REV. JAMES F. HERBERT.

Congregationalists in Austin will make a determined effort this week to make come true their dream of having one of the most attractive churches in the western part of the city. With a large part of the required cash in hand and a site owned outright, all that is required is $59,000—a sum that ought to be realized easily by the red-headed pastor and energetic real estate man who will lead the drive for it.

And, as it's practically assured that Chicago is to have another house of worship, we may as well tell a little about it. First, it's to stand at the northeast corner of Pine avenue and Ohio street, on a site for which the members of the Austin Congregational church, the official name, paid $31,000.

For the physical aspects there is to be a Norman Gothic religious plant, designed by Emery Stanford Hall, Bisbee & Rhenisch, which will comprise three units. The most important, of course, will be the auditorium, which will have a seating capacity for 500. Then there will be a community house. The third unit will consist of a remodeled nine room residence which now occupies the site.

An Attractive Home.

The entire plant is to be constructed at one time, and it will have all the charm that goes with sloping steep roofs, half timber work, and a Norman Gothic tower. The exterior is to be of brick, with varicolored brick used about the doors, windows, etc., to bring a contrast. The interior will represent the Norman ideal, with exposed beams overhead. A balcony will have accommodations for sixty people.

The first floor of the main community house unit will contain the pastor's study and office, a women's department parlor and assembly room, and a number of Sunday school rooms. On the second floor there will be a gymnasium measuring 64x42 feet, with a stage 24x29 feet. The seating capacity of the gymnasium will be 374. The interior will be of face brick.

The residence which is to be used for community purposes will be moved to the back of the lot, and it will be covered with a brick veneer. It's to contain rooms for Boy and Girl Scouts and other similar purposes, and a large kitchen.

Two Churches Unite.

The pastor of the church is the Rev. James F. Herbert, and Albert F. Keeney, one of the most prominent real estate men on the west side, will direct the drive for funds. Mr. Keeney will have 160 men and women organized into forty teams working under his guidance.

The Austin Congregational church was formed by the uniting of the First Congregational church of Austin and the Community Congregational church of Chicago on Jan. 1, 1925. The first named organization was formed in 1890. Its property at Midway and Waller was sold in November, 1925, for $40,000. The latter was formed in 1898 and its property at Laramie and Ferdinand was sold for $30,000. The Community church will be used until the new one is built.

The united church now has assets of $86,000, and the cost of its project will run from $145,000 to $150,000.

FARM AND GARDEN

Study Corn Borer on Native Heath, Is Experts' Plan

Research Work in Europe Will Benefit U. S. Farmers.

Below is the second of a series of articles on the European corn borer which will appear in this department during the next few weeks.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

One hundred thousand dollars are being raised by business men and bankers' associations to put the world's best scientists to work on a solution of the European corn borer.

Fifteen laboratories will be used at educational and investigational centers in the corn borer infested countries of southern Europe.

The $100,000 fund will be used to pay the costs of fellowships in European institutions and to find a permanent remedy for the greatest international crop plague.

Entomologists, bacteriologists, physiologists, and chemists will be started soon on a search for a germ, a bug, or a chemical poison that will eradicate or effectively keep the pest under control.

American and European scientists will coöperate on the common plague problem.

Scientific findings will be published immediately and circulated in the United States.

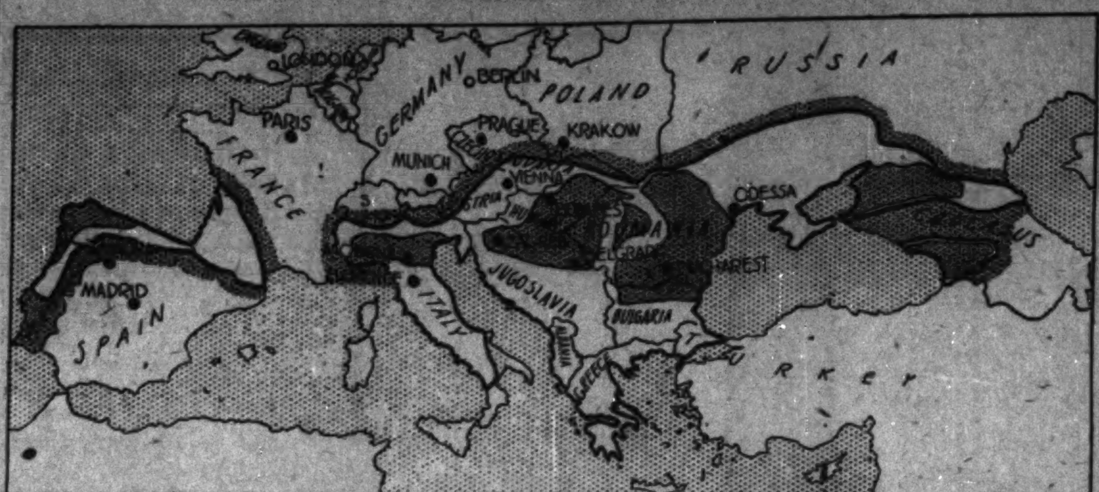
Business and financial representatives refuse to wait for the borer to get a firmer foothold in the corn belt; they want a permanent remedy for the crop parasite if it is to be found.

Since the world war the insect has spread at an alarming rate through Europe's corn, hemp, hops, cotton, millet, and broom corn fields.

The International Live Stock exposition's organization will administer the $100,000 investigational fund, which is being raised through the coöperation of the International European corn borer committee, under the direction of Dean C. F. Curtiss of the Iowa State college and G. I. Christie, director of Purdue university's agricultural experiment station.

Dr. Tage U. H. Ellinger of the international will direct the European search.

EUROPE'S BORER WARRING ZONE



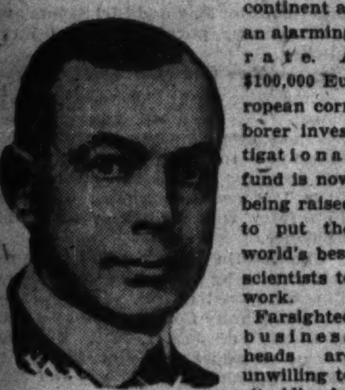
WHERE U. S. INVESTIGATORS ARE TO STUDY FOREIGN PEST—This map of southern Europe shows the area where the European corn borer is generally found attacking various kinds of crops from London, England, and Berlin, Germany south and from Spain east to the Caucasus country.

The dark shaded areas, centering in Hungary, show where corn is grown most extensively. The corn borer is causing heavy damage throughout these corn growing regions.

The black dots indicate centers where investigators from the United States will have laboratories to be used in studying the pest.

Business men and bankers are raising a fund of $100,000 to be spent in Europe for corn borer investigational work and fellowships. The fund is to be administered by the International Livestock exposition co-operating with the International European corn borer committee headed by Dean C. F. Curtiss, Ames, Ia.

WITH fortunes at stake in North America, big business men and bankers are pooling their money and men to find a permanent remedy for the European corn borer which is now sweeping across the continent at an alarming rate. A $100,000 European corn borer investigational fund is now being raised to put the world's best scientists to work.



G. I. CHRISTIE.

Farsighted business heads are unwilling to sit idly by and permit the determined insect to continue his march, multiply, and eventually destroy or seriously hamper the growing of one of the world's most essential crops. They are going to spend their money in trying to find a relatively inexpensive preventive rather than wait and have to pay the inevitable high price for a curative.

Through the coöperation of the International European corn borer committee and the International Live Stock exposition, banker associations, and business men's organizations are raising the fund which will be used to establish laboratories and offer fellowships to investigators in southern Europe, where the corn borer is taking a heavy annual toll in corn, hemp, hops, millet, cotton, broomcorn, and other important crops.

Research Work Undertaken.

Fifteen research laboratories will be established at various centers in the foreign corn borer infested regions. According to the preliminary plans worked out by Dean C. F. Curtiss, G. I. Christie of the corn borer committee and Dr. Tage U. H. Ellinger of the International Live Stock organization the work will be carried on at the following places in Europe: The University of Madrid, Spain; Pasteur institute, Paris, France; Institute for Agricultural Research, Paris, France; Federal Biological Institute, Berlin, Germany; the New Corn Borer laboratory, Germany; University of Florence, Italy; University of Portici, near Naples, Italy; University of Vienna, Austria; University of Prague, Czecho-Slovakia; University of Krakow, Poland; University of Budapest, Hungary; University of Bucharest, Roumania; University of Belgrade, Jugo-Slavia; University of Zagreb, Jugo-Slavia, and University of Odessa, Russia.

While a $10,000,000 federal appropriation is to be made available in the United States for use only in cleaning up crop waste that may harbor the pest, men fostering the move to raise the investigational fund say that it is important that investigations be made immediately in Europe to secure all possible information as to the habits and the activities of the insect and methods used to control the pest. They think it is important to encourage leading foreign scientists to coöperate in a study of the European corn borer and in the development of further methods for its eradication. It is their aim to bring together helpful information that will result in a new and more effective means of fighting the borer.

Need for Work Abroad.

It is pointed out that the experiment station workers in this country see the need of deeper study of the plague in Europe, where the United States department of agriculture has done little work. The federal department, it is said, is under serious limitations in the way of providing facilities for carrying on this work in a comprehensive manner.

TAGE U. H. ELLINGER.

The United States workers in foreign fields are not able to enter Russia at all, according to Dean Curtiss and Mr. Christie. It is evident that the work, if properly organized, will need to be financed from other sources, they say.

These agriculturists say that investigational work in this country has been practically confined to the field of entomology. There are in Europe some of the best scientists and scientific laboratories to be found in any part of the world. They believe that these men and facilities can be put to work with the $100,000 fund, so that a complete study of all phases of the borer problem can be made. This would call for the coöperation of bacteriologists, chemists, pathologists, as well as entomologists.

To do this the fund is being raised to finance a two year program. Three main kinds of work will be carried on under the personal direction of an investigator sent from the United States to correlate and direct the search.

Scientists must be able to work with the borers right out in the fields. The first step will be to study European farm practices under corn borer conditions—how foreign farmers grow crops in infested areas, and how they clean their fields.

Study of Parasites.

The second phase of the work will be to study the various parasites, particularly in Russia. This will be done to supplement the work now being done by the United States department of agriculture workers and all the material will be turned over to the federal department in this country.

Fellowships will be offered by the United States investigators to students in the universities and experiment stations in Spain, France, Italy, Germany, Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, Hungary, Jugo-Slavia, Roumania, Poland, and Russia. These fellowships will be offered to stimulate entomological, bacteriological, pathological, and chemical studies to see if there is some germ, bug or chemical that will destroy the Europeon corn borer.

Money will be set aside so that as soon as any helpful findings are made the results can be published immediately and circulated among American workers and farmers.

On Its Home Soil.

Specialists who have studied the borer say that it is necessary to carry on the research work in Europe instead of America because the pest is not to be found in large enough numbers and over a wide enough territory to make an intelligent study of it here in this country. In southern Europe the pest is to be found generally from London, England, and Berlin, Germany, south, and is especially thick in Europe's corn belts.

Ohio and Michigan are about the only places in this country where the borers are working in large numbers, under corn belt conditions, to be successfully used in practical research work. It would be dangerous to take the pest into noninfested states, such as Iowa, Missouri, or Nebraska, to carry on investigational work.

The European corn borer is no longer a pest that is of interest merely to a state, or even a country or nation. It is a serious international problem that must be solved through the coöperation not only of scientists, farmers, and business men but through the collective efforts of corn growing countries of the world.

Common Pest in Europe.

The corn borer has been a common pest in Europe for generations, but it is becoming more serious all the time. Foreign farmers were apparently successful in keeping the pest under control until the world war. The limited number of workers in the warring countries were unable properly to clean up their fields for several years, and consequently the pest has mutiplied in the neglected fields and spread at an alarming rate until it has wiped out several crops in the various localities of southern Europe.

Today, while the greatest of all crop pests spreads in both the United States and Canada, it continues to gnaw away at the principal European farm crops which go into the world's market places, affecting the prices of different grains.

The pest has farmers and scientists baffled in Europe, where a third as many acres of corn are grown as is produced in the United States. Not many farmers in this country stop to realize that Europe in 1925, for example, planted more than 33,000,000 acres of corn that averaged 22-bushels to the acre, while United States farmers grew a little over 100,000,000 acres of corn, averaging about 28 bushels to the acre.

Room to Roam Here.

Southern Europe's dozen or more corn areas strung from Spain to the Caucasus country produce as much corn in a year as a half dozen of the main corn belt states of the middle west, totaling as much as the aggregate bushelage of Iowa, Illinois, Missouri, Indiana, and Ohio.

Mr. Christie of the international corn borer committee says: "Further information on the European corn borer must be secured at an early date if farmers are to combat this insect in a successful way. There is a great need for investigation and research in order that practical methods, such as are now used against the Hessian fly, San Jose scale, chinch bugs, and other crop pests may be employed. The ultimate solution of the corn borer problem must come through scientific work."

The money now being raised through volunteer subscriptions of business men and bankers is to be administered by the International Live Stock exposition organization. Dr. Ellinger of that organization probably will be put in charge of the investigational work and laboratories in Europe.

With the interest in the borer increasing in Europe, it is expected that all countries affected will coöperate and welcome an opportunity to coördinate their efforts with United States workers. It will be the first time an international agricultural problem has ever been attacked by all the interested countries, agriculturists say.

Honor Bilt MODERN HOMES Sears, Roebuck and Co.

Skyscrapers are Ready-Cut Why Not Your HOME?

The Ready-Cut System Insures a Better and More Permanent Building

"Honor Bilt" homes are planned on the money-saving principle of skyscraper construction. All material is carefully cut and fitted at our mills before it is delivered on the job. In the building of skyscrapers every modern means of rigid, permanent construction is employed; every method to eliminate waste, to save time, material and labor is strictly enforced. The steel beams are ready-cut and swung into place; no confusion, cut-to-fit; the same as in our Ready-Cut "Honor Bilt" homes. Our Ready-Cut system saves the cost of skilled labor.

Solid Construction With Less Labor

The Ready-Cut system enables you to build at the lowest possible price. Only the highest principles of building construction of homes are rigidly followed, as recommended by the building code committee, Bureau of Standards, Dept. of Commerce, Washington, D. C. "Honor Bilt" homes embrace the best points of hand-cut frame construction, and in addition, save you from $500 to $2,000 on a permanent, substantial modern home. The cutting and fitting of the lumber and millwork is done in our factory by modern machinery instead of by old-fashioned hand saw method. Our successful method of construction insures a better and more permanent building and saves you money.

QUALITY

The lumber furnished for "Honor Bilt" homes is bright and new, fine, dry No. 1 framing, clear Cypress for outside finish, and clear siding. Expert mechanics, modern machinery and good materials insure perfectly made millwork. Oak, Birch, Fir, or Yellow Pine (as specified) for interior finish—the kind of material that will prove to be a little better than generally used in home construction.

37,500 "Honor Bilt" Homes Sold
24,500 Built by the Owners Themselves

"Honor Bilt" homes are easy to build. Every piece of ready-cut lumber is numbered to correspond with numbers marked on the plans, which we furnish free; the smallest pieces are bundled and marked so as to save time in locating. With each house we furnish a booklet which explains and illustrates the simple directions. We ship you all the material, for a complete house, including lumber, millwork, roofing, building paper, paint and varnish, hardware; also, plumbing, heating, and lighting fixtures. One order brings it all. We do not furnish masonry materials.

The Best Easy Payment Plan Low Interest Charge

All you require is a Building Lot and a little money to help pay some of the labor. You only need a building lot if you or your friends can do some of the work. Sears, Roebuck and Co. will sell you on easy payments all materials, and advance cash to pay for most of the labor, and give you a long time to pay. A small payment each month as you would pay rent makes you the owner of a good substantial modern home in a few years. Your interest becomes less each time you make a payment. Our EASY PAYMENT plan has enabled thousands of people to get out of the renters class and own their own home in a short time.

SATISFACTION GUARANTEED

We guarantee to furnish sufficient material to complete the house you select according to our plans and specifications. We guarantee safe delivery. We guarantee satisfaction or will return your money promptly, including freight charges. This guarantee is backed by our entire organization with a capital of over $100,000,000.00.

Patricia Becomes a Cog in the War Wheel

By Carey Orr

SYNOPSIS.

RICHARD MORTIMER and his friend, John Smith, are army officers graduated from West Point. Aaron Rath, also a West Pointer, is in the same regiment. The latter is at daggers' points with Richard, the enmity being of long standing. Years before Richard had thrashed Rath for a brutal assault on a chauffeur, Tony Amazzi.

Later Rath finds himself the rejected suitor of Patricia Marsden, to whom Richard becomes engaged after they have been kept apart through a misunderstanding brought about by Rath.

The scene is now laid in France. America has entered the world war. Richard leads an attack on a strongly fortified German machine gun nest, which he destroys. While rescuing one of his men Richard is severely wounded.

INSTALLMENT XII.

Strange Meeting.

BUT what of Patricia all this time? After all, it is the women, left behind, who bear the heaviest cross. The heartaches; the crumpled, tearstained handkerchiefs; the dread clutching at the heartstrings. . . .

It all came back to her so vividly now; the parting at the automobile; Richard's last tender words. For him it meant a new phase, the beginning of adventure; the bustle and glamour of the unknown. For her? A life of emptiness—alone with her thoughts. A watching of the newspapers; a feverish turning of the pages to the casualty lists; searching, yet afraid of finding the terrible news she dared not contemplate.

"If there were only something I could do." This was her constant thought. "Anything—anything to keep from thinking. . . ."

Yet what could she do? Surely there was something for a woman, a woman who would work her fingers to the bone if for no other reason than to keep down those hideous thoughts. . . .

It transpired that there was work for women to do; for women who would not scorn sacrifice, nor shun discomfort. Base hospitals, "somewhere in France," were understaffed. Nurses had their hands full. Other women, though unskilled in the profession, could take from skilled hands the thousand and one petty duties, leaving them free for more urgent work. Little duties that take up so much time; making beds, taking temperatures, arranging hot water bottles and ice bags, sterilizing dressings. In this way Patricia found a solution for her problem, a solace for the wound that pierced her heart.

On her way to the base she passed through Paris. What a contrast it presented! Gone the gayety, the bright colors, the laughter! Now it was a city of darkness, peopled by moles slinking stealthily through the streets, fearful of the death that might come any moment through the air. . . .

She worked hard, incredibly hard, twelve, fifteen or more hours a day. Sometimes there were nights when no sleep was to be had; nights when the staff worked feverishly, incessantly, continuously. There was no thought of self, only of the wounded who suffered and needed care.

From time to time she had had news of Richard, for he had written as regularly as conditions permitted. She looked forward to the coming of his letters as though her life depended upon it. Twice daily she went for her mail. When there was none she was afraid. Suppose his letters ceased to come? She knew what that would mean.

"Nothing for you today, Miss Marsden," the military tones were soft and kind. "Better luck tomorrow."

The prophecy was usually fulfilled. But there came the time when a week passed by, a week of grief and loneliness. Her heart sank.

Then an urgent call reached the base hospital. Reserves of nurses were to be hurried to the casualty clearing stations up near the Marne.

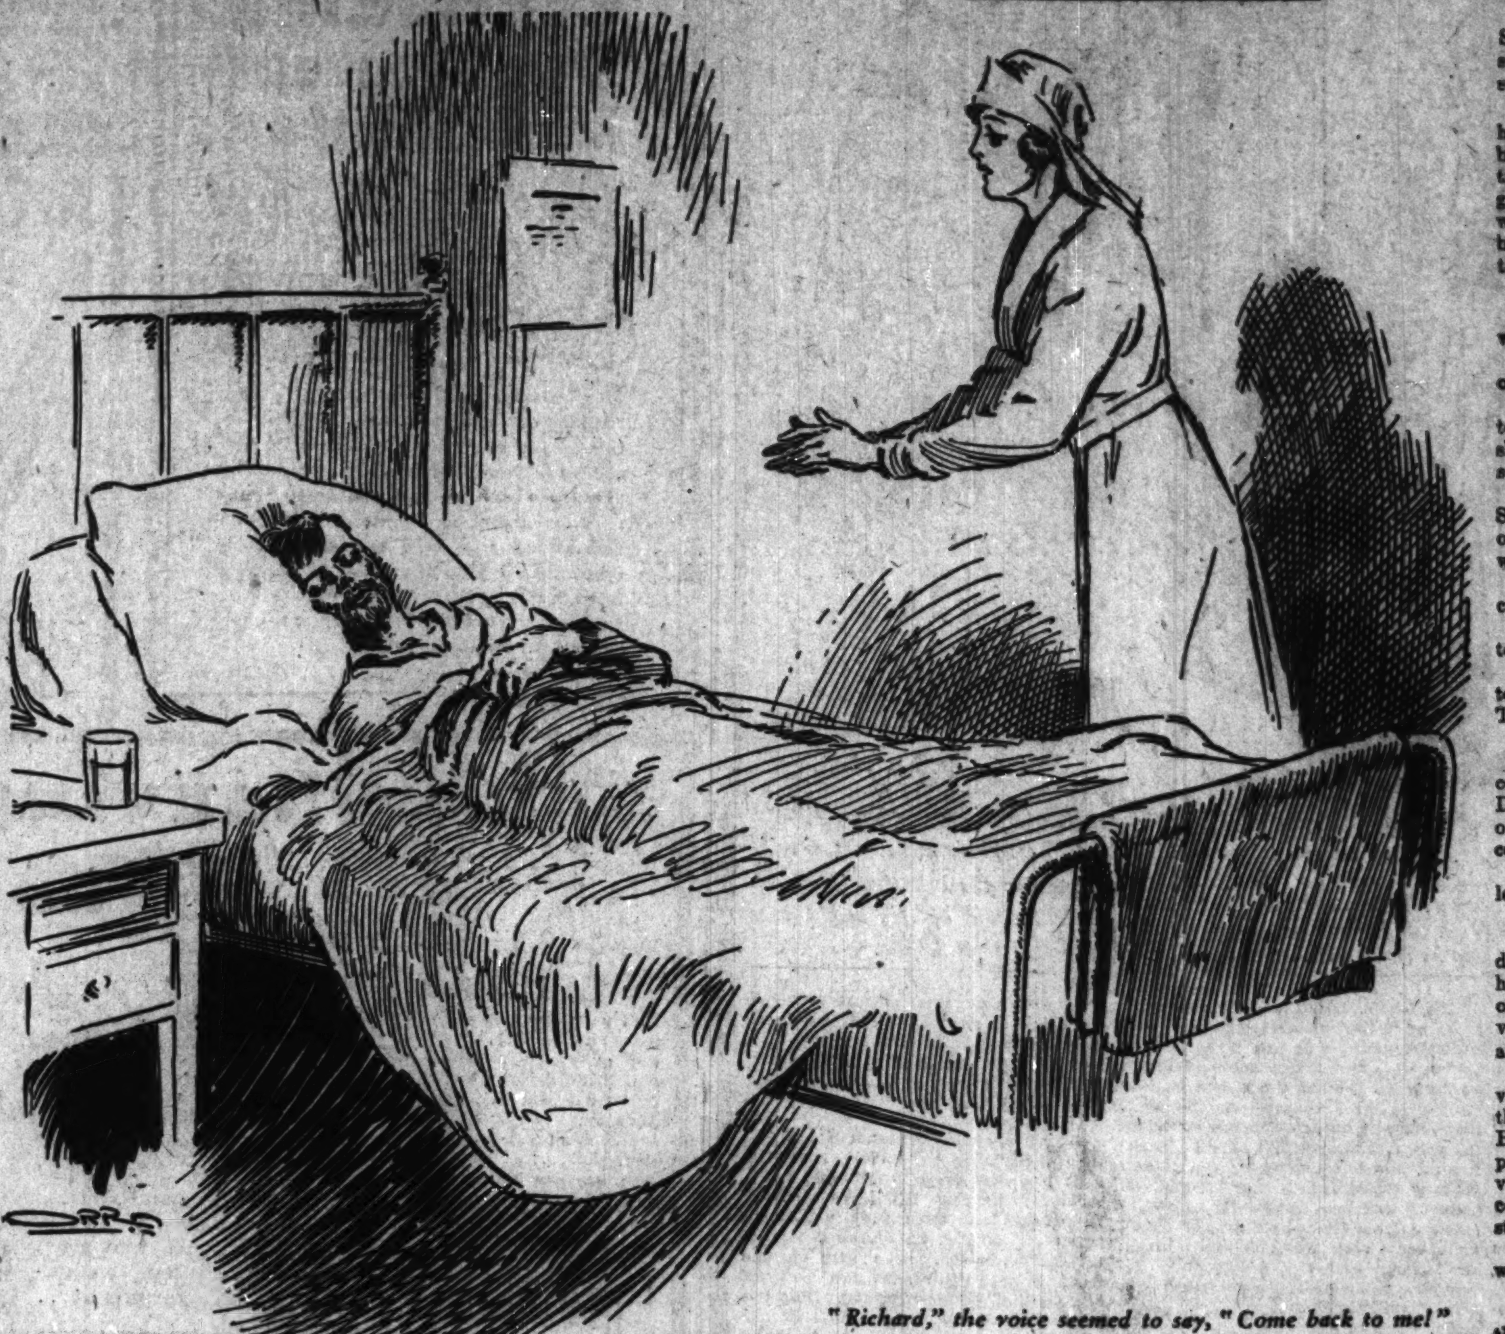
"You're on this detachment," Patricia was informed.

At this new place she found no time for brooding. She saw strange things. And she saw soldiers, once smart, neat, immaculate—now in rags, plastered with mud and blood that caked on hastily contrived bandages. Hard as she had worked before, the other seemed child's play to what now fell to her lot. Men came through in streams, some of them from Richard's division. For a long time nobody seemed to know anything. Then, in answer to her eager and incessant questioning, a man volunteered some information.

"Cap'n Mortimer? Les'see! . . . Sure. . . . C company, wasn't he? Pretty near wiped out, I heard."

Patricia turned as cold as ice when she heard the words. Her anxiety over the uncertain was turned to anguish at the certain. "Wiped out!" O, God! She knew what that meant. Why had she asked the question? Surely better to have hoped in ignorance than to see hope shattered on the hard surface of the truth. . . .

Two days afterward a pale form lay on a cot in the adjacent ward. He would have been there before, but his condition had been too dangerous to permit of the journey. His trip down from the battalion aid post had been undertaken only after a delay of some days.



"Richard," the voice seemed to say, "Come back to me!"

A group of doctors stood round the form on the cot, and shook their heads gravely.

"It's touch and go with him. Gosh, that's a bad wound!"

"It's hard to understand how he could have lived through it all," said another.

"Enormous vitality," said the one who had first spoken. "Tremendous reserve. He may pull through yet."

All that care and attention could do was lavished on the wounded man. Skillful hands cut and probed, dressed, plugged and bandaged. The wound seemed to heal, but still the man gave no sign of the spark of returning consciousness. As the days went by the doctors became puzzled.

"We've done all we can," said a gray-haired surgeon. "It depends upon him now. His mind seems to be gone. I've had a case or two like this before, but it doesn't happen often in civil practice where a patient has friends and relatives to visit him. He just seems to lack a sense of recognition that would give him the will to live. Now he doesn't know anybody, doesn't seem to care whether he lives or not. If we could only get his wife, or his mother or somebody here, it'd make all the difference in the world. But it's no use talking about that when we're three thousand miles from home."

"No," said the other. "That's the hard part of it."

Patricia heard the words as she stood in the vestibule between the two wards.

"Poor fellow," she said to herself. "If only he had some relatives in France, or even in England. . . . It's terribly hard. . . ."

As she went back to her work the tears stood in her eyes. Try as she would to forget, the image of Richard persisted in rising up before her. And the more she endeavored to forget the harder it was for her. Always some little word, some gesture, some incident would bring him to mind. . . .

And at the end of the day, tired, worn out, she would kneel beside her cot. She would kneel, but she could not pray. Somehow the words would not come, only tears. She would have given anything to relieve her soul of the terrible weight upon it.

One evening, as she went off duty, the night nurse from the next ward called her in.

"Will you stay here for a few minutes?" she asked, "I want to run over to the quarters to make a telephone call."

Patricia nodded. She entered the ward, and spoke a cheery word or two to the men in the cots. Fine, brave boys they were; hurt, but uncomplaining. They all liked her. One made a grimace as he pointed to the next bed.

"That bird's hit pretty bad," he said. "Wonder who he is."

She shook her head softly and looked down at the unconscious form on the cot. There was something vaguely familiar in the streaked, emaciated face. Drawn and haggard were the features, partly distorted by a ten days' growth of beard. She looked closer. Then she knew. Strangely framed, strangely contorted was the face, but she knew it was the face of Richard. . . .

She wondered if she had cried out. It seemed as though her very soul had leaped into space.

"Dear God!" she breathed her unspoken prayer. "Give him back to me."

That evening Richard dreamed. Long ago the incessant beating of a huge drum had ceased. He heard it no longer. Now he seemed to be flying. A cool hand was laid on his, was drawing him upward. He seemed to be flying. Afar off there was a light, and a voice . . . a voice calling him. "Richard," the voice seemed to say, "come back to me." He knew then it was the voice of an angel.

Up and up he soared, higher and higher. He drew nearer the light and the voice seemed louder. He had almost reached it when he was aware of something barring his path, a tall, shadowy form . . . holding a bayonet. Ah! Yes! He knew now. It was that Hun . . . that cursed Hun . . . standing in his path . . . standing at the top of the shell hole . . . waiting with bayonet advanced. "I must get him out of the way, he muttered. "If only . . . I . . . could . . . get . . . up. Ha!" The man's face was near. He struck, and struggled forward again.

"Got you, you damned swine," he roared out, and sat up in bed, his arms waving wildly.

He sat there, wild-eyed, breathing hard.

The commotion caused a buzz of talk in the ward. The other soldiers held their breaths, awaiting developments.

Just then the night nurse came back. She took in the situation at a glance.

"Stay there," she said to Patricia. "I'll go for the doctor."

Then the mist cleared away from Richard's mind. He looked up, and there was recognition in his eyes. As he felt the soft touch of her cool hand on his forehead he tried to speak. But he only smiled, and sank back exhausted, for he was tired . . . very tired. . . .

When the doctor came in Richard was sleeping like a child.

"He'll live a long time yet," was the doctor's comment.

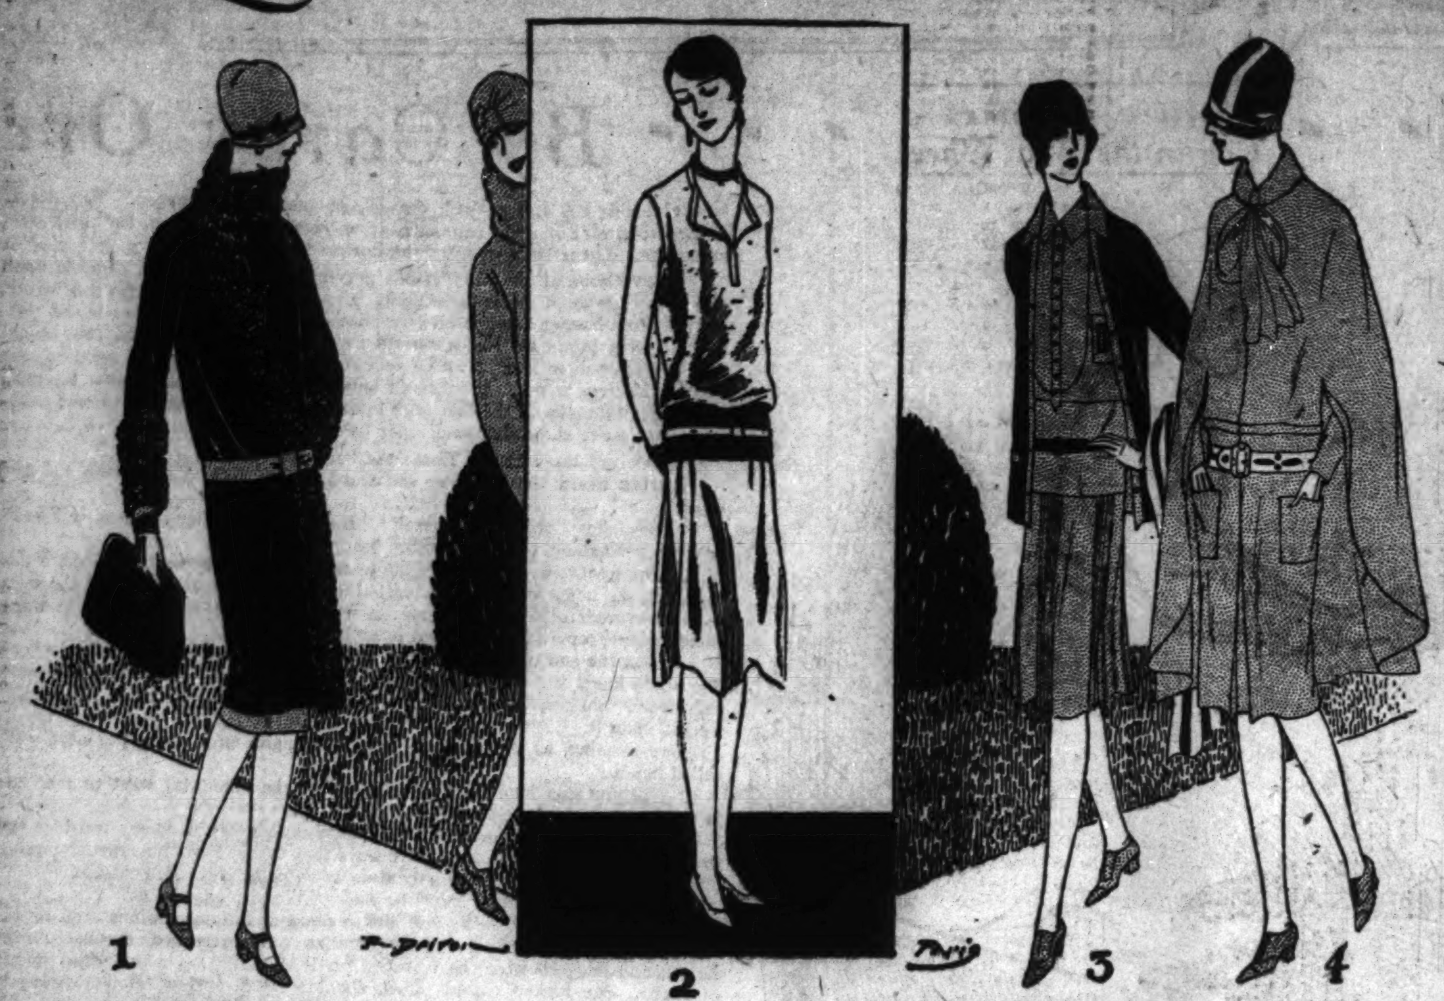
The Last Word in Paris Fashions



1. A belt of green suede with green and black buckle acts as an aid to chic on this black broadcloth and astrakan coat.

2. The wide belt of black velvet and the narrow belt of gold lame give distinction to this evening frock of brown and gold lame.

3. Black angora tricot and bois du rose crepe de chine form this smart sports ensemble from Drecoll. The belt is of black cire leather with rose enamel buckle.

4. Two kinds and colors of calfskin form the belt that is an important detail of this bright blue cape-coat from Lucile.

Fashion Is Now Using the Belt Line as the One Direct Route to Chic

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Women are using the belt line these days as one easy route to chic. I was having tea the other day with an American friend just over, and full of interest in matters of chic, Parisian. It was her idea to make use of the belt line to bring part of her wardrobe up to the last minute cachet. A real live wire notion. She was wearing a frock of rose beige crêpe de chine, one of those plait and tuck models built on straight lines, the kind of frock that is never out of style. Also the kind of frock which needs some touch of just made accessory to give it distinction. She used the belt—one of those two inch belts of voilet moire, with a big half moon buckle of pearls. Et, voila! She was the last word in style. Nobody could take in her costume in one of those glances which get a line on every defect and renders a verdict of "Demodé." You couldn't overlook the belt line, which wasn't conspicuous, but certainly among those present. That belt was like the seven that replaces the six in the calendar, and brings the year up to date.

Lots of Parisiennes are using the belt treatment to make their costumes new with the New Year. Right now, between seasons, sensible women are not investing in new wardrobes, but rather, refurbishing the old to appear smart until the new spring styles are born and baptised, which is a good two months ahead. And the belt line is the best and simplest line of transport. Beltless dresses, coats and ensembles are embellished with one, two or even three belts. Belts wide and belts narrow. Belts of silk and belts of leather. Sometimes, but not too often, belts of calfskin or other flat, proletarian fur.

Molyneux says that belts in the costume of today are of the greatest importance. He, and most of the other Paris couturiers, advocate of the belt to bolster up the waning chic of mid-winter costumes.

The coat in most cases can be improved by the addition of a belt. Your belt needn't match your coat. In fact, in most cases it shouldn't. It should contrast, thus calling attention to itself as a feature of the garment. It is often the star attraction. If you will look at our first offering today you will see an excellent illustration of the effect of the belt. My friend, of the belt fixation, was very proud of this Vionnet coat and its belt arrangement. Analyzing the coat, it is one of those mixtures of black broadcloth and astrakan that have been seen before. Such coats have, in fact, formed an important part of mid-winter chic. But the myrtle green belt, with its buckle of green enamel and onyx is a new touch. It matches the green felt hat and the green jersey frock that are worn with the black coat, making a spirited ensemble out of the whole. Another little touch to be noted is the cuff arrangement. The wide astrakan cuffs are placed above the wrists, and a tiny band of green suede worn around the wrists is thus visible. As for the rest of the coat, its collar and rever all in one arrangement is distinguished, and the fastening on the left side over the raglan seam of the sleeves is discreetly novel. This type of coat is dressy, as distinguished from the sports coat of tweed or other rough woolen. Both kinds, the sports and the dressy, are improved equally by the application of a belt of contrasting material, and, often, color.

The sports ensemble, which has a short cardigan jacket instead of a long coat, makes use of a belt on the dress part only. And this kind of ensemble is a dominant feature of sports clothes for the Riviera. The jumper dress has become a classic as admired and appropriate as a page out of Homer. And the cardigan jacket is joining the ranks of the immortals of sports apparel. It is the belt which is the little stranger, giving freshness and novelty to these two garments, as you see in our third model. This is one of the significant midseason models of Drecoll. The frock of bois du rose crêpe de chine has a skirt plaited in clusters, and a jumper blouse with a set-in gilet of self material buttoned down the front with silk covered buttons. A big breast pocket has a monogram of black, and the belt is of black iridescent leather with a buckle of rose enamel. The jacket is made of heavy black angora tricot banded and collared in rose, and a large scarf made of alternating stripes of rose crêpe de chine and black angora completes this fascinating little sports ensemble. The striking color contrast of this ensemble is a news item of interest, and the scarf is still another.

Where a sports costume has a full length coat, or cape coat, both the coat and the dress may have belts. At least the coat will have one. If there are two belts they will, nine times out of ten, be different in material and width. The belt on the frock is usually narrow, and made of silk or or undressed leather, while the belt on the coat is made of such leather as calfskin with or without its hair.

Belts are worn, too, to indicate waistline placements, which are both high and low. In our fourth model the waistline is placed neither high nor low, but at a point that is most often accentuated, a high hipline. This sports coat, in a bright navy kasha, was chosen by my friend because of its belt and its unusual cape sleeves to supply verve to the rest of her winter sports clothes. It has a tricky little collar of lapin degradée, shading from marron to white, and big ties of kasha. The belt, which lends so much charm to the coat, is in two tones of leather, matching the collar. There is a big buckle of wrought steel. A small but attractive detail is the tuck that is placed around the coat, indicating a normal waistline.

While belts are important on daytime clothes, it is on the evening frock that the belt is of most significance in bringing about chic. The narrow tailored belts with jeweled buckles which we saw so often a few weeks ago, are being replaced by wider and more impressive girdlers of the waistline. Our center sketch illustrates the smartest type of belt for evening clothes, and one which is not at all banal. This Yteb frock of brown and gold lamé was one of the models of outstanding cachet at the Reveillon gala at the Ritz under the patronage of the duchess of Vendomé. And I think that its belt, more than anything else, made it an enviable creation. There are, rather, two belts: a five inch straight band of black velvet and over it a narrow belt of gold with a small square, gold buckle. Another detail of interest is the sports neckline that is scarcely décolleté at all.

And so it is that Paris uses the belt to create a new line of chic for every kind of winter costume.

My Most Embarrassing Moment

The Tribune will pay $1 for every letter published on "The Most Embarrassing Moment of My Life." Address Embarrassing Moment, The Tribune, Chicago. Write on one side of the paper. No manuscripts returned.

Boarding House Manners.

I had been living in a boarding house for several months and often before using the silverware would wipe it with my napkin.

One day my friend, Mrs. T., invited me to her home to dinner. The table was perfectly appointed. When I sat down the first thing I did was pick up one of the solid silver forks and polish it with my napkin. My hostess appeared not to see what I did, but, was I embarrassed? That was three years ago and I am still blushing.

Mrs. L. J. N.

Poor Fish!

My mother sent me downtown last Monday and I, seeing some delicious looking fish, bought one. I boarded a street car and all went well until I wanted to get off. Being during rush hours getting off was more difficult than getting on. When I reached the platform after very much pushing everybody looked at me and started to laugh. Imagine my embarrassment when I noticed the fish, minus the paper in which it had been wrapped, under my arm. My face turned all colors of the rainbow.

A. K.

Between Neighbors.

A neighbor borrowed a loaf of bread from my mother and when she returned one of her own, she stayed to chat awhile.

I came in hungry and opened the bread box and took out the neighbor's loaf. I cut into it and remarked, "Well, mother, this is about the worst bread you ever baked."

R. O. P.

A Strange Greeting.

I worked in a doctor's office and when one patient's work was finished I used to put my head out the door and yell "Who's next?"

The other day I met my friend the doctor on the street and, instead of saying "Hello" or "Good morning," I shouted, "Who's next?" I was certainly embarrassed!

C. P.

Unseen Exchange.

I often dined with a close friend and in helping her with the work afterward had many a laugh at her expense for not possessing a rolling pin, although she was always threatening to buy one. We had never exchanged Christmas gifts, but I decided to have a little fun at the holiday meeting of our club and presented her with a rolling pin elaborately tied in tissue and ribbons. My most embarrassing moment occurred when she presented me with a set of silver knives and forks.

Mrs. J. McN.

Naughty Dolls!

I was on a shopping tour for an organization which was playing Good Fellow to some poor children Christmas. I chanced to meet my best lady with a friend of hers. During the introduction I shifted the package, containing three mamma dolls, from my right hand to my left and they all three said "Mamma" together. Can you beat it?

E. F. W.

"Miss America!"

This well remembered incident happened last summer, when I was visiting relatives in another town. I was alone on this fatal afternoon, waiting for some girls who were coming over to play bridge. I had made the purchase that morning of a loud black and white bathing suit. While waiting, I decided to try it on to show it to my friends.

It is the type of suit to put one in a frivolous state of mind, so I conceived the idea of making a "Miss America" banner over my shoulder. This done, I made up my face absurdly with exaggerated Cupid's bow lips, arched eyebrows, heavy lashes and brilliant rouge! This was all done hurriedly, so my friends would get the full effect, and I had just completed it when the doorbell rang.

I dashed downstairs and, to my embarrassment and to his horror, greeted the dignified minister whom I had met the previous Sunday. The liberal applications of rouge were entirely unnecessary as I took the book he had brought and stammered an apology for my appearance.

A. E. B.

Caught!

A good many years ago my little niece was quite ill, and the family physician called every evening.

This was during the last of April and early May. The evening of May first a great many little playmates came with May baskets. They would ring the bell or rap and run away, leaving the basket.

My niece said, "O, auntie, can't you catch the next one that comes before they can run away?"

I said I would try, and stood just back of the door.

In a few minutes came another little rap, and I opened the door and grabbed with both arms the very dignified elderly physician.

It was hard to tell which one of us was the more embarrassed.

BRIGHT SAYINGS of HUSBANDS & WIVES

The snappy comeback of the better half when cornered has often been a source of wonder to husbands and wives! The husband or the wife has come across with a bright saying that will never be forgotten by the other half of the matrimonial sketch. What was that bright saying, Mr.? Mrs.? Send it to us, and we'll pay you $1 for it if we print it. Address Bright Sayings of Husbands and Wives, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago.

Next Best Thing.

Hubby—Darling, did you sew that button on my coat?

Bride—No, sweetheart, I couldn't find a button, but it's all right. I sewed up the buttonhole.

Mrs. E. F. D.

No Instructions.

I remarked to my husband that a railroad crossing watchman said that women are better drivers than men.

Husband growled, "Why shouldn't they be? They've got nobody in the back seat giving them orders."

Mrs. M. G.

Past Tense.

They had been talking about death.

"When I pass away," said the wife to her husband, "I want you to engrave on my tombstone, 'There is perfect peace in Heaven.'"

The husband replied: "Would it not be better, dear, to write, 'There was perfect peace in Heaven'?"

L. F.

Fair Enough.

Hubby—I'll have you understand that my word is to be law in my home!

Wifey (sweetly)—Sure, dear, but I'll make amendments to suit myself!

H. A. C.

A Cheerful Outlook.

Mr. Bim—Why, your extravagance is terrible. When I die you'll have to beg for a living.

Mrs. Bim—Now I know why you're so stingy with me. You're training me for that time!

H. A. C.

Weary of It.

Husband: "The hand that rocks the cradle rules the world."

Wife: "Suppose you rule the world a while. I'm tired."

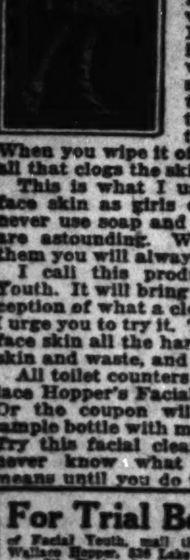
K. S.

More to the Point.

Husband—Ah, my dear, wouldn't you like to see me in a magnificent automobile?

Wife—You? I'd much rather see you on a humble water wagon.

Mrs. J. L. G.



What Girls In Paris Do

By Edna Wallace Hopper

I make yearly trips to France, and have done so for many years. Just to find the best aids to beauty and to youth.

There many able scientists give their lives to beauty study. And their results are known everywhere. I am trying to bring to American women the best ideas they develop. I want them for myself and for you.

One of the best ideas I found there is a way to clean the skin. It is a liquid which contains no animal, no vegetable grease. It cannot assimilate in any way with the skin. It simply penetrates the pores to the depths, then departs. When you wipe it off, all the grime, all that clogs the skin comes with it.

This is what I use to clean my face skin as girls do in Paris. I never use soap and water. Results are astounding. When you learn them you will always do as I do.

I call this product my Facial Youth. It will bring you a new conception of what a clean skin means. I urge you to try it. Take from your face skin all the hardened oil, dead skin and waste, and see the results.

All toilet counters sell Edna Wallace Hopper's Facial Youth at 75c. Or the coupon will bring you a sample bottle with my Beauty Book. Try this facial cleanser. You will never know what a clean skin means until you do that.

For Trial Bottle A-60 CT

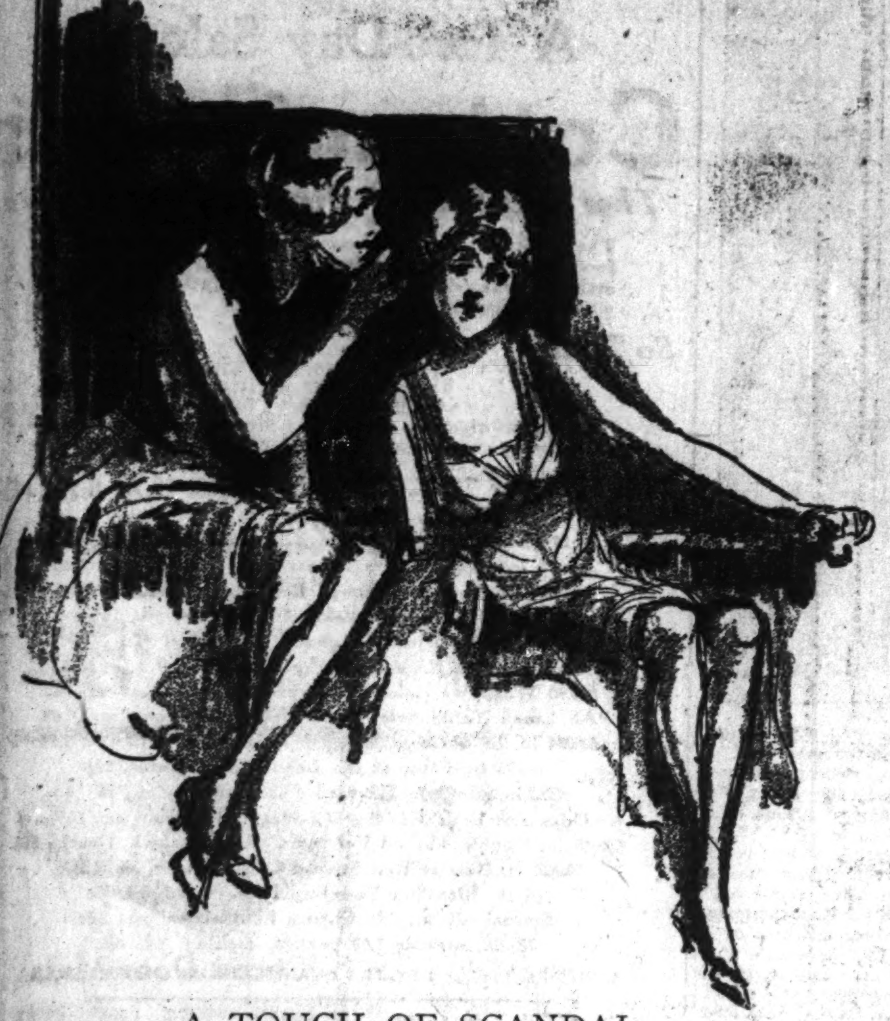
MAIDEN MEDITATIONS

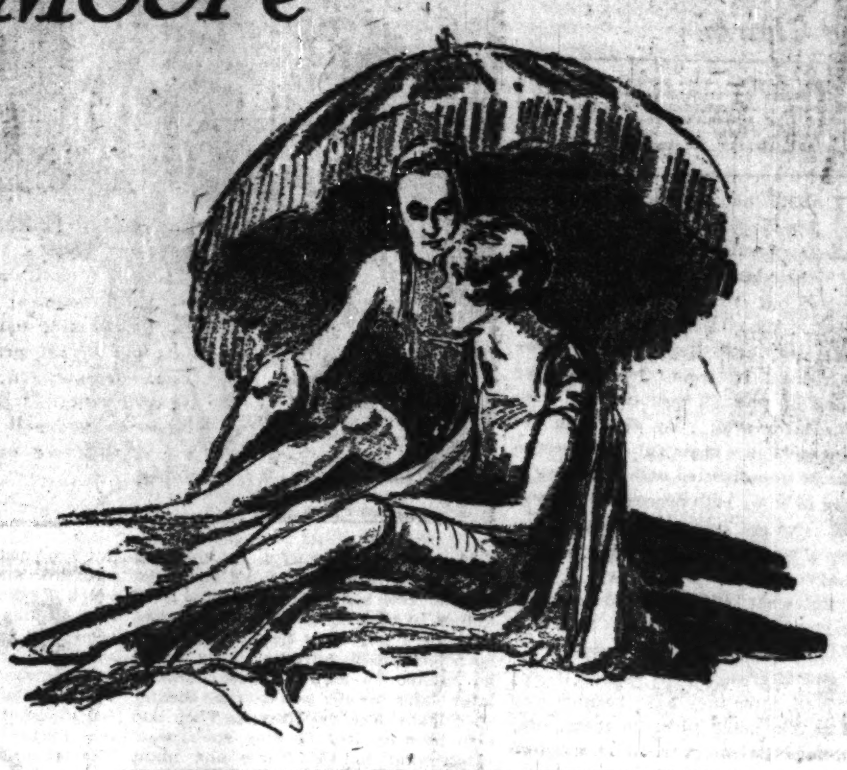
by Sara Moore



A TOUCH OF SCANDAL.
Now and—Then.

When little Emily once slipped,
'Way back in eighty-four,
They threw her out into the snow
And barred the homestead door.

In twenty-seven, Emmeline,
Who springs the trap of Cupid,
Is called a psychopathic case,
And simply labeled "Stupid."



SISTERS UNDER THE SUNBURN.
Miss Mamie Hickey's Shorthand Diary.

The debs are off to Florida,
Pursuing gay romance,
To swim, and loaf, and golf, and ride,
And dine, and flirt, and dance.
It costs, they say, one grand per week—
Six thousand in advance.

Romance is cheap at any price—
One pays it with a smile—
All find the husband hunting game
Takes wit, and nerve, and guile.
Warm sands, warm seas, the moon—in June,
Are free at Coney Isle.

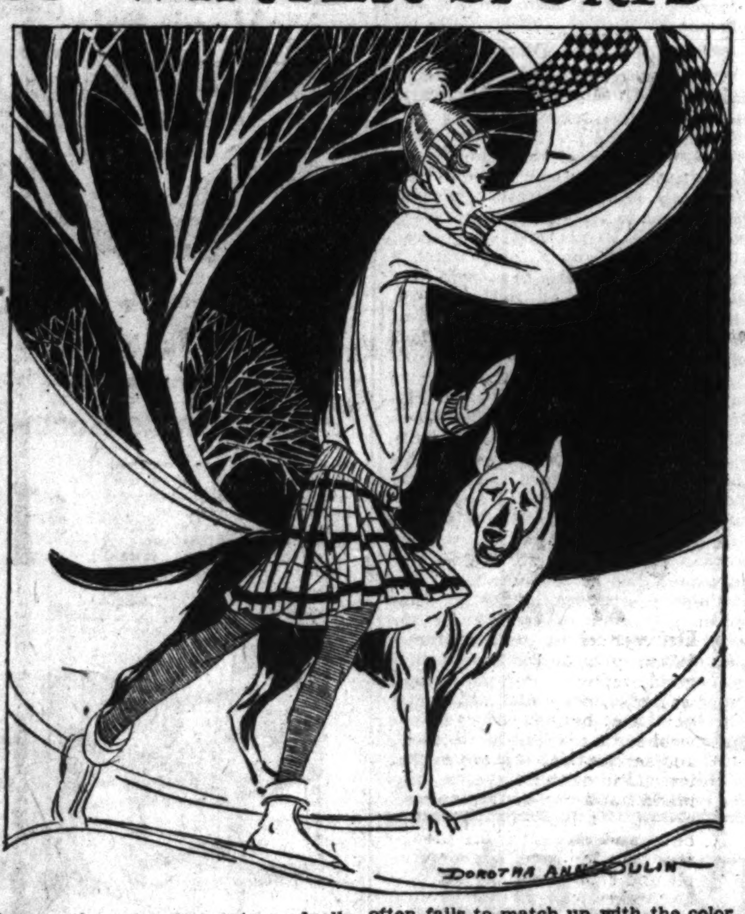
THE FUN OF WINTER SPORTS

by Antoinette Donnelly

The Sure Road to Health and Pleasure Is the One That Leads You Into the Country on a Cold, Invigorating Day



NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—The ice and snow of winter may not be popular with the group who prefer indoor sports, but their appearance brings joy to the devotees of outdoor games. Those who have felt their invigoration and stimulation anticipate with eagerness the fun in the out of doors which brings sparkling eyes and rosy cheeks.

Winter sports are important aids to health and beauty and should be indulged in by all who can possibly take part. Many of those who prefer staying indoors in cold weather and who are skeptical of the gains from outdoor exercise in winter are those whose recollections are that such indulgences resulted in cold feet, numbed fingers and nipped noses instead of the tang of cold air against the cheeks and the tingling of blood through increased circulation.

And there is a reason for such prejudices. These people have gone out unprepared for the cold, with the result that they experienced none of the pleasurable sensations and were punished by disagreeable results.

It is said that in order to be healthy at least two hours every day should be spent in the open air. As ever, I am an advocate of walking as the most delightful and healthful exercise and one in which all may indulge. Even the business woman can find time to spend the prescribed two hours in the open air by walking. Most of the hiking clubs keep up their weekly hikes, no matter what the weather may be and, although the distance covered is not so great as in other seasons, the hikers feel well repaid for their struggles on icy roads in snow and wind.

In walking it is advisable to start slowly, gradually increasing the speed to a brisk pace. A quick walk is much less tiring than a slow pace. Walking slowly hinders the circulation and produces fatigue, while a vigorous walk stimulates the circulation. An even pace maintains an even temperature.

The shoes worn for walking are of utmost importance and must be comfortable. Unless galoshes are worn the stockings should be of silk and wool mixture because of their absorbent qualities. Gloves should be warm and large enough to permit the fingers to move about freely. Woolen mittens or leather mittens lined with wool are the most satisfactory hand covering for extremely cold weather. A light weight pair of knickers of silk or silk wool should be worn. If the clothing is tight the circulation will be impeded and numb hands and feet will result.

Getting the Proper Outfit.

The proper style of garb for ice skating, ice hockey and skiing at present worn by girls and women consists of wool knickers, wool hose, a short mackinaw or wind breaker, wool scarf and cap. If a skirt is worn it should be short and full and bloomers or knickers should be worn underneath. Each of these sports demands it own particular style of footgear. This makes an exceedingly sensible and practical outfit for these sports, as well as for long hikes.

When coming into the house after vigorous exercise in the cold air the garments should not be flung off too quickly, that is unless they are wet. Remove the outer garments gradually and within a short time take a warm bath with slowly cooling water and give yourself a good brisk rub. If not convenient to bathe, take a brisk rubdown with a coarse towel or an alcohol rub. Put on a complete change of clothing, if possible.

I have taken it for granted that before exposing your face to the cold wind you have protected it with powder applied over a cream base. After you return to the house and after you have become accustomed again to the indoor temperature apply more cold cream, allow it to remain on about ten minutes, wipe off the excess and apply an astringent.

It is most important that the lips be protected, as the breath in the cold air settles on the lips and cracks will result unless an application of the proper sort of an emollient has been used. Many prefer camphor ice, others use plain vaseline, others ordinary uncolored lipstick or pomade. The colored lipstick with plenty of oil in it is satisfactory, except that when exercise has brought much color to the lips it quite often fails to match up with the color of the lipstick used. Many old and experienced hikers touch even the lobes of the ears with cold cream or vaseline as protection from frost nipping.

Do not wash the hands just before going into the open air. Apply cold cream, wipe off the excess and dust generously with talcum powder just before donning your gloves. If the hands become chilled and red apply a cold cream or hand lotion after removing the gloves.

For Cold Feet.

If the feet are cold and numb the shoes and stockings should be removed at once and the feet massaged briskly until the circulation is stimulated, then bathed in very cold water and dried with a coarse towel. A timely and wise precaution is not to come near heat shortly after coming in from the cold. Chilblains often result from bringing frosted hands and feet too near heat after exposure to severe cold.

If the eyes suffer from the glare of the sun on snow or ice, bathe them in a boric solution. The wearing of dark glasses during a hike when there is considerable glare for an extended time is a wise protection.

For those who do a great deal of brain work outdoor exercises which do not require any great competition are considered the best, as strenuous exercise with competition uses up the nerve force and hinders the action of the brain.

It is not advisable to exercise after a heavy meal, or when the stomach is empty. About an hour after a light meal and two hours after a heavy meal is the generally accepted rule.

If you become thirsty during a long hike, or while exercising, drink cool water and drink it slowly. It is better to take a drink of cool water just before starting to exercise.

It is hardly necessary for me to say that there should be regularity in exercise to be effective. If skating cannot be indulged in daily, a long brisk walk should be substituted, but the same length of time daily should be spent in the open air.

When You're Tired.

If you stop to rest during a long walk rest standing, not sitting, and if you go indoors remove your outer garment and keep it off until you are ready to start out again. If you become hungry have a cup of hot chocolate, or some bouillon, or nibble a piece of milk chocolate. Professional hikers generally nibble chocolate along the way if hungry, preferring to wait until the end of the hike for even a hot drink.

Exercise in the open air induces deep breathing, develops the lungs, purifies the blood and gives the tissues the power to resist disease. This means fewer colds and the more serious complications arising from them. The number of winter sport enthusiasts is increasing yearly. People are beginning to understand that fewer colds result from exposure to cold and dampness than from digestive disturbances produced by winter overeating.

With winter well under way you have probably chosen and are enjoying some outdoor sport. If not, get in the swing. Take the proper precautions and join the army of red cheeked, sparkling eyed outdoor fans. You will be greatly rewarded.

Danger Lurks
Within Us

Have you ever considered that within our bodies lurks a danger just as great as contagion? Many disease germs enter the system with the food, and lodge in the stomach and intestinal tract, multiplying by millions—ready to strike down their victim at the first opportunity. They bring about system poisoning, professionally known as Toxaemia!

The symptoms are legion—a lazy, laggard feeling, sleepless nights, lack of appetite, headache, nerves on edge, constant fatigue—any one of them may be a sign of Toxaemia—a warning to drive out the poisons that are gradually ruining your health.

Partola cleanses the system, rids it of life-destroying poisons—sterilizes and disinfects the intestinal tract—ends constipation—and prevents Toxaemia.

Partola, put into mint-flavored tablets, contains laxative and antiseptic properties—without that "medicine taste"! Get Partola from your druggist today. At all good drug stores. Regular box, 30c—double size, 50c.

Strange Weddings

Have you ever seen a wedding so outlandish that it upset all your ideas of the traditional ceremony? Some marriages are foreign and quaint in their adherence to ancient customs; others are ultra modern in their haphazard speed and unconventionality. The Tribune would like to know the story of the strangest wedding you've ever seen. We will pay $1 for every letter published. Address: Strange Weddings, Chicago Tribune.

Deaf Mutes.

The strangest wedding I ever attended was a little over fifteen years ago. The principals were two well educated deaf people. They had been coached beforehand and signaled when to nod their heads at the proper moments. It seemed strange, indeed, to the little group of relatives and friends, that those most interested in the ceremoney heard nothing of it.

MRS. R. O. Y.

More Like a Tip.

My father being a clergyman, I witnessed many weddings, some of which were most strange.

Two couples came to our house one day. One wanted to get married and the other was to act as witnesses. After the wedding ceremonies were over the bridegroom wanted to pay the pastor, but he had no money, so he asked the bride, the best man, and the maid of honor for money. He got two dollars together. This he offered to the pastor and said, "You can keep the change."

E. S.

Taking Up a Collection.

The strangest wedding I ever saw was one which occurred in a foreign section of Chicago.

After the knot was tied, the bride and groom, with a hired orchestra or band, preceding them with a large cloth held by four people and a crowd of the couple's relatives in back, walked down the streets.

The music attracted everyone's attention, and money was thrown into the cloth by well wishers. This, no doubt, was used to help furnish the home.

A FRIEND IN NEED

by Sally Joy Brown

I want to be the medium through which the friends in deed and the friends in need may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy and you would gladly give it if you knew how to go about it. Write to me and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.

When information is wanted by mail, a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send articles to The Tribune but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

VICTIMS OF THE COLD WAVE.

WHEN zero weather strikes as it did in the last few days we don't need to be reminded that it brings suffering to many in the city. But I would like to remind you of many who were struck an unusually heavy blow during the cold snap. I mean the families that not only suffered from the cold but were burned out and have nothing now but whatever clothes they wore when they escaped the fire.

Some of these families face the emergency only—which is hard enough, when you think of what a task it is to equip a home and family with everything, even with plenty of money at your disposal. But many of these families face even worse difficulties. These are the ones which had more trouble than their means could meet even before this added trouble came.

In several cases there was sickness in the family and the parents were finding that expense more than they could meet. In other cases there hadn't been sufficient clothing and bedding to keep everybody warm, nor even food to eat. Now these troubles are made much worse. And, worst of all, there is the added expense of living in furnished rooms without any prospect of being able to get furniture together and lessen this expense.

Now, isn't that a situation where all of us can help? Extra clothing, bedding, or furniture that you don't need—anything you can give will be a wonderful help in this emergency. And the best part is that your help won't be temporary. The worst of such troubles as fires is the setback it gives the sufferers. By giving whatever you can spare promptly we can avoid that entirely, and, more than that, we can give them encouragement and inspiration that will help them wonderfully in the future. So, won't you write to me today telling me what you can give, so that before the week is out we can wipe out all this trouble for these families?

Offers Magazines.

"I have about a year's issues of Woman's Home Companion and Good Housekeeping I would like to dispose of. Any of your readers may have them.

MRS. H. D."

If you like these magazines, here's an opportunity to get a number of the older issues. We'll be glad to hear from any one interested.

Needs Washing Machine.

"I have been wondering if it would be possible for you to secure a washing machine for Mrs. B. She is a young widow with four children. She is a neat housekeeper but a frail little woman, and the washing is hard on her. It would help her immeasurably if you could secure for her a used washing machine of any description.

"C. P. P."

Perhaps your old washing machine has been replaced with a new electric one. This would be a mighty good way to dispose of it.

Asks for Scrap Book.

"Will you see if you can find me a scrap book in which I can paste pictures and magazine cutouts?

"MR. P."

Have you the scrap book Mr. P. wants? I know he'd get a great deal of pleasure out of it.

Your own hands
may endanger family health

This purifying toilet soap removes dirt—germs, too!

YOUR busy hands that must sweep, scrub, mop, dust—they can't avoid germs that may lurk on countless things you have to touch!

But after such work—for safety's sake—remove these germs before you touch your children or prepare food.

Health authorities say hands are among the chief carriers of sickness. See above list of 27 germ diseases hands may spread.

Surely, then, for greater protection, you—and every member of your family—will wash at all times—with the toilet soap that removes germs, as well as dirt.

So wonderful for complexion

Millions demand Lifebuoy for every toilet and bath purpose. They delight in its abundant, penetrating, quick-cleansing lather. They enjoy its mildness and purity that make complexions soft and smooth—radiantly healthy. They find it unexcelled as a deodorant, as a shampoo.

But above all, Lifebuoy helps protect against sickness. Its antiseptic lather removes germs!

You will learn to like its hygienic scent

Lifebuoy is so different from other toilet and bath soaps that even its scent is different.

Not a perfume, but a clean, pleasantly hygienic scent which proves Lifebuoy gives greater protection. Even before you've finished your first cake, you'll learn to love this cleanest of all soap scents, which quickly evaporates after rinsing.

Without its antiseptic, Lifebuoy would still be a wonderful toilet soap—but you wouldn't get its protection.

Like millions of others, once you form the Lifebuoy habit, you'll wonder how any other soap ever satisfied you.

Safer—yet costs no more

Lifebuoy costs no more—probably less—than the soap you now use—so the protection it gives you is actually free!

You can get Lifebuoy wherever soap is sold. You will know it by the red box and the cake—orange-red, the color of its pure palm-fruit oils. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

Mrs. A. W. Hood, 6842 So. Loomis St., says:

When my husband comes home from work or when the children come in from play, I never feel satisfied until they have had a good wash-up with Lifebuoy. Then I feel that they are safe against the germs that they have been picking up everywhere all day long. And Lifebuoy makes the skin so very soft and smooth. It lathers so nicely and smells so clean that we all like to use it. It's the only toilet and bath soap in our home.

MRS. A. W. HOOD, Chicago, Ill.

From all over the country come letters like this. Now, more than ever, millions are turning to Lifebuoy.

SPORTSMANSHIP IN MARRIAGE

If One Has a Sense of Fair Play One Doesn't Air One's Little Marital Squabbles in Public.

by Doris Blake

GEORGE HUNTER is one of the junior members of a large organization. When Imogene Hanley married him four years ago he was looked upon as a "comer." Ambitious, energetic, he warranted predictions for unusual success. The vice president of the concern took a liking to the young fellow, and in the course of events George and his wife were invited to the official's home. A return invitation was extended by the young couple and accepted. The social ball thus started rolling, and before long the young Hunters were accepted gladly into a wider circle, including the president and other high officials and their wives.

Before his marriage George was a bridge fan. He played for money, of course. It was his one passion, or vice, or whatever you'd call it. His losses, however, were never very disturbing. After his marriage he insisted upon his night out with the boys. Imogene hated cards, not from any moral scruples, but she thought it a waste of time, when you could be dancing or enjoying yourself in a manner more congenial to her. George's bridge evening then grew to be the occasion for a quarrel. It wasn't even a weekly event in George's life, but the mention of it was the signal for a squabble.

It so happened that one evening while the Hunters were out at the club with the president and his party, Imogene, who had not recovered from the "injustice" of George's last night's bridge game, burst forth at the table with a biting remark about her gambler husband.

"I'm going downtown tomorrow morning," she confided to the table at large, "and I'm going to buy myself the handsomest evening coat on the market. If George can lose at bridge I am entitled to the coat, am I not?"

"Every time he plays," she continued defiantly, "I'm going out next day on a clothes spree. And, believe me, I'll be the best dressed woman in the crowd before long."

The wife of the president, piqued perhaps at the prospect of being overshadowed by this younger woman, said to her husband on the way home: "That young Hunter must be going in pretty deep. It doesn't sound good to me if he's spending his money that way." And her husband agreed that it wasn't a good sign in a young man.

They Both Suffered.

The truth of the matter was that George's evenings with his old pals did not justify any such outbreak from Imogene. It was grossly unfair of her to put him in any such light with his "chief." It was an outburst of temper pure and simple and Imogene knew in her heart she was accusing George unjustly. Nevertheless, she spilled her story and it reacted to her own misfortune as well as George's. He did not get the promotion awarded shortly after that dinner. Nor did he get a chance at a second opportunity that arose with the death of a member of the concern about a year later. The president's wife didn't like Imogene after that ill timed threat of hers and she kept the prejudice against George alive, as a wife can, in her husband's mind.

The story is true, though the names are fictitious. And its moral is that weaknesses in any matrimonial concern should never be given publicity. If you want to weaken the credit and the reputation of any home firm, talk your home discord outside.

Because saints and angels are not often joined in wedlock on this human old earth there are times when home grievances, real or fancied, will arise and swell feelings to a dangerous high tide of emotion. Pique or pride add a pang to suffering, and, carried along by the torrent, the trouble is told aloud. Then mischief is afoot.

There is always the element of the unjust in recitals of domestic woes. Rarely is the true story told in all truth. Part of it is supressed. In search of the sweet consolation of sympathy the aggrieved forgets to relate the incendiary word that brought on the quarrel, or that added new fire to it, the intolerance of the complainant's own nature. That is why telling is unjust.

Silence Is Vital.

When a business firm is passing through a period of stress and storm confidences are carefuly guarded. To keep their troubles from being known outside is the chief aim. There is an esprit de corps that makes it highly disloyal to talk outside. Only thus can they weather the dark days and come out triumphant. In married life there is greater need of this form of loyalty. These is so much more at stake.

Half confidences are as dangerous as full ones, because the separate pieces stay in the memory of the listener and are easily put together when an occasion arises that calls for a completion of the story. Some persons will relate a home problem as the experience of a third person, but the deception is not worth the confidence in the safety of the alibi. Listeners have an uncanny way of putting these little sections together and solving the puzzle without asking questions.

There, is present in these recitals a desire for sympathy or advice, more often the former. No one has a right to accept sympathy unless he or she is willing to reveal the whole truth and nothing but the whole truth. And that, as I have said, is something human nature, swept by an emotional upheaval, seems incapable of telling. The sympathy earned is of no value. It simply exaggerates one's sense of hurt. It doesn't in any way lighten the grievance, so why seek it?

Hard to Give Advice.

Advice, under the circumstances, is just as valueless, because in these domestic problems outsiders cannot judge the honest merits of the case unless they know every circumstance of the home and are familiar with the real personality and characters of the two involved. Since personalities and characters are apt to change under moments of high pressure, who is qualified to advise correctly?

The husband or wife who adopts the martyr pose usually succeeds only in getting sympathy for the other half. If a man talks about what he has to put up with from his wife or the wife talks about her difficulties, your sympathy somehow goes direct to the one maligned.

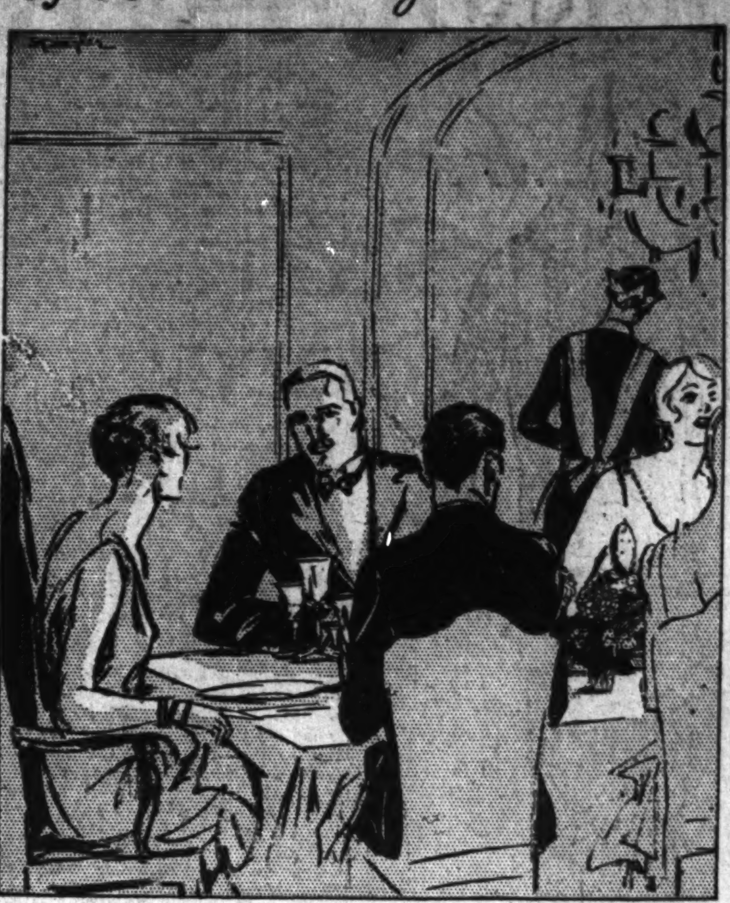
So, any angle from which you study this telling your home troubles outside proves an unpaying one—unless you are willing to tell it to the judge and he rewards your story with an alimony settlement. Until things get to this unbearable point keep your own counsel on your domestic difficulties. If the tight lipped policy were more generally adopted the divorce business would suffer a considerable slump, as the judges themselves would be willing to testify.

A Dinner Party for Ten

by Persis Standish

Mrs. Harry's Entertainment Was a Success Because the Hostess Had Spent Time and Thought on It Beforehand and Had Colored It with Her Own Originality and Charm

Persis Standish will answer questions of all kinds on etiquette, manners, and politeness. Self-addressed, stamped envelopes must accompany each request for information. Send your letters to Persis Standish, Sunday Department, Chicago Tribune.



HARRY had suggested that after the dinner party they were giving for Isabel they should take their guests to the opera or the theater, but Mrs. Harry said, "No, indeed!" When Mrs. Harry adds "indeed" to "no," Harry knows there is a reason. He usually waits to hear it, and he was not disappointed when Mrs. Harry said: "My dear, I'm not going to have a beautiful dinner eaten in haste and digested at leisure—we're going to enjoy both processes that evening. I've got hold of Mrs. Rush, and she's a wonder, and it's going to be a feast!"

"But what will you do to entertain them?" asked Harry.

"Feed them," was the reply.

"But afterward?"

"Well, after they have been as well fed as I'm going to make them, they will have the politeness to leave before breakfast!"

"Will there be enough room for the bridge tables, if they care to play?" asked Harry.

"Now, my dear," said Mrs. Harry in an ominous voice, "no bridge that particular evening! I'm inviting the Sterlings. They are both conversationalists, and I'm not going to have them stifled with bridge. Besides, neither they nor Mr. Budd, whom I have invited for Isabel, play bridge, and it would be rude to start such a thing when I've told them we are not going to play."

Then Mrs. Harry added with an especially wise look in her eyes, "Besides, I am providing the entertainment, and it's a surprise."

Harry Was Satisfied.

Harry went to the office content, knowing that Mrs. Harry would make it a "knockout."

On the afternoon of the party Isabel wanted to go to the kitchen for something, but Mrs. Harry said, "O, no; I'll go and get it, because the table is set, and I don't want you to see the decorations. They are especially for you, and it would spoil them for you tonight."

Isabel had a new gown of that peculiar marine blue which is the latest in evening shades, and, as Mrs. Harry was hostess, she was wearing her simple black chiffon with the gardenias.

She had been careful, in choosing her guests, to have them all congenial and at the same time not too well known to each other. The two couples who were her very best friends had been left out on purpose. They would be invited to a less formal dinner, later, and would go to the theater with Isabel and the Harrys. They had also been invited to dine each separately—that is, the Toms one night and the Bobs another—so that they could get really acquainted with Isabel.

But this party was for Isabel's special pleasure, and so the only married people present besides Harry and herself were to be the Sterlings, because everybody wanted to meet the Sterlings. Mrs. S. is enchanting, and he is reputed the best dancer and the wittiest man in the suburb where they live. Besides, Mrs. Sterling knew Isabel in school, just as Mrs. Harry did.

The rest of the ten guests were the cleverest and most attractive unmarrieds Mrs. Harry knew, including Mr. Budd, who, though quiet, is a coming architect and just the right sort to interest Isabel.

The table was decorated beautifully in the modern manner. Totally bare except for a long strip of shimmering silver cloth fringed at the ends, in the center was what seemed to be a miniature garden made of various forms of cactus and moss and interspersed with it—of all things—was maiden hair fern. On the borders of this bloomed four trees which proved to be four Chinese candles, carved and colored green and pink like blooming trees.

Unusual Place Cards.

The place cards were bits of silver paper on which either a fern or a small cactus had been pasted shortly before dinner and then kept fresh in the ice box until just before the guests sat down. As the service places and the tumblers and the wine glasses were all green glass, the effect was such as made the guests exclaim at its beauty. Before dinner a cocktail was served in the living room with small canapes, piping hot, of sardine paste and liver paste, just out of the oven.

There were, therefore, no hors d'oeuvres at the table, and in spite of her dislike for fruit first, except in summer, Mrs. Harry couldn't resist having a Spanish melon with nutmeg because it looked so well with the cacti, and, besides, tasted so well this time of year.

The soup was consommé with a slice of lemon and some of Mrs. Harry's precious sherry. Souffléd crackers and celery and radishes were served with it. Then there was crab meat without the usual cream sauce, but browned in the shell with butter, mustard and bread crumbs and a touch of onion juice. Delicious cucumbers, looking as though they had never been cut, came along with this, and small rolls of graham bread.

Next came a tenderloin of beef beautifully larded and roasted just enough —a pleasant change after all the fowl that flutter through the Christmastide. The tenderloin was accompanied by a sort of batter bread in the nature of a Yorkshire pudding only lighter, green asparagus tips fresh from the south, and egg-plant provencal for those who might just happen not to like the asparagus.

The salad was a treat for Harry—his favorite kind—for Mrs. Harry thought it wouldn't matter just which kind it was if it were neither sweet nor too heavy. So it was French endive, romaine, lettuce, and watercress all cut in small pieces and mixed well with a French dressing containing garlic. With the salad went one of Mrs. Harry's pet hobbies—tiny toasted sandwiches no wider than a finger, made of rye bread and brie cheese. Everyone spoke of them as new and delicious.

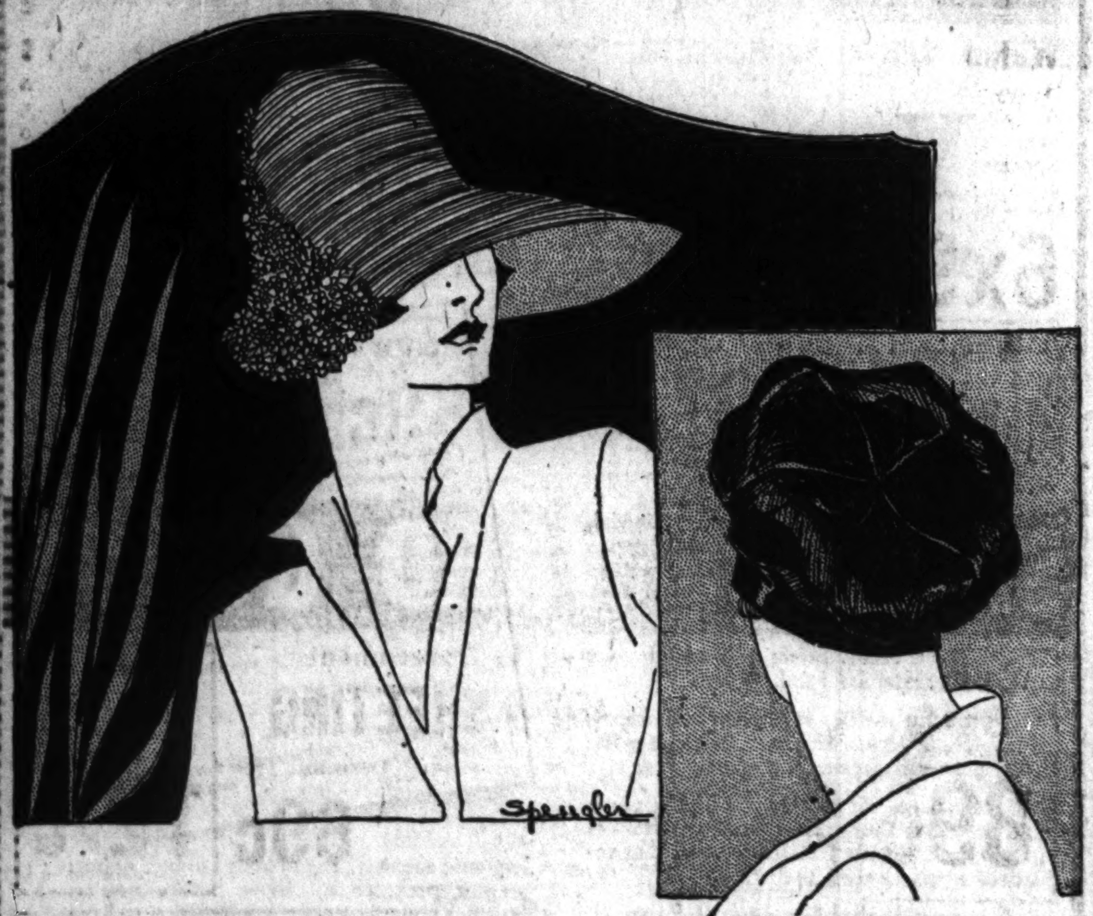
A Beautiful Dessert.

The dessert was beautiful. Mrs. Harry bought tiny toy wicker washbaskets at the ten cent store and weeks before the party silvered them with paint. They appeared lined with Galax leaves on a leaf covered tray containing beautiful fresh strawberries dressed in their own hulls. Each guest took a basket and was served with powdered sugar, and watched the hostess, who ate hers with her fingers; then they all followed suit. Dishes of delightful small cakes went 'round, too, and bon bons of various kinds.

After dinner coffee and a precious liqueur provided as Harry's surprise were served in the living room. When the conversation, so animated at table, began to die owing to the comfortable feeling of having dined, Mrs. Harry thought it time to provide her entertainment. From somewhere in the hall she produced a strange woman, tall and dark and plainly dressed and introduced her as Madame Cira. She was a soothsayer and by holding some object belonging to each guest she could tell each of his own character and predict events to come, as well as tell of those past. It was a most amusing performance and whether or not Mrs. Harry had helped her no one knew, but as a palmist or a soothsayer can be, she was a great feather in the wings of time, for before anyone realized it two o'clock had chimed.

PRACTICAL AND FANCY NEEDLEWORK

BY CLOTILDE



The Mushroom and the Beret Are Two Popular Hats of the Present Mode.

What is your sewing problem? Do you have trouble in following a pattern? Do you find difficulty in making a skirt hang evenly or making a sleeve that doesn't twist? If there is anything you would like to know about these or other problems of needlework write to Clotilde, The Tribune, Chicago, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope, if a personal reply is desired.

THERE is great difficulty this season in procuring millinery merchandise from the Italian market. Leghorns and Milans are so much worn by men that the importer much prefers to manufacture men's hats, as he does not have to go in for so many fancy shapes in crowns and brims, as are seen on women's hats. The large body hat is in strong favor both for southern and early summer wear. These hats are of Milan leghorn, Bangkok and Balibuntle, a fine woven straw, much like the panama hat, so popular a few years ago. Also large hair hats of all colors and shadings are good.

The hat in the cut is a violet hair body hat with bankings of a deeper shade of violets built up on the right side in back. Pearl gray, orchid.

Copenhagen blue and Gobelin blue, more familiar to us as old blue, will take the place of the soft flesh and bride's blush pink, so popular last season.

Large mushroom hats made of black satin and having facings of any of the light pastel shades are trimmed with a large metal rose on the right side of the brim and are very smart. The large Milan hat is in great demand at Palm Beach in black, navy blue, bright cherry red, all the soft wood shades, almond seed and jungle green. Little trimming is used on these hats. Velvet ribbon two inches wide, as near the color of the hat as possible, is brought around the bottom of the crown plain and finished off in the back with a tie strap of the same ribbon over both raw ends. A bunch of pearl grapes, having stems of rhinestones, is set in a ribbon band directly in front of the hat.

The other hat shown is called the beret hat, after the many cornered and sectioned hat worn by the clergy. This is made of five sections of black bengaline. A narrow bias band of the black satin finishes off the hat at the bottom. No trimming is used. Almost every household has a strong box of old family heirlooms, and this is the season to get them out and use them on the small smart hats—jeweled buttons, fancy pins, dress buckles, cameo pins—in fact, anything that has been hidden for years will dress up the modern hat.

Fight Colds

One of the world's largest laboratories developed an ideal way to fight colds. It combines a number of important discoveries. It is so efficient, so complete that we paid $1,000,000 for it.

The best helps known are combined in one tablet. It does all that is needed. It checks the cold, stops the fever and headache, opens the bowels, eliminates the poisons and tones the entire system.

It acts quickly. The cold usually ends in a day. It rarely gets started, even, if one takes these tablets promptly.

This method is called HILL'S. Its use has grown and grown until millions now employ it. Don't rely on lesser help. A cold is too important. And don't delay. Things will be very different tomorrow if you start HILL'S now. You will keep them ever ready after that.

Whiter!

yet no scrubbing —no boiling

THIS week hang out a whiter and a brighter wash,—and spare yourself the hard work of washday, as well.

Use Rinso—the granulated laundry soap. Even in hard water it whips at once into thick, creamy, lasting suds. And in these soapy Rinso suds, dirt and stains are loosened so they float off in the rinsing.

No hard rubbing. You don't need a washboard. No boiling to heat the kitchen and waste fuel. Now you just soak and rinse for a whiter wash.

Clothes last longer this gentle way. And hands don't get that washday look. Try Rinso next washday and see! It's so economical, because it's all you need—no chipped or bar soaps.

The makers of 30 leading washing machines say it's best in washers, too.

Gray Hair Tinted for 50¢

Why pay $10 to the hair dresser?

Don't throw your money away by needlessly paying from ten to fifteen dollars to a hairdresser to restore your gray, faded, or dingy hair to its youthful shade and lustre. Every woman can now immediately bring back the original color to her hair right in the privacy of her own home—for a few cents.

BROWNATONE, the one guaranteed harmless hair tint, in just five minutes, will transform gray or streaky hair to any beautiful shade that you favor. And there isn't the slightest danger of poisoning, which sometimes results from the harmful dyes used by many professionals. Just sit before your dressing table and brush BROWNATONE through the gray strands. Immediately the color will start to develop. Even your closest friends will be unable to detect that your hair is tinted.

BROWNATONE is so perfect—so precise in shade—so easy to apply—permeates gray hair in such a natural way—that without any previous experience, you are sure to obtain professional results.

They Say:

"I can recommend BROWNATONE in the highest terms. It is easily the best thing for the purpose that I ever used."—Mrs. C. E. Goodlet, Strother, S. C.

"I never found its equal for tinting hair and stopping hair from falling out. I have used BROWNATONE about ten years and can give it a 100 percent endorsement."—H. Buterbaugh, Commodore, Pa.

BROWNATONE is guaranteed harmless to hair, scalp or skin. It is so scientific in formula that self hair tinting treatments cannot be discovered in strongest lights—even in sunlight. It is the one bottle preparation that does not require the use of harmful peroxide, which must first be applied with many hair coloring preparations.

Test it for yourself. You will be amazed and delighted at the marvelous results you will so easily obtain. Any shade desired from two colors. (Blonde to Medium Brown), (Dark Brown to Black). Sold on Money Back Guarantee. At drug and toilet counters. Two sizes: 50c. and $1.50—the larger size containing five times as much.

Easy to Apply, Wonderful in Results

BROWNATONE penetrates all of the hair. It does not wash off—will not fade or rub because the hair absorbs it. Only one application is necessary. It permits waving, marcelling, curling, shampooing and is even unaffected by perspiration. Further applications needed only as new hair grows.

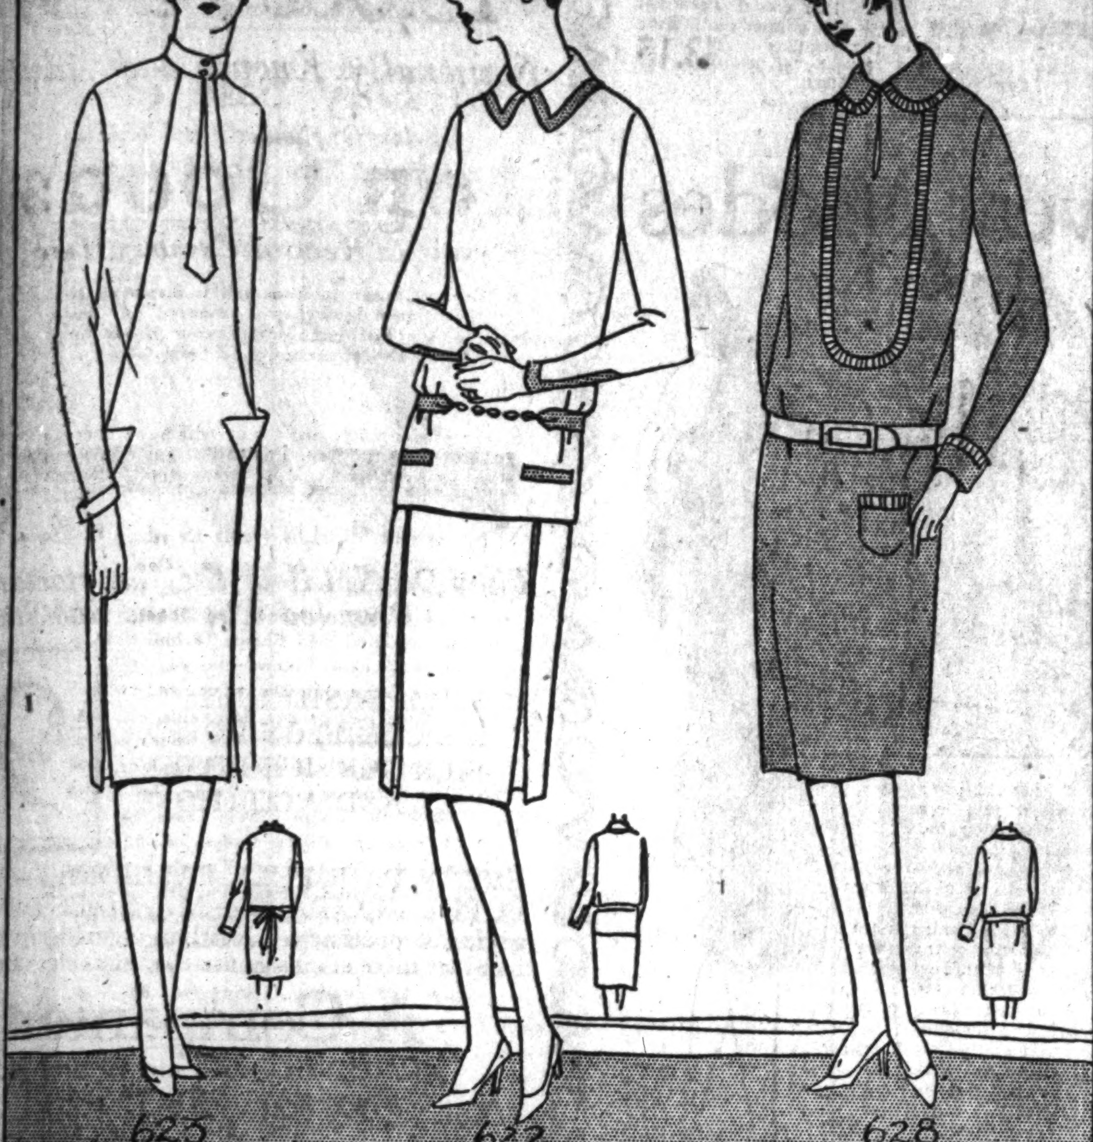
Patterns by Clotilde

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.; Copyright, 1927, by The Chicago Tribune.



623—Woman's dress. Sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 4¼ yards of 36 or 40 inch material.

622—Girl's dress. Sizes 10, 12, 14, and 16 years. Size 14 requires 4 yards of material 36 or 40 inches wide for the whole dress, or 2½ yards for the blouse and 1¾ yards for the skirt.

628—Woman's dress. Sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 4½ yards of 36 or 40 inch material.

HOW TO USE THE PATTERNS

THIS smart two piece dress, Pattern No. 622, is designed especially for the junior girl, and is suitable for many materials. Nothing is more popular now than this kind of a frock, and Pattern No. 622 is certain to be a popular one. One material may be used for blouse and skirt, or two—just as one fancies. Velveteen, using a small check for the blouse and the plain color for the skirt, will be smart. Or say a green velveteen for the blouse and one of the right shades of tan in kasha for the skirt. Or the heavier crêpes will make up prettily if you prefer using crêpe.

It is always a wise plan to pin a pattern carefully together and hold it up to the person for whom it is intended. You will get an accurate idea as to whether the length is right for you, and be sure to see that the sleeve length is right. For, while many women may have the same bust measure, there are sometimes variations.

The skirt is plain in the back, and on each side of the front there is a deep inverted plait. These allow freedom in walking and make it especially appropriate for sport wear. If the dress is made of crêpe the seams may be French seams, but if a heavier material is used they should be stitched, then bound separately and pressed open. Of course, the hem at the bottom is put in by hand.

The blouse is slashed down from the neck in the front and the edges are bound, the neck being finished with a pretty collar. A belt made of the blouse material is finished across the front with one of metal. But of course most girls prefer one of leather. Two small inset pockets on the lower part of the blouse and full length, close fitting sleeves complete this costume.

Pattern No. 623 is one of the straight line dresses that are becoming to slender and full figures as well. The frock illustrated is kind to the large figure because the lines both back and front are long, and in the front they are cut away from any suggestion of width. The novel shaped pockets give a pleasing finish to the inverted plaits, and these plaits give a graceful flare or ease when walking. A small standing collar, buttoned a little toward the left side of the front, finishes the neck, and the little inset vest of georgette adds to its attractiveness. The close fitting sleeves are finished with narrow cuffs, and while the entire dress can be made of one material, cuffs, collar, and pockets could be made of a contrasting color, matching the vest. Or, if the dress is all one color, some gayly colored embroidery on the pockets and cuffs would be charming.

Pattern No. 628 is a simple but smart design, and the chief feature is the braid trimming. Back and front are each cut in one piece and a deep yoke effect on the front is attained by the method of applying the braid. The slashed and bound opening in the front makes it possible to slip on and off over the head, and the round collar is finished with the braid, matching that on the front of the dress. The same braid also finishes the edges of the cuffs and the top of the pocket.

Beige kasha with brown braid would be effective for a dress of this kind. And the design is also suitable for any other of the lighter weight woolen dress materials. The heavier crêpes would also be lovely, and heavy lace insertion could be used instead of braid for trimming. A belt made of the dress material will look well, or a wide variety of belts can be found in the shops suitable for this kind of a dress.

Jealousy

We're all acquainted with jealousy, the monster that smashes love affairs, wrecks homes, causes business quarrels, and generally plays havoc with us mortals. We'd like to know your most notable experience with a jealous person or persons. If you have encountered a situation where jealousy led to a tragic or ridiculous climax, tell us about it. The Tribune will pay $1 for every story published. Address Jealousy Editor, Chicago Tribune.

A Smashed Romance.

Previous to my meeting the man I married, I was quite friendly with one of the boys from the office. After my engagement he started to go out with a little girl from the office and became engaged to her. About two weeks before my marriage, when every one in the office, including herself, knew I was planning on being married, this young man lent me his coat [It was a very cold day in January and I had a thin dress on.]. His sweetheart became so jealous and angry that she broke her engagement. That was two years ago, and as yet it has not been "patched" up." M. C.

Nice People!

Our lawn and garden are talked about and admired by everybody who passes the house. My cousin lives two doors away and nothing seems to thrive on her soil. She has exceptionally bad luck with her peonies.

Our peonies always bloomed large and beautiful, but last year they all turned brown.

Just a short time ago the little boy next door confessed to me that he had been paid to help my cousin's boy give each peony a drink of gasoline. It seems this is taking jealousy too far. L. K.

Wrecking a Home.

Have you ever seen a cat and dog engaged in a ferocious battle? If you have, you then know how my sister and I carry on when we two are together. These incidents happen in our everyday life.

My sister is the baby of our family circle and through her early life has been given all kinds of attention, which she just adores, while I was given most all of the work to do. Since just a few years ago have I been treated very well, and out of it has arisen a jealousy that I know will not cease. When I am given a few presents by my friends my sister always gets there when they are presented. Then a quarrel ensues which sometimes ends in my leaving the house to get away from my sister's terrible outbursts. If I do not do as she says, nor give her the best of treatment, she throws a few nearby articles to let me know she means business.

This and many other acts of jealousy have caused very much worry for my mother and is making her hair gray much sooner than it should, but the time will come when she will be unburdened of her trouble and worry, and my sister will then realize what a terrible mistake she has made. C. O.

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use for only 75 cents. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

SISTERS OF CHARITY HAVE PROVEN VALUE OF FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE

Used it with great success in Children's Home for Coughs and Colds and as a Body Builder

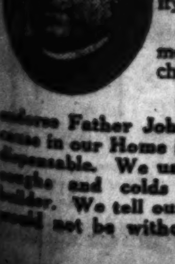
At the Children's Home in Newburyport, Mass., are many children under the loving care of the Sisters of Charity.

In a signed statement the Sister in charge states:

"We cheerfully endorse Father John's Medicine because in our Home it has become indispensable. We use it, not only for coughs and colds but also as a builder. We tell our friends that we would not be without it. We have used it with great success and find it to have no equal as a builder."

In many similar institutions throughout the country Father John's Medicine is depended upon by the nurses in charge to keep the children well and strong. They know, too, it is entirely safe because it is free from alcohol and harmful drugs.

Many similar letters of endorsement have been received from homes, hospitals, and other institutions. Father John's Medicine is a doctor's prescription that has been successfully used for colds and throat troubles and as a tonic and body builder for more than 70 years.



BEAUTY ANSWERS by Antoinette Donnelly

What's your beauty ill? Too fat? Too thin? Shy on hair? Oily hair, oily skin, freckles, pimples, or blackheads? Flat chested or flat footed? Write to me. I have a tonic, a diet, or a set of exercises for what ails you, and you're welcome to them and to all the advice I can give you. If you wish a personal reply, send a stamped, addressed envelope. Address Antoinette Donnelly, The Tribune, Chicago.

ESTHER H.: EYELASHES FREquently fall out as the result of eyestrain—reading in a poor light or doing too fine work. Bathe the eyelids in warm water.

R. E. C.: A PILLOW IS NOT NECessary for sleep. Many persons have discarded pillows, believing they tend to round shoulders. The head should not be inclined, but should lie flat. The bed clothing should not be too heavy, as this interferes with proper ventilation of the skin and blood.

W. J. D.: YOU HAD BETTER CONsult a skin specialist about the removal of the tattoo marks on your arms. If the marks are very deep, skin grafting is necessary.

H. B. F.: INSERT THE DENTAL floss with great care and the gums will not be injured and bleed. You must not use too much force in working it in between the teeth. No, toothpicks wouldn't be a good substitute as they are liable to injure the soft tissues surrounding the teeth.

MRS. L. D. A.: THE MOST EFfective work in teeth straightening is done between the sixth and twelfth years. If left until later years the work must be done slowly to prevent too much absorption of the bone, or the teeth will not again become tight. The teeth must be brushed carefully by the child. It would be well for you to supervise the brushing during the process. The dentist will watch the appliance carefully. It is the thing to do where a child's teeth are so uneven.

ETHEL M.: COLD WEATHER IS hard on a skin that is thin. It becomes dry and is liable to wrinkle and chap. Soap should be used sparingly. Use cleansing creams as much as possible. Rub the cream in generously and allow enough to remain on for the powder to adhere to. My booklet, "Care of the Skin," contains many valuable suggestions, and it may be had for a stamped addressed envelope.

H. B. C.: THE MOVIES SHOULD have no ill effect upon the eyes if we use judgment in choosing our location in the theater. Those who sit far down in front are liable to be uncomfortable owing to the closeness of the screen and the position in which the head must be held. There has been wonderful improvement in the screens, and in the lighting of the theaters. It is claimed the colored pictures are easier on the eyes than the black and white.

G. H. B.: STOCKINGS SHOULD never be too short as they are responsible for many ingrown toenails. Trim the nails straight across rather than shape them. Where one wears shoes that bind at the toe, the front of the toenail is pushed toward the little toe and the nail in time grows diagonally across the toe, causing ingrown toenails. The shape of the shoe must be changed to a broad toed one.

MRS. H.: THERE IS NO REASON why you should not sleep in the same room with your little girl. It is well, though, to sleep in separate beds. Be sure to have all the air possible in the room at night. Where the room is of large size there will be sufficient ventilation for both.

P. O. G.: THERE IS NO NEED OF an eye wash unless there is an eyestrain. At night after washing, apply a cloth which has been wrung out in warm water to the eyelids to release them from their set position. In the morning, repeat, using cold cloth.

VIC O.: TO HARDEN SOFT TISsues which are responsible for the fine lines around your eyes apply absorbent cotton which has been dipped in cold salt water, allowing it to remain on for ten minutes. Repeat several times during the day.

G. M. D.: TRY THESE EXERCISES for reducing the legs and hips: Stand with the feet together, hands on hips. With the left foot firmly planted on the ground, swing the right foot forward and backward five times, then sideward and back five times. Repeat with the other foot. Get a good standing position. With the hands on the hips, raise the right knee vigorously to form a right angle with the trunk, and at the same time stretch the toes downward and back. Repeat with the left leg. If you wish additional exercises send a stamped addressed envelope for them.

MRS. WM. H.: THERE IS ALWAYS the danger of infection from scratches. Treat them at once by cleansing with boiled water, and apply tincture of iodine.

E. G. J.: LACK OF VENTILATION in the shoe is said to be the principal cause of foot trouble such as yours. Patent leather shoes, rubber boots and rubbers exaggerate it. The feet should be washed each day and dried thoroughly. Once a week, after drying, apply a 25 per cent solution of aluminum chloride in distilled water. Apply with a sponge or a piece of absorbent cotton. Send a stamped, addressed envelope for my booklet, "Care of the Feet."

M. M.: TO CORRECT ROUND shoulders, learn to stand correctly. Stand with the abdomen drawn in, chest out, and think of your back as in a straight line from the waist to the head. Don't force the shoulders back. Let them fall naturally, with hands and arms relaxed. Try walking this way several times a day, for a period of ten to fifteen minutes each time.

A. B.: FALLING ARCHES MAKE the ankles weak, and send shooting pains up the legs. It is most important to have shoes that are properly fitted. Shoes must give support to the arches and plenty of room for the toes. For a stamped, addressed envelope you may have exercises for strengthening weak ankles.

ALICE H.: AN ITCHING SCALP is sometimes due to nervousness, and often to the presence of dandruff. In either case, keep the scalp thoroughly shampooed and brush it morning and night for five or ten minutes to liven the circulation. A formula for daily use to overcome the dandruff may be had for a stamped, addressed envelope.

O. H. B.: ROLLS AND BREAD are the same thing. Bread is the most fattening of all articles of food. Continue eating them in such large numbers and you'll pile on flesh. I'm sure you need my reducing instructions. Send along a stamped, addressed envelope for them.

J. P. F.: RUBBING THE GUMS with salt hardens and sweetens them. The tartar should be removed to prevent decay and keep the gums from receding. Daily care of the teeth is necessary. They should be washed in the morning and at night before going to bed, and if possible brushed after every meal.

R. H. W.: MEATS MAY BE INcluded in a reducing diet, but they must be lean meats. Avoid pork. If you really wish to reduce you will have to abstain from candy, sweets, bread, potatoes, rich gravies and creamed soups. Reducing by diet and exercise is the surest and safest way. I have exercises and diets in printed form and if you wish I'll send them to you on receipt of a stamped, addressed envelope.

Careless Washing Spoils the Hair

The simple hair styles of today make beautiful hair a necessity.

Luckily, beautiful hair is now easily obtained. It is simply a matter of shampooing.

Proper shampooing makes the hair soft and silky. It brings out all the real life and lustre, all the natural wave and color, and leaves it fresh looking, glossy and bright.

While your hair must have frequent and regular washing to keep it beautiful, it cannot stand the harsh effect of ordinary soaps. The free alkali in ordinary soaps soon dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it.

That is why discriminating women, everywhere, now use Mulsified Cocoanut Oil Shampoo. This clear, pure and entirely greaseless product brings out all the real beauty of the hair and cannot possibly injure.

Two or three teaspoonfuls is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather which cleanses thoroughly and rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

It leaves the hair soft and easy to manage and makes it fairly sparkle with new life, gloss and lustre.

You can get Mulsified Cocoanut Oil Shampoo at any drug store.

A four-ounce bottle lasts for months.

Wouldn't Your Family Just Welcome These WHOLE WHEAT MUFFINS?

How long since you have served whole wheat muffins? Everyone enjoys them so—and when they are made with Elam's 100% Whole Wheat Flour you couldn't serve anything more nutritious and healthful. Here's a dandy recipe:
2 tbsp. butter — 2½ cups Elam's Whole Wheat Flour
2 tbsp. sugar
1 egg well-beaten
4 level tps. baking powder
1½ cups milk — ½ tsp. salt
Beat sugar and butter until creamy. Add egg well beaten, then the milk; then flour, baking powder and salt. Bake 25 min. in hot oven.

Remember, the stone grinders at Elam's do nothing but grind the whole grain—rich heart and all. Every bit of the sun-ripened flavor—all of the nutriments—are inside the quaint rough paper sacks, distinctive with Elam. Always fresh ground at your dealer's. Freshen That Drawn, Sallow Complexion

How can faces look clear and fresh and youthful when pores are laden with days-old dust and dry oil and powder? They can't.

How can they glow with natural health and color when nature's life-giving blood never floods them? They can't.

Creams and soaps and costly treatments can not refresh and awaken tired complexions. They need a better cleansing, and a gentle stimulus. They need Calonite—a pure, white powder that you apply with a damp wash cloth.

Instantly, you feel the burdened pores relax as grime you didn't know was there, bubbles and dissolves; as warm reviving blood comes tingling to the surface. Blackheads, embedded oil and powder, dissolve. Sallow, oily, lifeless skin glows, clean and clear. Drawn, tired pores relax and breathe naturally. Instantly!

No waiting for Calonite's benefits. You see and feel them—instantly. How fresh and young and new your skin! How it responds to night cream and rest. How you enjoy this gentle, stimulating, facial cleanliness. You look and feel a different person.

Ask your druggist for Calonite. Try it, this very night. Your money back if not delighted.

THE TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

All recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Eddington with current market materials and are followed by her.

Young Meats, or Kitchenette Cuts, with Their Lighter Weights, Are Displacing the Older Roasting Meats.

By Jane Eddington.

"THERE was a tradition, some attempt to maintain it, graciousness, a kind of dignity—it might be the dignity of a roast sirloin of beef, but dignity it certainly was— . . ."—Gilbert Cannan.

The older generation of people did not call veal "baby" meat, we are thankful to say. And yet today yearling oxen and heifers, when they have been dressed and hung, are called "baby beef." It is not bad to have young turkey called squab turkey, but we would like to remonstrate against, or start a campaign to abolish, this term "baby," when used in this connection.

It is all to the good that we have such meat, however, and it ought to be to the advantage of those who raise beef when they get accommodated to it. There surely should be a more rapid turnover of their money. But when it comes to the technique of such questions, we are content to say we know nothing at all about it, and we believe that only experts can know, and, knowing, they cannot put what they know into a dozen paragraphs or so. It is a truly learned subject.

Roast Meat.

When a piece of meat was large enough to roast, according to the old practices, it was a joint. It was a piece of meat weighing many pounds, or, in more modern parlance, was a great cut, a side of meat in some cases, or even the whole carcass of a creature was roasted in great kitchens. The very essence of the idea of roast meat was expressed in such sentences as the following, which is typical of those to be found in scores of cook books: "A large piece is best for roasting, this being especially true of beef." The idea was that a small piece of meat would be all dried up in the process. But we of today have learned that it need not be. Moreover, we moderns can buy cuts identical with those which were so large—as far as shape and name are concerned—but many pounds less in weight. The kitchenette is given the credit for this revolution in one of our vastest industries.

But a few years ago—hardly a dozen—the young housekeeper despaired of trying to have a roast of meat, or of ever getting it used up if she did. Presently those who wish for the great roast of heavy meat may not be able to get such. In the older days roasting as little as a pound of meat had not been done. Now we know it can be done, if we will devote our common sense or reason to the matter. It could not be done on a spit before a great fire, but it can be done in our broiling ovens.

From the most primitive times, and wherever in the world meat is cooked in a primitive way, it is roasted before an open fire and the roasting effect and flavors are secured not only by the heat but by the full air, and the constant protection of the meat to prevent the loss of its juices by dipping hot fat [dripping] over it. Fine meat, clear red fire, open air, basting of fat, made the roast.

In opposition to this are baked meats cooked by reflected heat and not in the open air. Such meats need all the more to be basted because there is all the better opportunity for the moisture to be dried out of them, and air goes in the open door when it is opened for this purpose. But to cook them in moist heat is neither to roast nor bake them. This process is called braising when in the oven, and pot-roasting when in a kettle on top of the stove. Our grandmothers used to have ovens with gauze doors to let in the air for roasting meats.

The English Joint of Meat.

The revival of barbecuing with us, and traditions in England, will perhaps prevent the great roast of meat from altogether disappearing. For instance, in the city of Bristol, England, a man, in 1610, left money for an annual dinner in which a great deal of pork and pease pudding should be consumed. The income increased with the years, and the beneficiaries of that dinner, so for some reason the trustees substituted some beef for all pork, and L. A. Lathrop has described that beef as follows: "Four powerful waiters entered with a platter in which one might take a bath, and in the platter brownly grizzled that gigantic side of beef."

It is fun to see the great spit, still used on occasion, in the most famous kitchen almost in the world, at Oxford university, England. At some of their centuries old fairs the English do meat roasting on a colossal scale. And in many an old-fashioned English and American home, the world over, a roast must be a great piece of meat, or it is not a roast. There is a great deal of picturesque history connected with it all, which could be worth while to us if it gave interest to this food and eating business which, all too often, is the dullest of all necessary acts.

Meats have been given great meaning in times past, and the following statement was noted the other day in reference to a buffet supper given in Hollywood, Cal., where anything that is picturesque is worth doing: "Prominent among the refreshments on the long Spanish oaken table were several large prize baked hams from the Del Rio ranches in Chihuahua, decorated with the crest of the Del Rios." This is somewhat like the famous medallions and cameolike things put into bottles containing famous stuffs.

The Carving of Meats.

There has been great distinction as well as great practical attention associated with the carving of meat. A good chef in a dining car, where space is even a little more precious than in kitchenettes, so that one good roast of meat must yield the maximum number of cuts, ties up a great rib roast of beef as closely and completely as the best tied up Christmas present you perhaps would not try to roast at all, making a great number of perfect squares. Not an inch of the meat can then wriggle into awkward wastefulness.

Then after the cooking comes the cutting, and those who understand the art believe that the way a piece of meat is cut, both raw and after it is cooked, changes its flavor. Certainly rather poorly cooked meat seems to have a pleasanter flavor if beautifully carved, but we believe that a piece of meat can be so well cooked that any junklike piece of it will be delicious though the meat be nothing but the inexpensive beef shortrib.

Other Cares with Meats.

Few platters are large enough for a good sized turkey, or capon, or roast of beef, as we see them served often, and for that reason alone the carver is hampered in his work, and thrice hampered if the meat is garnished. People have been going to extremes once having got the idea of garnishing meat, not only with various vegetables but with fruits as well. When the platter is too small the cloth will suffer and so may the clothes of the carver, and even those of a guest. One of the commonest jokes of carving is about the likelihood that the whole piece of meat will land in the nearby lady's lap.

Though we may not pile our vegetables around the roast, great care has been observed in the days when such things were among the important amenities of life to have these vegetables adapted to each joint—and they were handed around. The handing around work means serving them as a dish, not in many little dishes as was once the mode, and by the time all the items have been handed around we have a "plate dinner."

Choosing Meats.

Any brief advice on the choosing, as on the roasting of meats, can but be superficial. The modern packing industry has standardized its business to such an extent that the individual does not have to be as intelligent as formerly, but probably the individual butcher of today knows far less about cutting up a piece of meat than did the butcher, or, at any rate, some of the butchers of the older day. Among the various objectionable things he will do is to pare off too much of the outer fat. The thrifty housekeeper pares her own chops and particularly does she pare her own roasts. After she has done so she can absolutely prevent them from contamination, and when the butcher does it on a block on which a chicken has just been drawn there is no preventing contamination. And then he slashes away regardless, without remembering or perhaps caring, that a good cover of fat on a roast keeps the lean from shrinking and protects its grain. It drips seasoning into it also in the cooking.

As to keeping meat from contamination by doing the paring at home, a number of things might be said. There are reasons why even a wet cloth is not a good thing to use in preparing a roast, paring a little being much wiser and safer. To wash meat as some New England cooks—perhaps the most of them—before putting it into the oven to roast was almost to insure toughness, because it both softened the meat and prevented the quick searing over which is so desirable. A basting of hot fat will roll right off a wet surface if that method is used.

There is a whole thesis on this subject of choosing meats. Observation from infancy up gives the soundest basis for a knowledge of the subject, as well as a true food culture. There are mangled pieces of meat, wilted meats, gangling cuts of meat that even an expert can do but little with, and because these cuts could be more profitably used in some other way.

Cooking Meats.

You cannot cook meats by any recipe, although a recipe can guide you in seasoning them and in other ways. The leading principle is founded on the fact that meat is quickly hardened by heat. Hardening the surface is well and good if that surface is not protected by fat. By protection we mean a cover that will keep the juices from escaping by evaporation. It is for this reason that this writing cook prefers to pour hot fat over a roast, especially one with cut lean surfaces, just before putting it into the oven. The crust that then quickly forms is not so stiff a one as one formed when it is put into the hottest kind of an oven at the start, and with care there need be no water in the pan under the roast, especially at the start. Later, when the conditions are harder to control, some water may be added to the fat in the pan to keep it from burning. When it is burned it is unfit for basting the meat, and there is no meat so savory as an immaculate piece of well basted meat. Flour put on at the start may also be burned in the pan, and so we favor putting it on for the end, if at all, and favor none at all.

By using the broiling oven, basting a small piece of beef, perhaps not more than a pound, raised on a wire stand out of the bottom of the pan, and having a long spoon and the right pan for ten minute basting, we may cook a pound or perhaps, better, a two pound piece of meat until it is practically well done and yet as juicy as the best slice of rare meat. Because of the constant basting the time must be much longer than otherwise, or about half an hour per pound of meat. Experience is the best and final guide, but experience comes only when careful attention is given to the doing.

Preparing Small Cuts of Meat for Roasting.

The immaculateness emphasized in preparing all meats is even more vital for a small cut than for a large, because a hateful flavor cannot be thinned down. A bit of rancid fat on the surface of the meat must be taken off or it will flavor the whole, to the lowering of its quality, and a bit of weathered lean may give an even more hateful flavor and so may a dirty end of bone.

After all these matters have been given attention then some attention to the shaping of the meat must come in. The skewers which are not bulky in size will help enormously in shaping a bit of meat and seem a little more sanitary than a piece of string. The rings in the end may also be of help when it comes to handling the roast, if it is necessary to turn it.

A Two Pound Short Rib Roast.

When this piece of meat has been trimmed so that wiping with a wet cloth has been avoided, pour over it two tablespoons of almost smoking hot salt pork fat with one tablespoon of butter. Cook it for one hour, basting it every fifteen minutes and putting a bit of boiling water in the pan if there is danger of burning the fat. If in the baking oven, have the oven at 450 degrees for fifteen minutes, and at 400 degrees for the rest of the time. Put salt into the basting liquid at the third basting and a bit more, later, if needed. Fruit waters may be used with the fat for the basting.

Acted Like Children.

"Dear Miss Blake: Recently while out with my boy friend we were fooling. I hit him and he hit me, hurting me. I got mad and wouldn't talk to him. I went home alone. Please tell me what to do, as I like him. SAD."

You acted like children, and bad ones, too. You started the trouble, but as a gentleman he shouldn't have slapped you regardless of the occasion or the provocation.

RED PEPPER FOR RHEUMATIC PAIN

Red Pepper Rub takes the "ouch" from sore, stiff, aching joints. It cannot hurt you, and it certainly stops that old rheumatism torture at once.

When you are suffering so you can hardly get around, just try Red Pepper Rub and you will have the quickest relief known. Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers. Just as soon as you apply Red Pepper Rub you will feel the tingling heat. In three minutes it warms the sore spot through and through. Pain and soreness are gone.

Ask any good druggist for a jar of Rowles Red Pepper Rub. Be sure to get the genuine, with the name Rowles on each package.

IF BACK HURTS FLUSH KIDNEYS

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulate them to their normal activity.

The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

Easy to digest?

Why, it melts in your mouth!

TAKE a little bite, or a big bite, of a fully ripe banana. The tasty, appetizing morsel will literally melt in your mouth—an indication of the extreme ease with which a ripe banana is digested.

To careful parents, it is a happy reassurance that the fruit their children like is one of the most easily digested foods they can eat.

It should be. For the ripening process does for the banana even more than cooking does for similar carbohydrates, or energy-producing foods. Even young children thrive on this wholesome, all-food fruit.

In winter or in summer, bananas are the safest all-purpose fruit you can buy. They soon ripen when kept in a warm room. They can be served as entrée, vegetable, salad, dessert or fruit. Surprise the family with a shortcake rich with the flavor of their favorite fruit.

VITAMIN-STARVED?

Everybody needs vitamins every day of life, but more so when Nature withholds the health-imparting rays of sunlight.

During the winter a child's diet should be enriched daily with Scott's Emulsion, rich in cod-liver oil vitamins.

Where there is a tendency to rickets, weak bones, unsound teeth, or there is susceptibility to winter ills—the cough and cold, its wealth of vitamin-nourishment is a wonderful help.

If vitamin-starved take Scott's Emulsion. It's cod-liver oil at its best; pure, palatable—easy to take.

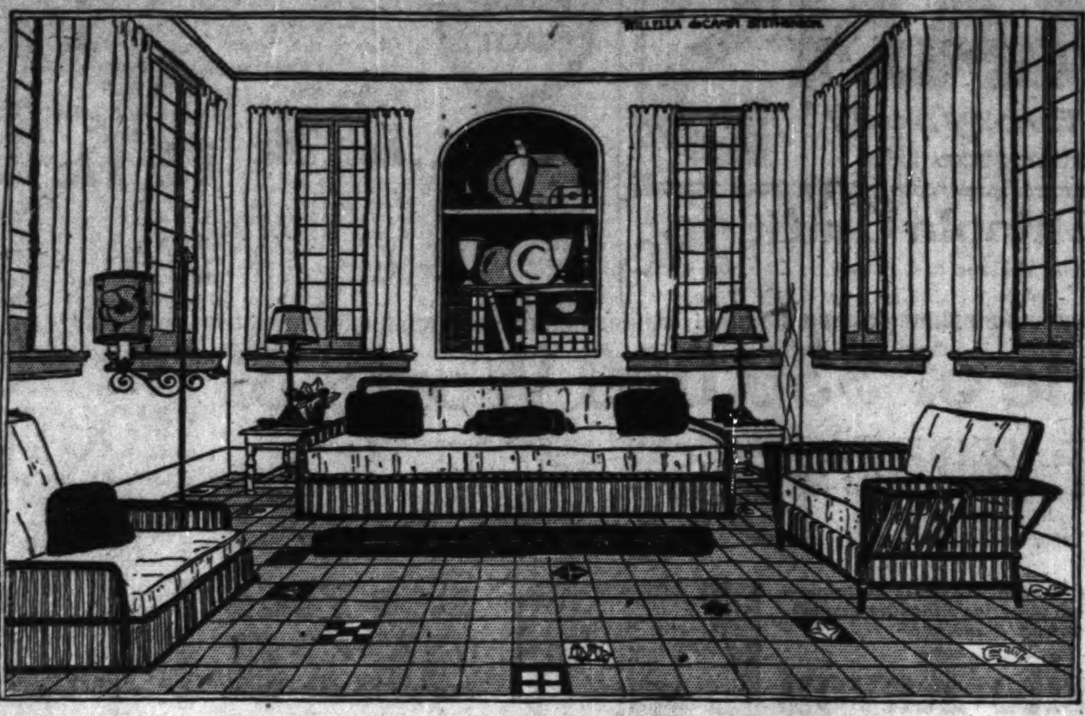
The HOME HARMONIOUS

By WillElla de Campi Stephenson

The Floor of a Room Is a Decorative Factor That Deserves Consideration.



This floor of cork tiles is decorated with insets of colored linoleum.

IN THE present day state of rush, we are liable to overlook the importance of the floor when planning our interiors. As the foundation of the room, it should be considered in the decorative scheme with as much careful study as is the selection of furniture, wall treatment, upholstery and draperies. The old Roman architects seem to have well understood the decorative value of the floor. We read in one book of the "mosaic pavement of the hall, which was cared for like a piece of silver." For a time we have let the consideration of the floor slip almost into oblivion, but thanks to a new and increasing appreciation of design and depth of color, we are rapidly coming to a realization of the importance of this section of the room as a decorative factor.

Many types of patterned floors include parquetry, tiling, stone and slate, cork, linoleum, and just plain painted wood. In our transitory state of moving from one place to another at intervals of two or three years, or even less, we do not, as a rule, care to expend great amounts on effective flooring. However, many interesting and delightful arrangements are possible with paints and linoleums. Marbleized rubber, too, is an excellent medium.

Fascinating in its floor effects is a small house in the city. The entrance hall floor is done in marbleized rubber composition, with an inset sunburst design in the center. It is copied from a French pattern. The field is black, with the points of the sunburst alternating in gold and green. A narrow border around the edge of the hall is done in gold color. Marbleized walls are a goldenly yellow and woodwork is black. A pair of black and gilt console tables have tops of heavy black glass. Each one holds a black and gold tole lamp, with a shade made of cloth-of-gold over jade green silk, bound at the edges with black velvet. A pair of old mirrors in black and gold frames hangs above the tables. The stairway is carpeted in black chenille. Gold colored silk gauze curtains a long window, placed half way up the stairs. The afternoon sun shines through it in a glorious glow.

Directly opposite the entrance door is a wide doorway opening into the living room. Here the floor is stained a deep peacock blue and waxed to a high polish. Woodwork is treated in the same manner. The walls are apricot plaster. Before a stone fireplace, at one end of the room, is a luxurious sofa upholstered in bronze mohair velvet. Seat cushions are down filled and extra pillows are covered with copper and black brocatelle in an Italian renaissance design.

A small table at each end of the sofa holds an Italian pottery lamp with a parchment shade decorated to match. Between the sofa and the fireplace stands a low wrought iron coffee table with a Spanish tile top.

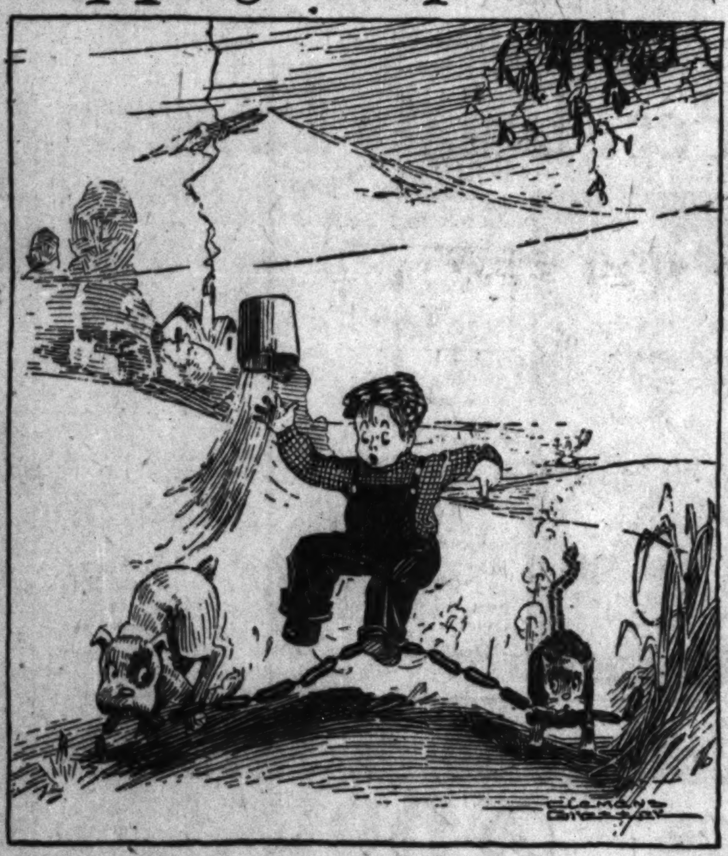
Open book shelves, mantel high, are built in at each side of the fireplace. They are stained deep blue to match the floor. Near the corners at each side are placed comfortable arm chairs, making, with the sofa, a friendly, conversational group. Bits of colorful pottery and wrought iron candlesticks with flame colored candles stand on top of the book shelves. At the other side of the room is a carved walnut grand piano. Its accompanying bench has a seat pad of black and gold striped silk. Beside it is a wrought iron lamp with a parchment shade, decorated with Italian motifs. Nearby stands a little love seat upholstered in deep plum colored velour, almost black. An end table beside it holds an Italian majolica box for cigarets, with an ash tray and candlestick to match. An arm chair at the other side of the piano is done in brown tapestry. Pale apricot colored silk gauze glass curtains match the walls. Draperies are of striped sunfast with a damask design in gold color on a ground of peacock blue, gold and black, with hairlines of flame. They hang straight to the floor from polychromed wrought iron poles.

The dining room floor is covered with an interesting new linoleum, designed in an irregular, slate-stone pattern, with lovely variations of tones. Walls and woodwork of soft ecru blend nicely with this floor. The furniture is walnut, with chair seats upholstered in brightly colored friezé. An old blue pottery bowl, filled with flowers, and four twisted candlesticks of the same ware, with tall, beeswax candles, are placed on the refectory table. Before two windows at each side of the buffet are tall. wrought iron stands, holding trailing ivy plants. Windows are curtained with ecru gauze and draperies are of hand blocked linen, in many colors on a natural ground. Wrought iron side lights are fitted with amber colored bulbs.

Adjacent to the dining room, and connected with the living room, too, by means of French doors, is the charming little sun room illustrated today. The delightful floor is of cork tiles, decorated at irregular intervals with insets of colored linoleum tiles in designs of ships, coats-of-arms, stars, and other geometric patterns. The furniture is of natural bent reed, trimmed with black, and fitted with down filled seat and back cushions. These are covered with jade green linen, piped with black.

All of the pieces are low and squatty, the davenport and one chair being set right on the floor, and not raised by any legs at all! Convenient low tables at each end of the davenport hold wrought iron lamps with octagonal parchment shades. In a niche between two windows a selection of colorful pottery is displayed. A few interesting books are kept on the bottom shelf. A pocket for papers and magazines is arranged in the arm of one chair. The other wide arm has a place for a glass or ash tray. A flat-topped desk and chair stand in one corner of the room. Completing the furnishings is a simple walnut radio cabinet. Natural casement cloth curtains are ornamented with narrow worsted fringe in many bright colors.

Hippity SKip Puzzle



Cat and Dog Make Off with the Lunch

By Clem.

OVER a hill back of Hannah's home trudged Hippity, carrying a pail of water and singing to himself. Of course, the birds and flowers could listen in if they wished. But he was really singing to himself. And why not? Then suddenly remembering the reason he was walking over a hill with a pail of water, Hippity began to move faster toward a huge walnut tree, where beneath its large branches a playhouse was laid out, with bricks and stones. Over in one corner a pile of rocks covered with a piece of tin formed a stove.

"I'll hurry up and start a fire so this water will be boiling when Hannah gets here with those frankforts." And, smacking his lips, Hippity began to pat the front of his overalls.

"Gosh, I'm hungry! I wish she would hurry!"

But it seemed that he wasn't the only one with an appetite. Suddenly behind him there was a rumbling sound reminding him of the four horsemen in a race. But after one look Hippity saw it was only Skip and a cat friend racing toward him. Then seeing Hannah coming in the distance, he started to run.

"Golly, here she comes and this water isn't boiling yet. I have to a—a—why, there goes our frankforts!"

Then he hit the ground with a thud. There in a daze Hippity sat and watched Skip and the cat and frankforts disappear over the hill. Every now and then Skip would give a tug at the frankforts. Then the cat would repeat the act, but in vain—they still held together.

So they kept on running, each wondering how long the other would hold out.

Hippity was still sitting in a daze as Hannah came up.

"O, those beasts; they stole all the frankforts the butcher gave me!"

Hippity got up as if he suddenly realized a fact.

"Did he give them to you?"

"Sure he did."

"He did? Well, I don't blame him—they sure were tough!"

Can you find the butcher, his cleaver, and Hannah?

Isn't It Odd?

By William Atherton Du Puy.

ISN'T it odd that the morning glory, seemingly innocent in its early blooming, should, as a matter of fact, come out at the time of day it does that it may avoid attack by enemies that might otherwise destroy it?

The ant tribe is the enemy of the morning glory. That flower has honey at the bottom of its cup, and the ants are honey eaters. If the morning glory were to bloom at noon the ants would scramble into its blossoms and gobble up this honey. In the early hours, however, when the dew is on the grass, the ants are not at work in the open. The morning glory may then do its blooming, and put up its shutters by the time its enemy is abroad.

The morning glory keeps its honey for its invited guests, the bees. It wants them to come visiting, for they are helpful to it. As a matter of fact, its very life depends upon their calls.

The fuzzy head of the bee gets all covered with pollen when it goes from one morning glory cup to another for its honey. It carries some of this pollen from one flower to another and shakes it off. This fertilizes each flower. Because of it the flower makes seed. It would not do so if the pollen were not carried from one flower to the other.

The ant, on the contrary, has no fuzzy head. It does not visit from flower to flower, as do the flying insects. All it wants is to get its bag full of honey and go back home. Knowing which, the morning glory opens its bloom when its friends are abroad and unwelcome visitors who can render it no service are still asleep.

There are other flowers that use this same principle, but in a different way. These are the night blooming flowers. They come out when it is dark because the wingless insects are not then abroad to steal honey. Neither are the bees abroad to carry pollen, for that matter. These night bloomers, however, do not depend on bees to bring them pollen, but on certain night moths. The night blooming cereus is such a flower. Most of these night bloomers have very strong and sweet odors. This is given out to let the moths know that supper is being served. They come, are fed, and cause the plant to bear seeds.

$5 Apiece for Bright Sayings

The Tribune will pay $5 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune, Chicago.

Richard came home from school and put on his old cap and coat to go coasting. But when little brother Tommy saw Richard's chums waiting outside he begged to go along.

Dick protested: "Aw, mother, I can't have any fun when he's along, and besides he'd have to go some to keep up with us fellas." X. A.

DEMAND PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

PROTECT Your Doctor and Yourself

SAY "PHILLIPS" to your druggist, or you may not get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years.

Refuse imitations of genuine "Phillips"

25-cent and 50-cent bottles contain full directions and uses.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

If Child Gets Sick, Cross, —Give this Fruity Laxative

Hurry, Mother,—look at tongue! Then give "California Fig Syrup." It can't harm children and they love it

Mother! Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign the little stomach, liver and bowels need a cleansing at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, remember, a gentle liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Fig Syrup" for children's ills; give a teaspoonful, and in a few hours all the foul waste, sour bile and fermenting food which is clogged in the bowels passes out of the system, and you have a well and playful child again. All children love this harmless, delicious, "fruity laxative," and it never fails to effect a good "inside cleansing." Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on the bottle.

Keep it handy in your home. A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup," then see that it is made by "The California Fig Syrup Company."

The Cheekiest Person I Ever Met

Send us a short, to the point, reminiscence of the cheekiest person you ever met, and we'll pay you $1 for it if we print it. All letters must be addressed to the Cheekiest Person Editor, The Tribune, Chicago.

A Tight Individual.

To entice holiday trade I sent out to regular customers a coupon which, when signed and brought to my store with one penny, would obtain an article small, to be sure, but always useful, and this time made of sterling silver.

As was my hope, nearly every such customer looked over my stock and gratefully made a purchase. But the cheekiest one threw down the signed coupon, took the gift with only a grunt, and hurried out without even paying the penny—and he a solid citizen. M. D.

You Don't Mean It!

The prize person for cheek is my boss. The other day he bought a dozen Christmas postcards and had me deliver them on my way home so as to save stamps! Mrs. F. R.

Tit for Tat.

I thought I had the most wonderful neighbor when I moved into a strange town and this one woman began bringing me back door treats. One day it would be a plate of cookies, another day some slices of cake or a dish of home made pickles. I was beginning to feel she was almost too kind in her attentions to me as a stranger, when she said one day: "I am so glad your husband is a doctor, because now I can just ask his advice any time and not send for our family physician because I think doctor's visits count up so quickly."

As she had six children, I could see where my husband might make a good many free trips. J. R.

Women Are Like That.

My neighbor had a flower garden and while calling one morning complained of the dogs destroying her plants.

As we owned a dog, I told her that I knew one could be annoying, but it was difficult to make my husband realize this. However, I said I would speak to him about the matter.

She turned on me furiously. "Now don't you say one word about your husband. He's the nicest man in town. I only wish you were half as nice." Mrs. C. W. I.

Rather Mercenary.

The cheekiest person I ever knew was a lady (we'll call her Mrs. B.) who invited my girl friend and I to visit her at her country home in Michigan. She said she was lonesome and she craved company. We decided to spend a week with her. One hour after arriving she had all arrangements made as to how much board we were to pay. She said she wouldn't charge as much as regular summer resorts, as she had no boats, etc. Of course, we were surprised, but let it go at that.

One day we walked to town and spent the afternoon shopping and visiting. On our way home it started to rain, not very much, but enough to make Mrs. B. decide that we simply must take a taxi, as she was wearing a silk dress that she didn't want to spoil. My friend and I wore simple wash dresses that a little rain couldn't harm. While waiting for the taxi two neighbors of her's came along and she insisted they ride with us. Well, before we started off she haggled with the driver; he made the price one dollar. When we neared home she asked my girl friend for the dollar, as she had no change. Mrs. B.'s friends thanked her very warmly for the ride and Mrs. B. said she was delighted to assist them, etc.

That evening before retiring Mrs. B. came into our room, saying, "O, I owe you girls some money." Thinking she meant the dollar, I almost fainted when she handed my friend 33 cents, her third of the fare. A. P.

Nerve.

Mother bought a pattern for a little boy's coat, intending to make my little brother a coat, but before she got to use it a neighbor, seeing it, asked to borrow it. Of course, mother gladly lent it.

Several months passed. Mother had all the material ready to make brother's coat, but no pattern.

Finally she wrote Mrs. ——— a letter, requesting her to return the pattern.

Immediately came the pattern, badly torn, and a note which read: "Mrs. ———: Here is your pattern. I lost the sleeve, but if you have any tissue paper you can cut another one." Mrs I. Z. C.

Home-made Remedy Stops Cough Quickly

Finest cough medicine you ever used. Family supply easily made. Saves about $2.

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for coughs, is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It's cheap, but for results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant—children like it.

Pour 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle; then fill it up with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or use clarified honey instead of sugar syrup, if desired. Thus you make a full pint—a family supply—but costing no more than a small bottle of ready-made cough syrup.

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly heals the membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops the annoying throat tickle, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid for bronchitis, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract and palatable guaiacol, famous for healing the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Cornelia Marsh was unconscious of the struggle and rush through subway, crowds and clanging station to the packed Jersey ferry, so absorbed was she in the dream of selling her scenario to Perfection Pictures. With the aid and encouragement of Henry Horner, head of the scenario department, this now seemed certain. A shrill voice interrupted her rosy speculations—"Say, Miss Marsh! What d'ya think of Mr. Horner's bein' fired" . . . ?

TO the outer world, the motion picture studio may be a whirl of luxury, gaiety and easy money. . . . But if you want a glimpse into the inner workings of a typical movie workshop to see the girls who answer the fan mail, the camera men, the cutters, the developers, the "atmosphere" people, and the actors, spend a few minutes every day reading this captivating romance.

STARRING DULCIE JAYNE

by Virginia Tracy - - -

A new Tribune serial—first installment TODAY and an installment in The Tribune every day thereafter!

VIRGINIA TRACY was born in New York City of parents well known on the stage at that time. Convent and dramatic art school in Chicago—then Miss Tracy at 18, too, became an actress. Some years later her stories of stage life began to appear in popular magazines. Then she says she "went quite simply mad about pictures," so she went to work for a large motion picture company and has written scenarios for several spectacular productions. Since then she has been a newspaper movie critic. Such varied and vivid experiences form a happy background for her new novel, "STARRING DULCIE JAYNE," which is being published serially in The Tribune. Start it TODAY!

Brilliant Season Faces Final Week

By Edward Moore.

It has come time to say farewell to the opera company for another season. As soon as the curtain falls next Saturday night, the last of its scenery, furniture, and accouterments will be loaded on an eastbound train headed for Boston.

As far as Chicago is concerned, the first five year term of the Civic Opera company now comes to an end. Next fall it will be starting again on a new term, bigger, brighter, and better than ever, with a new and larger guaranty fund already subscribed, and a new opera house in the offing to be listed among future prospects.

But though Chicago's share in the company will be ended about 11 o'clock next Saturday night, the company is a long way from being through with operatic activities. It is going to Boston for a brief term, then here and there west and south to sixteen other communities, with Texas the farthest point on the swing-around. And if you are interested in the financial affairs of the organization, something like $1,162,500 has been subscribed in special underwriting funds for its various visits.

Performances Total One Hundred.

By the time the final curtain has fallen here—they are keeping up new performances until the last—there will have been ninety-three public performances of thirty-four different operas in Chicago. In addition, three more performances were given in Milwaukee, and there were four private opera parties, with audiences made up of student bodies and industrial groups. All of which totals an even hundred performances since the lights went down on the evening of Monday, Nov. 8.

Out of the twenty-nine operas, one, "A Witch of Salem," was a world première. Two, "La Cena delle Beffe" and "Tiefland," are credited with having had first performances in Chicago, although there is some gossip to the effect that the second of these was sung here long before Chicago had its own opera company. "Don Giovanni" and "The Daughter of the Regiment" classify as revivals, though here, again, the Chicago company never before attempted the second.

Counting up to next Saturday, and hoping that no changes will be made during the week, "Aida," "Il Trovatore," "Carmen," and "The Jewess" will have led in the number of performances, with five each to their credit; "La Cena delle Beffe," "Jewels of the Madonna," "La Bohême," "Otello," and "Tristan and Isolde" will have had four each; "The Daughter of the Regiment," "Resurrection," "Rigoletto," "Samson and Delilah," "Martha," "L'Amore dei Tre Re," "La Traviata," and "Tiefland," three each; "L'Elisir d'Amore," "Don Giovanni," "Tosca," "Barber of Seville," "La Sonnambula," "A Witch of Salem," "Lucia di Lammermoor," "Cavalleria Rusticana," "Judith," "Gianni Schicchi," "Pagliacci," and "Der Rosenkavalier," two each; and a single performance each of "Hansel and Gretel," "The Masked Ball," "Mme. Butterfly," "Faust," and "Boris Godunoff."

Hard Work Is Mingled with Luck.

All of which means a lively season, a term of concentrated, unremitting hard work mingled with quite a bit of good luck. This department had occasion to say some weeks ago that conditions of such a sort made it impossible to give perfect performances of opera, and it is more apparent during the second half of the season than the first.

By that time the singers of second parts, who in reality are less important to smooth performances than the stars, begin to get worn out. They sing no one knows how many times a week and they rehearse mornings and afternoons in addition. No human throat can stand the strain; part of the company's good luck has been that there have been no disastrous breakdowns and few temporary absences.

The chorus, too, shows signs of hard work. The choristers must possess throats of brass, as it is, to be able to do the singing they have done. Of course, it has been weeks since the last time there was any real finesse in choral singing, but no one could expect anything more. The wonder is that they have done as much as they have. Even an uncommonly competent orchestra has played off its edge; during these final weeks it frequently plays as though there were a job to be finished instead of a bit of art to be decorated.

At the best a perfect performance is unlikely. When you go to the Auditorium and see, as you usually do, the eyes of the artists fixed in fierce intentness or despairing gaze upon prompter and conductor, you may be sure that there is a brake on the machinery; that they are not operating on complete power. No one or no group is to blame; the system is abnormal.

Four New Works for Final Week.

Naturally the operas that have had the most work given them, in preparation or otherwise, have developed the best. "The Jewess," which used to be a little heavy footed, worked out into one of the smoothest performances of all. Even the preparatory work of another season has its effects; "Der Rosenkavalier" was admirable, though it would be more admirable in a smaller theater where its finer effects would not evaporate in space. The same is true of "Don Giovanni," a lovely opera that was never intended for an enormous house.

But no matter how heavy the task, the opera company is ready with its last ounce of energy for something else. On this, the final week, four new works are scheduled, "Hansel and Gretel" this afternoon; "Judith," much postponed, in a double bill with "Gianni Schicchi" Thursday night and Saturday afternoon; "The Masked Ball" Saturday night and the last performance of the season.

In preparing some material about "Judith" last week a word slipped by this typewriter which gave a wrong impression of the work. It was called a biblical story then; a more correct statement would have been that its story came from the Apocrypha. At any rate, it is now announced for two performances.

One of the unfortunate incidents of the "Judith" delays was the fact that they also delayed "Gianni Schicchi." This is one of the most delightful bits of fun making ever put into operatic form, and there has always been far too little humor in opera. "Gianni Schicchi" is almost a slapstick farce, funny from beginning to end in plot, music, and performance. It gives a comic slant on Florence at the time of the Medici, just as "La Cena delle Beffe" gives a melodramatic slant. If the opera company gives it as well as in former seasons it is respectfully commended for attention.

St. Olaf Choir Eagerly Anticipated.

It is not often that a musical attraction is obliged to advertise an overflow concert before it has made its first appearance, but that pleasant fate has overtaken the St. Olaf Lutheran choir. Just as the notice of its concert at Orchestra hall tomorrow night was being opened, other word was sent in that it would also sing at the Studebaker on Tuesday night because Orchestra hall had had more applicants than seats.

This is the choir of St. Olaf college of Northfield, Minn., an organization of the first rank under any circumstances, and astonishing when it is considered that it is a college choir with a membership that changes in part every year. F. Melius Christiansen is the conductor, a man who, in past seasons, has demonstrated that he makes a practice of raising sacred choral singing to a high art.

Tomorrow night's concert will be in three parts, and presumably will be identical with the Tuesday program. The first part will contain works by Bach, Glinka, Crüger, and Liszt; the second by Parker, Grieg, and a number from Schu-

Denny's Latest Film Opens New Theater

"THE CHEERFUL FRAUD."

Produced by Universal. Directed by William A. Seiter. Presented at the Piccadilly theater TOMORROW.

THE CAST.

Sir Michael Fairlie	Reginald Denny
Anne Kent	Gertrude Olmsted
Mr. Bytheway	Otis Harlan
Mrs. Bytheway	Emily Fitzroy
Steve	Charles Gerrard
Rose	Gertrude Astor

By Mae Tinee.

GOOD MORNING!

Over on the South Side a big, beautiful, new picture theater opens officially to the public tomorrow noon, and to an optience of invited guests tonight: "The Piccadilly." Hyde Parkers are enthusiastic over it, with reason, for it is really a gorgeous film house, and some time when you're on the South Side—if you don't happen to live there, why don't you drop in and give your eyes a treat? "The Piccadilly" has chosen for its debut feature "The Cheerful Fraud."

REGINALD DENNY,
as you like him in "The Cheerful Fraud."

This is the latest starring venture of the large and beloved movie chef (not sheik), Reginald Denny, whose specialty is the sassy feature comedy and who understands so well how to serve his dish temptingly to fans who lap up his stuff and yap hungrily for more between feedings.

This hyah "Cheerful Fraud" is a lightsome comedy of errors—and there are two frauds. The one who ISN'T cheerful is impersonated by Charles Gerrard, that sterling depictor of brassy rôles who is never by any chance permitted to be a soldier, a gentleman, or a hero. He is always shown as the possessor of a dark brown soul, at least, and in most cases said soul is a coal black one and its owner a reprehensible citizen just two jumps ahead of the police, while you, the witnesses of his nefarious plots against your favorites, and their money, and their plans, hopes, happinesses, and all that is fair and lovely in their lives, wish that yours might be the hand to tighten the rope about his devoted neck, or yours the foot to propel him vigorously into outer darkness.

Poor Mr. Gerrard! His screen sins certainly do be as scarlet!

"All Because on a Rainy Day."

As for the CHEERFUL fraud—ah—meet Mr. Denny!

Sir Michael Fairlie he is before he starts frauding. THEN he becomes Mr. Simpson.

And all because on a rainy day,
When skies and earth were desolée,
He met a maiden blithe and gay.
Sir Michael being a regular fellow,
Offered the girl his own umbrella (she having none of her own).
The cruel wind turned it inside out.
The girl, between a smile and pout,
Regarding him, maybe (not likely), as a brother,
Permitted him to get her another.
This one he stole from a crossing cop,
Another he filched from a fruit stand wop;
Then the sun came out and [illegible]
The girl dashed away amid ringing laughter,
And Sir Michael Fairlie the girl dashed after.
Into an employment agency she went (meter's a little off there),
And Sir Michael learned that her name was Kent.
Anne was the first name. Pretty, very;
And Miss Anne Kent was secretary—
Social, you know—to a new-rich name.
Bytheway was the lady's name.
I have run out of poetry.

At the Employment Agency.

Anyhow, Anne Kent goes into the employment agency to get Mr. Bytheway, who is there trying to collect a secretary for himself—male.

The employment agency lady tells him she has engaged a Mr. Simpson, who hasn't showed up yet, having gone to get his grip, but that when he does show up she will show him the way to go home. The way to the Bytheways' home.

Miss Kent and Mr. Bytheway depart. Mr. Simpson arrives. Sir Michael collars him and a financial transaction takes place whereby for a hundred pounds Mr. Simpson relinquishes his job and his credentials and Sir Michael assumes same.

Enter then Simpson the secretary in the home of those climbers, the Bytheways. And the first piece of news to assault his ears is the announcement that Mrs. Bytheway is expecting that vurr' afternoon Sir Michael Fairlie to spend the week-end.

"Well, well," thinks the bogus secretary, "here am I, and yet, lo, here apparently I am not. I am due to arrive this afternoon, and yet—here am I awaiting myself. There is CERTAINLY something rotten in Denmark!"

And there certainly is. And Mr. Charles Gerrard is it.

Prelude to Excitement.

The latter gentleman appears right on the dot, bespatted and bespectacled, and the Bytheways proceed immediately to throw quite a fit about him, assisted after a fashion by Miss Kent. Which doesn't go so well with the gentleman who calls himself Simpson.

Now WHO do you suppose the bogus Sir Michael is? What is he after? Why is he there?

All of these queries "The Cheerful Fraud" will answer for you—cheerfully.

But I can tell you there is excitement a-plenty in the Bytheway country home that dark and stormy night!

Mr. Denny is as you like him in this film. Right on the job every minute and handing out pep and giving you honest weight in the matter of laughs.

Gertrude Olmsted is Anne Kent—and Miss Kent is vurr' likable. Wonder if her new husband, Robert Z. Leonard, was the one who persuaded her to bob her hair. She's always worn it long, you know.

Emily Fitzroy is humorously terrible as the vulgar Mrs. Bytheway, and fat little Otis Harlan puddles about enthusiastically as Mr. Bytheway, who you are some way quite sure smells strongly of scented toilet soap.

Charles Gerrard as the bogus Michael acquits himself dishonorably—as he is supposed to do—and Gertrude Astor does some mighty good acting—the best of her career, I would say, as a hard-boiled blonde whom Mr. Bytheway has once remembered and is now being not allowed to forget.

"The Cheerful Fraud" bellows with action, has been well produced, and holds your interest.

Bits aABOUTem.

YOU ASK ME—what do I think about Charlie Chaplin? I don't think anything. I have turned my mind off. Time enough to worry about whether Mr. Chaplin is the pure white rose of a human he should be when I'm quite convinced that I'm that little thing, myself.

See you tomorrow!

The Black Country

By H. L. Mencken.

THE other day, coming out of Pittsburgh by train, I rolled eastward for an hour through the coal and steel towns of Westmoreland county. It was familiar ground: I had been over it often before. But somehow I had never quite sensed its appalling desolation. Here was the very heart of industrial America, the richest and grandest nation ever seen on earth—and here was a scene so dreadfully hideous, so intolerably bleak and forlorn that it reduced the whole aspiration of man to a sort of joke. Here was wealth beyond computation, almost beyond imagination—and here were human habitations so abominable that they would have disgraced a race of alley cats.

I am not speaking of mere filth. One expects steel towns to be dirty. What I allude to is the unbroken and agonizing ugliness, the sheer revolting monstrousness, of every house in sight. From East Liberty to Greensburg, a distance of twenty-five miles, there was not one in sight that did not offend the eye. Some were so bad, and they were among the most pretentious—churches, stores, warehouses, and the like—that they were downright startling: one blinked before them as one blinks before a man with his face shot away. It was as if all the more advanced expressionist architects of Berlin had been got drunk on vodka, and put to matching designs.

I recall a few masterpieces, horrible even in memory—a crazy little church just west of Jeanette, set like a dormer-window on the side of a bare hill; the headquarters of the Veterans of Foreign Wars at Irwin; a steel stadium like a house rat-trap somewhere further down the line. But most of all I recall the general effect—of hideousness without a break. There was not a single decent house from the Pittsburgh suburbs to the Greensburg yards. There was not one that was not misshapen and there was not one that was not shabby.

The country itself is not uncomely, despite the grime of the endless mills. It is, in form, a narrow river valley, with deep gullies running up into the hills. It is thickly settled, but not noticeably overcrowded. There is still plenty of room for building, even in the larger towns, and there are very few solid blocks. Nearly every house, big and little, has space on all four sides. Obviously, if there were architects of any sense in the region, they would have perfected a châlet to hug the hillsides—a châlet with a high-pitched roof, to throw off the heavy winter snows, but still essentially a low and clinging building, wider than it was tall.

But what have they done? They have taken as their model a brick set on end. This they have converted into a thing of dingy clapboards, with a narrow, pinched roof. And the whole they have set upon thin, preposterous brick piers. And what could be more appalling? By the hundreds of thousands these ghastly houses cover the bare hillsides, like gravestones in some gigantic and decaying cemetery. On their deep sides they are three, four and even five stories high; on their low sides they bury themselves in the mud. Not a fifth of them are perpendicular. They lean this way and that, hanging on to their bases precariously. And one and all they are streaked in grime, with dead and leprous patches of paint peeping through the streaks.

Now and then there is a house of brick. But what brick! When it is new it is the color of a fried egg. When it has taken on the patina of the mills it is the color of an egg long past all hope or caring. Was it necessary to adopt that shocking color? No more than it was necessary to set all of the houses on end. Red brick, even in a mill town, ages with some dignity. Even when it has become downright black it is still sightly, especially if its trimmings are of white stone, with soot in the depths and the high spots washed by the rain. But in Westmoreland they prefer that uremic yellow, and so they have the most loathsome towns and villeges ever seen by mortal eye.

I award this championship only after laborious research and incessant prayer. I have seen, I believe, all of the most unlovely towns of the world; they are all to be found in the United States. I have seen the mill towns of decomposing New England and the desert towns of Utah, Arizona and Texas. I am familiar with the back streets of Newark, Brooklyn, Chicago and Pittsburgh, and have made bold scientific expeditions to Camden, N. J. and Newport News, Va. Safe in a Pullman, I have whirled through the gloomy, God-forsaken villages of Iowa and Kansas, and the malarious tide-water hamlets of Georgia. I have been to Bridgeport, Conn., and to Thomas, W. Va.

But nowhere on this earth, at home or abroad, have I seen anything to compare with the villages that huddle along the line of the Pennsylvania railroad from the Pittsburgh yards to Greensburg. They are incomparable in color, and they are incomparable in design. It is as if some titanic and aberrant genius, uncompromisingly inimical to man, had devoted all the ingenuity of Hell to the making of them. They show grotesqueries of ugliness that, in retrospect, become almost fabulous. One cannot imagine mere human beings concocting such dreadful things, and one can scarcely imagine human beings bearing life in them.

Are they so frightful because the valley is full of foreigners—dull, insensate brutes, with no love of beauty in them? Then why didn't these foreigners set up similar abominations in the countries that they came from? You will, in fact, find nothing of the sort in Europe—save perhaps in a few putrefying parts of England. There is scarcely an ugly village on the whole continent. The peasants, however poor, somehow manage to make themselves graceful and charming habitations, even in Italy and Spain. But in the American village and small town the pull is always toward ugliness, and in that Westmoreland valley it has been yielded to with an eagerness bordering on passion.

On certain strata of the human race, indeed, there is a libido for the ugly, as on other strata there is a libido for the beautiful. It is impossible to put down the wall-paper that defaces the average American home of the lower middle class to mere inadvertence, or the obscene humor of the manufacturers. Such awful designs, it must be apparent, give a positive pleasure to a certain type of mind. They meet, in some unfathomable way, its obscure and unintelligible demands. The taste for them is as enigmatical and yet as common as the taste for jazz, soda fountain drinks, dogmatic theology, and the poetry of Edgar A. Guest.

I suspect (though confessedly without knowing) that the vast majority of the people of Westmoreland, and especially the 100% Americans among them, actually admire the houses they inhabit. For the same money they could get vastly better ones, but they prefer what they have got. Certainly there was no pressure upon the Veterans of Foreign Wars at Irwin to choose the dreadful edifice that bears their banner; they might have chosen other and less unsightly houses in the town, or built a better one of their own. But they chose that incredible clapboarded horror on the hillside, and having chosen it, they let it mellow into its present dingy depravity. In the same way the authors of the rat-trap stadium I have mentioned, after painfully designing and erecting it, made it perfect in their own sight by putting a wholly impossible pent-house, painted a staring yellow, on top of it.

Here is something the psychologists have hitherto neglected—the love of ugliness for its own sake, the lust to make the world intolerable. It shows itself brilliantly in the whole race of wowsers: they police the fine arts, not because the fine arts are bawdy, but because beauty itself is offensive to them. The better the picture, the greater their delight in turning it to the wall. The nobler the book, the most it charms and caresses them to hand it over to the Polizei. On lower levels the thing is even plainer and more pathetic. Those sad Pennsylvania steel towns are constantly beset by fires. The very forests of the adjacent hills are full of black stumps. But when a town burns down its people do not thank God on bended knee. Instead, they gather together with heroic fortitude, and proceed to build it anew—and worse.

Guitry's Plays Are Spicy and Amusing

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—The Guitrys continue their subjugation of that section of the public that can afford them at $6.60 the best seats. After their start in "Mozart" their business fell rather disastrously, but the moment it was announced "Mozart" was to be withdrawn, it bounded back to profitable figures.

SACHA GUITRY
is author and actor of "L'Illusioniste."

They went ahead, however, and tried "l'Illusioniste," last week and are continuing with it this week. It is one of those wafer-thin but pleasantly saucy comedies in which players of the Guitry type delight and it was written by the fecund Sacha to fit his own and the gorgeous Yvonne Printemps' special talents.

Thus, being the romance of a magician in a small variety theater M. Guitry appears as a dexterous and handsome young fellow in whose society the ladies take great delight and before whose charms they fall in platoons.

On the bill with him is a young French girl singing English songs under the name of Miss Hopkins. Liking her, the magician suggests that there is certainly no reason why she should be bothered with the irksome business of paying hotel bills. Let her move in with him. He has so much room he doesn't know what to do with it. And little Miss Hopkins is delighted.

But before this arrangement can be consummated, a smart society lady calls. At least Sacha thinks she is a smart society lady. She has been admiring the magician from a stage box and she is eager that he should come that night to her home to entertain her guests and as he has been admiring the lady from the stage he agrees—for 2,000 francs. And sends Miss Hopkins tearfully home alone.

Somebody Was Fooled.

There are no guests at the society lady's home. But the magician is content to fulfill his contract. And remains the night. Comes the dawn and little Miss Hopkins with his business suit. She knew he would never like to go out on the street in his evening clothes and she gives him five minutes to meet her in the taxi waiting below. He has promised the society lady to take her with him on a tour of the world, but he decides Miss Hopkins is really the better risk. She knows the life.

In the prologue you see both M. Guitry and Mlle. Printemps doing their stuff, as the rough boys say. He, as the illusionist, performing with awkward grace the simpler tricks of the trade, she singing two songs in English and dancing fairly well. In the epilogue they have combined their acts for the great disappearance scene, Yvonne as little Miss Hopkins jumping blithely out of the big trunk.

The Guitrys go back to "Mozart" next week, and seem sure of having at least one week added to their original four week engagement—at $25,000 a week, says rumor. Then, whether they will make short dashes to Chicago, Boston, and Philadelphia, continue on in New York or return to Paris, is more or less on the knees of the godless but wise Al Woods.

Mamie in Search of a Sheik.

A farce called "The Arabian Nightmare" was not doing well, so they have changed the title to "The Galloping Sheik." The Arabian Nights allusion, the management decided, was much too highbrow for the local crowd which buys its plays largely by title.

In this instance the change really was for the better. "The Galloping Sheik" does not fit either, but it is truer than the nightmare suggestion. There is a galloping sheik and there is no distorted vision. Neither is there much of a play so far. But the idea has possibilities.

Mamie Marshall of Amesbury, Mass., full of ginger and romance at 18 and demanding that life occasionally take on the color of a good movie, is engaged to a loyal little shrimp person named Bobbie Mudge. But when Bobbie lets a burglar hold him and Mamie up she breaks the engagement. And that very same day she inherits, with her maiden aunt nearly a million dollars.

With the money she elects to travel, to seek adventure in adventure's favorite haunts, to live, to love, to know life, etc. In the Arabian desert Mamie and her aunt take a lease on a castle, including a butler of handsome proportions known as Jameel and Jameel is actively, not to say passionately, devoted to Mamie. The night he came in dressed up like Rudolph Valentino and carried her away in his great, strong arms, she thought he was the dearest old practical joker in the world. But when she woke up in his harem and discovered that in place of being mistress of the situation she stood in danger of becoming just a plain mistress, she began to worry. Young Bobby Mudge got to Arabia some way. Got himself smuggled into the harem in a trunk. Put on Little Egypt pants and a veil and pretended he was Mamie. And knocked Jameel cold with the gong striker.

Amusing possibilities in this farce, but it stands badly in need of direction. Marion Coakley is the Mamie, Lorin Raker the shrimp, Helen Lowell the maiden aunt, Charles Milward the sheik. David Tearle, actor, and Dominick Colaizzi are the authors.

Minnie Maddern and Mrs. Alving.

In many ways "Ghosts" represents a nice choice of play for Mrs. Fiske's current tour. The cast is small, the setting inexpensive, the royalties nothing much to speak of, the play a modern classic, the enterprise adult and interesting.

Of course, she is not, to me a convincing Mrs. Alving in the flesh, so to speak. Her brittle, brilliant, staccato style fits oddly with the austerity and reflected gloom that are Ibsen.

She seems always to be standing just outside the bitter, character corroding tragedy that was the life of this wife of a dissolute husband and mother of a doomed son; outside looking in, as it were, and reporting with admirable understanding the conclusions of Mrs. Alving without feeling them particularly. And yet it may be that any one meeting Mrs. Alving for the first time through Mrs. Fiske would have not the least difficulty understanding her.

She is at least a different Mrs Alving than any our stage has known. The gayest, in a way. Her lady of sorrow and revolt seems always on the point literally of shattering the whole Ibsen tradition with laughter. The corners of her mouth twitch, her eyes snap, her shoulders go back, she picks up a cue with such eagerness as to startle the player opposite her. It is a new attitude for Mrs. Alving.

And yet in a way she is exactly the eternal soubrette type of woman who might have fascinated Capt. Alving, recoiled at his beastliness, flown to Pastor Manders with a frank prayer that he take over the job of her protection and accepted the tragedy of Oswald with a philosophical resignation.

She is playing but three weeks on Broadway, and then she returns to touring. I hope she does well. A little intelligent Ibsen, even slightly out of focus as to picture, is better than none.

Bernard Is Back Again.

Sam Bernard, tired of reading his stocks and bonds and eager, it may be, to make his Florida expenses before he goes south, has revived, or helped to revive, the 20 year old "Rich Mr. Hoggenheimer" with tunes and dancing choristers added to make it a musical piece.

Bernard seems little older than he did in the early days of the comedy's success. A little shorter, a little wider, a little grayer. But up to all his old tricks of falling over his

This Thing and That Thing of the Theater

By Frederick Donaghey.

ADMISSION to a Chicago playhouse is sought for two of the New-York Theater Guild's current offerings—"Ned McCobb's Daughter," which is about bootlegging in conflict with the New-England conscience, and "The Silver Cord," which is about the selfishness of mother-love. Both plays are by Sidney Howard. My first information was that the Theater Guild, itself, was eager to bring the plays to Chicago; but a house is desired by a manager who has arranged with the Guild for rights in the plays outside New-York. The Guild, itself, doesn't care for the gamble of touring: such of its plays as have been shown in Chicago have been brought by others. . . . As yet, a theater has not been obtained. The Playhouse, which had the refusal of the booking, preferred the certitude of renting to a movie-man when "Trial-Divorce" shall have been taken out. The Princess, also, was mentioned as a desirable house for the two plays; but the Chicago Play-Producing Company definitely states that it will put on "The Ragged Edge" there February 9,—although this arrangement at midnight Friday had not been confirmed by the Messrs. Shubert. . . . And the title of the piece, it seems, is to be something else than "The Ragged Edge": that is objected to because it has been used for a movie, and also because of the tale of like name by Henry C. Rowland running serially in the daily issue of THE TRIBUNE.

MISS FLORENCE MOORE
She's back in the two-a-day, and is now in the Palace.

&c., &c., &c.

The cast which had been performing "No! No, Nanette!" through five weeks in the Erlanger was disbanded after last night's performance. Miss Louise Groody, who was of it for nearly two years, is going into something new, now named "Hit the Deck!": it is by Herbert Fields, the son of Lew, and Vincent Youmans, who contributed the good score of "No! No, Nanette!" . . . And mention of "No! No, Nanette!" makes reasonably apposite the statement that "Yes! Yes, Yvette!" is in process of repair as to its score. . . . Dorrance Davis has written a piece named "The Biter Bitten." He wrote "The Shelf," which was regarded with more favor by the Chicago populace than by that of New-York, where it was treated as a quick and a hopeless failure. . . . The author of "One Man's Woman," which has for some weeks been boob-bait in the Central, thinks that "Ladies Must Live" is a better title for his new masterpiece than "Any Man's Woman," which was his first choice.

In this matter of titles, the enterprising Mr. A. H. Woods thinks he has a dandy in "Chastity." . . . He has changed the name of one play from "Crime" to "The Crime-Wave"—or maybe it is "Crime-Waves"; and he has been quoted as saying that he has a play so mean and nasty that he thinks of naming it New-York and putting it on in this city as an offset to "Chicago" in New-York. . . . Some Chicagoans of good judgment in matters of the theater tell me that they've seen "Chicago," and that it is better than even the most admiring of the New-York play-reporters have said. . . . Mr. Alexander Woollcott, who writes about plays for the New-York World, says he doesn't believe Mr. Sam H. Harris, the entrepreneur of "Chicago," will dare to give performances in this city; and Miss Maurine Watkins, who wrote it on a basis of what she saw and heard while a reporter for THE TRIBUNE, says that what she designed as a parody in farce would be accepted here as realism.

Lester Cohen, whose novel named "Sweepings" is among the readable tales of the season, has written a piece named "Oscar Wilde"; and 'tis said that it has already been rejected by two or three producers to whom he submitted it. . . . The sewage-playwrights are turning to the male urning as a subject for drama, and point to the popular success of "The Captive" in New-York as a reason for thinking they are progressive. . . . One of them has written a piece named "The Drag"; and the propaganda for it features the announcement that in one scene forty young men from Greenwich Village are used. . . . And, as to Oscar Wilde, one of the up-an-alley theaters in New-York is reviving his unfinished piece named "A Florentine Tragedy."

This Seems New; and Lauder's Here.

The men who contemplated calling Sir Harry Lauder in London, charges reversed, on the new transoceanic telephone would not have been able to get him, apparently. At any rate, it is reported that he was seen recently in Detroit with three suits of clothes over his arm. Asked where he was going, he replied: "To the Detroit Free Press."—From the New-Yorker of January 15.

Miscellany.

Miss Kathlene MacDonell, who has had the principal woman's part in the impending enticement named "On Approval," is replaced by Miss Vera Neilson, an Australian player. . . . Mr. Ziegfeld says he will have a new issue of the Follies in the Spring; and the purveyors of the Greenwich Village Follies say they have like intentions with regard for their annual. The most successful of all recent shows in kind seems to be the issue of George White's Scandals current in New-York, where, from all accounts, the weekly intake has averaged in excess of $40,000. . . . The Scandals is counted on as an attraction for the Erlanger later in the year. . . . As to Mr. Ziegfeld, Mr. Mantle credits him today with an unmitigated washout in "Betsy"; report from Philadelphia is that he has an unqualified success in "Rita Rio"; and he has in preparation a stage-version of Miss Edna Ferber's diverting tale named "Show-Boat." . . . Miss Eileen Huban, who acted here some years back in "Cheating Cheaters," is to have the principal part in "Window-Panes," by Miss Olga Printzlau. . . . "The Barker," one of the plays about the fauna of the minor tent-shows, is said to be a popular success in New-York. The author, Kenyon Nicholson, is a Hoosier, and a nephew of Meredith Nicholson. . . . "Abie's Irish Rose" has four months to go in rounding out five years in New-York, but will not, it is calculated, duplicate the world's record for consecutive performances until July: that record belongs to "Chu Chin Chow" in London—2,238. . . . Report is that "My Maryland," the operetta based on Clyde Fitch's play named "Barbara Frietchie," is a success.

More Miscellany.

George Kelly, author of "The Show-Off" and "Craig's Wife," is to be represented by some skits and sketches in a revue to be put on soon by Miss Rosalie Stewart, producer of those plays and his two others, "The Torch-Bearers" and "Daisy-Mayme." . . . It is said that the play named "Daisies Won't Tell" has been so competently made over since it was withdrawn from performance that there is likelihood Miss Pauline Lord will soon resume performing in it, although she is in the roster of celebrities for the impending revival of "Trelawney of the Wells." . . . The vogue of "Broadway" in New-York is such that the box-office price of seats is now four-forty—a charge not heretofore made for non-musical pieces save Saturday nights. . . . Mr. Winthrop Ames, whose revival of "The Pirates of Penzance" seems to be no less popular than was "Iolanthe," says his next venture with a Gilbert-Sullivan venture will have to do with "The Gondoliers." . . . And it appears to be Mr. Ames' intention to wait until Autumn before putting on Galsworthy's "The Escape" in this country, and then to give it with the cast now engaged in the piece in London.

Town Hall Sold Out for "Manfred"

By Joan King.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—With the recent revival of Schumann's musical setting of Lord Byron's poem, "Manfred," the Society of the Friends of Music acquired a place in musical popularity ranks held but by the chosen few. Town Hall was not only "sold out," according to the box office, but the occasion called forth a regiment of ticket speculators who held sway in front of the hall long before the opening of the performance.

The work requires four vocalists and readers for the lines of six male and three female rôles besides an orchestra and chorus. For the "Manfred" revival which, incidentally, was the first in this city for 16 years, the society provided the chorus, the Metropolitan the orchestra and the person of Artur Bodanzky, the conductor. Paul Leyssac, well known actor and diseur, at present playing with Eva Le Gallienne in her repertory theater, was Manfred. Blanche Yurka took the rôle of Nemesis. Cornelia Otis Skinner had the dual task of reading lines for Astarte and the Witch of the Alps. Ernest Rowan undertook those of Arimanes and the Spirit; C. Norman Hammond, those of Hermann and the Chamois hunter and Egon Breecher the rôle of Abbot of St. Murice. Dreda Ares, Dudley Warwick, Arnold Gabor and Carl Schlegel were the vocalists. Wilfred Pelletier provided the organ accompaniment.

Audiences Still Await Toscanini.

Arturo Toscanini's American enthusiasts are still awaiting his initial 1927 appearance. The famous European conductor, who arrived here a short time ago to take up the baton of the Philharmonic orchestra for some weeks with his American audiences, is still reported too ill to appear. When he was forced to forego his opening pair of concerts Willem Mengelberg, who had closed his own season a few days earlier, took the baton. The following week-end, upon Mr. Mengelberg's departure for Holland, Hans Lange, assistant conductor of the orchestra and second concert master as well, took the seat of authority.

Georges Georgesco, director of the Roumanian National opera and the Philharmonic orchestra of Bucharest, who recently made his American debut as guest conductor of the Philharmonic at its pension fund concert, took Mr. Toscanini's place for the second week's series.

The program in which Mr. Georgesco substituted for Mr. Toscanini included but one composition new to the orchestra, Rabaud's "Nocturnal Procession." For the rest Smetana, Strauss, and Brähms were representative composers.

Woman Plays Carillon.

New York has the only woman carillon player in America to its credit—one of the only three women known to play the carillon anywhere. She is Miss Ruth Muzzy Conniston, who is at present engaged upon pounding the pegs of the Park Avenue Baptist church's carillon, given to the church by Mr. Rockefeller last year. Miss Conniston is substituting for Percival Price, the regular carillionist, who is now in Europe.

A carillon used to require twelve or fourteen husky men to pull the bell ropes in sequence, it is said, but Miss Conniston with a set of levers plays fifty-three bells, using rubber gloves thickly padded with rubber under the fists to strike the pegs which make the clappers ring. According to Miss Conniston, who is a church organist when she is not officiating at the Fosdick church's carillon, the hardest part of carillon playing is the improvising of music for the bass bells for which no printed scores are available.

Ernest Schelling has commenced his fourth season as conductor of the Philharmonic children's Saturday concerts. This series is divided into two parts, a morning series and an afternoon series. The morning concerts are for the general public and open at 11 o'clock; the afternoon, for public school children with only a few box seats available for general sale.

Odds-and-Ends of Stage-News

RICHARD BENNETT, insistently mentioned as an early Chicago visitor in a piece named "The Creole" (or it is "Creoles," perhaps), has been telling San-Francisco that it is zero in appreciation of art because it made no effort to buy tickets for his performances there in "They Knew What They Wanted."

The new play by Frederick Lonsdale that has had mention here as "The League of Nations" is to be called "Most of Us Are."

"The Golden Dawn," with some of the music by Kalman, is an operetta selected for the opening of a New-York theater to be called the Temple of Music. . . . "Praying Curve," a play by Martin Brown that has borne other titles in recent try-out performances, is about to be submitted in New-York, with William B. Mack, Miss Florence Rittenhouse, and John W. Ransome in it.

Shifting Playbills

This Afternoon:

Miss Ruth Draper in the Harris.—The unique entertainer in the first of six afternoons—successive Sundays and two Thursdays. Her programs for the season are said to contain a large measure of new matter.

Tomorrow night:

Harry Lauder in the Erlanger.—Return for a week, after an absence of three years, of the singing and jesting Scot who has been a prosperous and popular American tourist through two decades.

Sunday, January 30:

"Howdy, King!" in the La Salle.—A comic piece by Mark Swan about a cowboy who finds his way to a throne. It has been on view in New-York. Minor Watson has the part of the cowboy.

Monday, January 31:

Mrs. Fiske in "Ghosts" in the Illinois.—The distinguished actress in a rôle new to her—that of Mrs. Alving in one of the plays by Ibsen that have endured. She comes for a fortnight.

"On Approval" in the Erlanger.—A comedy by Frederick Lonsdale, author of "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney," with Miss Vera Neilson, Miss Violet Kemble-Cooper, Wallace Eddinger, and Hugh Wakefield. The piece has been shown in New-York, where the reporters said it was good stuff.

Wednesday, February 2:

"Twelfth-Night" in the Goodman Memorial.—Shakespeare's comedy in revival by the "professionals" of the establishment, with Whitford Kane, the "guest-star," held over for the rôle of Sir Tobey Belch.

Sunday, February 6:

"Craig's Wife" in the Selwyn.—The play by George Kelly, author of "The Show-Off," for which last season's Pulitzer prize was awarded. (Nevertheless, the editor of this department of THE TRIBUNE says it is a good play—one of the four or five best yet written by an American.) Miss Chrystal Herne has the principal rôle, which she originated and acted through last season's long New-York run.

Wednesday, February 9:

"The Ragged Edge" in the Princess.—A play by Franz Langer acted abroad as "Periphery," and to be given here under the auspices of the Chicago play-Producing Company in an English text by George Abbott. Robert Ames is, as yet, the only actor named for the cast.

Monday, February 14:

Miss Laurette Taylor in "The Comédienne" in the Illinois.—The popular player for the first time in years in Chicago in a play of statutory length. The piece is by J. Hartley Manners, and is said to be an amplification of the like-named sketch in which she acted last month for a week in the Palace.

New in Manhattan

These are the new things listed for the week in the New-York theaters:

"Praying Curve," by Martin Brown, with Miss Florence Rittenhouse, Frank M. Thomas, and William B. Mack. . . . This is one of at least four new pieces by Mr. Brown that have been announced for early production. His "The Lady" and "Cobra," both rather bad, have been acted in Chicago.

"Cradle-Song," by Gregorio and Maria Martinez Sierra, with Miss Eva Le Gallienne and the performers associated with her in what she calls the Civic Répertoire Theater. . . . The translation from the Spanish is by John Garrett Underhill.

"Yours Truly," by Clyde North, Miss Anne Caldwell, and Raymond Hubbell, with Leon Errol, Miss Marion Harris, Greek Evans, Harry Kelly, and Miss Ina Williams. . . . This piece has been praised warmly in the cities where it has had its try-out performances.

"Honor Be Damned!" by Willard Mack, with Mr. Mack, William Courtleigh, and Miss Beatrice Banyard [Mrs. Mack]. . . . This is the fourth new play of Mr. Mack's composition to be shown this season in New-York. Two, "Fanny" and "Lily-Sue," have been thrown away: the third, "The Noose," is listed among the popular successes there.

"Saturday's Children," by Maxwell Anderson, with Miss Ruth Gordon, Frederick Perry, Miss Ruth Hammond, and Richard Barbee. . . . Mr. Anderson is known in Chicago solely as co-author with Laurence Stallings of "What Price Glory!"; but he has been represented on the New-York stage in the last three years by at least four other works. As commerce, this is another venture by the Actors' Theater, for a time the most clamant of the special "groups," but out of luck lately. It was originally an offshoot of the actors' union, and was for a time called the Equity Theater.

"The Red Lily," by David Arnold Balch, with Miss Margot Kelly. . . . The author, I gather, is one of the new-comers.

The Guitrys are this week returning to their first offering, "Mozart," which, it is said, was just catching on when taken off. . . . And "Rose-Marie," which had a run of a year or more there in 1924-'25, is to be tried at low prices in the big Century Theater, which is being used by the Messrs. Shubert for operettas that have exhausted themselves at high prices, much as McVicker's was for years the place in Chicago where one could see for a dollar the plays that had originally been sold for a dollar-fifty or higher.

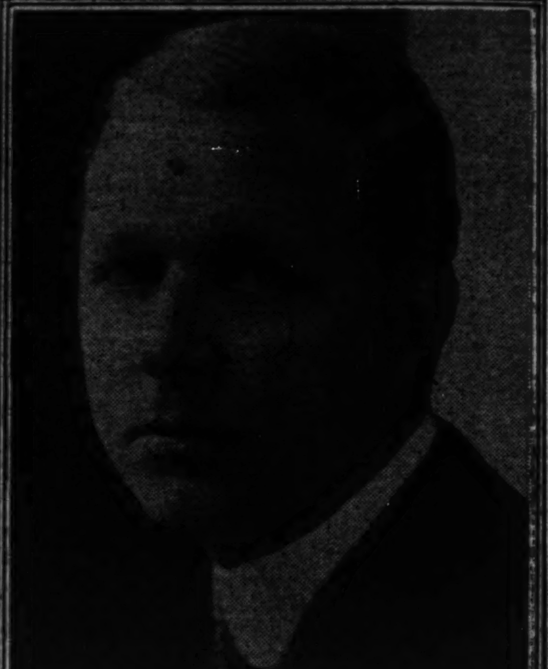
WELL-KNOWNS IN MIDWINTER PLAYS

MISS ANN HARDING



WALLACE EDDINGER

MISS HARDING is to be observed these nights as an accomplice of Lowell Sherman in the piece named "The Woman Disputed," in the Olympic. She took her introduction to Chicago three years ago in a futile piece named "The Horsethief," and returned a year later to act the part of Venice in "The Green Hat." . . . Mr. Eddinger, here for quite a number of weeks in the Spring of last year, is to return next week, in the Erlanger, as one of the four players who make up the cast of "On Approval," something new by the author of "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney."

Americans Seem to Corner French Stage

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS. — [Special Correspondence.] —Turn about is fair play—especially in the world of players. So, since Madame Cecile Sorel packed off to New York with her "showcase theater," her trunks as full of samples of the latest in art [and antiques] as those of any cloak and suit drummer, and since the Guitrys, madame in her chic panther skin cape, withdrew their just blossoming success, "Deburau," and also took passage on a French line boat, the Paris stage has been left chiefly in the hands of the Americans.

Of course, there is still Robert de Flers, who, because of his penchant for the wearever Parisian triangle basis for his comedies, will probably never see his productions shipped off to the land of the censor. But thus far this season he and his associate, Francis de Croisset, have produced nothing new, and are content with refurbishing the costumes of their last year's comic opera, "Ciboulette," a hoop skirted version of the classic "Fille de Madame Angot," produced in the second empire epoch. De Flers is perennially in the revival stage, and a production of his old comedy written with G. A. de Caillevet, "The Green Suit," is playing at the Variétés.

There are also Jules Romains, whose "Le Trouhadec" series convulsed the intellectual strata of French playgoers, and Louis Verneuil, a young reliable in the boulevard style of French wit, who are producing as usual. Romains' "Dictator," a clever analysis of the Fascist idea in government, is a trifle too slow and a trifle too subtle to make a hit with the multitude.

"La Prisonnière, that naughty production from the pen of Edouard Bourdet, which in its redeemed adaptation under the eyes of the purity squad has so scandalized New York, is playing nightly at the Femina to audiences who fail to see anything off color in it. Such is the force of custom which has inured the French public to this sort of thing.

In addition to these plays and the two operas, the American visitor in Paris anxious for an introduction into the really French "esprit" in drama can look over the kiosk showbills on the boulevards and take his choice. He can go to see "No, No Nanette" at the Theater Mogador; or, if he prefers, Max Dearly in "Potash and Perlmutter" at the Theater de Paris. He can go, as all Americans do, to see Miss Josephine Baker, chocolate coated danseuse of the Charleston, who is headlining that "typically Parisian" house of entertainment, the Follies Bergère, or he can go see the troupe which is introducing the Black Bottom at the Apollo.

Earl Leslie, as customary, is starring with Mistinguett at the Moulin Rouge. The Lawrence Tiller girls are prominent at the Casino de Paris, while the Dolly sisters have opened a clever little show of their own at the Theater Edouard VII. With the aid of a movie reel or two the Dollys take their audiences on a round the world flight with a vaudevillesque interlude showing quaint native customs injected here and there and a dance or two by the famous sisters.

Even the circus, that time-honored monopoly of the French genius, has been invaded by trans-Atlantic elements in the persons of four chic New York Hippodrome elephants, headlining at the Empire in their newest terpsichorean creations. Rosie, Lena, Jenny and Julia are fast becoming the favorite ballerinas of the Parisian populace.

The rate of exchange remains the topic uppermost, even on the stage, and they can't forget it even with the franc in convalescence. Thus it comes that Mistinguett, in a thoroughly Americanized expositon of "Ca c'est Paris," gives as her most sumptuous scene a silver snowstorm and a rain of gold, with snappy music to words approximating, "if you want to get by at all, you've got to have the dough." It is a glitterng skit in an appropriate setting of the Moulin Rouge, where everyone takes your money as fast as you're able to scatter it.

Everyone has heard of the poet's lady who is worth her weight in gold, but to be dressed in it is a novel notion of costuming. This is what literally occurs in this scene where coins of all nations are impersonated by the genial demoiselles of the chorus. Small chains of real coins—not too much to be heavy and irksome, yet enough for artistic drapery, form the central motif of the attire, helped out here and there by a ribbon or a feather, but nothing ponderous, except in the headgear, in which is centered a huge reproduction of the coin represented.

One girl is the British pound, another the Buxom German mark, another the dollar, and the dark-eyed Lira, the Lepta and the timid Kronen all play their parts, until Mistinguett, her million dollar limbs scarcely screened in a shower of splendor, makes her entry in the superlative role of the gold franc—stabilized! It's all delightfully modern and mercenary.

Then to take the nasty shylock taste out of our mouths they pass on to a shipwreck—a stupendous scene without much point or sequence.

Miss Josephine Baker, whose performances have not always attracted the beaming approval of the not-too-squeamish authorities, has gained universal acclaim for her holiday charity endeavors. Yet there are those who observe a diplomatic farsightedness in the fact that invitations to her Christmas party at the Follies Beregère were limited to the children of the Paris police.

Max Dearly, who used to be the most Parisian of comedians, has become infatuated with American farce. He began with "Brewster's Millions," proceeded to "Tons of Money," and then took Willie Collier's role in a French production of "Nothing But the Truth." This season it is "Potash and Perlmutter," so that the puzzled French critics will soon be ready for any emergency, or "Abie's Irish Rose."

Opera Final Week

This afternoon — "Hansel and Gretel," with Clara Shear, Irene Pavloska, Anna Hamlin, Augusta Lenska, Florence Misgen, Desiré Defrere; followed by ballet divertissements; Frank St. Leger, conductor.

Monday—"Don Giovanni," with Rosa Raisa, Edith Mason, Louise Loring, Vanni-Marcoux, Charles Hackett, Alexander Kipnis, Virgilio Lazzari, Vittorio Trevisan; conductor, Giorgio Polacco.

Tuesday—"The Barber of Seville," with Maria Kurenko, Hackett, Richard Bonelli, Trevisan, Lazzari; conductor, Roberto Moranzoni.

Wednesday afternoon—"Carmen," with Mary Garden, Eide Norena, Fernand Ansseau, Giacomo Rimi, Edouard Cotreuil; conductor, Polacco.

Wednesday night—"Der Rosenkavalier," with Raisa, Elsa Alsen, Mason, Pavloska, Kipnis; conductor, Harry G. Weber.

Thursday—"Judith" (first performance in America), with Garden, Loring, Shear, Theodore Ritch, Jose Mojica, Cesare Formichi; conductor, Polacco: followed by "Gianni Schicchi" (revival), with Norena, Alice D'Hermancy, Lorna Doone Jackson, Hackett, Rimini, Lazzari, Trevisan, Defrere; conductor, Moranzoni.

Saturday afternoon—"Judith" and "Gianni Schicchi," same casts as Thursday night.

Saturday night—"The Masked Ball," with Raisa, Lenska, Shear, Charles Marshall, Bonelli, Defrere, Lazzari; conductor, Antonio Sabino.

SOLOIST

JOSEPH SZIGETI.

[Muray Photo.]

He will be the solo violinist at three concerts given by the Chicago Symphony orchestra this week. On Tuesday afternoon he will play the Brahms Concerto in D major, op. 77; on Friday afternoon and Saturday night the Beethoven Concerto of the same key, op. 61. The Friday and Saturday concerts will consist entirely of Beethoven programs, Mr. Stock and the orchestra contributing the third "Leonore" Overture and the Sixth Symphony as other items.

own feet and sputtering twisted German. He seems as funny to me now as he did then. Which disappoints me a little. I feel I should have grown up more than that. Why, for instance, should I break out with a grin, if not a snort, whenever Bernard refers slightingly to the Hon. Cecil Puffington as "Sizzle," or threatens to exterminate him on the spot?

Perhaps that is what the psychologists call an infant fixation. Having been associated with laughter in the days of my youth, it has fixed a standard from which I never will recover.

"Betsy" Is Flopping."

Among the adventures that may be added to the memoirs of one Florenz Ziegfeld is that of the production of "Betsy," which, I hear, has but two more weeks to live at the New Amsterdam and then goes out to make room for George Tyler's starry revival of "Trelawney of the Wells."

"Betsy" probably cost F. Z. in the immediate neighborhood of $100,000, and if it goes by the board it will be one of his quickest and most expensive failures. The thought still persists that there was outside help from the friends and eager well wishers of Belle Baker, the star. But whenever I advance this suggestion within the hearing of any of the Ziegfeld boys they insist I am wrong; that Mr. Ziegfeld believed not only in Miss Baker, but also in "Betsy" as a musical "Abie's Irish Rose."

There should be no reason, said he, why a story about the Kizel boys who, although engaged, could not marry until their older sister was provided with a husband should not reach the same public that Abie reached. But it didn't. Or hasn't up till now.

With the Symphony This Week.

Joseph Szigeti, Hungarian violinist, who came to America for the first time last winter, will appear in both the Tuesday afternoon and Friday and Saturday concerts of the Chicago Symphony concerts this week. He will play the Brahms Concerto in D Tuesday and the Beethoven Concerto in D Friday and Saturday.

The first, to be conducted by Eric DeLamarter, will, in addition to the concerto, contain the Weber "Euryanthe" Overture, Mozart's "Jupiter" Symphony, and Richard Strauss' "Don Juan." Frederick Stock will have returned from his brief vacation in time to take up the baton for the Friday and Saturday series, and will make the concert another Beethoven program, adding to the concerto the "Leonore" Overture No. 3 and the Sixth Symphony.

Another orchestral concert, the Thursday night "pop," will present Harold Cobb as soloist. He was the winner in the organ division of the recent contest conducted by the Society of American Musicians, and will play Felix Borowski's Allegro de Concerto for organ and orchestra. Other items of the program will be Wagenaar's "Cyrano de Bergerac" Overture, the Minuet and Finale from Beethoven's Quartet, Op. 59, No. 3; the ballet music from Goldmark's "The Queen of Sheba," Saint-Saëns' "The Spinning Wheel of Omphale," and the Bacchanale and Finale from Wagner's "Tannhäuser" Overture.

Mostly About Music.

Here is something that ranks as class A in press agents' stories, as reported in a New York paper. When Galli-Curci sang in London a few years ago two sisters, blonde and members of the working class, attended all her concerts. They went home, saved up all their extra shillings, got leaves of absence, and this winter sailed for New York in time to hear Galli-Curci sing in "La Traviata." That, without putting too fine a point upon it, shows poetic imagination.

Among the more recent contract renewals by the Civic Opera company is that of Virgilio Lazzari. This fine basso and eminent artist is scheduled for three more seasons with the Civic company, as well as at least one more summer at Ravinia.

Mischa Levitzki adds his name to the list of Beethoven celebrants. His recital program at Kimball hall Wednesday night will consist of four sonatas: Op. 53, op. 101, op. 27 No. 2, and op. 57.

Pertaining to the dance, there is word of the impending approach of Ruth St. Denis, Ted Shawn, and the Denishawn dancers, who are booked at Orchestra hall Feb. 1. They have been traveling in the orient, and they will bring with them various dances appertaining to that part of the world.

The thirty-sixth national saengerfest of the North American Saengerbund will take place in Cleveland June 22, 23, and 24. Some 4,000 voices will be heard, partly made up of thirty clubs from Chicago. It is told that Bruno Walter will come from Berlin to conduct the symphony orchestra of that city during the festival. Elsa Alsen will be one of the three soloists.

One grows unduly suspicious, perhaps, but it begins to look as though a new musical wonder was about to come over the horizon. They are telling of a lady, as yet unnamed, in Vienna who has a tenor voice. The story is that never having sung before and never having taken any lessons yet, she underwent an operation for goiter and came out with the larynx and chest resonance of a man. She now sings "Celeste Aida" in what is called a most dramatic manner. It looks like the first gun of an American campaign.

Bobbed Gals Irk This Film Hero

By Rosalind Shaffer.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special Correspondence.]—Richard Barthelmess is still talking about his recent — and first — trip to Europe. He startled all the beauties out at the First National lot by declaring that the thing that impressed him most on his trip was the spectacle of pretty Swiss maids with their long blonde braids, as they promenaded of a Sunday along the shores of Lake Geneva.

"It was a real thrill to see long hair again," said Barthelmess.

His description of the rosy natural complexion of the Swiss miss with the long braids was not taken in such good part by some of his own girl friends here, all of whom are bobbed and most of whom have dieted so much to obtain the admired sylph-like figure of fashion that the rouge pots have given them all the color they have had in the last three years.

Feeling in film circles is intense over the disclosures and charges and countercharges in the Chaplin case. A prominent picture producer, devoted friend to Chaplin, tells of Charlie's distress over Lita's extravagance, mentioning what Charley told him about two bills from a shopping expedition of Lita's, one for clothes said to be $5,000, and the other for perfumes, $1,800. All this shopping is said to have been done in a single day.

Lita told me in reply to a similar charge of extravagance: "When Charlie and I were first married I used to make many of my own clothes and took pleasure in it. However, I found my economical efforts were not appreciated and got me nothing."

There was a run on the copy of Lita Chaplin's divorce papers filed in the hall of records until the document, dogeared and torn, was taken out of the public file and put in the vault. Many picture girls went to the county clerk's office and stood in line to read the forty-eight page exposé. The demand for the now famous document now has made it accessible only to those who can show they have legitimate business with it.

Among additions to the film colony are Mrs. Frank Tinney and her little son, Frank Jr. They are living in a tiny Hollywood bungalow in a court and both are seeking picture work to supplement the variable income from Mrs. Tinney's alimony. Frank Tinney is in a sanitarium in the east. The little bungalow is quite a contrast to their thirty acre New York estate in palmier days.

Among those readers who have read the earliest of moving picture reviewers the name of Kitty Kelly will arouse interest. This former film reviewer, now the wife of Al Chase, the real estate editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will now have a professional namesake, for First National Pictures recently put under contract Sue O'Neill, who has taken the screen name of Kitty Kelly.

Carl Laemmle is perfectly satisfied with the far reaching influence of his campaign for bigger and better pictures. Sultana, one of the members of the bloodhound sextet use d in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" has hearkened to the studio slogan and added fourteen characters at one fell swoop to the personnel of the picture. They are prize blooded Ledburn bloodhounds, the largest litter known. As they represent a considerable sum of money, one can say the picture is beginning to pay dividends already.

Charlie Murray, all done up like a Russian legion-of-death recruit, was discovered down by the river in the trenches on the back lot of the First National studios, where Del Lord is making "Bayo Nuts." Murray fingered his Astrachan cap shamefacedly as he told of his adventures in the picture trying to get out of Russia. He disguised himself as a Russian grande dame, only to be taken by the Russians and given the choice of enrolling in the women's legion-of-death or being shot. He chose the ladies, and he says the things he went through in the women's barracks after his enlistment are nobody's business and furnish much of the comedy in the picture.

The sets constructed at the Fox lot for "The Seventh Heaven" are becoming show places, they are such perfect representations of the Montmartre quarter in Paris. There are street scenes with rough cobblestoned streets and sidewalk cafés and beautiful views of Paris roof tops from Diane's seventh floor chamber.

The sewers of Paris, in which the hero, Chico, works, are interesting and wierd with their green and red moss grown caverns and inky waters flowing below. Albert Gran works as Papa Boul. a taxi driver. The taxi he drives was brought from Paris, and from the looks of it might well have been used in the mobilization of troops at the beginning of the war.

Gran, who is usually a perfectly groomed person both on and off the screen, is wearing a dirty makeup with a huge wart on his face. He had never driven a car, having been fortunate enough to employ a chauffeur all his life, and now he is having a terrible time with his decrepit taxi.

Ronald Colman's new picture, with Vilma Banky, "The Night of Love," promises from its pre-view to be as popular as "The Sheik." Colman plays a Spanish gypsy bandit, Montero, whose bride has been stolen from him by the perfidious duke by right of the old feudal custom of a nobleman to claim the bride of any of his vassals on the wedding night. The gypsy bride slays herself in the duke's arms, and Montero, the gypsy, turns bandit to revenge himself.

As a rural Robin Hood, Montero harries the duke and pays his gains to the poor. When, two years later, the duke takes a bride, a French princess, played by Vilma Banky, Montero steals her, as the duke had done his gypsy bride.

The bride feels well rid of her husband, gained by a marriaeg of convenience, and becomes intrigued with the chivalrous gypsy. The gorgeous scenes of the gypsy bridal and the mountain caverns of the bandit are exceptionally beautiful. The bridal feast in the duke's castle and the mob scene when the gypsy is to be burned at the stake are convincingly real.

Colman's love making and Vilma Banky's efforts to keep from surrendering to the lover and be true to a husband she hates are warranted to make the flappers sigh and the old folks discover their own lost youth.

Betty Blythe has arrived in Hollywood, and says she intends staying for some months to rest and visit friends. Then she returns east to go back to Europe to fulfill vaudeville and picture contracts. This is her first trip home in two years.

If you would like your letters printed in this column, please write on ONE SIDE of the paper ONLY. If you want a personal answer, send stamped, self-addressed envelope—please!

From an Invalid.

Dear Mae: You've forgotten me, of course, so by way of introduction, I'm an awful pest and a great admirer of yours—which latter virtue should offset the former sin, don't you think, partly, Mae?

Anyway, since I bothered you last I've gone and developed heart trouble that keeps me on the so-called downy couch 24 hours a day—has for six months.

In the interests of charity, etc., etc., WON'T you write me a personal note? Can't you? I suppose not, and I realize why not, of course.

But—well, such is the luck of a poor, fameless, handicapped, aspiring writer. (Tears and sobs.)

Say something to me in Sunday's Trib, though, won't you? Anything from a sermon to an epitaph. It'll be a consolation!

And, being a pest, I'll have to write again. DOROTHEE.

Editor's note: My dear—a bore! A joy! Of course I'll write, and your letter will reach you soon. I'm so sorry!

Thanks for Aid.

Dear Miss Tinée: May I use a bit of Vidor, Gish & Co.'s remarkable S. for so nobly rising to the defense of Vidor, Gish & Co.'s remarkable photoplay, "La Boheme," and thank him (or her) for so graciously agreeing with me beneath the venom?

Sorry I can't oblige about "the chip on my shoulder," but I see no way at all of removing something nonexistent. However, I should be glad to reward this gallant defender with a copy of the original novel, "La Boheme," especially if, after perusing it, he would pass it on to King and Lillian.

Thank you, Miss Tinée.

I am tickled pink to see you back.
MRS. A. H.

If Dick Played with Lillian.

Dear Mae Tinée: Why don't you see more of Richard Barthelmess in really good pictures, such as "Tol'able David," instead of the mushy rôles in which we usually see him now?

Lillian Gish should be coupled with him, as they are both the same type, dreamy and sentimental. I haven't as yet seen "La Boheme," but Lillian, my favorite actress, as Mimi, must be incomparable. In "Annie Laurie," which I hear is to be released soon, she must be beautiful as a Scotch lassie.

Here's to your colyum. D. E. M.

Editor's note: And here's to you, D. E. M.

MY BEST JOKE

What is the best joke you ever heard? If you'll write it out and it is published $1 will be paid. No manuscripts returned. Address Best Jokes Editor, The Tribune, Chicago.

The Reason Why.

It was married men's night at the revival meeting. "Let all you husbands who have troubles on your minds stand up!" shouted the minister at the height of his appeal.

Instantly every man in the church arose except one.

"Ah!" exclaimed the minister, peering out at the lone individual who occupied a chair near the door, "you are one in a million."

"It ain't that," piped back this one helplessly, as the rest of the congregation gazed suspiciously at him. "I can't get up; I'm paralyzed." L. B.

That's It.

First Passenger—Isn't the ocean grand and majestic?

Second Ditto—Yes; and there's an indefinable something about it that impresses me strangely.

First—I feel that way, too. I guess it's the utter absence of billboards.
M. L. M.

Voluntary Inertia.

"Mandy," said the doctor with a twinkle in his eye, "my diagnosis of your husband's ailment is that he is suffering from voluntary inertia."

"Lawsy, doctor," exclaimed Mandy. "An' I've been cussin' the po' man for bein' lazy." B. K. H.

Policewomen Turn Into Critics of Art

BY INEZ CUNNINGHAM.

LAST week I went to New York bursting with civic pride because the Chicago no jury show had blossomed in my city from a rather sticky bud into an interesting flower in the space of one year.

And I came back to find that the no jury show had not only been juried but judged—by two policewomen.

The responsibility of speaking for or against the work of an artist rests lightly enough with the art critics, to be sure, but when it is confided to the tender mercies of policewomen—well, then, indeed, if one does not die instantly of overactivity of one's risibles one lives to reflect that the joke is a sad one. Not only the dignity of Marshall Field & Co. and the artists themselves but the dignity of Chicago is burst like a balloon at a cabaret. At first I would not believe but that somebody was out to get a rousing publicity story, but after interviewing the powers that be I know that such publicity, however beneficial in dragging in the crowd, is distasteful to every one concerned.

The Censored Paintings.

The innocence of the pictures which caused the stir is amazing. Picture to yourself your Victorian aunt showing her pantalettes at a modern debut ball and you have it in exact ratio.

The nude that caused the first breath of the trouble is so trashy and badly painted that frankly when I saw the show I passed by in a hurry. It is a picture of a girl holding a crucifix in one hand and an apple in another and smilingly turning to the apple. But what of that? Are we to leave life out of it when we paint our pictures and write our novels because we live in Chicago?

Another that was censored is Martha Simpson's nice little picture that already has hung in the Art institute, a harmless study prettily painted. And Will Shuster's oil of a girl sitting on the floor, conventional of conventionals!

Kempf's picture in tempera of a Negro called "A Savage" is quite another thing. It is calculated to make policewomen mad because it is so far above their understanding. It is so imaginative and so provocative of pity in the human heart.

The Paul Florian picture to which my distinguished contemporary gives so much space is merely a decoration, the sort of thing Oscar Gross used to do every spring, before he grew up into a painter. It is a red headed girl—and it seems that red headed girls are always in print. And right here I would like to take issue with my contemporary, whose opinion I have always considered highly valuable to this community. I wonder if he is making game of us when he says it is so distinguished a picture? To my always ready to learn mind it is less original than the also censored picture by Elizabeth Colwell which he calls, I believe, "banal." And, by the way, Elizabeth Colwell would rather die than paint anything the least bit ribald. As a matter of fact, she couldn't even if she wanted to—her concupiscence is not great enough. The very picture of hers that was thrown out of the show hung for a month in her show exhibition at the Chicago Woman's aid.

Remembering a Pithy Comment.

Here again I'd like to take issue with my contemporary. Long ago I used to think club women were a pretty puerile lot—but that was before I got acquainted with the ways of some big business men and directors of banks and museums. Since then I have remembered 'way back when I read Oscar Wilde and I have recalled something he said about there being only two kinds of people, very much alike, and that they are men and women. The only difference between the jealous clubwoman and the jealous bank president is that the latter can do more harm because he has more power.

I don't believe club women should interfere with art—not at all—but the Chicago Woman's aid is an exception. It doesn't interfere; it helps, and any club that has the prescience to have exhibition of the work of Salcia Bano and Frances Foy in one year is to be congratulated. Mrs. Alexander White, art mentor of the Woman's aid, says she would be glad to hang all the censored pictures in their galleries except the Lombardo which she would exclude because it is such poor work.

One of the humorous things about the policewomen as censors is that they seem to think that the size of the nude figures in the paintings has a great deal to do with their pruriency, for they have left hanging several pictures of small size with nude figures in attitudes almost identical with those they threw out of the show and into the public consciousness.

Good-by to Dreams.

The whole affair would seem funny and not worth noticing, otherwise than to provoke laughter, if I had not just returned from New York. But as it is, I have a sad feeling that I must get busy and comb the hayseeds out of my hair or else awaken from the dream that Chicago is ever to be heralded as an art center. Let me assure all my readers, be they few or many, that the painting taken so maternally away from them to keep them pure could not possibly hurt their morals unless they are already in that sick state where they feel they must cover up the bathroom mirror whilst they bathe. After all, since the criminals of Chicago are settling their own affairs with the gun, the police must have something to do. Why not let them be art critics! Heaven knows that next to being a policeman, it is about the most thankless job.

New York has a number of brilliant exhibitions, not least among which is that of Leon Kroll at the Rehn galleries. Merton Clivette is causing a stir at the New gallery and the interest is not only due to his own personality, which is remarkable, but to work which, unequal and unfinished as it is in spots, has a power and a beauty that will make this painter live. A Chicago exhibition of his works is anticipated in the near future.

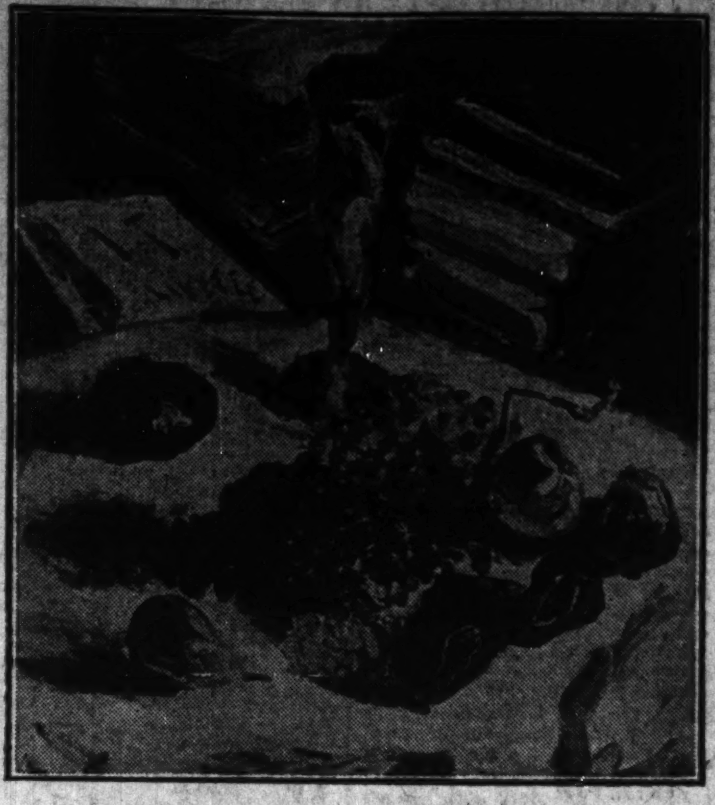
Art Notes.

The Business Men's Art club made a trip to see the Villa of Benjamin Marshall lately. The club announces a noon sketching party for Jan. 26 at 12:15.

An exhibition of early American glass, under the auspices of the Antiquarian society, will open this week at the Art institute.

Louis Kronberg's show at the Dunbar galleries, about which more later, is drawing an unusually discriminating crowd to see his interesting pictures.

The Chicago Galleries association holds an exhibition of paintings by Oscar Gross, who has made marvelous strides since I first looked at a painting he made in '18. Best wishes, Mr. Gross. At the Chicago Galleries now there is an exhibition of oils and water colors by Edward Grigware, which I hope to see next week.



Still Life by Merton Clivette who will soon have a Chicago exhibition and who, in his seventies, has suddenly leaped into fame as a painter.

FINEST RADIO PRODUCTS

THIS set and all accessories have been tested and approved by the Fleetwood Laboratories of New York City—assuring you of perfect satisfaction.

Small Charge for Installation

Customers soon recognized that here was a radio set which measured up to the high standards of all products manufactured by The American Bosch Magneto Corporation.
With such a product the Bosch Company will go far in Radio! Remember The American Bosch Magneto Corporation is in Radio to stay!

This is the famous Bosch "Model 16"—but no drawing can do justice to the mellow burled walnut paneling and ebony finish of this cabinet. Dimensions—Length 29⅜ in.; height 10⅛ in.; depth 10 3-16 in.

Terms $3.00 Weekly After small Down Payment

We do not exaggerate when we state that this is one of the Greatest Values Ever Offered in Radio! One glance at the magnificent cabinet work of the Famous Bosch "Model 16" creates a desire for this Radio.

The Bosch gives such completeness to tones of instruments and voice that this set does for the ear what the stereoscope does for the eye. It rounds out every detail in perfection. Tuning on the Model 16 is reduced to a slight movement of only two indicators and the complete elimination of internal set noises makes this Bosch Receiver unusually quiet.

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

Industrial Week Conferences End

BY THE REV. W. B. NORTON.

THE industrial week meetings under the auspices of the Chicago Church Federation come to a close this evening. Speakers at morning services will be: 10:30, Fourth Congregational church, Powell and Shakespeare avenues, Dr. Hubert C. Herring; 10:45, Parkside Baptist church, 69th place and Harper avenue, Dr. John W. Elliott; 12:20, University church assembly, 5655 University avenue, Tom Tippett. Afternoon: 3:15, Chicago Forum, Erlanger theater, 127 North Clark street, Otto S. Beyer Jr., Washington, D. C., consulting engineer; Prof Paul H. Douglas, University of Chicago; Bert M. Jewell, president of railway employés' department of the American Federation of Labor. Evening: 7:30, New First Congregational church, Ashland avenue and Washington boulevard, Dr. Hubert C. Herring.

The religious editorial in today's issue of THE TRIBUNE concerns the industrial week conference and is by Prof. Arthur E. Holt, chairman of the conference.

Episcopal churches will observe today as Social Service Sunday, so designated by the national department of social service of the Episcopal church. Sermons, corporate communions by social workers, and conferences will be held.

The speaker and subject at the Sunday Evening club at Orchestra hall this evening at 8 o'clock will be Dr. Alfred E. Stearns of Andover, Mass., on "Modern Youth and Religion." Dr. William E. Barton, Oak Park, will speak at 7 on "The Lion in the Snow." Elmer T. Stevens will preside.

At St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal church, Ashland boulevard and West Harrison street, the Rev. Steuart D. White, pastor, the program this evening at 7:45 will be of a special character. Nurses in uniform from the Presbyterian hospital will usher, representatives from Rush Medical college will sing, and G. E. Kullman will speak.

THE REV. G. P. STAFFORD.
[Fein Photo.]

The Rev. G. P. Stafford is the newly appointed pastor of St. Cyprian's Catholic church, 83d street and Grand avenue, River Grove. St. Cyprian's parish has been organized only recently and it is recognized as a promotion and an evidence of his executive ability that he has been selected by Cardinal Mundelein for the position. Father Stafford was born in St. Mary's parish, Aurora, Ill. He was educated at St. Ignatius college, Chicago, and Kendrick seminary, St. Louis. He was ordained to the priesthood at the Holy Name cathedral, Chicago, June 10, 1911. He has served as assistant at St. Anne's, St. Laurence, and Our Lady of Good Counsel parishes. For the last year he has been assistant at St. Brendan's.

The Wesley Memorial hospital auxiliary will meet tomorrow at the Berry Memorial church, Giddings and Leavitt streets, from 10:30 to 3:30 with lunch at 12:30. Mrs. John W. O'Leary is president and Mrs. W. E. Schroeder, corresponding secretary.

Two laymen, M. E. Dickerson and Curtis B. Camp, will occupy the pulpit of Grace Episcopal church, Oak Park, this morning. C. Ward Seabury and Richard C. Coombs were previous speakers. The general subject discussed is and has been: "Lay Responsibilities and Duties to the Church."

At the St. Paul Congregational church, Belden and Keeler avenues, the painting, "Angelus and Gleaners," will be exhibited and the pastor will preach on "Benjamin Franklin, Americanism at Its Best."

Founders' week will be held at the Moody Bible institute, Feb. 1-5. Last year 1,500 former students atended and the number is expected to be larger this year. Special days are designated: Feb. 3, Fundamentals day; Feb. 4, Missionary day; Feb. 5, Alumni day.

Bishop Edwin H. Hughes will preside Wednesday and Thursday at a meeting of the district superintendents of the Chicago area of the Methodist Episcopal church in the Chicago Temple. The meeting opens at 2 o'clock on Wednesday. Evangelism, world service, improvement in church worship, preparation for Easter will be among the subjects discussed.

Dr. Solomon B. Freehof, rabbi of Kehilath Anshe Mayrive, 50th street and Drexel boulevard, will preach today at 11 o'clock on the subject, "A New Type of Synagog Convention." Dr. Freehof has just returned from a convention in Cleveland, O.

"Christians and Present Social Problems" is the subject of a series of addresses on six succeeding Tuesday evenings beginning next Tuesday evening at the Joseph Bond chapel of the divinity school of the University of Chicago. Dean Shailer Mathews will give the first lecture on the subject, "What Right Have Christians to Discuss Social Problems?" Other speakers in the series will be Prof. C. E. Merriam, Prof. Arthur E. Holt, James Mullenbach, Dean Mathews and Dr. C. W. Gilkey. Two training classes will follow the lectures immediately in Swift hall, one by Prof. B. W. Robinson on "The Life of Jesus" and one by Prof. A. E. Holt on "Adaption of the Various Types of Churches to the More Important Economic Groups."

First St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church, 1301 North La Salle street, the Rev. Henry Kowert, pastor, has engaged as assistants the Rev. W. H. T. Dau, D. D., president of Valparaiso university, Indiana, and the Rev. Erwin Umbach, hospice secretary of the international Walther league, with headquarters in Chicago, for the special purpose of caring for the social and educational work among young people, many of whom are transients living for a time in the neighborhood of the church. A full time secretary and parish worker, Miss Theodore Bittner, has been engaged for the same purpose. Dr. Dau will preach in the church today for the first time as assistant pastor, in German at 9:45, and in English at 11 a. m.

The Volunteers of America are engaged in a series of Bible conferences and revival meetings every evening at 7:30 except Saturday at their auditorium, 2841 West Washington boulevard. The speaker is the Rev. Thomas H. Nelson, former editor of The Ram's Horn, one of the assistants of William Jennings Bryan in the famous Scopes trial in Dayton, Tenn., and one of the five members of the national executive board of the Anti-Evolution League of America. The meetings will continue to Feb. 13.

Dr. Simon Peter Long, pastor of Wicker Park Lutheran church, will broadcast over KYW beginning at 4 o'clock on Feb. 6. His first subject will be "The Seventh Commandment." Dr. Long has personally assumed the payment of $50 a Sunday and is expecting the coöperation of others who believe in a straightforward Bible message.

The Rev. Gerald G. Moore will celebrate today the tenth anniversary of his rectorship of the Episcopal Church of the Advent, 2900 Logan boulevard. The Rev. Irwin Tucker will preach at 11 a. m., and Dr. Edwin J. Randall, diocesan secretary, at 7:45 p. m.

ILLINOIS NEAR TOP AS MARKET IN RADIO FIELD

Government Survey Shows State Second.

A survey undertaken by the department of commerce points to New York state as probably the best market for the sale of radio apparatus in the United States. Illinois is next, Ohio third, and California fourth. In groups, the east north central states lead, with the west north central states second and the middle Atlantic states third. These figures were arrived at through averaging the points of origin of applause mail from about 20 broadcasting stations of 5,000 watts and over, through data obtained from actual sales, and through data compiled by a radio merchandising magazine.

How States Line Up.

The following shows what percentage of the total market for radio apparatus of the United States is credited to the following states:

	Per Cent of Market.		Per Cent of Market.
New York	9.301	Pennsylvania	6.835
Illinois	8.306	California	5.047
Ohio	7.555	Indiana	3.783
Massachusetts	4.451	Michigan	3.971
Wisconsin	3.453	Minnesota	3.446
Iowa	3.093	Missouri	3.966
Louisiana	.685	Oklahoma	2.480
Dist. of Col.	.499	Rhode Island	.792
Oregon	.355	Alabama	.531

Growth Phenomenal.

"The distribution of radio apparatus is important in that it considers the economical distribution of an industry producing at manufacturers' prices, in excess of $170,000,000 annually, exclusive of such items as batteries," said H. E. Way of the commerce department. "In 1921 the prospective purchaser located with difficulty sources of supply. Five years later in excess of 12,000 dealers serve the needs of the broadcast listener with an almost infinite variety of products.

"At first with slowly growing momentum the idea of using the phenomenon of wireless as a means of popular entertainment spread throughout the world. The inertia of governmental action deterred its spread, but during 1925 the exports from the United States of this commodity totaled $10,000,000, while the United Kingdom shipped $6,500,000."

MINISTERS MUST KNOW FARM TALK TO AID FARMERS

If the country church is to survive it must have ministers who can talk about silos as well as salvation, about crops as well as creeds, according to Prof. Carl C. Taylor, dean of the graduate school of the North Carolina State college, who has recently completed a detailed study of farm problems diagnosing the ills of the rural church.

Prof. Taylor will tell what has brought about this decay, and what the farmer and his church can do to cure it in a talk tonight from the pulpit of the Little Brown Church in the Vale, the sacred broadcast from WLS. His subject will be "The Farmers' Religion."

NEWS OF RADIO FROM ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD

A chain of beam wireless stations are being erected or contemplated by the Portuguese Marconi company at Madeira, the Azores, Cape Verde islands, Angola, Lisbon, and Lourenco Marques, in Portuguese East Africa, the last named being about completed.

Stringent regulations have gone into effect in New Zealand to eliminate preventable interference. The regulations prohibit the use of certain types of receivers and the misuse of legal receivers.

Honors were even between France and the United States when a French concern was awarded the contract for building a new station at Mukden, China, and an American firm a similar station at Harbin. Both stations are expected to be in operation within the next few months.

Although the 1926 Dutch reports of radio equipment increased 43 per cent in value over the previous year, the United States trailed by supplying only 16 per cent, Germany proving the most favored competitor. Exports of radio apparatus from the Netherlands during the same period showed a 175 per cent increase, with France the best buyer.

India now permits the unlicensed importation of radio samples under certain conditions, the principal of which is that the exporter agrees not to sell the goods in India and to reëxport them within twelve months.

JAZZ KING PRAISES MEEKER

RADIO AIDS FOR AVIATION AIM OF U. S. BUREAU

As a part of the government's elaborate program for developing commercial aviation during the coming year, the bureau of standards is making a model installation of three types of radio aids at College Park, a suburb of Washington. There are radio telephony from ground to aircraft, the directive radio beacon, and a system of marker beacons. Several types of receiving sets are being studied in order to prepare specifications for a sample set for use on the airplane to receive both radio-telephone messages and the beacon signal.

The beacon towers have been erected and generators and equipment are being assembled. Improvement in the beacon system has been carried out on the laboratory scale. One of the improvements is expected to reduce the use of these beacon signals to the mere watching of a light on the airplane instrument board.

The marker beacons are small radio transmitters to be placed every 25 miles to act as milestones to tell the aviator how far he has flown. Specifications are being prepared for radio telephone and beacon installations at two points on certain air routes to supplement the experimental work being done at College Park. Exhaustive tests will be made of beacons under practical conditions.

It is expected that the actual installations en route may be delayed somewhat, due to the fact that the commercial aviation program carries a limited appropriation for aids to navigation, and it is evidently the present intention to install lights and other visible markers before intensively going in for radio aids.

EUROPE'S ANSWER MAN HAS TOUGH POSITION TO FILL

Europe has its radio "Answer Man," and his task is monumental. With so many stations in the various countries using a dozen languages, his job of checking up on the broadcasts for the edification of those who thought they heard China, is one which creates no envy.

Listening in nightly, he tunes in many foreign stations from his home in London, and keeps accurate data on all programs transmitted.

A great many inquiries are about American programs, according to reports from this listener, and the last group of answers, consisting of about 500 responses to fans, shows that occasionally Chicago stations are brought in and that reception of WGY, KDKA, WPG, and WBZ is quite regular. The time factor, if nothing else, is against stations west of Chicago being tuned in abroad. European listeners get American stations at about 2 and 3 a. m. on regular wave lengths.

RADIO NIGHT AT BIG CAMP FOR FARMERS' KIDS

A national farm boys' and girls' club camp will be held in Washington in June, according to recent announcement of the department of agriculture, with a radio night as one of the big features of a seven day program. It will be known as 4-H radio night, in keeping with the slogan of the farm clubs' movement—head, heart, hands, and health. Two boys and two girls from each state, or nearly 200 in all, are expected to attend the camp, thus assuring an abundance of talent for the broadcasting.

Ladies' Quartet Sings Today from Station WQJ

This afternoon, from 3 to 4, the Chicago Ladies' quartet will present a program from station WQJ. Members of the quartet are Bernice Wessling, first soprano; Etta Johnson, second soprano; Alma Fick, first alto, and Ethel Swan, second alto. Robert Wessling, baritone, will also appear on the program during this hour.

EDUCATOR AND PASTOR WILL MAKE TALKS AT EVENING CLUB TONIGHT

Two nationally known men, each a leader in his respective field, will be heard from the Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall over KYW tonight.

Dr. Alfred E. Stearns, head of the famous "prep" school at Andover, Mass., a keen student of the problems of youth, will speak on "Modern Youth and Religion" at the main meeting, and Dr. William E. Barton, writer, lecturer, authority on Lincoln lore, and for many years pastor of the First Congregational church, Oak Park, will give the informal Bible talk at 7 on "The Lion in the Snow," a story of an unfamiliar Bible character.

Mark Love will be soloist at both meetings, and the choir of 100, under the direction of Edgar Nelson, will sing. The duet, "Consider the Lilies," will be sung by Rose Gannon and Mark Love, and Stanley Martin will play two organ numbers by Tschaikowsky during the recital, beginning at 7:40.

HOME GAMES OF CUBS AND SOX ON AIR THIS SUMMER

All the home games of the White Sox and Cubs are to be broadcast this year by WMAQ. The home games of the White Sox have never before been broadcast.

Heretofore when the Cubs were on the road there was no baseball broadcasting, but with the new arrangement there will be a constant summer program of major league baseball.

SHORT WAVES

Even President Coolidge, whose speech at Trenton was interrupted by a distress signal, had to bow to the S. O. S.

Plans are already well under way for the first annual Radio Manufacturers' association trade show, to be held in Chicago next June.

A great reduction in marine insurance ought to follow the broadcasting of weather maps to ships at sea, C. Francis Jenkins believes.

A bill now before congress for Sunday closing in the District of Columbia would prohibit radio broadcasting on the Sabbath.

Because of an agreement between the British postmaster general and the British press, politics may no longer be broadcast in Great Britain.

The army broadcasting stations at Juneau and Ketchikon, Alaska, will hereafter serve as radio beacons.

The entire vaudeville program of a Hartford theater was broadcast recently.

Artists' fees alone for the recent radio concert participated in by John McCormack, Cortot, Rosa Ponselle, and Mischa Elman are said to have approached five figures.

Possibly Lew Fields was forearmed with the knowledge that there was no slander law on the air when he told little Joe Weber that he looked like a good looking fish.

"Radio pirates" in South Africa are not stations usurping wave lengths. There they are listeners who do not pay the receiving fee.

The old expression, "Hire a hall" has given place to a more modern one, "Broadcast it!"

RADIO A SUCCESS IN RAILROADING, CANADA FINDS

Officials Pleased with 4 Year Results.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—The radio has been definitely proven to be a valuable asset in railroading, Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways, declared in an air address which marked the fourth anniversary of the establishment of its first broadcasting station by Canada's transcontinental railway.

The Canadian National was the pioneer railway in America to adopt radio as a part of its service and the result of what four years ago was regarded as an experiment has been watched with interest by executives of other railways. Several big American systems have since entered the radio field.

Public Likes Service.

"From every point of view the establishment of our broadcasting system has been amply justified," Sir Henry declared. "The public has shown keen appreciation of the service it has enabled us to render to both radio fans and travelers in Canada and the United States and it has been of great help within the organization itself."

Now Has Ten Stations.

The Canadian National radio system has grown from a single station in Montreal to a chain of ten stations, stretching across Canada from Atlantic to Pacific. In addition to its broadcasting service the road makes a feature of radio reception on its trains, some fifty trains now being equipped with receiving sets in the library-observation cars. The anniversary broadcast was a hookup of the Montreal, Ottawa, and Toronto stations. Vice President W. D. Robb, who has charge of the radio department, also spoke into the microphone.

LONDON HEARS REDS ARE ACTIVE IN RADIO FIELD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 22.—The Russian information service has recently issued information here that suggests Russia is not so backward in the wireless world as is supposed. It is claimed that more than a million people in the Soviet Union listen in daily and the Soviet government is doing its best to encourage the use of wireless in villages. In four hundred villages of the Moscow and Leningrad provinces, it is said, the public libraries have been fitted with powerful receiving sets and loud speakers, and all the villagers may listen. About three hundred workers' clubs have been equipped in the same manner. Apart from the stations in Moscow and in Leningrad there are powerful transmitters in Khartov, Ivanov, Bogorodsk, Kiev, Nijni Novgorod, Minsk, Voronesh, Tiflis, Baku, and other cities.

30 HOURS OF MUSIC ON WLW'S 5TH BIRTHDAY

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Thirty hours of continuous broadcasting, with no time out, will mark the fifth birthday celebration of WLW. The broadcast begins at 6 o'clock on the night of Jan. 26 and will continue until after midnight on the following day.

Endless variety has been provided in the program, which will run the broadcast scale from comedy numbers to grand opera.

A staff of ten announcers has been recruited to stand watch before the "mike" during the long jubilee. Not for one minute in the whole 30 hour broadcast will the studio of WLW be idle.

U. S. RADIO FARM LESSONS ARE NOW BEING PUBLISHED

The 216 radio lessons comprising the "United States Radio Farm School," broadcast throughout the winter months from 40 of the major radio stations of the country, are being made available in printed form to all regularly enrolled students.

The material is prepared in attractive form in a series of 24 handbooks, which gives the farmer a small reference library on livestock, poultry, and dairying subjects. It is said hundreds of requests are being received daily by the radio service of the department of agriculture at Washington from farmers wishing to be enrolled.

INSIDE THE LOUD SPEAKER

BY QUIN A. RYAN, W-G-N Announcer

"THE radio has widowed a lot of wives and orphaned a lot of young 'uns. In any home today your American family is glued to the ear phones, and so's your old man.

"Radio keeps the married men home o' nights, and then takes them miles away for the whole evening. What good is a husband if he plugs up his ears all the time he is home?

"The incurable and irrevocable radio cuckoo hides his head ostrich-like in the head phone right after dessert and stays there long past curfew, logging stations and leaping from Greenland's icy mountains to Florida's coral strand. He keeps a 'log,' a diary of his nocturnal adventurings, a record of his number of miles per hour.

"Most radio logs are no more important than yesterday's flattery. They serve only to bore everybody the radio fan talks to. They should be carefully checked, filed, kept in a dry place and then fed to Absalom, the children's pet goat.

"But, anyway, they keep us out of mischief." [An excerpt from the new CHICAGO TRIBUNE Radio Book—1927 edition—written by the conductor of this column. The book contains our own History of Broadcasting, clippings from this column, a directory of all American stations arranged geographically, alphabetically and by wave length, and pictures of the various personalities and activities. It may be had for 13 cents in stamps, by writing to the Tribune Public Service, 1 South Dearborn street, Chicago, or from Station W-G-N.]

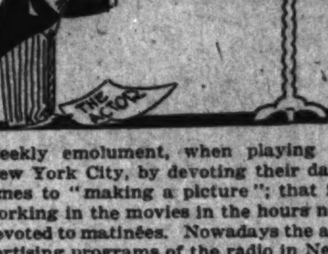
THE VOGUE in radio receiving is to conceal the indoor antenna from view. One inventor has suggested putting the antenna within the wall in new buildings.

But there are many easier places to hide it: Behind the upright piano, or in father's dress suit, or the family can hold it in their laps under the dining table like a ouija board.

ANOTHER PERSON who has found a new profession in this jazz and radio age is the man who fits derby hats on trombones.

AS WE contemplate the present state of baseball and the movies we come to the conclusion that what the radio needs is a good juicy scandal or two.

WISE AND TALENTED actors and actresses have long been doubling their weekly emolument, when playing in New York City, by devoting their daytimes to "making a picture"; that is, working in the movies in the hours not devoted to matinées. Nowadays the advertising programs of the radio in New York offer another channel for pocket money, because the hours of their radio appearances can be picked to suit the actor's convenience.



DAY BY DAY, as has been said before, the radio stations receive more and more odd letters and requests. Here's one of the week:

"The boys mentioned below, all radio fans, are having one of their periodical poker parties Saturday night, and as usual it will last into the wee sma' hours of the morning. A number of our old pals have moved to distant points, and though they cannot be present we want them to know they are with us in spirit. Please broadcast the event about 10 to 11 p. m., mentioning the following names ——."

AND THERE is something sad about the letter from an inmate of the Nevada state prison who has composed and published a song entitled "Just a Memory of Some One I've Trusted," and who is asking the radio stations of the country to broadcast it, as it is his only means of marketing the ballad.

WE ARE MOVED to speculate this morning on how much the radio, with all its entertainment value, has contributed to the rib-tickling merriment of the world. Is the radio deficient in genuine comedy, either subtle or slap-stick?

How many times has something from the radio horn moved you to an outburst of laughter? If you'll write and tell us what incidents or humorous lines have provoked laughter from you, we'll print 'em here next Sunday.

To make an audience laugh is probably the most difficult endeavor of the radio entertainer. Famous comedians may fall flat on the air, and keen humorists sound goofy and hollow.

We hate to surmise that radio comedy requires such trite words as "personality" or "technique," but maybe it's true. It requires, anyway, more personality than technique. No one as yet has mastered a technique of being comical in broadcasting, but some, like Sam 'n' Henry, succeed in projecting a warm humor because of their "human-ness."

What things have struck you as downright funny on the radio?

N. U. INSTRUCTOR TO TEACH W-G-N SPANISH COURSE

Starting with Tuesday's lesson, the Spanish students of W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel, are to have a new teacher. Roberto Brenes-Mesen, associate professor of romance languages at Northwestern university, will take over the instruction of the 2,000 listeners enrolled for the course. One lesson is broadcast every Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Mr. Brenes-Mesen is a corresponding member of the Real Academia-Espanola, and was formerly minister of public instruction and minister of foreign affairs of Costa Rica. He plans to gradually develop the lessons until the most modern methods of imparting instruction in a foreign language are being used.

EUROPEAN FANS HAVE PROBLEMS OF THEIR OWN TO WORRY ABOUT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

London, Jan. 22.—The regulation of European wave lengths which was drawn up last fall at Geneva in accordance with an international scheme is meeting with but indifferent success if various reports are to be credited. Arthur Burrows of the International Broadcasting union is of the opinion that it is proving successful, but other officials of the wireless union declare that it has introduced a veritable babel in the ether.

So far as the ordinary distant listener in England is concerned the scheme has been disappointing. They had been looking forward to the time when they will be able to tune into foreign station without Europton interference. The Geneva scheme was designated for this very purpose, and while it is admitted here that the interference has been slightly lessened, it is still considerable and nowhere near expectations.

Of course the greatest interference comes from fifteen Spanish stations which have ignored the Geneva plan. They are still working on their old wave lengths. The Radio Barcelona, which has always come in here clear and strong, is still using a wave length of 324 meters instead of its alloted 280, and therefore interfers strongly with Belfast and Breslau.

Protests are coming in thick and fast from all parts of the country, and disappointed dialtwisters demand that something be done quickly to relieve the wave length congestion.

Folk Songs of All Nations in New W-G-N Feature

Folk songs of the nations will be heard in the new feature, "Over the Hills and Far Away," which starts over W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel, Tuesday evening at 10:45 o'clock. It will be broadcast each Tuesday and Thursday evening at the same time in the future.

Fantozzi in Violin Recital from WENR on Wednesday

A violin recital will be broadcast from station WENR at 8 o'clock Wednesday, in which William Fantozzi, famed symphony artist, will be featured. Among other compositions Mr. Fantozzi will play the celebrated Sonata in G minor by Grieg.

MONDAY, FEB. 21, WILL BE CHICAGO NIGHT FROM KPO

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—For the benefit of Chicago listeners, scores of whom are tuning in the KPO late Monday night frolic, the night of Feb. 21 has been designated as "Chicago night" and the variety program on that evening, beginning at 11 o'clock, Pacific standard time, will contain many features appropriate to the activities of the great metropolis of Lake Michigan. The city by the Golden Gate will send messages of greeting to the eastern city and prominent people of Chicago who are sojourning in California will return the compliments by telling listeners throughout the country of their city.

BOBBY BURNS TO BE HONORED AT W-G-N TUESDAY

Scotch Bard's Poems to Be Presented.

In celebration of the one hundred and sixty-eighth anniversary of Robert Burns, Scotland's most famous poet, W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel, is to offer a special program built around his life and works on Tuesday evening at 10:10 o'clock.

Readings from Burns' works, special musical arrangements of many of his poems and selections from his famous vernacular poems that have been set to music will constitute the entertainment.

Sketch of Burns' Life.

A special romantic sketch of Burns' life has been prepared for the show and this will be read by Announcer Bill Hay, to an original musical accompaniment by Alfred G. Wathall. Mr. Hay will also read several of Burns' poems, bringing into play the Scotch "burr" for which he is famous.

The W-G-N mixed quartet, consisting of Helen Protheroe, soprano; Kathleen Ryan, contralto; Gilbert Ford, tenor, and Mark Love, basso, will also be heard together with the W-G-N studio ensemble under the direction of Henry Selinger.

"Lines to a Mouse."

Among the typical poems of Burns which will be used in the program are the "To a Mouse," in which occurs the famous couplet, "The best laid plans o' mice and men gang aft agley," and "Scots wha hae wi' Wallace bled," that has become Scotland's national anthem.

The program will conclude at 10:45 o'clock.

SAM 'N' HENRY NEED A WAGON TO START WORK

Who has a wagon for sale? "Sam 'n' Henry," the famous comic strip characters of W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel, want one. Having decided to go into the expressing and transfer business, the boys recently purchased a horse and they are now seeking a wagon with which to start business. Henry is the president and treasurer of the company and Sam is advertising manager.

The ad appears today in the classified columns of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. As soon as the wagon is secured they will go out for business in earnest.

CINCINNATI FANS PLAN NATIONAL BODY OF MILLION

A campaign has been started for one million members by the United States Radio society, a national organization of radio listeners with headquarters at Cincinnati. No one interested in the manufacture or sale of radio receivers or appliances may be connected with the society. It was organized a year ago by prominent business men of Cincinnati, all radio fans, and subsequently received the indorsement of the Cincinnati better business bureau. The president is Fred G. Gruen, the watch manufacturer. After another year a national election will be held and fans will choose their own officers. Paul A. Greene, for four years manager of WSAI, has been appointed managing director.

Dill and White Challenged to Debate on Radio Bill

Muscatine, Ia., Jan. 22.—[Special.]—Norman Baker, president of the American Broadcasters, an organization of broadcasting stations located in smaller cities and towns, has challenged United States Senator C. C. Dill and Representative W. H. White, both of whom are sponsoring radio bills now before congress, to a joint debate with him as a means of getting all the facts in the radio legislation squabble before the public. Should Senator Dill and Representative White agree, the debate will be broadcast by station KTNT.

Famous Voice Teacher Said

To train for the operatic stage a singer must submit to years and years of study and practise. It is only in this way that natural talent at last reaches its perfection. Then tones are made without apparent effort, pure and round, full of feeling; melodious, powerful, with great range, and capable of tender beauty. No wonder that the perfect recreation of voices has been one of radio's hardest jobs. Acme Engineers worked 6 years and made 370 experimental models, before they produced the new Acme Enclosed Free Edge Cone and Acme Reproducing Unit. Try it at your dealer's. See how perfect is the illusion that the singer is in the same room.

PHILLIP ABBAS.

JOSEF HOFMANN, the world-famed pianist, will be heard in a recital to be broadcast tonight at 8:15 o'clock over W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel. In the same hour tonight with Hofmann, Ann Mack, soprano, will be heard in a group of songs. Miss Mack is a Kansas City girl, who studied voice in the Argentine. She will be accompanied by Estelle Liebling.

The Lyon & Healy artist recital this afternoon at 2 o'clock will be given by Phillip Abbas, cellist. He will include in his program "Evening Song" and "Träumerei," by Schumann; "Papillon," by Popper; "Ave Verum," by Mozart; "Meditation from Thais," by Massenet; "Berceuse from Jocelyn," by Godard; "Londonderry Air," by Kreisler; "Scherzo," by Van Goens; "Tarantella," by Popper.

The North Side Turner hall concert of the Philharmonic orchestra, Richard Czerwonky, conductor, will be broadcast this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Joseph A. Schwickerath, who personally directs these concerts held under the auspices of the Chicago Turngemeinde, will feature today Miss Lillian Magnuson, pianist. The Salernos will give a program during the intermission. The orchestra will be heard in "March of the Toy Soldiers," by Herbert; Overture, "Orpheus in the Underworld," by Offenbach; Grand Fantasie, "Tosca," by Puccini; waltz, "Donau Wellen," by Ivanovici; March, "Universal Peace," by Bion. Miss Magnuson will play the B flat minor concerto by Tschaikowsky, "Toccato," by Holst, and "The Prophet Bird," by Schumann. The orchestra requests suggestions from its listeners for the numbers of a request program to be played on Feb. 20.

Tuesday being the anniversary of the Scottish poet, Robert Burns, it is a foregone conclusion that Auld Sandy will use his poems at least during the greater part of his Sunday night program, 8 to 8:15. Listeners who have known Scotland have often written in that Auld Sandy gives them a homesick pang in his interpretation of Scotch poetry.

Compositions from Ethelbert Nevin, sometimes called the "Chopin of America," will be heard during the Our Music Room period, 9:15 to 10 o'clock. The Drake concert ensemble, under the direction of Henry Selinger, will play "In Arcady," "Ophelia," "Narcissus," and "A Day in Venice." Leon Benditzky, pianist will play two numbers, "Barcarolle" and "Water Nymphs." Helen Protheroe, soprano, will be heard in the following vocal numbers: "Rosalie," "Tell Me, Bewitching Maiden," "Mighty Lak a Rose," "At Twilight," "Deep in Roses," and "Glowing Heart."

Details of today's W-G-N program:

12 m. to 1 p. m.—Uncle Walt's reading of the comics to the children.

WBBM TO SHOW BRITISH HAVE HUMOR BY MUSIC

An introduction to English humor as manifest in modern music by contemporary English composers will be given by WBBM at 8:15 Jan. 25. Impudent music and music with no rhythm will be included among the more conservative compositions, which will give a sample of what England is contibuting to musical history now in the making.

"Sonata," by Cyril Scott, will be played by Lester D. Mather, concert pianist and musical director of WBBM. This piece is written in free rhythm with each bar having a tempo of its own. "Romance," a violin number in the same style, will be played by Jan Chico.

Compositions by Eugene Goossens, Arnold Bax, and Arthur Hinton also will be presented.

RADIO STARS OF KYW IN SHOW AT ORCHESTRA HALL

A concert to be given exclusively by radio stars from the Edison studio of station KYW is scheduled for Feb. 11 at 8:15 p. m., in Orchestra hall. The concert is also to be broadcast direct from the stage.

The Edison Symphony orchestra, under the direction of Morgan L. Eastman, which is KYW's late Sunday offering, is to be one of the big events of this program. It will be assisted by artists of Edison studio, KYW, among whom will be Mme. Louise Vernet, soprano; Miss Florence Hallberg, mezzo soprano; Miss Lucille Long, contralto; Lewis Meehan, tenor; Arthur Wellington, baritone; Miss Sallie Menkes, pianist; Miss Audrey Call, violinist; Miss Lillian Rehberg, violincellist, and Jeroslav Cimera, trombonist.

ANN MACK AND JOSEF HOFMANN ON AIR TONIGHT

Will Be Heard on W-G-N, The Tribune Station.

Ann Mack, soprano, and Josef Hofmann, America's premier pianist, will broadcast the Atwater Kent concert tonight from W-G-N, the CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel.

Miss Mack, the first singer to make her professional debut over the radio, is a Kansas City girl. She lived in Argentina for several years, where she studied voice. Five years ago she returned to this country and was encouraged to continue her study, which she did, spending last year in preparation for her debut.

Father Taught Hofmann.

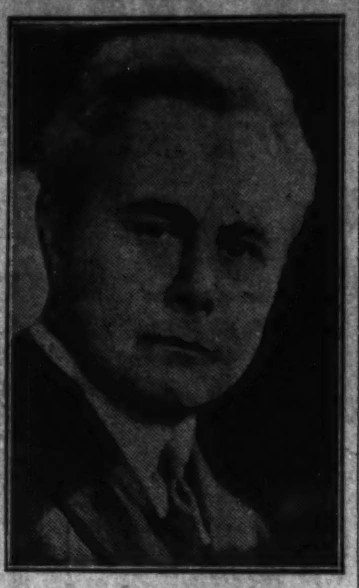
Hofmann's story is familiar. Born in Cracow, Poland, he studied there until he came to this country, his father being his sole tutor. The latter was a pianist and professor of harmony at the conservatory of Cracow.

Henry Abbey of the Metropolitan brought young Hofmann to this country in the '80s when the child prodigy was such a little fellow that he had to have a specially made chair and pedals. Here he interested wealthy art loving Americans who arranged for his study under Anton Rubinstein. In less than ten years Rubinstein told him he was ready, and then began his remarkable career.

Critics Praise Him.

New York newspaper critics say "Josef Hofmann is the master pianist in his class—and there are so few in that class that he must feel lonely," Times; "In the minds of the majority of capable judges, the master of them all," World; "Undoubtedly one of the greatest, if not the greatest pianist of his day," Herald.

ON AIR TONIGHT



JOSEF HOFMANN.

Famous pianist who will be heard tonight in the 8:15 to 9:15 program from W-G-N.

MODERN RADIO OUTFITS BIG AID TO COAST GUARD

Washington, D. C., Jan. 22.—Where a year ago the service was hampered by obsolete radio equipment, Rear Admiral Frederick C. Billard reports gratifying results have been obtained by the modernization program of the coast guard. Up to date radio apparatus has been designed and plans are under way for placing it aboard ships as rapidly as possible. The installation of radio equipment commenced last year has been completed on the patrol boats which make life miserable for rum runners.

High Frequency Used.

"In order to keep pace with the fast growing radio art and at the same time increase the usefulness and efficiency of the International Ice Patrol service," Admiral Billard said, "radio apparatus employing high frequencies and comparatively low power were installed on the vessels assigned to that duty. Results were gratifying.

Rapid Communication Needed.

"Radio communication was maintained daily during the season with Washington direct, a distance of 2,400 miles, instead of the former practice of relaying through land radio stations and thence to Washington over land wires."

The need for rapid communication has necessitated the equipping of 273 coast guard ships with radio and the establishing of 23 stations for handling ship to shore messages.

THIS is the Master Ray-O-Vac Heavy Duty 45-volt "B" battery No. 9303, recommended for all sets for 4 or more tubes

RAY-O-VAC
RADIO "B" BATTERY

Now they last still longer!

EXCEPTIONAL staying power has always been a most important quality in Ray-O-Vac radio batteries.

Now a new type of construction makes these long-life batteries last from 10% to 15% longer yet!

This new construction does away with the pitch-filled top, making the 45-volt heavy duty battery four pounds lighter. Short circuits are practically eliminated, and each cell gives all its strength in service.

Ray-O-Vac batteries are also famous for their low internal resistance. In "B" batteries this means less distortion in signals and therefore better reception.

There are twice as many radio owners who know these facts, using Ray-O-Vac batteries, as there were a year ago.

Leading radio dealers everywhere handle Ray-O-Vac batteries. If you have any difficulty getting them write us.

Why not listen to programs —instead of arguments?

MODEL 35, illustrated, 6-tube ONE Dial Receiver, less tubes and batteries, but with battery cable attached, $70. Speaker, Model H, $21.

THE greatest musicians of the world are knocking at your door and asking, "May we come in and entertain you?"

Their music—their voices—are vibrating in the air all round your home right now. Let them in—instantly—with an Atwater Kent ONE Dial Receiver.

"How's that?" you say. "Instantly?"

Absolutely. Split second operation. That's the speed of the Atwater Kent ONE Dial. You can't help getting the station you want if it's within range.

You don't have to touch another thing on your set. ONE Dial—one hand—does it all. You don't have to sit frozen to a particular station because it's so much trouble to change. It's not that kind of a set. With an Atwater Kent ONE Dial you jump from station to station at will.

Millions are listening to the world's headliners these winter evenings. Why should you shut them out any longer—when it's so easy to let them in?

Chance for Hawks in Contract Bridge

By Mme. X.

TALK about that hawk in the loop and its assaults on the poor pigeons—it is nothing to the expert bridge player and his or her devilish work among the ordinary poor goops when contract bridge is the game. Contract bridge has been recently brought here from the east and is now, as it were, clutching the vitals of the bridge playing set. As far as this p. p. p. knows it was first introduced to the local card intelligentsia by Mrs. F. C. Letts of Washington, who was the guest of her daughter, Mrs. John Borden, early in December. It is not this devouring game's first appearance among us, as the late Dr. Samuel J. Walker brought a similar form of bridge when he returned from Red Cross work in Greece and Macedonia. Then it was called Greek or "Grecian" bridge. It did not long enjoy approbation, as it was considered too difficult and too steep a game.

Its chief characteristic is, as its name implies, that the bidder undertakes to take a certain number of tricks, and any that he or she may make above this contract are not counted. It is in the scoring that the game makes its most deadly assault on the nerves. In the honor column, especially, the figures grow into what seems to a timid outsider an enormous size. To have won one game puts you in the position of the fattest pigeon in the loop.

You are called "vulnerable" [a horrid term!], which means that if you don't make your contract your adversaries score 100 for each unmade trick. If they have doubled your bid it costs you 200 for each failure to reach your bid. If they make a little slam on your bid they get 750, and if by any chance they score a large slam on you and you have already a game, they write 1,500 on their honor score.

The winners of a rubber write 300 on their score. If you fail to bid for a slam you get no premium. Penalties for not making your bid are 50 per trick, if you are not vulnerable, that is, if you haven't already a game to your credit. If you have, these lost tricks count 100 for the first trick and 200 for the other tricks lost. Each game won scores 200 in the honor column. If your adversaries have doubled your bid and you are not a game in, you lose 100 for the first four tricks, 200 for the fifth trick, and 400 for any others. If you are vulnerable each of these lost tricks is doubled in value for your adversaries.

You lose two tricks for each revoke in a different suit. For every subsequent revoke in the same suit your adversary scores 100 in his or her honor score. For an unbid slam you get no premium. Doubling and redoubling does not alter slam premiums. Trick values are greatly increased; clubs and diamonds count 20 each trick; hearts and spades, 30; no trumps, 35, and doubling doubles these until the score looks like the mounting values of the Ford stock.

Game is no longer that pleasant and not too difficult thirty. That one could get with one contract bridge trick. It is now one hundred trick points.

A Sporting Adventure..

You can readily see to what heights the score can mount in a comparatively short time and how the bridge hawks could turn the poor pigeon into a mass of disintegrating feathers in less time than it takes to tell the tale. The women who have taken up this murderous game, and it is among the women players that it has found greatest favor, are trying to even up matters by playing for half a cent a point instead of their usual one or two cent stake. I doubt if any quartet indulges in that pleasant two and a half cents a point which made a Saturday afternoon game just a little more exciting.

This new form of that most diverting and interesting of card games, auction bridge, is teaching one excellent virtue, to wit: a caution in bidding and play which was not the attribute of the average bridge player. It has one drawback. It makes the money for which the game is played by the expert more important. The minute the stake for which a game is played becomes the chief consideration, that instant the game, whatever it be, becomes a matter of business, not pleasure, and the player enters the ranks of the professional gamblers.

A small stake, or one whose average result is not troublesome to the player, adds to the zest of play without harm to the player. But one which breeds fear or greed in the heart of the player puts card playing into the ranks of the vices, from which most civilized states try to protect their citizens. No one should play contract bridge who fears too much to lose or longs too intensely to win, or who has not abundant means with which to pay the piper. In event of either of these emotions—fear or greed—you become either a pigeon or a hawk.

A Distinguished Guest.

The chief social events of the coming week are, first, the visit of his excellency the Italian ambassador, Baron Giacomo di Martino, who is coming at the invitation of the Italy America society. He arrives today for a three day sojourn. Until tonight he is in the hands of his country people. The Italian consul general, Sig. Leopold Zunini, is at the head of the committee in charge of his entertainment.

Tomorrow morning the Italy America society, of which Ralph Van Vechten is president, will take him on a tour of the city, showing him places of interest. At noon there will be a bankers' luncheon for him. Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis gives a tea for him in the afternoon at the Ambassador. The I. A. society gives a dinner for him in the evening at the Casino, followed by a reception for him there.

On Tuesday he will be the guest of President Mason and the University of Chicago at luncheon. That afternoon Mrs. Chauncey B. Blair will be hostess at a tea she gives in his honor at her residence on Briar place. That evening Mrs. Waller Borden gives a dinner for him at her Lake Shore drive house, and takes her guests afterwards to the opera, when "The Barber of Seville" will be given.

The title of baron is rather unusual in Italy. I don't know whether it ranks higher than that of count in that country, but rather think so. Baron di Martino's previous post was at the Japanese court at Tokio, so he comes to us with an unusual knowledge of our most important western neighbor. He is, of course, an ardent admirer and advocate of Mussolini, and represents him as well as Italy in this country.

The Italy America Society.

The Italy America society was started five years or so ago. The late Mrs. Russell Tyson was one of its ardent founders. Arthur Aldis was its first president. The late Marquis Eaton was another president of the society. After his death interest in the organization lessened, but was revived two years ago, largely through the inspiration of Countess Robilante of Florence. Now Mr. Van Vechten and his board of directors are putting this valuable association again on the map. On the board are Prof. Rudolph Altrocchi, Mrs. William E. Clarke, Louis Eckstein, Giuseppe Garibaldi, Miss Janet Kittredge, Horace S. Oakley, Augustus Peabody, Lorado Taft, Frederick Charles Thwaite, Dean Ernest H. Wilkins, and Frank O. Wetmore. A. H. Price is secretary. The I. A. S. is affiliated with the Italy America society of New York, with the Associazione Italo Americano of Rome, and the Istituto Italo Britannico of Florence, Italy.

During its first year of existence Prince Caetani, at that time the Italian ambassador to Washington, came out as the guest of this society, and was entertained at a luncheon it gave for him in the Fortnighty rooms. He was a tall, distinguished looking man, fulfilling what one expects of the scion of an ancient and aristocratic family, an expectation, however, that is not always realized. The Caetani family gets its name, I believe, from the fact that one of its early ancestors is reputed to have obtained possession of the chains with which Jesus Christ was bound, the name Caetani meaning chains.

The present heir to the family name and traditions is very modern and up to date in his ideas. He is redeeming by scientific drainage large regions of marsh lands, part of that great swamp district that lies between the Apennines and the sea, turning it into the finest kind of arable land and helping eliminate the malaria which has for centuries been such a curse to the peasantry of that part of Italy.

Opera's Gala Night.

The second of the week's chief events is the Chicago Civic Opera's gala performance next Friday evening, its offering to its guarantors, season box and seat holders, and members of the Friends of Opera. This gala night is a unique institution founded by Samuel Insull the first or second year of his taking over the duties of managing director. I don't think any other opera company has such a splendid festival as this. It invites as guests the above mentioned opera patrons to an evening wherein practically every member of the troupe gives his or her services in a program that presents acts or scenes from several of the best operas in the company's répertoire.

Chicago opera patrons and supporters have thus an opportunity to take stock of the company and its achievements. This musical event was designed to take the place of the annual ball which the Friends of Opera used to give in honor of the artists of the opera company. Each season this evening practically closes the tuneful twelve weeks, which is our opera season, in a burst of glory. There are, of course, the Saturday matinée and evening presentations the day following, but the gala performance celebrates the opera company's work for the winter, and sounds the knell of the social season.

On many sides I hear remarks to the effect that the Chicago Civic Opera company this year has been better than ever before. There are, of course, knockers—what alive and alert community is without them? But they are not formidable here and do not include many people who have worked for the existence and development of the organization. This remarkable enterprise is yearly taking deeper roots in our civic life and qualifying to become as much a part of our esthetic development as the Art institute, or the Symphony orchestra.

Few people have any realization of the amount of time, attention, and mental energy it takes to carry on such an organization. These are freely given to Chicago by a man who may, with justice, be called our busiest, most important citizen. One would think that to run the three most important of our public utilities, our electric light, our gas, and a large part of our transportation, and to run them more efficiently than the same are carried on elsewhere in the country, is enough to occupy the time and attention of one man. But Samuel Insull took on, six years ago, the job of making grand opera a part of our civic life and he means to succeed in this as he has in every other enterprise. Here's wishing him the uttermost of ultimate fine fruition: a splendid troupe of artists in its own opera house and with a firm financial foundation.

In the Interests of Chicago.

Apropos of grand opera, Aksel Faber, the attractive husband of Mme. Eleanor Sawyer of the Chicago Civic Opera company, says that if he comes to Chicago next season he will bring with him a flock of hawks—Danish pigeon hawks—and let one out each day on Michigan avenue near the Art institute. This he will do in the interests of Chicago's reputation, because, he asserts, apparently there hasn't been a real murder committed in the city since the advent of the mysterious feathered pigeon slayer. At least, none so conspicuous as the doings of this accipitrine bird (see the dictionary).

Mr. Faber left Chicago last Thursday for New York, whence he sails shortly for France. He will join his wife at Milan later in the season. The Fabers have an ancient and most picturesque castle high up in the Vosges mountains, where they spend some part of the summer. Mr. Faber is a Dane. Mrs. Faber, or Mme. Eleanor Sawyer, as she is known in operatic circles, is a Chicagoan, having been born and brought up here. Her mother was the late Mrs. Emma S. Sawyer, a daughter of a once prominent citizen here, the late Perry Smith. So Mme. Eleanor Sawyer, like Henry M. Webber, one of the opera directors, also a Chicagoite, has a special claim on the attention of the Chicago public.

Although I have met her socially through her aunt, Mrs. John V. Farwell, I have not heard her sing yet. If she is as attractive on the stage as she is off, she ought to make a success in her artistic career.

At the Arts Club.

Today at the Arts club at three o'clock a noted French modernist, Darius Milhaud, is to speak on "The Evolution of French Contemporary Music." M. Milhaud is one of "The Six," as a small group of French composers is called. Some of the others are Honegger (composer of the music of "Judith"), Auric, Poulenc, and Germaine Taillefer, the latter the only woman of The Six.

The Arts club has been giving its members an extraordinary opportunity this winter to meet and hear some remarkable opponents of today's trend in art, music, and other departments of esthetics.

The Chicago Play Producing company is gathering speed and momentum to carry out its program before the winter season ends here. To help its operation Sam Wren, general manager of the Actors' theater in New York has been offered and accepted a similar post in the Chicago enterprise. He is a more than usually interesting individual. In the first place, to go 'way back in his history, he is a descendant of the great English architect, Sir Christopher Wren. It might have been a reversion to type that made him take a course in architecture at Columbia university, although intermediate ancestry evidently inclined him toward the stage. He came of a line of stage folk that dates back seven generations.

In 1890 there were six Wrens who danced, sang, did acrobatics, and other stunts to the great diversion of the audiences of that time at the Boston museum. He is a cousin of Blanche Bates, of Nydia Westman, and of the late Eugenie Blair, who will be remembered by Chicago theater goers for her fine presentation of the water front woman in "Anna Christie." Harry C. Miner, owner of many theaters, was an uncle. So you see Mr. Wren has the theater in his blood in spite of the fact that he was named for a Scotch grandfather, one Samuel McIndoe Wren, whose fleet of merchant vessels were in the fruit importing business and were the first to bring red bananas to this country.

Encouraging Good Drama.

Mr. Wren and the Chicago Play Producing company plan to produce three pieces here. "The Ragged Edge" and "Lazarus Laughs" have already been much heralded as the first two of the trio. The last has not yet been decided upon. The Goodman theater will be the playhouse in which these pieces will be produced. Its large stage and spacious seating amphitheater fit it especially well for such pieces.

Every one interested in promoting good drama in this country ardently hopes for the success of this latest comer in the ranks of stage uplift. The American stage needs some kind of boost to bring it up to standards that used to prevail. In this "standards" is a relative term. What used to entertain and interest our ancestors would not entertain or interest us now. But in relation to the rest of life the stage used to be of a much higher type and standing than anything we have now

Dissatisfaction with it, at present, is manifested by the great number of "little theaters" that are sprouting up all over the land. They do not live long, but are nevertheless a sign of the need that is felt for something better than is offered us by the present rulers of plays and play production.

We need playwrights as well as actors and stage managers. Were there a twentieth century Sheridan, one who could handle modern problems with a light and deft touch, or a Pinero, who delighted the world thirty or forty years ago, playgoers in great numbers could be found to fill the theaters. High comedy would succeed, where the heavy tragedy, seemingly so popular with modern highbrow dramatists, fails to grip the attention of the light hearted playgoer.

A Thrilling Experience.

Mrs. Arthur Ryerson and her houseboat guests are probably on the upper reaches of the Nile at this moment on her dahabeah, the S. S. Fostat. On the way to southern Europe the S. S. Roma in which Mrs. Ryerson and her party were taking the first step of their trip to Egypt was caught in a fierce storm in the course of which it was stopped by two separate S. O. S. signals. In a recent letter from Mrs. Ryerson she gives a thrilling account of these two incidents. The first was a ship in trouble off the Azores, "such a sight, tattered sails, hanging masts, and rolling in the trough of the sea." So fierce was the storm that the Roma had to leave it to make what way it could to the not distant islands.

The second ship calling for help that same night, 150 miles away, was a sinking boat laden with marble. "A lifeboat was launched with eight sailors and two officers, volunteers, and we watched anxiously as the little lights peering into the mist for a moment a white ghost of a ship, like the flying Dutchman, appeared and then vanished across the path of the lights. The men were gotten off and we watched anxiously as the little boat, laden with twenty-six survivors, battled valiantly against the waves, sometimes hidden entirely and then reappearing. It was a gallant sight and moving and beautiful as they rounded the bow of our great ship in the night, with huzzas and bravos breaking out and the searchlights picking out the struggling figures, gaining each moment a little and then pushed back by a huge sea. . . . They had been four days without food."

Mrs. Ryerson was on the Titanic on its one and only fateful voyage with her husband (who sank with the ship) and their two daughters and youngest son, who with herself were saved, so the sight of these rescued sailors was an especially poignant and vivid one to her. She writes, "I knew well the passion of gratitude that was theirs, though all they said, as they came up, was, 'Grazie, fratelli.'"

Correcting an Error.

I am very glad to correct here an error made two weeks ago when I wrote of the lads of 16 years of age who carried hip pocket flasks to their holiday parties here. I am assured that they were not the boys who attend the best known private school on the north side. They were probably older lads from eastern or other boarding schools. It is to be hoped that they may see the error of their ways before it is too late to hope to become decent citizens.

A boy who sports such a flask and drinks of its contents is not likely to grow up into a desirable member of a community. To learn lawbreaking and dissipation early in life is like having smallpox or some other defacing disease; it leaves ineffaceable and hideous scars. The Chicago school in question is one of the best things that has come into our civic life in many a year because of the high standard it sets.

At the Casino Tomorrow.

The chief event at the Casino tomorrow will be the luncheon which Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank is giving there for the board of the Lying-In hospital, at which Dr. Abraham Flexner of New York will be the principal guest. At 3:30 that same afternoon Mrs. Fairbank will preside at a meeting at the Studebaker theater. The annual members of the hospital associations and the Mothers' Aid, an organization of 1,500 women, will be the guests of the hospital board at this meeting. The full details of the affiliation contract will be explained to these friends of the hospital as well as to a group of Chicagoans who have been invited to attend. President Max Mason of the University of Chicago, Dr. Flexner, and Dr. Joseph Bolivar De Lee, who founded the hospital and whose interest and skill have made it internationally famous, will be the speakers. There will be no solicitation of funds at either the luncheon or the meeting.

WOMEN'S CLUB PAGE

Campaign Against Illiteracy Started

BY KATE WEBBER.

A CAMPAIGN which is bound to to have far reaching, beneficial effect is the new work to be undertaken by the department of education of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, of which Mrs. Grant Beebe is chairman. It is to be a survey of the foreign born and illiterates in the state, and a further plan of assisting these persons to become more useful citizens.

"American communities are composed of many threads woven together, loosely, with many frayed edges, or into a harmonizing pattern," says Mrs. Beebe. Many traditions with strange bits of custom and color are brought to us in devious ways, absorbed, and reborn into our American institutions. Many of those who have come to Illinois from other countries have brought additions to the culture and richness of our life. The great mass of immigrants, however, need readjustments that are not so easily made as the first step they usually take in getting clothes to make them look like Americans.

Education Offered.

"We offer opportunities of educational facilities to children, and in many instances to adults. Most of the children are reached through the schools, many of the adults are reached through the places in which they are employed. But the great majority are ignorant of their opportunities.

"The census which was taken in 1920 gave to Illinois 173,987 illiterates; 11.6 were foreign born. Almost 100,000 of these were in Chicago. Twenty thousand Mexicans have come to Chicago within the last year. The 1920 census was hardly correct, for it listed as illiterates foreign born men and women who had received education in their own countries, but who know nothing of the English language. The Illinois federation has adopted the slogan, 'No illiteracy in 1930,' and we mean to know what gains we are making in its reduction by finding out how many illiterates there are and where they are."

The educational department of the state has been asked by Mrs. John Dickinson Sherman, president of the General Federation of Women's clubs, to make a survey of at least one county and find how many foreign born and illiterates there are. The Illinois federation is going further into the matter and will survey the entire state.

Careful Organization.

Suggestions and plans for organization and carrying on of this work will be sent to every county and district chairman by the state chairman. They are being asked to meet and plan an active campaign. There are registration cards for each individual which will be given to every county and district willing to coöperate in this great work.

These foreign born women are a potential power in the state of Illinois, and when they are found and become acquainted with the clubwomen and hear of the opportunities offered, they will be easily persuaded to take advantage of them. For it is expected that the federation will follow its survey with a campaign of education reaching every adult. Personal visits to the homes and getting registration cards filled in, always using a grown child or an adult as an interpreter when needed, are necessary. It is important that every adult understand the purpose of the survey. The purpose is to locate every adult unable to speak, read, and write the English language, and help them to be speaking, reading, thinking, and self-directing members of society.

The survey is to be completed by May 1, so that a report may be given at the state convention to be held in Danville that month.

THE department of education of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs, of which Mrs. Grant Beebe is chairman, is about to inaugurate a systematic survey of the entire state to determine the number of foreign born and illiterates. The General federation has called for this survey in one county of each state, but Illinois will make a complete statewide report.

The annual mid-winter ball and card party sponsored by the Canterbury club for its philanthropy fund will be given on Friday evening at the Edgewater Beach hotel. Mrs. Sidney S. David, president of the club, will receive with the other officers.

Mrs. Thomas P. Lilly is a member of the committee in charge of the annual charity card party of the Catholic Woman's league, to be given next Saturday afternoon at the Edgewater Beach hotel. The proceeds will benefit the several charities and day nurseries in which the league is interested.

CLUB ETHICS

By Maude Swalm Evans.

THE committee chairman, the long time member, and the charter member were having lunch together at the club.

"I understand," said the long time member to the committee chairman, "that you have the good fortune to have on your committee one of the most brilliant and the most favorably known woman in the club."

"Hear! hear!" broke in the charter member.

"One who is rendering exceedingly efficient service," continued the long time member, "and one who, although she never makes mistakes herself, is quick to see them when others blunder, and her suggestions for evading or correcting them never fail, if followed."

"Well, well, who is this paragon?" asked the committee chairman. "I may have such a one on my committee, but——"

"You aren't telling me you don't know who it is?" persisted the long time member. "Such a clever woman, such an outstanding woman, one who is capable of handling any office in the club with credit, if given a chance."

"Who told you all this?" demanded the committee chairman.

"Why, she did," admitted the long time member.

"'Would you be well praised, praise yourself, and don't trust others to do it,'" misquoted the charter member.

"It sounds like Mrs. Paris," guessed the committee chairman.

"Yes, yes, that's the name," recalled the long time member. "I remember now that some city was named for her."

"She must be an 'I' specialist," opined the charter member. "I've suspected it from the few talks I've had with her, and now I know it."

"What a suspicious nature you have!" accused the long time member. "You call the lady outrageous names just because she says a good word for herself when she gets the chance."

"That's something she should let others do for her," returned the charter member.

"It's a queer but interesting fact," reflected the committee chairman, "that self-praise usually has just the opposite effect from that which the self-praiser desires—it tends to belittle work that may have real value."

Question.

"When a chairman, after reading a report of her committee, hands the report to the secretary, does she yield her right to the floor? P. N. A."

Reply.

No; a chairman reading a report, or having it read by the secretary, has a right to the floor when the reading is finished.

Question.

"Should an auditor be a member of the finance committee? Mrs. R. A."

Reply.

No; it is better for the auditor not to be associated with expenditures which she is to audit.

Sell Tom Sawyer's Lover's Leap for $7

PALMYRA, Mo.—"Lover's Leap," overlooking the Mississippi river at Hannibal, Mo., immortalized by Mark Twain as Cardiff hill in his book "Tom Sawyer," was recently sold at sheriff's sale for $7. Robert L. Marks of Hannibal was the purchaser.

This plot of ground, which comprises the very peak of the gigantic bluff, and includes the historic leap, is a part of the old Settles-Trice estate and consists of a little more than a half acre. The property was sold for back taxes against it amounting to $70 and the sale was conducted by Sheriff Clarence L. Bender of Palmyra, county seat of Marion county.

The bidding was not spirited—in fact, there were only three persons in attendance aside from the auctioneer-sheriff. They were Ben Ely Jr., prosecuting attorney of Marion county; Robert L. Marks, deputy sheriff, and a local newspaper man. Mr. Ely and Mr. Marks were the only bidders, the former offering $5 and the latter $7.

The Ancient Legend.

Many years ago, the legend tells us, a beautiful Indian maiden, spurned by her lover, leaped from the summit of this hill, which is a natural platform of stone, into the waters of the Mississippi river 200 feet below. Hence, it's name. The story of her tragic passing has been handed down from generation to generation since the time white man first inhabited northeast Missouri.

The legend of the Indian maid, however, is not the only historical memory connected with "Lover's Leap." In the spring of 1850 Tom Sawyer stood on this famous hill and watched a line of white topped wagons creep slowly across the lowlands of Illinois. One by one he saw them go aboard rudely constructed ferries, then drive off again, many for the first time upon Misouri soil, where they resumed their journey to join the great caravans headed for the new El Dorado. Gold had been discovered in California the year before and the rush was on.

Tom Sawyer Discovers Cave.

Tom Sawyer, we are told, decided join the throngs that were pressing on toward the land of the setting sun. Learning of a large cave that lay within the shadows of "Lover's Leap," he gave up the long trip across the plains to California and instead of leading Huck Finn, Joe Harper, and the rest of his band to pluck nuggets of gold out of the pits of Death valley, he decided to lead them in the exploration of this mighty cavern, whose mouth seemed to invite adventurous youths. This cave is now famous the world over as Mark Twain cave, and is visited annually by thousands of people, many of them from foreign lands.

Away from the spot where "Lover's Leap" keeps vigil over the peaceful waters of the Mississippi, is the island where we are told Tom Sawyer and his band played pirate. "Lover's Leap" is truly one of the most traditional spots in Missouri and the inhabitants of Mark Twain land look forward to the time when it will be made into a beautiful park, one which Missouri will be proud to have the world visit.

My Greatest Thrill

Write and tell us about the greatest thrill you ever experienced, and if we print your letter we'll pay you $1. Make your letters short and snappy. Address them to "Greatest Thrill" Editor, The Chicago Tribune.

Lost and Found.

Labor day, after watching the yacht races, I went aboard a relative's yacht for a little visit. While being assisted off by my husband he in some way accidentally pulled off my diamond ring and it fell into the harbor, which is quite deep and muddy.

After several unsuccessful attempts to recover it that day, we decided to go home and "make the best of it." My husband decided to make a scoop out of some heavy screen wire and drag the harbor around the place I had dropped it.

He worked three hours the next day and finally he decided to take one more dip and quit, and the last one was the successful one, for up came my ring.

Maybe you think I didn't get a thrill when he telephoned and said, "I've got your ring." MRS. L. E. A.

A Vivid Imagination.

Stepping from a train recently, I was met by seven year old Bobby, of most vivid imagination, who in a great state of excitement said: "Papa, mamma is dead, a man came into the house while you were gone and killed her with a butcher knife."

He added so much grewsome detail on the way, that I found myself more than half-believing his story as I entered the house. The place was absolutely silent and there was no answer to my frantic calls.

Turning to Bobby, I said: "Where is mamma?"

"In there on the floor," he replied, pointing to a bedroom door, challenging me to open it and see for myself.

Frozen with horrow, I pushed the door open by inches. The room to Bobby's surprise and my heavenly relief, was empty. No disorder, gore, or dead body.

As I was still breathing hard, my wife came back from a visit at the neighbors. R. H.

Narrow Squeak.

My greatest thrill was when a passenger train hit the car in which I was riding with two friends. We were crossing the tracks beside a deep ravine. The next thing I was conscious of was a terrible rumbling noise but I lay quiet a second longer which was what saved my life as I had been thrown with my head two inches from the track. The rumbling noise was the train. This being my third car accident, I am almost thrilled to "pieces." A. V.

THIS FREE BOOK Will Point the Way to A High School Diploma

Here is a 48-page booklet just off the press which will give you complete information about high school training. It shows why a high school education is so valuable, how long it will take, the suggested study programs for different vocations and entrance requirements of leading Universities in the Middle West.

Without obligation call at the office, telephone, or write for a free copy of this guide — now. Please state whether you prefer to attend day or evening classes.

DAY AND EVENING CLASSES

The Day classes of Central YMCA High Schools meet the needs of the young man too old to attend public high school or one who requires special individual attention such as is possible only in a private school. Ambitious students can secure a high school diploma in 3 years or occasionally in less time.

Fully Accredited
Credits given by the Day and Evening High Schools are accepted fully without examination by the Universities of Chicago, Illinois, Northwestern and all other Middle West Universities and State Examining Boards. Central YMCA High Schools are members of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

A complete program consisting of all regular, accredited High School subjects is offered in the Evening High School.

Men who are employed during the day may secure a standard high school diploma in from 3 to 4 years' time by attending classes 3 evenings a week.

Convenient Tuition Plan
The YMCA wants to place a high school education within the reach of every young man. If you are unable to pay the full tuition in advance, you are invited to make payments in convenient weekly or semi-monthly payments. There is no red tape about this—just mention it at the time you register.

The Civic String quartet will play at the meeting of the music department of the La Grange Woman's club on Tuesday.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

Trend South and to Europe Increases

By Dolly Madison.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—It is a question whether the exodus to the south is larger than that to Europe or vice versa. However, there is no doubt that the season in New York is fast waning, and that within the month there will be a noticeable lack of celebrities in the metropolis.

Last week saw the departure for the continent of Prince and Princess Serge Obolensky together with the princess' brother, Vincent Astor. Mrs. Ogden Goelet is soon to remove to London to be with her daughter, the Duchess of Roxburghe, for the London season.

The Palm Beach trains are crowded these days, with the heaviest traffic expected this and next week. The wedding of Adelaide Hutton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Hutton, to Thomas Wells Durant, on Wednesday at St. Thomas', kept part of the Palm Beach crowd in town, but immediately following the day of the ceremony many of the guests departed for their homes in the far south.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Drexel Biddle Jr. are among those who have departed for the Florida resort. Others there included Miss Genevieve Clendinin, whose sister, Florence, caused a commotion in social circles by eloping with one Baron Tornow several weeks ago.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. L. Rutherford, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury, Maj. and Mrs. Beatty are already at Palm Beach. Mrs. R. T. Wilson is expected to leave shortly, as will also Mr. and Mrs. J. Theus Munds, Percy B. Pyne II. and Prince Christopher of Greece, who is still in New York.

Ball Marks Season's End.

The charity ball on Tuesday night marked the official end of the winter season in town and, as usual, it was an event of much magnificence and great attendance.

The chain of five ballrooms at the Waldorf-Astoria was put to use, with three orchestras playing continuously during the evening, and a constant flow of notables passing from one room to another.

Debutantes of the winter, dressed in the costumes of the first charity ball of 1857, sold programs, while another note of color was lent by the many naval and army officers present.

Contrary to the custom followed for the last seventy years, the ball did not commence with the grand march. Dancing, as a concession to the younger element, began at ten and it was some time later that Mrs. John S. Rogers, president of the ball, opened the grand march with Admiral Plunkett as her partner.

A much observed figure present was the venerable Mrs. Algernon Sydney Sullivan, who is now in her 91st year. Mrs. Sullivan danced at the first of the charity balls with Commodore Vanderbilt as her partner. In 1860, on the occasion of the visit of the late King Edward VII., then prince of Wales, she danced with him also at the charity ball of that season.

Among those present were Mrs. Vincent Astor, Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson, Mrs. George P. Agnew, Mr. and Mrs. Lyttleton Fox, Miss Constance Fox, Mr. and Mrs. S. Oakley Vander Poel, Maj. and Mrs. A. J. Drexel Biddle, Gen. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Gen. and Mrs. Charles S. Sherrill, and Clarence H. Mackay.

Weddings of the Week.

The week had its quota of marriages, though with the exception of the Hutton-Durant wedding they were small affairs. A most interesting ceremony at ancient Grace church was the marriage of Joan Whitridge, daughter of Mrs. Frederick W. Whitridge, to Harry Forsyth, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harry Douglas Forsyth and a grandson of the late Bradish Johnson. Miss Whitridge was unattended. The ushers were Schuyler Livingston Parsons, Stephen Whitney, Richard Wharton, Charles D. Dickey, and Aymar Johnson.

A wedding on Tuesday was that of Eunice Putnam, daughter of the late Major and Mrs. Israel Putnam, and Henry J. Chadbourne of San Francisco. The ceremony took place at the home of Miss Putnam's aunt, Miss Ida B. Carleton, who gave a dance on Dec. 11 at the Park Lane to introduce Eunice to society.

Only intimate friends of the family were present at the ceremony, which was followed by a small reception. The bride wore soft white satin trimmed with rose point lace and made with a court train of satin trimmed with point lace.

Her only attendant was Miss Murray Woodward of Rochester, who wore a robe de style gown of white taffeta trimmed with black taffeta, and a picture hat of black and white.

Carleton Putnam gave his sister in marriage, and another brother, Nichols Putnam, was best man.

Full Social Calendar.

While departures are the word of the day, there is yet a flare of entertaining going on, and quite a number of charitable balls are still listed on the calendar.

The T. Suffern Tailers are giving their series of dinners almost in a lump this winter, having postponed them from earlier in the season. Last Wednesday and Thursday they entertained at their apartments in the Plaza, and this Wednesday they will give their final dinner of the winter.

Among the balls of the week, the charity ball, of course, led in point of interest, but there were also such other annuals as the Christodora ball at the Ritz, the Snow ball at the Park Lane, the Circuit ball, also at the Ritz, and the Gardner Alumni show at the Ritz.

Of these the Snow ball and Christodora took place last night, with the Circus ball falling to Friday and the Gardner show occupying Thursday night.

At all of them the cabaret idea was followed out, with amateur and professional entertainers performing during supper. Mrs. Arthur Curtiss James led the patronesses for the Christodora ball and others present included Mrs. E. Frank Doubleday, Mrs. Edward N. Harkness, Mrs. J. Macy Willets, Mrs. J. Sergeant Cram, and Mrs. John N. Willys.

The Gardner school show at the Ritz on Thursday was very Spanish in atmosphere, with amateur bullfighters, fascinating Carmens and grandees much in evidence. Among those who took part in the entertainment were Maud Ellinger, Elisabeth Worthington Bull, Dorothea Kibbe, Martha Detwiller and Catherine Bull.

Depicting Old New Orleans.

Next on the program of thinning events, but ever looked forward to as the most colorful event on the calendar is the annual Beaux Arts ball which takes place at the Astor, this year, on Friday.

As a pageant of old New Orleans at the beginning of the nineteenth century the costumes will reflect all the color of the old French and Spanish régime. Costumes, of course, are obligatory at this most swagger of costume balls, and they must furthermore be authentically of the period indicated.

More than 300 prominent people will take part in the pageant, among them Mary Nash, Gordon Knox Bell, Bruce Price Post, D. Putnam Brinley, Mrs. Leonard Cox, Mr. and Mrs. Stanwood Menken, Mrs. Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte, and Mrs. Allen Gouverneur Wellman.

Ganna Walska Gives Brilliant Luncheon

By Camille Haynes.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS—[Special Correspondence.]—Mrs. Harold F. McCormick, known to the opera going world as Mme. Ganna Walska, has returned to her impressive home in the Rue de Lubeck, Paris, after a triumphant tour in grand opera through the capitals of eastern Europe. On her return she took respite from the busy professional life to entertain at luncheon a prominent international society group. As hostess she received in a hyacinth blue crêpe de chine gown, the robe de style type.

Grand Duke Boris and Grand Duchess Boris, who have been the center of many exclusive affairs recently, were among the guests. The great oaken gates and concierge's lodge to the left and the broad flight of steps to the right make Mrs. McCormick's home seem regally fitted to such guests.

Others present at the luncheon were Marquise de Saint-Paul, Countess Festetics de Tolna, the former Miss Wetherbee of New York, Countess von Bernstorff, Comtesse de la Beraudiere, Mr. and Mrs. Livingston Fairbank of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Corey, the American consul to Biarritz, Sam Park, Mrs. Park, Miss Elizabeth Park, Sabbag Bey, Prince de Hohenlohe, Mr. Strarum, and Elie de Bassan.

Mr. and Mrs. Livingston Fairbank have been making their home in the picturesque Quai d'Orleans since arriving in Paris in October from Biarritz, where a baby son was born last summer. Both the Fairbanks and Mrs. McCormick were guests at a reception given by Grand Duke Boris and Grand Duchess Boris recently in the Chateau San Sousi, in Bellevue, a suburb of Paris.

Mr. and Mrs. John S. Lithiby returned this week to Paris to their home in the Rue de Vaneau with tiny 7 month old Jane Stuart Lithiby, after spending a holiday with Mr. Lithiby's parents, Sir John and Lady Lithiby, in their town house in Chester square, London. Mrs. Lithiby, who is a sister of Mrs. Ogden T. McClurg of Lake Shore drive, Chicago, made her début several seasons ago in Chicago, but later fell into an English romance, which culminated in her marriage in New York.

Higher Education Hardly Seems to Pay in Japan

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO.—Higher education can hardly be said to pay in Japan, if the figures of salaries paid graduates of universities and colleges just compiled by the home office mean anything.

The home office reports that 15,151 students were graduated this year from the 109 universities and colleges in Japan. Of these, 12,732 became applicants for salaried positions, and up to Oct. 30 there were 3,773 still looking for work.

The average initial salary of the 8,959 graduates who secured positions, exclusive of bonuses and other allowances, was $41.25 a month. Strange to say, the graduates of institutions specializing in literature secured the best paying places.

Florida's Social Sun Again Swings to January Zenith

MIAMI, Fla.—[Special Correspondence.]—The Florida winter season now may be said to have achieved its height, though the present pace is expected to continue through February at least. The winter colonies have gathered and organized and the diversions and amusements provided for the temporary population have reached the full blast notch. And still it is not so wild nor hilarious as a distant observer might think, especially in the localities frequented by the most fashionable personages of America.

The entire Palm Beach colony, made up of many strata of exclusive society, has hardly one thousand families, as shown by the social index, who maintain regular winter residences there, either at hotels, clubs or dwellings. Miami and Miami Beach, while not achieving the social atmosphere of Palm Beach, make up in numbers, and perhaps things move along at a faster clip in and about Miami than at the more staid and settled northern resort.

Where Sports Are the Thing.

At St. Augustine, Daytona and at the west coast resorts of St. Petersburg and Clearwater, social prestige is not an essential element and the crowds which throng those localities think more about golf, fishing, cruising and other outdoor pastimes than of gaming, dining, yachting and adventures in social and intellectual fields.

At Palm Beach the routine is quite mild, but fixed. It includes morning tennis, riding or golf, luncheons and then the beaches, tea, and more tennis or surf, dinner and dancing, with perhaps a visit to the Casino gaming tables.

But those who gather and participate here represent the most prominent families of America. Ogden Reid, the Claflins, the Paynes, the Piersons, the Milbanks, the Slaters, the Livingstones, the Satterwhites, Rockefellers, and Whitneys represent New York; the Choates, the Boardmans, the Chases, the Charltons, the Dobyns and Tiltons, New England; the Freylinghuysens, Duponts, Wanamakers, Stotesburys, Biddles, Glendennings, Replogles, Carnegies, and Thaws, the middle Atlantic group; the Deerings, the McCormicks, the Revells, the Moores, and the McKinlocks are among those from Chicago.

English society also comprises an element, a coterie embracing such names as the earl and countess of Lauderdale, Capt. A. W. Vaughan-Williams, Capt. the Hon. Frederick Guest, The Hon. Elinor Campbell, Walter Blackman, Paris Singer, and others.

An occasional run to sea by yacht, a jaunt to the races at Hialeah, or some formal gatherings at intervals, may break the humdrum, but largely the colony indulges in leisure and enjoys in quiet, simple fashion the sun and surf and out of doors.

Lively Entertainment.

The Miamians, however, offer something more lively. The afternoon races at Hialeah, the evening races at the greyhound courses, the night Jai Alai games, the night clubs, of which there are now hundreds upon hundreds, the rapidly multiplying casinos, and the beach resorts and the country clubs, together with the nightly activities at the great resort hotels, keep throngs of eager northerners in a rush of excitement.

The Palm Beach small groups have been arranging series of appearances of artists of note during the season. Members of the Woman's Athletic club will devote their efforts to Sunday twilight musicals, patrons of which are Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Revell, Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Leon V. Hartman, Mrs. Earl H. Deakin, Mrs. Gail G. Grant and others. Elsie Janis is to open a series of concerts late this month, and among the season patrons are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Vernon Skiff, Miss Muriel McCormick, Mrs. George McKinlock, Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury, and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Moore.

Chicagoans at Palm Beach.

Chicagoans who have arrived at Palm Beach in the last week include Mrs. Bonnie Easton of Lake Forest, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Elston, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Boyd, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Middleton, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Revell, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Bode, William J. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. Moore, Mrs. Paul Skinner, Mr. and Mrs. Frank O. Butler, Miss Margaret K. Wightman, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Mueler, C. T. Bailey, Convers Goddard, and G. M. Willets. Mr. and Mrs. Orville W. Thompson are expected Jan. 20.

Down the coast at Hollywood the Beach hotel and Hollywood Inn opened for the season this week, with many Chicago people settled in this lovely spot for the winter.

Mrs. Charles Deering of Coconut Grove, Miami, has been named as a trustee of the Jackson Memorial hospital. The hospital has been bequeathed a trust fund of $500,000 by the late James Deering, brother of Charles Deering.

The Illinois State society at Miami has elected Paul Schroeder, formerly of Chicago, as president. Other officers are Mrs. W. D. Ferguson, Miss Ella Schutz, O. F. Weber, and E. T. Ross of Chicago.

President Scott at Miami.

Walter Dill Scott, president of Northwestern university, arrived from Evanston this week at Miami Beach. Mrs. Scott accompanies him.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Reincke of Chicago are to be guests of Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Bigler for a part of the season at Miami.

Cunard West Indies Cruise—this winter
WINTER comes, and in its midst, after frosty window panes have lost their fascination and the streets are deep in snow and slush, you sail away southward on a Cunarder. Through the sunshine and warmth of the Spanish Main to the romantic West Indies where island cities still drowse in the glamour of their past.

S.S. GEORGE WASHINGTON for your trip to EUROPE
THE bugle has sounded, the gang plank is away—the S.S. George Washington has started another of her luxurious trips to Europe.
The people who sail on this ship go abroad in the American way. Their trip is like a week's stay in a modern American hotel, with refined, luxurious surroundings, the most delicious cooking, beautifully furnished rooms with beds instead of the usual berths, smoothly running elevators and colonial windows instead of portholes.
Rates are most reasonable. First class from $210 (winter rate); second class from $136.25 and Tourist Third in season from $97.50.
The next three sailings of the S.S. George Washington to Plymouth, Cherbourg and Bremen are February 19th, March 23rd, April 20th.
American visitors to the world-famed Leipzig Fair, March 6th to March 12th will find the February 19th sailing especially convenient.
In view of the rush, reservations should be made as soon as possible.
Americans Sail on American Ships
Besides the George Washington, the United States Lines operates the Leviathan, most famous ship in the world, the Republic, the popular cabin ship, the President Harding and President Roosevelt, the fastest Cabin ships on the Atlantic.

South America-Africa Cruise

ANNOUNCEMENT
by the World's Greatest Travel System

From New York. Jan. 24, 1928. 104 days.

Canadian Pacific presents "The Cruise of Contrasts," a cross-section of the world's newest and its oldest, of its most primitive and its most cultured.

West Indies. South America with her Brazil, Uruguay and Argentina. Africa, with her big game and primitive blacks, her diamond mines and spectacular ports. The Mediterranean, with her Egypt and Riviera . . . . . To carry you, the speed queen of cruises,—the Empress of France. To gain you every privilege, a Canadian Pacific cruise staff. To assure Canadian Pacific standards of service, Canadian Pacific management, ship and shore . . . . . Rates surprisingly low. Reservations now accepted. Information from your own agent, or—

Mardi Gras BY BOAT!

No trip, anywhere, combines so many interesting, delightful and unique features as this annual steamer cruise to and from the wonderful Mardi Gras Festival at New Orleans.

Cruise in luxury and absolute safety aboard the famous steel steamer "CINCINNATI" (the most modern craft on western rivers), on the same picturesque and historic waters that the early pioneers navigated with so much danger and hardships. Travel from the land of Winter to the land of Summer.

The steamer is your floating hotel on the three to four days' stay at New Orleans during the Mardi Gras revels.

No worry about hotel reservations or baggage—nothing but genuine pleasure. Meals are the best in cookery's kingdom. Social hostess. Orchestra. Entertainment of all sorts. A novel and delightful house party.

The majestic "CINCINNATI" leaves Cincinnati, Ohio, February 20. Round trip rates, including all expenses, $155.00 and up.

Prompt reservations are strongly suggested, as it probably will be impossible to accommodate all who wish to go on this wonderful vacation trip. Ask for our beautiful illustrated booklet, giving full particulars. No charge or obligation.

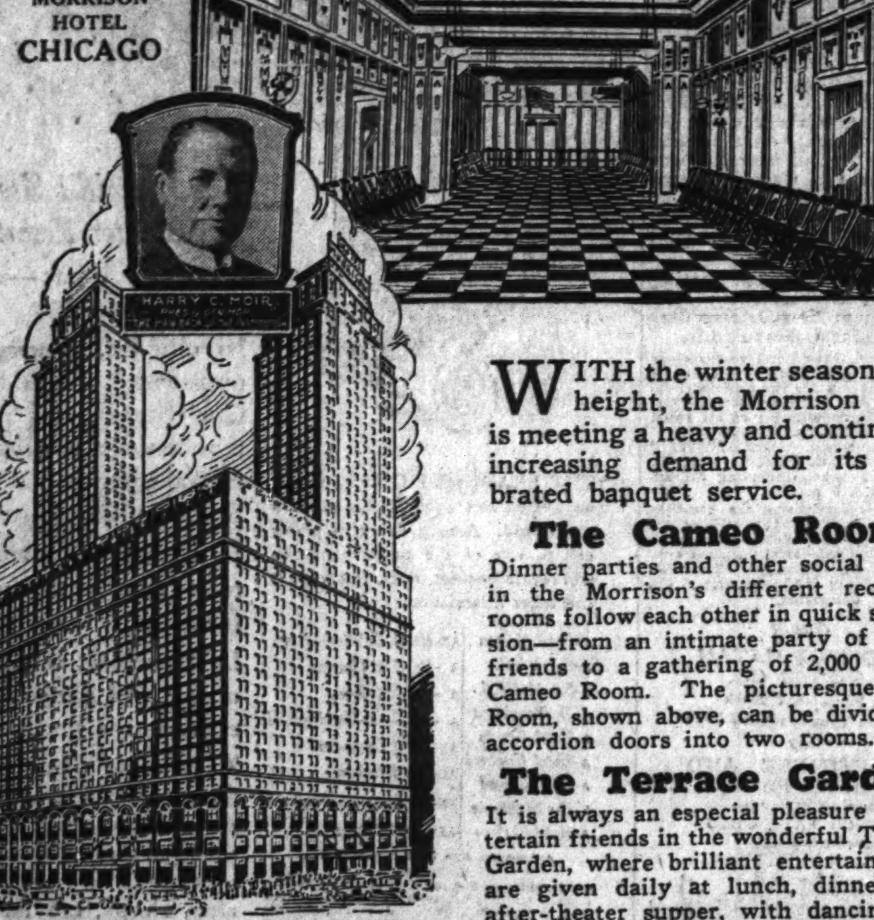
The Winter Social Season
At Chicago's 46-Story
Morrison Hotel



THE ROSE ROOM MORRISON HOTEL CHICAGO
HARRY C. MOIR

The New Morrison, when completed, will be the world's largest and tallest hotel, 46 stories high, with 3,400 rooms.

WITH the winter season at its height, the Morrison Hotel is meeting a heavy and continually increasing demand for its celebrated banquet service.

The Cameo Room

Dinner parties and other social affairs in the Morrison's different reception rooms follow each other in quick succession—from an intimate party of a few friends to a gathering of 2,000 in the Cameo Room. The picturesque Rose Room, shown above, can be divided by accordion doors into two rooms.

The Terrace Garden

It is always an especial pleasure to entertain friends in the wonderful Terrace Garden, where brilliant entertainments are given daily at lunch, dinner and after-theater supper, with dancing between the specialties.

1,944 Rooms With Bath, $2.50 Up

Every room in this 46-story hotel—the tallest in the world—is outside, with bath, running ice water, Servidor and bed-head reading lamp. Every floor has its own housekeeper, and all guests have the privilege of garage service. Yet travelers can rent rooms for $2.50 to $5 that would cost $5 to $8 in any other leading hotel; the store subleases pay all the ground rent, and the saving is passed on to the guests.

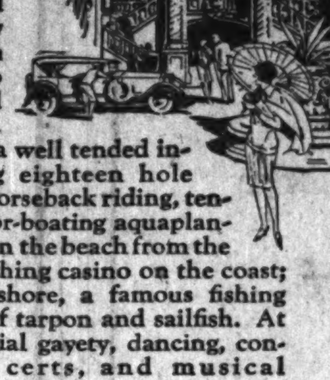
Winter is Summer—
And all the World's Right at Florida's Most Beautiful Hotel



THOUGH the calendar says it is bleak winter, sun and thermometer down at Hollywood Beach Hotel declare it is June—and prove it. Dancing sunlight, warm surf, outdoor sport, and summer togs banish all vestige of winter to the North.

Come on down to summerland; Hollywood Beach Hotel invites you. You live gloriously in the midst of comfort and refinement at a cost no more than at a good class northern hotel.

On the coral shore between Palm Beach and Miami, right at the water's edge of the ocean, Florida's most beautiful hotel abounds with charm and gay life. Your window opens on the emerald sweep of the Atlantic. Sixty seconds from your room in your bathing suit to a plunge in the surf.

Within and without the gorgeous beauty of the hotel entrances. Novel decorations, luxury and convenience everywhere conspire to captivate you, and make you feel content. Fine cuisine with fresh vegetables, fruit, milk, butter, eggs and poultry from the farms of the hotel make your appetite a daily joy.

All recreations and sports of seaside and country club from which to pick and choose. Golf on a well tended interesting eighteen hole course, horseback riding, tennis, motor-boating aquaplaning. Down the beach from the finest bathing casino on the coast; just off shore, a famous fishing ground of tarpon and sailfish. At night social gayety, dancing, concerts, and musical recitals.

At Hollywood Hills Inn, Park View Hotel, and Great Southern — Hollywood has an attractive range of rates: for one person per day as low as $2.50 (European) and $7 (American). Special rates for two and by the week.

Motor buses leave regularly for Palm Beach, Miami, and the race tracks—you can lunch at the hotel and attend the races. It's real summer here. No chilly days. The sun always genial—the surf warm and invigorating.

Trade the prison of a winter-bound house for a life of gay summer freedom. Let the warm caress of spring thrill you. You pay no premium for it at Hollywood Beach Hotel. You live in Florida, and enjoy its climate at a low cost that amazes you. Catch up with the sun—at Hollywood Beach Hotel.

PERSONAL SERVICE: To facilitate reservations and assure the convenience and comfort of a trip to Florida, the Hollywood Beach Hotel maintains a New York office. Here you obtain complete description of rooms and suites, and their rates. Through it you may make all arrangements for a Florida visit including transportation on railroad or steamship. Any information on Florida you require will be furnished promptly. Call, or telephone, or write. Every inquiry receives individual personal attention. Before you decide where you winter, send for our colorful librette, "Florida's Most Beautiful Hotel."

Phoenix
ARIZONA
Roses in January!

COME to sunny Southern Arizona—you will forget that zero weather ever existed. Come now and find green lawns, flowers blooming everywhere, warm "Indian Summer" weather.

In Phoenix outdoor sports are in full swing now—there's golf, tennis, hunting, fishing and picnics, and motor trips over the safe government-built Apache Trails Highway to mountain peaks, to canyons and to wild desert places. There's a different kind of winter vacation awaiting you in Phoenix where the sun is always shining.

Last winter hundreds from your state came to Phoenix to enjoy our wonderful winter climate. Maybe some of your friends came, too. Ask them how they enjoyed the western hospitality and the scenery and the sports and the desert picnics. Have them tell you how the various organizations extended every courtesy during their visit! This year see Phoenix and the Salt River Valley! See the great irrigation project! See Roosevelt Dam! Then judge for yourself if the Great Southwest isn't the finest vacation land you've ever seen!

Mail the coupon below for free booklet profusely illustrated. Come Santa Fe or Southern Pacific. Free stop-overs on all tickets.

Opportunity
Anchored in a Port of Pleasure

After 12 years of activity and the investment of $4,500,000, the harbor and inlet are open for freight and passenger service—yet another step in the progress of Greater Palm Beach.

Palm Beach and West Palm Beach are keenly alert to the convenience of their guests in matters of transportation.

More accessible now by water, reached by two railroads, with motor arteries reaching in from north, west and south, every convenience invites you to come "Where Summer Spends the Winter." Within the county a new $2,000,000 highway, and 32 more miles of paved streets in West Palm Beach add to the motorist's enjoyment.

MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC.

Do You Wish to Sing Like Galli-Curci or McCormack?

Their method "Cantare sul fiato" will be demonstrated this week in free private master lessons offered by Mme. La Capria, world famous voice specialist, diagnostician, concert opera singer, originally protege of Schumann-Heink. Innes, renowned bandmaster, says: "I consider her the greatest vocal teacher in America." Formichi of Chicago Civic Opera says: "I highly recommend her perfect voice placement and marvelous method of the true Italian 'Bel Canto,' acquired from Lombardi, Italy's most celebrated singing master, teacher of Caruso and myself, who indorses her." Grayhack of Chicago Civic Opera says: "The first day I studied with you was the most fortunate day of my life!" Travis engaged from her studios for San Carlo Grand Opera, writes after brilliant success: "My wonderful high tones are due to you. The great regret is I did not come to you sooner." Others in concert, musical comedy, moving picture houses, including Balaban & Katz and vaudeville at salaries from $125 to $500 a week. Studios, 4316 Sheridan-road. Phone Bittersweet 0081.

THE TRUE ART OF SINGING AS USED by all famous opera stars is within reach of every student; a world famous baritone who is indorsed by the greatest composers and artists is now in Chicago and will accept a limited number of students. WANTED—MALE HELP.
Executives and Managers.

DIRECTOR OF SALES.

I want an experienced executive who is a capable organizer and knows the real estate subdivision business to direct the operations of my properties in Hammond. These properties are very choice, with over 1¼ miles of business frontage on Hohman-st., the main business artery of Hammond, directly in the path of the greatest development and right at the Gold Coast section of Hammond, where the greatest building activity is now in progress.

The property has been appraised by large eastern insurance companies as being the most valuable subdivision property in the entire territory for building operations.

This is an unusual opportunity and the man I select must be willing to work hard and stay on the job, as this position will be worth not less than $30,000 per year.

Address all letters to A. A. Lewis, president of the A. A. Lewis Realty Association, 77 W. Washington-st., or call my secretary for an appointment all day Monday at Central 8489.

DEPARTMENT STORE EXECUTIVES.

A large Milwaukee store has an expansion program which calls for the addition of a number of high grade assistant buyers whose experience and caliber would put them in line for buyers' positions in the future. We want men, 28 to 35 years of age, of thorough department store experience and proven ability. These positions cannot be filled by men with a mere smattering of experience in the lines mentioned. Five positions are now open in the following department groups:

LIGHTING FIXTURES
LAMPS AND PICTURES

SILKS AND WOOL DRESS GOODS

HOUSE FURNISHINGS AND KITCHEN WARE

CUT FLOWERS AND PLANTS

WASH GOODS,
DOMESTICS, LINENS

All answers will be held in strictest confidence. We can hardly give your application intelligent consideration unless you give us full details as to your previous employment, history, age and other qualifications. Address B W 4, Tribune.

SALES MANAGER.

A small but live organization is desirous of obtaining the services of a sales manager.

The man we have in mind has original ideas is a good correspondent and knows something about advertising; most important, however, is the necessity that he be a man who can sell himself, his firm and the product [an automatic toaster sold to the trade only], to his prospective salesmen.

We will make to a man measuring up to our requirements an attractive offer with a reasonable drawing account.

In reply state why you think you are the man we want; also give us information as to your age, education and starting salary expected. Address E C 529, Tribune.

WANTED—MALE HELP.
Executives and Managers.

DIVISION MANAGER.

Somewhere in Chicago there is a man who is both a salesman and a capable executive, who has the ability to build up an organization of "green" men and get the most out of it; who is not a "slave driver," but who has the quality of getting new men to work because they want to work. Enthusiastic example is the only whip needed.

He must possess perseverance, energy, ginger and pep, and have the ability to sense constructive selling points and convey them effectively to his salesmen in a way that is possible only for a man of character and integrity.

To this type of executive there is an opening with this old established company which should appeal to the man who is vitally interested in his own business success.

During the last 25 years we have built more than one million dollars of buildings a year, ranging from humble dwellings to the finest apartments. We hold an enviable reputation in our chosen field.

The man we select will find here a life's opportunity, and he should earn upwards of $12,000 a year.

We have tried in this advertisement to reach only a man who has had considerable experience in the hiring and training of salesmen who drives his own car, and is over 30 years of age.

If you feel that you are qualified to tackle this proposition phone for an appointment.

VINCENNES 4100.
LOCAL 305.

WONDERFUL OPPORTUNITY FOR LADIES' BUYER.

A CALL FOR THREE REAL SALES MANAGERS.

Can you train, organize and direct a crew of salesmen? If you can, you are worth a lot of money to us and we are equipped to line you up so that you can make it.

Our proposition is made to order for producers: Selling high grade property with all improvements included in the purchase price; a plan that overcomes all sales resistance; the support and advertising of a powerful organization with a reputation for doing things in a big way.

We need you and you need us if you want the best selling connection in Chicago. Apply

A MESSAGE TO 'COLD TURKEY' SALESMEN

I need 5 real salesmen who are tired of working "cold turkey," to follow up the leads which we are unable to cover. I didn't realize the money that could be made in this business until I came with this organization. I thought, as you may think, that "leads" meant getting them myself, but my year's experience here proved I was all wrong. We work from leads exclusively.

Ask for Mr. Tuck, between 10 and 5 o'clock.

Suite 612, 32 W. Randolph.

A REAL EXECUTIVE.

We are expanding our business and opening a new department. This is an opportunity for two live wire salesmen with executive ability—men who are good closers and can handle men. These two positions will pay from $10,000 to $20,000 a year. See Mr. Tuck.

ACTIVITY IS CONTAGIOUS!

A Success Thought
by Bert H. Laudermilk.

Action makes winners. Visions, dreams, resolutions are worthless without action.

Every man wants success—every man likes to be part of a live organization. This is especially true of real estate salesmen.

I like action—I must have it. This is the guiding spirit behind my sales force. It pays—BIG.

My organization is active, alive, busy making money, and all happy. This is the result of co-operative action—ACTIVITY IS CONTAGIOUS.

We know 1927 will be a wonderful year in Chicago real estate. Your success in 1927 will depend upon action—opportunities here are without limit for those who will grasp them.

Tune in on Chicago's progress by joining our organization. There is plenty of room here for ambitious, energetic managers and salesmen to grow with us. We have plenty of action—our meetings are crowded—our force of full time and part time salesmen is being enlarged daily. We have everything necessary to help you succeed in a big way.

I want to meet you and talk with you personally regarding your future. Come in and see me Monday at any time after 10 a. m.

Yours for Success,
BERT H. LAUDERMILK

Will place 2 Greek men in a salary position, if you can convince me that you are honest and want to better yourself. This is an exceptional opportunity for the right man.

Room 415. 77 W. Washington-st.

AN ALERT SALESMAN

can better his position immediately, as right now we are making plans for the future which will insure permanent opportunity for the right man.

We are looking for a man with specialty selling experience for a central west territory under exclusive contract with full credit for renewal business.

This territory netted previous representative over $12,000 last year, and that man has just been promoted to an executive position.

This is not insurance or real estate. We are the leaders in our line—the highest type of specialty selling, backed up by the largest organization of its kind.

We only want to interview the man who has the right to a big earning capacity, as we will prove in Black and White the big earning possibilities for the right man.

Phone Mr. P. W. Medley, Superior 0855, Sunday or Monday, for an appointment, or write us in detail all about yourself. Address S C 420, Tribune.

AN OPPORTUNITY.

The Sales Manager of a large New York manufacturing company will be in Chicago on Monday for the purpose of selecting two high grade salesmen to cover territories out of the Chicago Branch.

Only men who can show a successful sales record for the last six years in lines that have required intensive type of selling and are accustomed to close their business on the first interview will be considered.

The men selected will be given an opportunity of joining a high grade organization, satisfactory drawing account, and earnings that will be highly profitable.

For interview see Mr. Sidney Jacobs at the Sherman Hotel after 10 a. m. Monday.

AN UNUSUAL SPECIALTY SALES CONNECTION.

A nationally known organization wishes to add five men to its midwestern sales force, two in Chicago, two Illinois outside Chicago, and one Indiana. The men we want are now employed, but feel the limitations of their present work and would consider a change only if it offered assurance of permanency, stability and good immediate and future income. The organization is a national advertiser with seventeen years of good will behind it.

Sales are made only to business executives and their assistants and the work requires the confidence and poise of the man who has successfully sold such things as bonds, high grade stocks, insurance, advertising, or business services. To receive consideration you must have a clean record, be between the ages of 28 and 40, and able to show good earnings in the past. Good appearance and a background of education and business experience are essential. The men we accept will be given preliminary and field training, and co-operation will be furnished in the way of leads and sales helps.

Compensation is on a commission basis with a drawing account where necessary. Earnings should range around $7,500 or more the first year depending entirely upon ability and hard work.

If you feel you can qualify telephone D. B. McDONALD, MORRISON HOTEL, SUNDAY, JAN. 23, or MONDAY, the 24th, for appointment. Out of town men, please write a full letter to O T 313, Tribune. An interview at our expense will be arranged if you have the qualifications. Both personal and written applications will be held in strict confidence.

AN A1 OPENING FOR THE RIGHT MAN.

Due to the promotion of my star salesman, I have a position open in an otherwise closed organization for a young man of intelligence and breeding who is anxious and willing to work for good income.

Will be associated with gentlemen and given every possible means of co-operation; income should average about $400 per month. No canvassing, but a straight call on live newspaper leads.

Will interview applicants between 10:30 and 1 all this week. See B. H. Hellen Jr., Suite 837, 154 W. Randolph-st.

AN AVERAGE SALESMAN.

Salary, Comm. and Bonus.

A $20 per week salary and liberal commission on each sale, with bonus for production, can be had by any man who convinces me he has average ability. Either with or without sales experience. You have direct leads to work with. Expert sales instructors and closing assistance on all your sales. If you think you can measure up, apply in person to MR. EBERHARDT, 1203, 109 N. Dearborn.

An Honest Opportunity in Retail Selling Field.

for man with car selling popular well advertised product for large national concern; must be ambitious, an A-1 salesman, a go-getter, not afraid of long hours and hard work, an unusual opportunity and only an unusual man will qualify; salary $45 per week; immediate advancement on merit only; best refs. accept. Address F E 130, Tribune.

AN OPPORTUNITY.

We have an opening for 5 men who are hustlers and not afraid of work to sell the finest development in Chicago's fastest growing suburb, 27 min. from the loop on the new electrified I. C. Improvements all in and paid for; big building program now under construction.

Decide now to make 1927 your biggest year.

AN OPPORTUNITY

for real estate men to sell improved property at our Lawrence-av. and Howard-st. offices. See [Mr. Paul]

H. O. STONE & CO.,
1111 Lawrence-av. Edgr. 1700.

WANTED—MALE HELP.

Salesmen, Solicitors, Etc.

AN AD WORTH READING CAREFULLY.

We have established a joint meeting of the regular personnel of our organization and a school of men and women who want to learn something about selling and perhaps find an opportunity to use their spare time to good financial advantage.

It Is Absolutely Free.

And there is no obligation whatsoever to you. Furthermore, we have nothing to sell you, but you can learn some business truths from a nationally known lecturer and you may find a new step in the ladder of success through your association with us.

Do not cheat yourself by putting it off. Regardless of the weather.

Come to Room 660
First National Bank Bldg.,
31 S. Clark-st.,
Wednesday at 8 P. M.

MEN, HERE IS SOMETHING FOR YOU.

Professor William Arthur Johnson will be glad to meet all salesmen or prospective salesmen and give them individual written readings of their characteristics, both good and bad, without charge, and will offer sales positions to those qualified to hold them.

For more than 15 years Professor Johnson has been doing this kind of work for such representative concerns as Swift & Co., Remington Typewriter Co., American Steel & Wire Works, and many others, and has shown thousands of men the way to success.

Here is your opportunity to get the most for yourself during the year 1927. We believe this is the first time the public has been offered a free written reading, and it is being done only in the interest of selecting men who we can be assured will be successful in our special line of work.

Professor Johnson will hold a public meeting at 8:15 tomorrow night. At this meeting he will explain just what this reading will do for you and make private appointments for individual free readings for all those interested. Come and bring your friends—8:15 Monday night—77 W. Washington-st., 9th floor.

REALTORS

of excellent reputation need the services of 6 salesmen, 2 in each of their S. Side offices. We do a general brokerage business only, and are not subdividers.

You must be a man of the highest caliber, desiring to improve yourself. Experience will be to your advantage, but is not required. The opportunity represented in this firm is from $300 to $1,500 per month, according to your capabilities.

Contrary to the policy of most real estate brokers, who have many salesmen working, some earning considerable and others practically nothing, we have only a few in each office and our large volume of business is divided among these few, giving each one the chance to keep real busy and earn a large amount of money.

Determination, initiative, and honesty are our standards, and if you believe you can qualify, please write to us, giving full particulars about yourself. If your letter appears favorable we will communicate with you for an interview. Address E E 143, Tribune.

REAL ESTATE SALESMEN.

REAL ESTATE SALES PROGRAM
TO BE STARTED IN EARNEST BY THIS FIRM
ON FEBRUARY 1ST.

Plans for this gigantic undertaking have been in the making for more than a year. Nothing to equal it has ever been started in Chicago before.

This announcement is made by a responsible firm of established prestige, backed by ample finances, and we are ready to launch this great program with such an irresistible power and momentum as will reduce sales effort to a minimum and carry our men on to record breaking earnings.

A tested plan for securing leads galore has been perfected, also an exclusive and convincing sales method.

WE WANT PEOPLE WHO ARE LOOKING FOR A PERMANENT CONNECTION.

Managers, salesmen, and others who are ambitious to get into the real money making field are invited to call at our office at once.

We are now engaging men to complete a full selling organization offering unlimited opportunities to those who come in at the outset.

Every effort will be put forth to develop your abilities. Many men who started 5 years ago in the Real Estate business have made more money than they could have made by comparable endeavors in any other line of business in the entire world.

Ask for Mr. Erickson.

3 SALESMEN WANTED.

One year ago I decided to change my position and in looking over the ads I was astonished by the number of real estate salesmen wanted and wondered what the joker was. I found out I made more money the last year than in any previous year of selling and I knew absolutely nothing of the real estate business. If you want to know about this wonderful, fascinating business, I will tell you. You must be 25 to 45 yrs. old with some selling experience and 2 yrs.' residence in Chicago and able to finance yourself for 30 days. I will give you the fullest co-operation with bona fide leads from prospects anxious to buy and connect you with the best organization you have ever worked with. This is the first and last time this advertisement will appear. Call 160 N. La Salle-st., Burnham Bldg., Rm. 811, between the hours of 10 a. m. and 2 p. m. and ask for Mr. P. O. Miller.

STOP!
READ EVERY WORD AND LEARN.

Here's an amazing opportunity! Here's the key to a good position! An extra pay check every week!

WHETHER EMPLOYED OR NOT, you can't afford to miss this opportunity, so make up your mind to answer this ad. Don't "grope in the dark," dreaming of extra money. You don't have to "pound the pavements" or go off on a "wild goose chase." Every ambitious gentleman in the city of Chicago would be glad to avail himself of this splendid opportunity if he only knew the facts. You don't need experience and YOU WON'T BE ASKED TO SELL ANYTHING. Briefly, the world's greatest automobile manufacturer has undertaken a new venture [an expansion of the automobile manufactory and the manufacture of aircraft], and this has created a new department in this well known firm, and if you realize the absolute necessity of earning more money each week and the practical advantages of becoming a member [either part or full time] of this well known institution, we will put you in a good paying position if you will really devote your spare time [or 1 hour a day] in our work. If you are over 25 years of age and at present employed in some legitimate work you will be given the utmost consideration; $35-$50 WEEKLY, and ordinary common sense the only requisite. Remember, there is NO RED TAPE about this, and successful applicants will immediately earn an extra weekly income from the moment their names are placed upon the pay roll, while still retaining their present positions. Now if you really need money, don't hesitate. Clip this ad and answer in person. Ask for GENERAL MANAGER, ROOM 1512, 624 S. MICHIGAN-AV. [BLUM BLDG.], AT 8 O'CLOCK SHARP TUESDAY EVENING, JAN. 25. Only ambitious and sincere people need apply. Come regardless of weather. Don't let bad weather cheat you out of an opportunity like this.

A genuine opportunity like this comes but once in a lifetime, and this is absolutely and positively your last chance to avail yourself of it.

Now, remember, our departments are almost filled to capacity; you will never have another chance like this; positively no one will be considered after TUESDAY evening.

If earning a substantial pay check every week will make you happy this will be the happiest New Year of your life. ACT!

AN OPPORTUNITY!

My business is crowding me. I simply must get rid of a lot of detail work. This fact creates an opportunity for some one. I want to talk to an ambitious worker with or without sales experience. Must be over 25 years old and live north of Chicago-av. If you can use your brain as well as your feet and will follow instructions, I will do my best to train you for the position of assistant.

STOP!

READ EVERY WORD AND LEARN.

Here's an amazing opportunity! Here's the key to a good position! An extra pay check every week!

WHETHER EMPLOYED OR NOT, you can't afford to miss this opportunity; so make up your mind to answer this ad. Don't "grope in the dark," dreaming of extra money. You don't have to "pound the pavements" or go off on a "wild goose chase." Every ambitious lady in the city of Chicago would be glad to avail herself of this splendid opportunity if she only knew the facts. You don't need experience and YOU WON'T BE ASKED TO SELL ANYTHING. Briefly, the world's greatest automobile manufacturer has undertaken a new venture [an expansion of the automobile manufactory and the manufacture of aircraft], and this has created a new department in this well known firm, and if you realize the absolute necessity of earning more money each week and the practical advantages of becoming a member [either part or full time] of this well known institution we will put you in a good paying position if you will really devote your spare time [or 1 hour a day] to our work. If you are over 25 years of age and are at present employed in some legitimate work you will be given the utmost consideration. $35-$50 WEEKLY, and ordinary common sense the only requisite. Remember, there is NO RED TAPE about this and successful applicants will immediately earn an extra weekly income from the moment their names are placed upon the pay roll, while still retaining their present position. Now, if you really need money, don't hesitate. Clip this ad and answer in person. Ask for GENERAL MANAGER, ROOM 1512, 624 SO. MICHIGAN-AV. [BLUM BLDG.], AT 8 O'CLOCK SHARP, TUESDAY EVENING, JANUARY 25TH. Only ambitious and sincere people need apply. Come regardless of weather. Don't let bad weather cheat you out of an opportunity like this.

A genuine opportunity like this comes but once in a lifetime and this is absolutely and positively your last chance to avail yourself of it.

Now, remember our departments are almost filled to capacity. You will never have another chance like this. Positively no one will be considered after Tuesday evening.

If earning a substantial pay check every week will make you happy, this will be the happiest New Year of your life. ACT!

A SALARY AND BUSINESS TRAINING.

10 refined ladies over 25 years of age, for positions paying $35 to $50 Per Week.

LILA A. FARRELL, the Nationally Known Character Analyst, Can Tell You!

A large downtown firm has several positions for ladies, where the hours are easy and convenient and the pay is exceptionally large.

Lack of business experience is no bar, as evidence of culture and education is a better qualification for this work.

Miss Farrell has been engaged to select several ladies for these positions and you may have all of the qualifications. The reading is and it may mean the turning point in your life.

The interviews are confidential. Call after 10 A. M.

Lila A. Farrell,
Room 510,
35 E. Wacker Drive.

LADIES, HERE IS SOMETHING FOR YOU.

Professor William Arthur Johnson will be glad to meet all ladies answering this advertisement and give each one an individual written reading of their characteristics, both good and bad, without charge, and will offer special work to those qualified to handle such work.

For more than 15 years Professor Johnson has been doing this kind of work for such representative concerns as Swift & Co., Remington Typewriter Co., American Steel & Wire Works, and many others and has shown thousands of women the way to success.

Here is your opportunity to get the most for yourself during the year 1927. We believe this is the first time the public has been offered a free written reading, and it is being done only in the interest of selecting women who we can be assured will be successful in our special line of work.

Professor Johnson will hold a public meeting at 8:15 tomorrow night. At this meeting he will explain just what this reading will do for you and make private appointments for individual free readings for all those interested. Come and bring your friends—8:15 Monday night. 77 W. Washington-st., 9th floor.

COMPLETE PRACTICAL COURSE

$25

DO NOT LET THIS PRICE MISLEAD YOU

The Illinois State law requires 625 hours in a school

OR

1 year as an apprentice under a licensed operator before you can take the state examination.

Apprentices can earn just as big salaries as licensed operators if they can do the work. THIS WORK IS WHAT COUNTS—THAT IS WHAT WE TEACH YOU.

Why pay from $150 to $300 and spend from 4 to 6 months in study when you can receive all the necessary practical experience in a few short weeks?

This course prepares you to secure position and apprentice license, so you can earn a good salary while training for state board examinations.

Do not be influenced by what others tell you. Come in and let us explain this to you in detail.

"An apartment building of artistic merit."

2130 LINCOLN PARK WEST

Opposite Lincoln Park.

Seven Rooms, Three baths. Six Rooms, Three Baths.

A most desirable location where this 17-story building towers over Lincoln Park and gives to every apartment a permanently unobstructed view of the park, lake, and city beyond. Yet it is secluded enough to have the rush of traffic appear as a fleeting, fascinatingly silent stream in the distance.

Visit the building and see the possibilities of real home making with the generous array of space in each apartment. The superior location is augmented by the superior equipment and facilities.

A representative at the building would be pleased to escort you on a tour of inspection.

CO-OPERATIVE APTS.

It costs us $18 per month to pay the taxes, janitor service, repairs, furnish the heat, hall lights, and water for a 4 rm. apt. We have a mtg. from a life insurance company of $3,796.33 and 5¼% interest on this apt., which means $18.21 interest per month. This apt. is rented until May 1 for $100. We will sell it to you on the co-operative plan for $5,600. If you have not got the $5,600, but have good references and a determination to own your home, we will sell you this apt. or one like it, for May occupancy, for a small deposit down and give you a long time to pay the balance.

The building is at 2820 Cambridge-av., 1 blk. east of Broadway, at Diversey-pkwy.; a location which is bound to increase in value. This bldg. is 2 years old, modern in every detail; large rms., with spacious closets and with extra in-a-dor beds in the living rms. Why buy an apt. for your landlord with your rent when you can buy it for yourself? Agent at building.

Main Floor Showroom Bargains for All!

Paige and Jewett are known the world over as the sturdiest cars built. Every model, regardless of year, is eagerly sought after. We are fortunate in having a few beautiful Paiges, many identical in design and looks with our newest cars, and a number of Jewetts especially painted and equipped for this sale. All are smart and distinctive and have latest type accessories—all in excellent condition.

JEWETT SEDAN 5 PASS. Aside from the brilliant spirited performance you can expect from this car's 50 H. P. motor, you get as well a beautiful 4-door 5-passenger well constructed, heavily upholstered and equipped with disc wheels, balloon-type tires, many extras. Guaranteed mechanically. An elegant car that should last for many years, for only $575.

PAIGE LANDAU SEDAN. If you are looking for a snappy, new appearing automobile at a bargain price, you can't afford to pass this up. Body is brand new and worth more than the price of the entire car. Tires are very good. Mechanically it is guaranteed. Those who have admired this body style now have the chance to get one at a price that is within their reach. $775.

JEWETT 6-55 MODEL SEDAN 5 PASS. Visualize one of these beautiful Blue Duco Jewetts in wonderful condition and used very little. Like new every way you look at it. Guaranteed mechanically by Bird-Sykes, your insurance for flawless performance. $1,075.

PAIGE 1926 6-72 SEDAN, 7 PASS. One of those beautiful jobs that people stop to admire. Used only by an official. Has the appearance that stamps it as brand new. Modern, up to the minute throughout. Guaranteed mechanically. You'll look long before you find a value that can come anywhere near it, so investigate it at once.

JEWETT 1924 BROUGHAM, 5 PASS. Ideal for salesman, contractor, business person or small family. Compact, cozy, yet roomy enough for five adults. The baked enamel finish is like brand new and should stay that way for a long time. Trunk and very good balloon tires. Powerful, smooth and economical to operate. For this sale, $600.

STUTZ MODEL "K" 4 PASS. SPORT. One of those models that seem to never wear out. Rugged, powerful, well built. Mechanically it's very good. Hartford shock absorbers, wire wheels, spotlight, etc. Come in and drive it. $250.

BUICK 7 PASS. SEDAN. The pleasing appearance and smooth running qualities of this splendid Buick Sedan will recommend itself to any one desiring a good standard make for a low investment. First class mechanically, good tires, slip covers, heater, fine finish. Would cost you several hundred of dollars more elsewhere. $450.

INDIANA'S PRETTIEST PEACH—SHE WINS $1,000 IN THE TRIBUNE'S GREAT $20,000 SEARCH FOR 56 PEACHES!

MISS FRANCES FELL OF 103 MORGAN STREET, CRAWFORDSVILLE, is awarded the $1,000 first prize for Indiana in The Tribune's great $20,000 search for the Prettiest Peaches of the central west. The judges who so honor Miss Fell are Mrs. Pauline Palmer and Karl Buehr, two noted Chicago artists, and Miss Antoinette Donnelly, beauty editor of The Tribune. These eminent critics of beauty say of Miss Fell: "She has a pure Madonna quality to her beauty—lovely brown unbobbed hair, blue gray eyes, and a complexion that is enviable." In addition to receiving the $1,000 award as Indiana's Prettiest Peach, Miss Fell also is a candidate for the grand prize of $10,000 which is to be given the Peach of Peaches—the prettiest of all the six $1,000 sectional prize winners in this remarkable search. Pictures of the Peaches to whom the other eight Indiana prizes are awarded appear on Page 3 of this section.

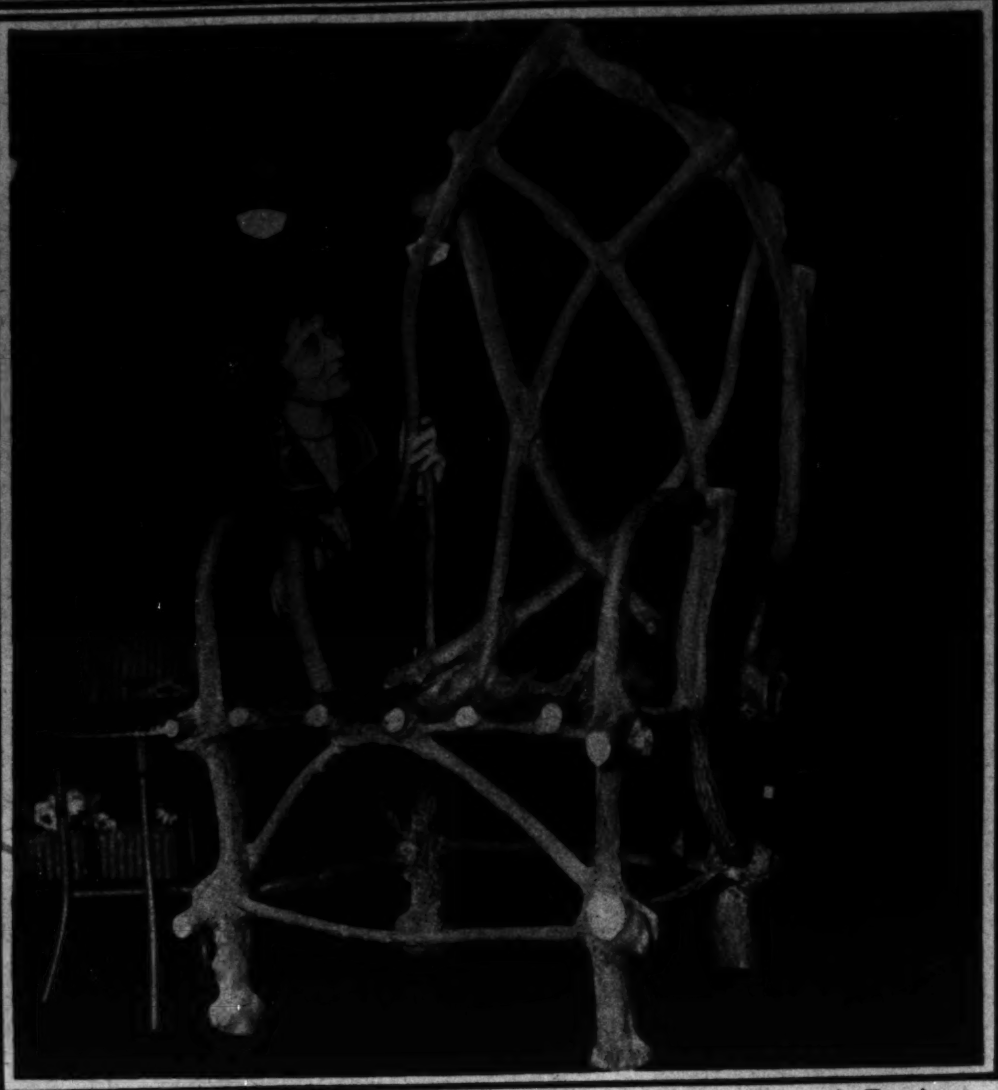
NEXT WEEK—THE PRETTIEST PEACH IN ILLINOIS, AND THE OTHER PRIZE PEACHES OF THIS STATE!

HE'D BE KAISER, would this young shot putter, if the German royalists had their way. The camera presents here Wilhelm, eldest son of the former crown prince of Germany. (Photograph from Underwood & Underwood.)



THIS CHAIR ACTUALLY GREW—It was exhibited at Chicago's Furniture Mart by John Krubsack, a central Wisconsin farmer-banker, who "raised it" from twenty-eight box elder seeds. He planted the seeds in 1908 in a carefully planned diagram and trained, trimmed, and grafted the branches for eleven years, until the chair was complete. Then he sold it for $4,000. (Tribune photograph.)

LADY DIANA MANNERS TAKES TO POLO as a relief from the strain of her work as star in "The Miracle," the stage production which is now being shown on the west coast. A camera man found the titled actress in this garb at the Del Monte lodge in California. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)

Grim Pyorrhea gets 4 out of 5

All around you are people doomed, through carelessness, to contract Pyorrhea. Four persons out of five past forty (and many younger), are its victims.

Carelessness—neglect of teeth and gums—is the cause. And the results, too often, are loss of teeth, neuritis, rheumatism, or other serious diseases and facial disfigurement.

And yet, if you start in time, it is so easy to prevent. If your gums are soft and bleeding, see your dentist at once for examination. And start immediately to use Forhan's for the Gums.

Used regularly and in time, Forhan's forestalls Pyorrhea or checks it. It firms the gums and keeps them healthy. It protects teeth against acids which cause decay. It keeps them snowy white.

Ask your dentist about Forhan's, the formula of R. J. Forhan, D. D. S., containing Forhan's Pyorrhea Liquid, used by dentists everywhere.

Safeguard your youth and health! See your dentist twice a year. And start the morning-and-night Forhan habit, today. Teach your children to use it as health-insurance. Get a tube today. At all druggists, 35c and 60c.

CONGRESSIONAL OBSERVERS are these famous leaders of women, Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, wife of the speaker of the national house, and Mrs. Medill McCormick, widow of the late senator from Illinois. Every day congress is in session they are in the galleries, following keenly the proceedings in both houses.

IT'S A MYSTERY, this ivory carving which is in the studio of Edward P. Martin of Detroit. It's said to be so valuable as an art treasure that a Mr. Martynowski had trouble getting it out of Poland. The carving, 11 by 14 inches, depicts Wallenstein, the Bohemian general in the Thirty Years' War. The mystery is in the meaning of the smaller figures and the identity of the sculptor.

POND'S
COLD CREAM
POND'S

These Two Creams will safeguard the loveliness of your skin.

distinguished women have selected these two creams

DISTINGUISHED in name and position the beautiful women of the smart world demand for themselves an equal distinction of appearance. They know that nothing adds so much to a woman's presence as a smooth skin and clear, fresh coloring. So they choose two delicate creams and maintain the traditions of feminine beauty that taste and good breeding have established.

H. M. The Queen of Spain
The Duchess of Vendome
The Duquesa de Alba
The Princesse Eugène Murat
Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt
Miss Anne Morgan
Mrs. Nicholas Longworth

Apply Pond's Cold Cream generously over face, throat and arms at night and whenever your skin feels tired or dusty. Leave it for a few moments, so that its fine oils may penetrate the pores and lift out the dust and powder. Then wipe off with a soft cloth and repeat the application of cream to lift the last trace of dirt from the skin. Finish with a dash of cold water. If your skin is dry after the bedtime cleansing, a little cream left on until morning will restore suppleness.

Pond's Vanishing Cream gives a delicate finish and makes a perfect powder base. A little smoothed lightly over the face and hands after every daytime cleansing, keeps the skin soft and white, and takes your powder evenly. It affords certain protection against the irritation of the cold and wind of winter days.

Give your skin this daily care. Like the beautiful women of fashionable society you, too, may possess a clear color and a smooth complexion.

CHING CHOW! A New TRIBUNE COMIC
by Sidney Smith
in The Tribune :: :: :: every day!

They should be working
DAY and NIGHT

The mouth glands need daily care lest they become sluggish. There are three on each side, one pair back near the throat.

Two more tiny mouth glands are here, one in each cheek. They should both be kept active.

Under the tongue are two others. All six need the help of Pebeco's salty tasting ingredient. Its tang renews their vigor.

THE MOUTH OF YOUTH is always lovely when six important mouth glands are vigorously producing the natural fluids that protect your white teeth from decay, your hard, pink gums from softening.

But even in our teens, the soft foods we eat slow up the mouth glands. Then decay begins.

Pebeco is made with a special ingredient which restores the normal, healthy vigor of the mouth glands. Its salty, refreshing tang keeps the Mouth of Youth.

Made by Pebeco, Inc. A Division of Lehn & Fink Products Company. Sole distributors, Lehn & Fink, Inc., Bloomfield, N. J.

The slightly salty taste of Pebeco's important ingredient awakens the healthy fluids that keep the Mouth of Youth.

30,000 SEE NEW YORK SILVER SKATES DERBY, the sixth annual ice carnival staged by the Daily News, the Tribune's little sister down east. The camera shows only part of the vast throng of spectators in Central park. Chicago will witness a like spectacle this afternoon, as The Tribune's eleventh annual Silver Skates Derby closes today. A PARADISE OF WINTER SPORTS is Quebec, where the season is now in brilliant swing. One of the most popular spots is this hotel rink, where a women's hockey game was in progress when the photographer arrived. At the left is a celebrated toboggan slide. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic)

WHERE 77 CHILDREN DIED IN MONTREAL MOVIE FIRE PANIC—The little Laurier Palace theater photographed just after the horror that caused the death and injury of more than a hundred children. As the picture indicates, the blaze itself was slight, its terrible toll resulting in the crush when the exits were jammed with little bodies. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic)

TITLED TWINS BECOME MODELS—The lovely mannequins seated here, daughters of Lord Ruthven, have quit the whirl of London society for what they consider a more interesting occupation. They resemble each other so closely only their intimate friends can tell which is Margaret and which is Alison Mary. Our picture shows them while posing for John Wells, a young English artist. (Photograph from Underwood & Underwood)

THEY DEFACE THEIR SASSY SMOCKS, the freshmen and sophomores of the University of Pennsylvania school of fine arts, thus evolving a variant to the threat made classic in "Moon Mullins." And if a single soph still has a smock when the annual fight is over, his whole class has the right to wear 'em the rest of the year. Mr. Abe Wilson preserved a remnant, this time, which is why the second year men hoisted him high like a story book football hero. (Photograph from Wide World)

$10,000,000 HEIR GOES ON STAGE—A. Barton Hepburn II, son of the late A. Barton Hepburn, a New York bank president, has espoused the buskin as a member of the Grand Guignol theater, an "experimental group." He and his 19-year-old sister, Jane, with whom he is pictured here, are co-heirs in the $20,000,000 Hepburn estate.

If your skin is "temperamental" today—delicate, fresh, supple

tomorrow—sullen, morose, disturbed

Veritably you cannot blame your skin for behaving like a capricious prima donna, if you constantly tax it with new creams . . . strange cosmetics . . . applying, recklessly, to the delicate facial tissues a conglomeration of warring chemicals!

Why experiment with Beauty . . . your most precious possession? . . . The genius of HELENA RUBINSTEIN, internationally celebrated beauty specialist, has created a definite, consistent, scientific technique in caring for your complexion.

Use the "Three Steps to Beauty"—the unequalled basic home treatment. Select those special corrective preparations your skin may require.

CORRECTIVE PREPARATIONS

Lines, wrinkles, crowsfeet

Valaze Grecian Anti-Wrinkle Cream (Anthosoros)—richest of nourishing creams—feeds the underlying tissues, smoothing out lines, wrinkles, crowsfeet and filling out hollows. 1.75

Oily skins, blackheads

Valaze Beauty Grains—a wonderful lather-forming wash—corrects oiliness—clears away blackheads, refines enlarged pores. 1.00, 2.00

Valaze Liquidine—absorbs oiliness and shine—leaves mat-like smoothness. 1.50

Drooping chin, puffy eyes

Valaze Georgine Lactee—marvelous muscle tightener. Corrects sagging contour, puffy eyes Restores firm, clear-cut outline. 3.00

THE FINEST OF ALL COSMETICS

Valaze Powders—Rouges—Lipsticks—intensely flattering touches of beauty, safe and protective for even the most delicate skin, in shades which enhance the charm of every type—1.00 to 5.50

Vivid Valaze Vanities

Double Compact—Chinese Red only, 1.50, Midget Double Compact—Chinese Red or Silvered, 1.50, Cupidsbow—"the self-shaping lipstick"—Chinese Red, Silvered or Golden, 1.50

THREE STEPS TO BEAUTY

1. Cleanse and Mold

Valaze Pasteurized Face Cream—the basis of beauty—thoroughly removes dust and grime—molds out "tired look"—keeps complexion smooth, protected, healthy. This unique cream is unsurpassed for all normal skins—and is the only cream that positively benefits an oily, pimpled or acne blemished skin. Excellent make-up base. 4 oz. 1.00, ½ lb. 2.00, 1 lb. 3.50.

2. Clear and Bleach

Valaze Beautifying Skinfood—the skin-clearing masterpiece—lightens, purifies and refines the skin, bleaching away tan, freckles and sallowness. Creates a fascinating delicacy and whiteness. 1.00.

3. Tone and brace

Valaze Skin-Toning Lotion—keeps pores invisible and tissues youthfully firm—obliterates fine lines. 1.25

Valaze Cleansing and Massage Cream—particularly recommended for dry sensitive skins, alternating it with the Pasteurized Cream every other night—ideal for quick removal of dust and make-up, 75c, 1.25

PRUNE FACTS TO HELP YOU WIN!

FOOD VALUE: Climate and soil combine to make California Prunes a valuable, economical food for year-round use on your table.

1. Prunes are rich in fruit sugar—sugar in its most easily digested form.
2. Prunes are more than 60% carbohydrates—the part of any food that yields energy.
3. Pound for pound, prunes yield more energy than most foods—meats, cereals and vegetables.

HEALTH VALUE: California Prunes belong in the well-balanced meal.

4. Their minerals act as a tonic, for they check the "acidity" of other foods.
5. Doctors recommend them as a mild, effective fruit laxative.
6. Prunes contain health-giving vitamins.

Health and keener appetites—sure results from your prune cookery

THE day begins right when prunes are served for breakfast. No doubt you recognize this fact, for a well family, a well-fed family, is your responsibility. Put your knowledge of prune cookery into a letter. Tell how and why you serve prunes. Win one of the 141 cash prizes. Write and mail your letter today.

Remember that you can put welcome variety into all your winter menus by using California Prunes. Serve them at luncheon and dinner as well as breakfast. Prunes bring novelty, extra deliciousness to a surprising number of dishes.

Here, for instance, is Daisy Prune salad, just such an appetizing dish. Introduce it the next time you entertain at dinner.

Quarter large, steamed prunes and remove pits. Arrange on crisp inner leaves of lettuce, and in the center of each place a ball of cottage cheese mixed with a few chopped nut meats. Radiating from the cheese arrange the prune quarters like daisy petals. Serve with boiled or mayonnaise dressing.

Keep California Prunes on hand. They are without equal for flavor and plump tenderness. Graded as to size. Packed scientifically and shipped at once to your grocer.

Gray Hair Unnecessary

Don't think your hair need remain streaked with gray—or even very gray. For over ten years men and women whose hair was once blonde, auburn, brown or black have successfully used Kolor-Bak to restore color to their gray hair. Today they haven't the slightest visible trace of gray. Nor can you tell they ever used anything on their hair.

Kolor-Bak is a clean, colorless liquid—as easy to apply as water. It requires no experimenting with samples of your hair. The one bottle is for all hair, no matter what shade or color. Results often appear in a week. And with the disappearance of the gray hair, the tonic properties of Kolor-Bak make it splendid to use for dandruff and falling hair. Its tremendous success is clearly shown by the sale of nearly 3,000,000 bottles, which proves its superiority.

Drug stores and dealers where the best toilet articles are sold, sell Kolor-Bak with guarantee to refund your money if it does not bring the desired results.

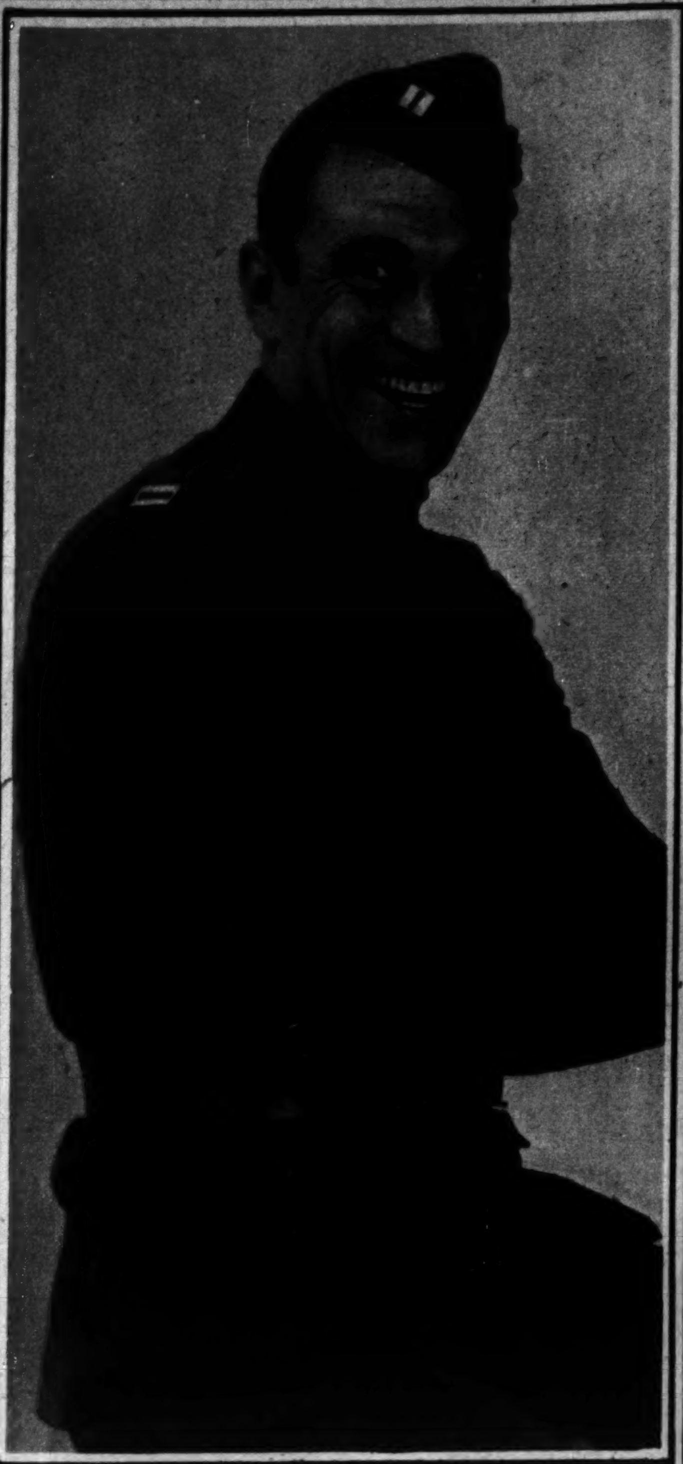
CORINNE LOWE'S suggestions for brightening and refurbishing the wardrobe (with the May Manton patterns) appear in The Tribune every day!



VICTOR McLAGLEN, whose hearty countenance you see herewith, is personally responsible for a large share of the success of "What Price Glory." His portrayal of Captain Flagg, the hard boiled, two-fisted Leatherneck, is perhaps the most memorable bit of work in this new war film.

WHIPPET RACING has become quite the rage in Hollywood, we hear. Above are Clarence Brown, Pauline Starke, and Lew Cody, all apparently proud of the fact that their smart canines won first, second, and third places in a race recently held on the Metro-Goldwyn lot.

HERE'S MABEL NORMAND, all dressed up a la Pompadour. She wears this quaint and billowy affair in her latest Hal Roach comedy, something entitled "Anything Once."

"AT THE BUSIEST SEASON of the whole year I found myself unable to do any work at my art of cartooning and landscape painting. I was simply disgusted with myself—for years I had been taking all kinds of medicines and still my condition failed to improve. Until one day my sister advised me to try Fleischmann's Yeast. I hesitated at first, but I am certainly glad I took her advice. To those who are suffering from constipation my advice is one cake of Yeast with hot water before each meal and on retiring."

Owen S. Young, Germantown, Pa.

"I WAS WRITING FOR several California newspapers and, frankly, I did not care, at the time of which I write, whether I kept on with my work or not—I was so despondent. For years I had suffered from a torpid liver and gradually this condition led to intestinal poisoning and a general impairment of my health. I felt always tired out; I lost my appetite; my skin got sallow. And then—when I scarcely cared what happened—I hit upon the thing that served as a very life preserver for me—Fleischmann's Yeast. I began taking three cakes a day in water or milk. My spirits rose, my grouch disappeared, my color came back and I was soon my old energetic self. Today I attend to my housework and go on with my writing with new joy."

Henrietta Loveless, San Jose, Cal.

RIDING, DANCING, GOLF—these were Mrs. Norman's hobbies before an attack of influenza left her weak and run down. "I felt so miserable," she writes, "I could hardly care for my children. Today, after taking Fleischmann's Yeast for six months I virtually feel another woman. I have been able to resume my everyday occupation and am beginning to ride, dance and play golf with the same zest as when I was eighteen. The most magical part of it is that I look younger, almost as young as I feel."

Constance A. Norman, Chicago, Ill.

THIS FAMOUS FOOD tones up the entire system—aids digestion—clears the skin—banishes constipation

At left, MME. MARGUERITA SYLVA, prima donna mezzo-soprano. Known today as "The World's Greatest Carmen."

MME. SYLVA is shown in her costume as "Carmen," the operatic rôle she has sung before thousands upon thousands of people in the leading opera houses both in Europe and America. Mme. Sylva writes: "I wish to state that, after taking for several years every day a cake of your Yeast, I have absolutely convinced myself that I solely owe my clear complexion as well as my perfectly regulated constitution to your Fleischmann's Yeast."

Marguerita Sylva, New York City

Tired Out . . . Nervous . . . Irritable!

Victims of stubborn, discouraging ills — they found the easy, natural way to joyful, vigorous health

"I SCARCELY cared what happened to me"—"Was unable to do any work"—"For years I had taken all kinds of medicines"—"I was hardly able to care for my children" . . .

Utterly miserable, at times almost ready to give up—they banished their ills, found new health, new hope, new life—simply by eating one amazing fresh food.

Fleischmann's Yeast is not a medicine—it is a corrective, fresh food. The millions of tiny active yeast plants in every cake tone up the whole system, aid digestion, clear the skin.

In constipation, Yeast strengthens the intestinal muscles, making them healthy and active. It checks intestinal putrefaction and prevents the dangerous absorption of poisons by the body.

Eat three cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast regularly every day, one before each meal: on crackers, in fruit juice, milk or water; or just plain in small pieces. For constipation drink it in hot water (not scalding) before meals and at bedtime. All grocers have it. Buy two or three days' supply at a time, and keep in a cool dry place.

And write for a copy of the latest booklet on Yeast for Health. Health Research Dept. N-776, The Fleischmann Company, 701 Washington St., New York.

The Gold of Romance.

MISS CORNELIA MARSH was hurrying to catch the eight o'clock boat.

She had been hurrying for some time. Rising at six-thirty, she had helped with the handful of breakfast and dishes; struggled, as usual, to do the rooms of the two lodgers, but had been routed, as usual, by the obstinacy of her mother and the clock; taken the Bronx subway, going south, to 96th street; changed to the Broadway subway, going north, to 125th, and was now hastening from that station along the three crosstown blocks leading to the Jersey ferry. Between grimy sheds and grimier warehouses an opposing crowd rushed from the Jersey ferry to the station, remorselessly shoving single female wayfarers off the narrow footway into the bedlam of shrieking trucks, trodden refuse, and cobbles slippery with oceanic filth.

Cornelia slipped on the cobbles, but without feeling them. Fastidiously as she managed to avoid them, she didn't really see either trucks or refuse. Though a wage earner and the sole support of her vivacious, pretty little worldling of an old mother, Cornelia, at forty-five, had never learned to see daily disagreeables—refuse, bedlams, grime—as important objects.

What she saw as important just now, for instance, was the river ahead of her, right across the railroad tracks. Black-purple sometimes, sometimes gray green, then flaming azure netted with diamonds, the sight of it always seemed, somehow, to pay her way. Imagine such a thing lying right across your road to work! Twice every day she let her heart rest on its beauty, sustained as by bread and meat and wine and music, almost as if by kisses. Watching the river, she was no longer an old maid who couldn't free her mother from lodgers and housework; she was a millionairess, just coming of age. You can see that Cornelia's view of life was apt not to be founded upon fact. Well, what good would the facts have been to her? She had something romantic in her temperament, which was like a secret pocket in the worked out vein of her hope—suddenly, in the surrounding darkness, yielding nuggets of gold.

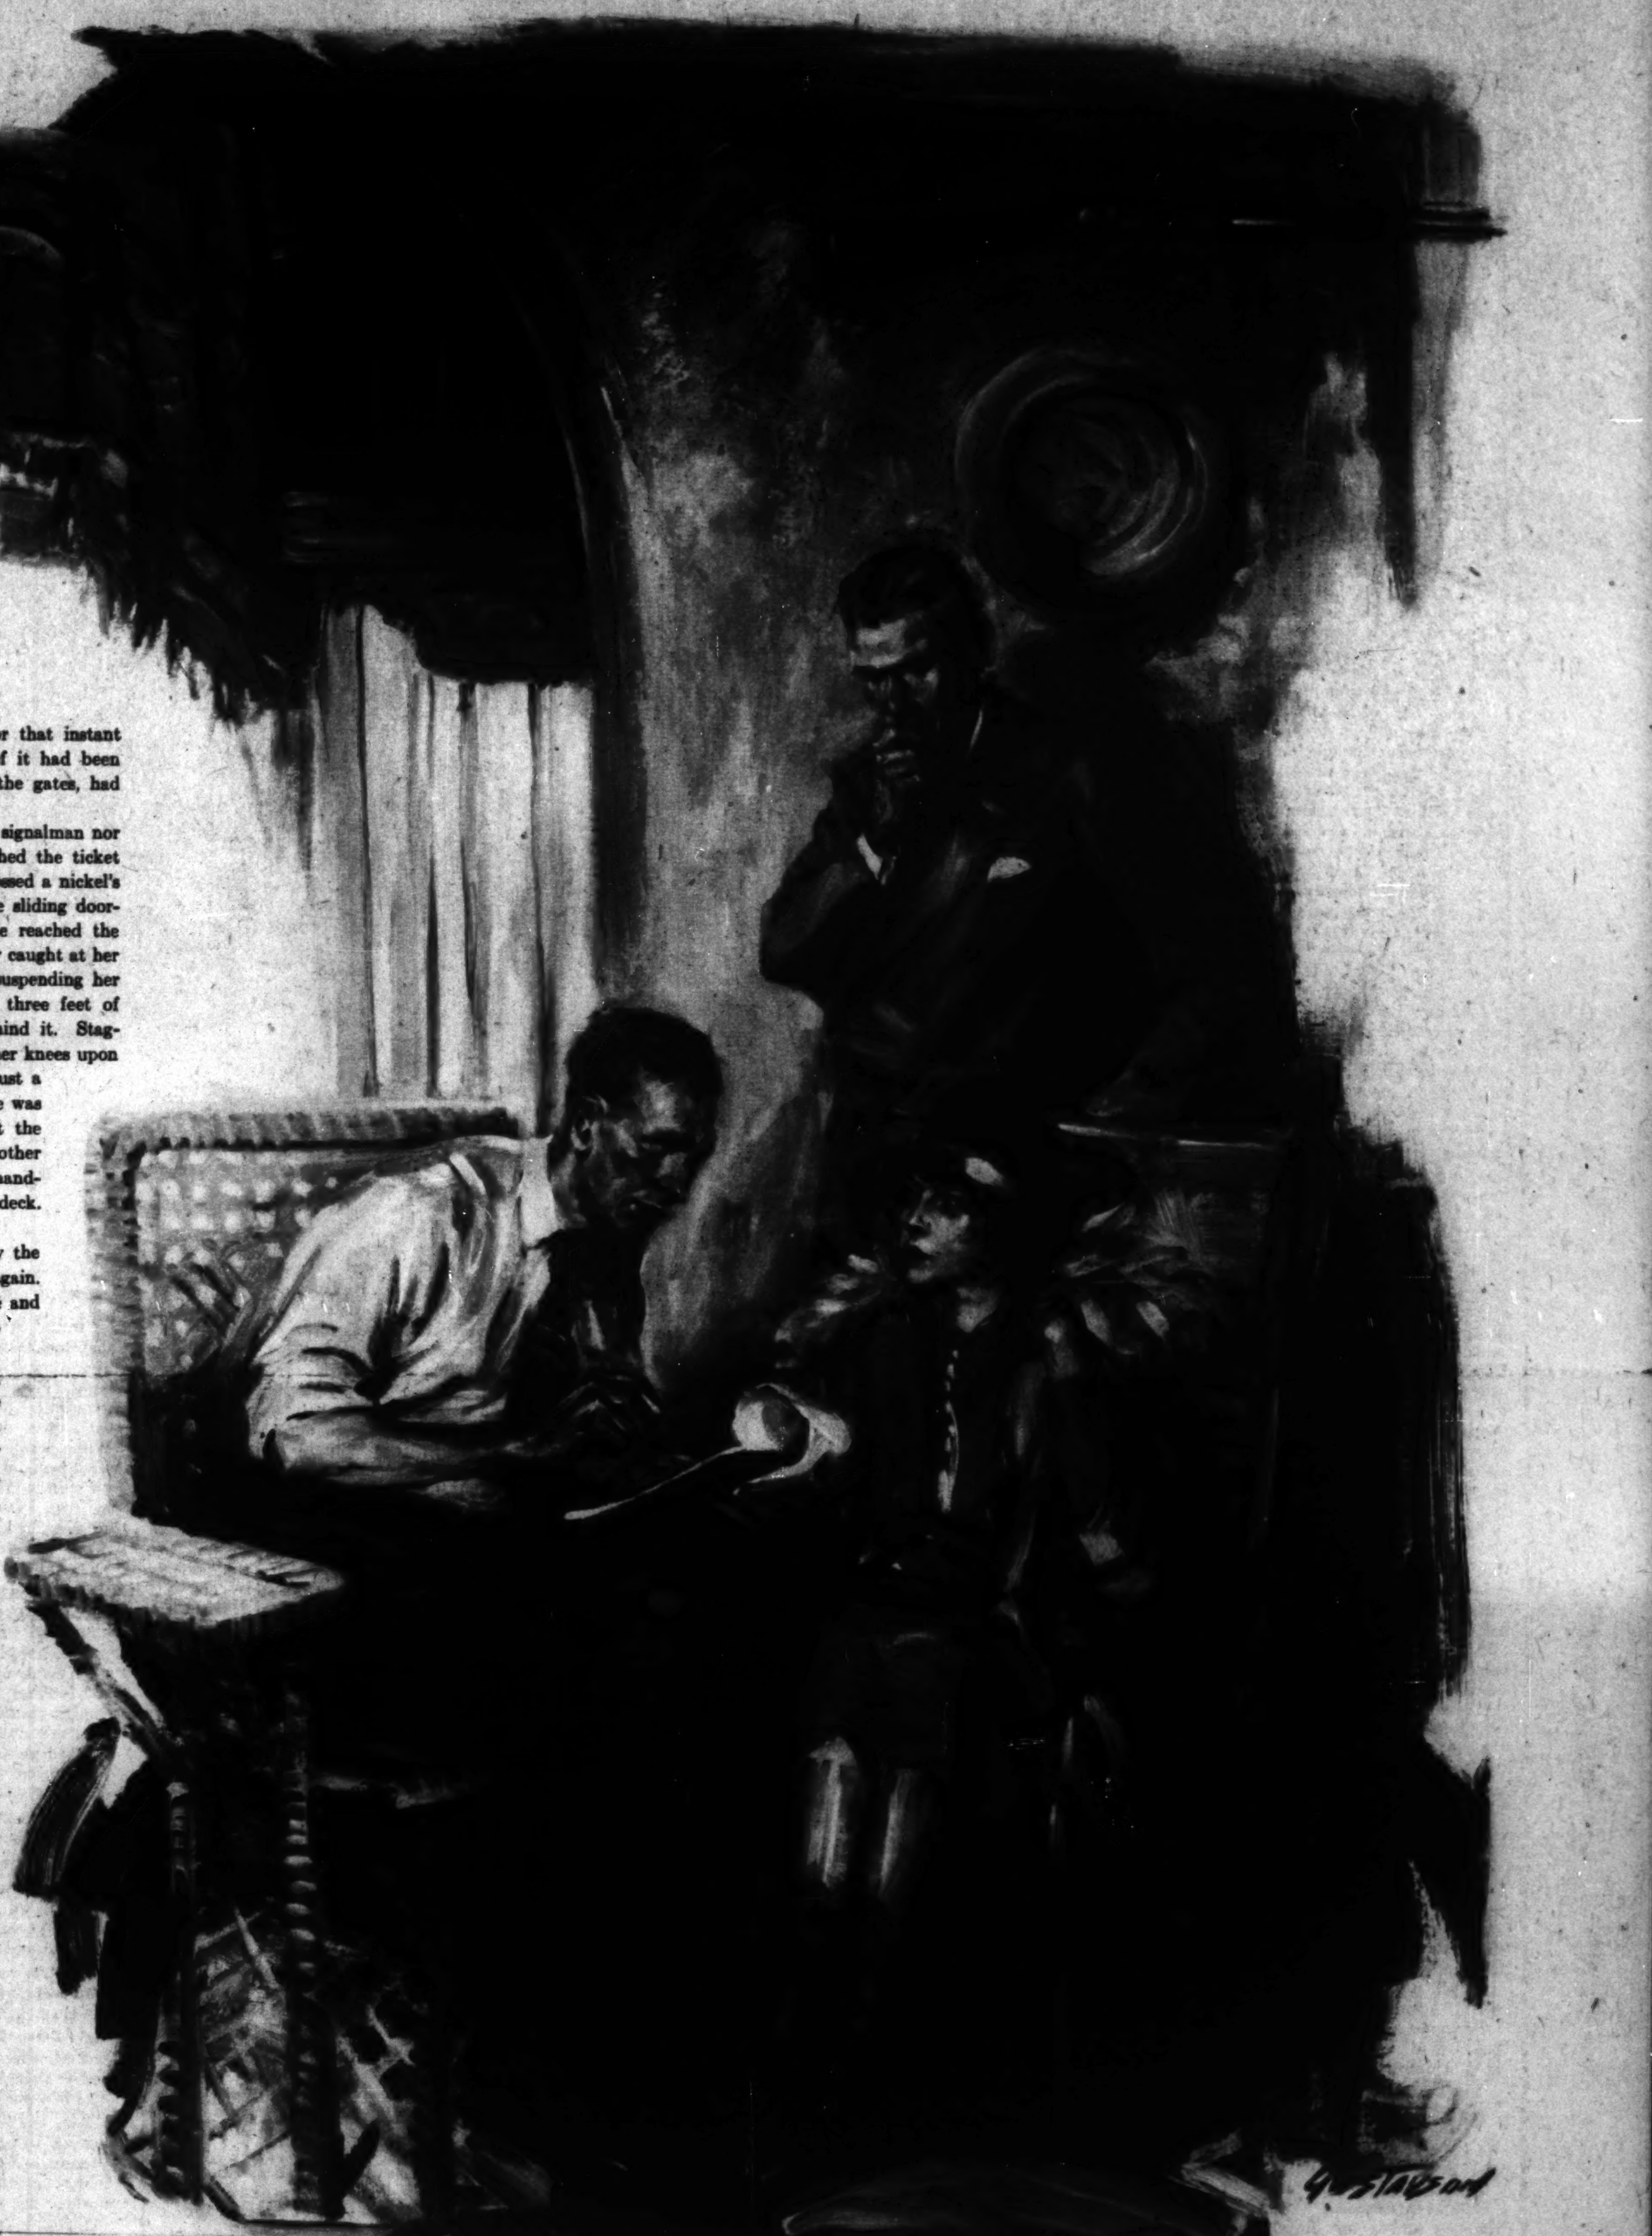
But today a freight train, leisurely bumping between her and the ferry, cut her off from the river and romance, stranding her on its inland side, a hard boiled realist. The whistle of the eight o'clock boat was already calling. If she did not catch that boat she would be late at the office. And if she were late at the office the old spider in the stuffy gray uniform, who sat at the turnstile by which you entered Hertzog's, would catch her name in his baleful web of a time sheet, which would go up among the high places of Hertzog's and be held against her there. The freight train trundled on, rolling and bumping. The whistle called, more and more warningly. At the end of two interminable minutes the brightest dream of Cornelia's life was of throwing herself with shrieks upon the freight train and clawing it to pieces.

Whether or not it felt itself in danger, the freight train exhibited a change of heart—it began trundling back in the direction from which it had trundled forward. For an instant it paused, thinking it over, then started forward again. But for that instant the bit of track directly in front of it had been clear and Cornelia, stooping under the gates, had darted across.

Neither the infuriated howl of the signalman nor the shocked oaths of truckmen reached the ticket chopper at the ferry, to whom she tossed a nickel's open-sesame; the closing jaws of the sliding doorway closed too late to nip her; she reached the edge of the boat slip, where somebody caught at her—apparently in the useful hope of suspending her above the river—as she cleared the three feet of water the boat had already put behind it. Staggered by the shock, she plunked on her knees upon the moving deck. Her knees were just a little stiff for such encounters and she was worried, now it was all over, about the thermos bottle full of hot tea her mother always packed with her lunch in the handbag, which had also struck the deck. Thermos bottles are expensive!

But the outraged clamor put up by the deck hands quite set her on her feet again. What middle aged maiden lady, tame and office broke, would not be puffed up by the clarions heralding such a coup? With ensanguined language blowing round her like banners, the middle aged maiden lady, at that moment a boy of fourteen, swaggered briskly through the cabin to the front deck, where, folding her arms on the railing, she gazed abroad and, in a manner of speech, drank up the Hudson.

TODAY the current ran stone color, blue and gray, and in the still early light long cloaks of shadow swept down the shoulders of the Palisades, deepening into gray drifts and lakes of unplumbed mystery. So that you had only to shut out the factories by squinting a trifle to imagine river and shore as untouched as in the morning of this continent. Indeed, a few canoes full of Indians rose to the surface while she watched. Once Cornelia's imagination would have given her own self a copper complexion that she might live some story in those canoes; now she had another favorite heroine whom she was just settling in one of them when, even through the carefullest squint, she was obliged to perceive Miss Frye and Miss Jacobs snooping round the middle of the boat among the teams.



Lyman was jealous of Horner because he was in love with Dulcie Jayne, the star of the studio . . . . but Dulcie seemed to prefer her director, Daniel K. Leland.

Well did she know what they were snooping for—somebody on his way to Hertzog's in a motor! If you could find such a grandee, who was also a Good Samaritan, you not only saved car fare, you did the trolley's twenty minutes in ten. Moreover, you were apt to pick up bits of gossip—if you were of the picking kind—which might come in handy amid the troubled politics of Hertzog's. All of which small gains are highly desirable when you are working for thirty dollars a week, less forty cents a day car fare, from eight forty-five in the morning till six at night in the scenario department of one of those whirls of luxury, idleness, and easy money known as motion picture studios.

Maids with electric stoves served luncheon.

A shade of sadness, a blush of shame.

In midstream, September morn grew chilly and Cornelia stepped back into a cabin which at this hour was occupied mainly by Italian laborers and motion picture actors. To a sensitive eye both types yielded the gold of romance, though the actors, of course, were not stars—those sacred objects being shut up tight as holy images in the limousines that were packed into a sort of log jam between the two cabins. Returning unsuccessful from their search, the ladies Frye and Jacobs spied Cornelia and bore down upon her. While they were yet some way off, they demanded in tragic accents "what did she think about Mr. Horner?"

"Mr. Horner!" cried Cornelia, instantly startled. "Why, what's wrong? What's happened to him?"

"Fired!" Miss Jacobs replied, with great distinctness. "Everything's wrong, the way I see it."

Cornelia's very brain seemed to melt with agreement. For young Mr. Horner was the head of the scenario department. And no necessity for eking out with lodgers, nor hurrying to evade the gray spider's time sheet, could obscure from his subordinate what a tranquil haven his department was.

Perhaps the most decisive fact in Cornelia's early girlhood had been sudden poverty. Her enchanting father, the greatest Romeo and Marc Antony of his time, had died suddenly, after passing such an agreeable today feeding her and her mother—to say nothing of several other people—pearls with their wine, that he had never bothered to insure a tomorrow when they might have a little butter with their bread. A faint quiver from that crash seemed to tremble on through Cornelia's maturity. Marc Antony-Romeo's daughter had had her own dreams of a career, not as an actress, but as a novelist; year after year she had run after success, as gullibly and faithfully as any donkey after a vanishing bundle of hay, but growing ever more bewildered, scared, exhausted by the increasing slipperiness of the world.

O, the office knew why Hertzog's had fired Mr. Horner. Of course, Lyman Hertzog had been whooping it up to his father that Mr. Horner was in love—so that she turned him around her finger!—with Dulcie Jayne . . . And thus the plot thickens in the second installment. Read it tomorrow in the daily TRIBUNE! Follow this amazing serial in THE TRIBUNE every day!

A NEEDFUL FITNESS by Ben Ames Williams

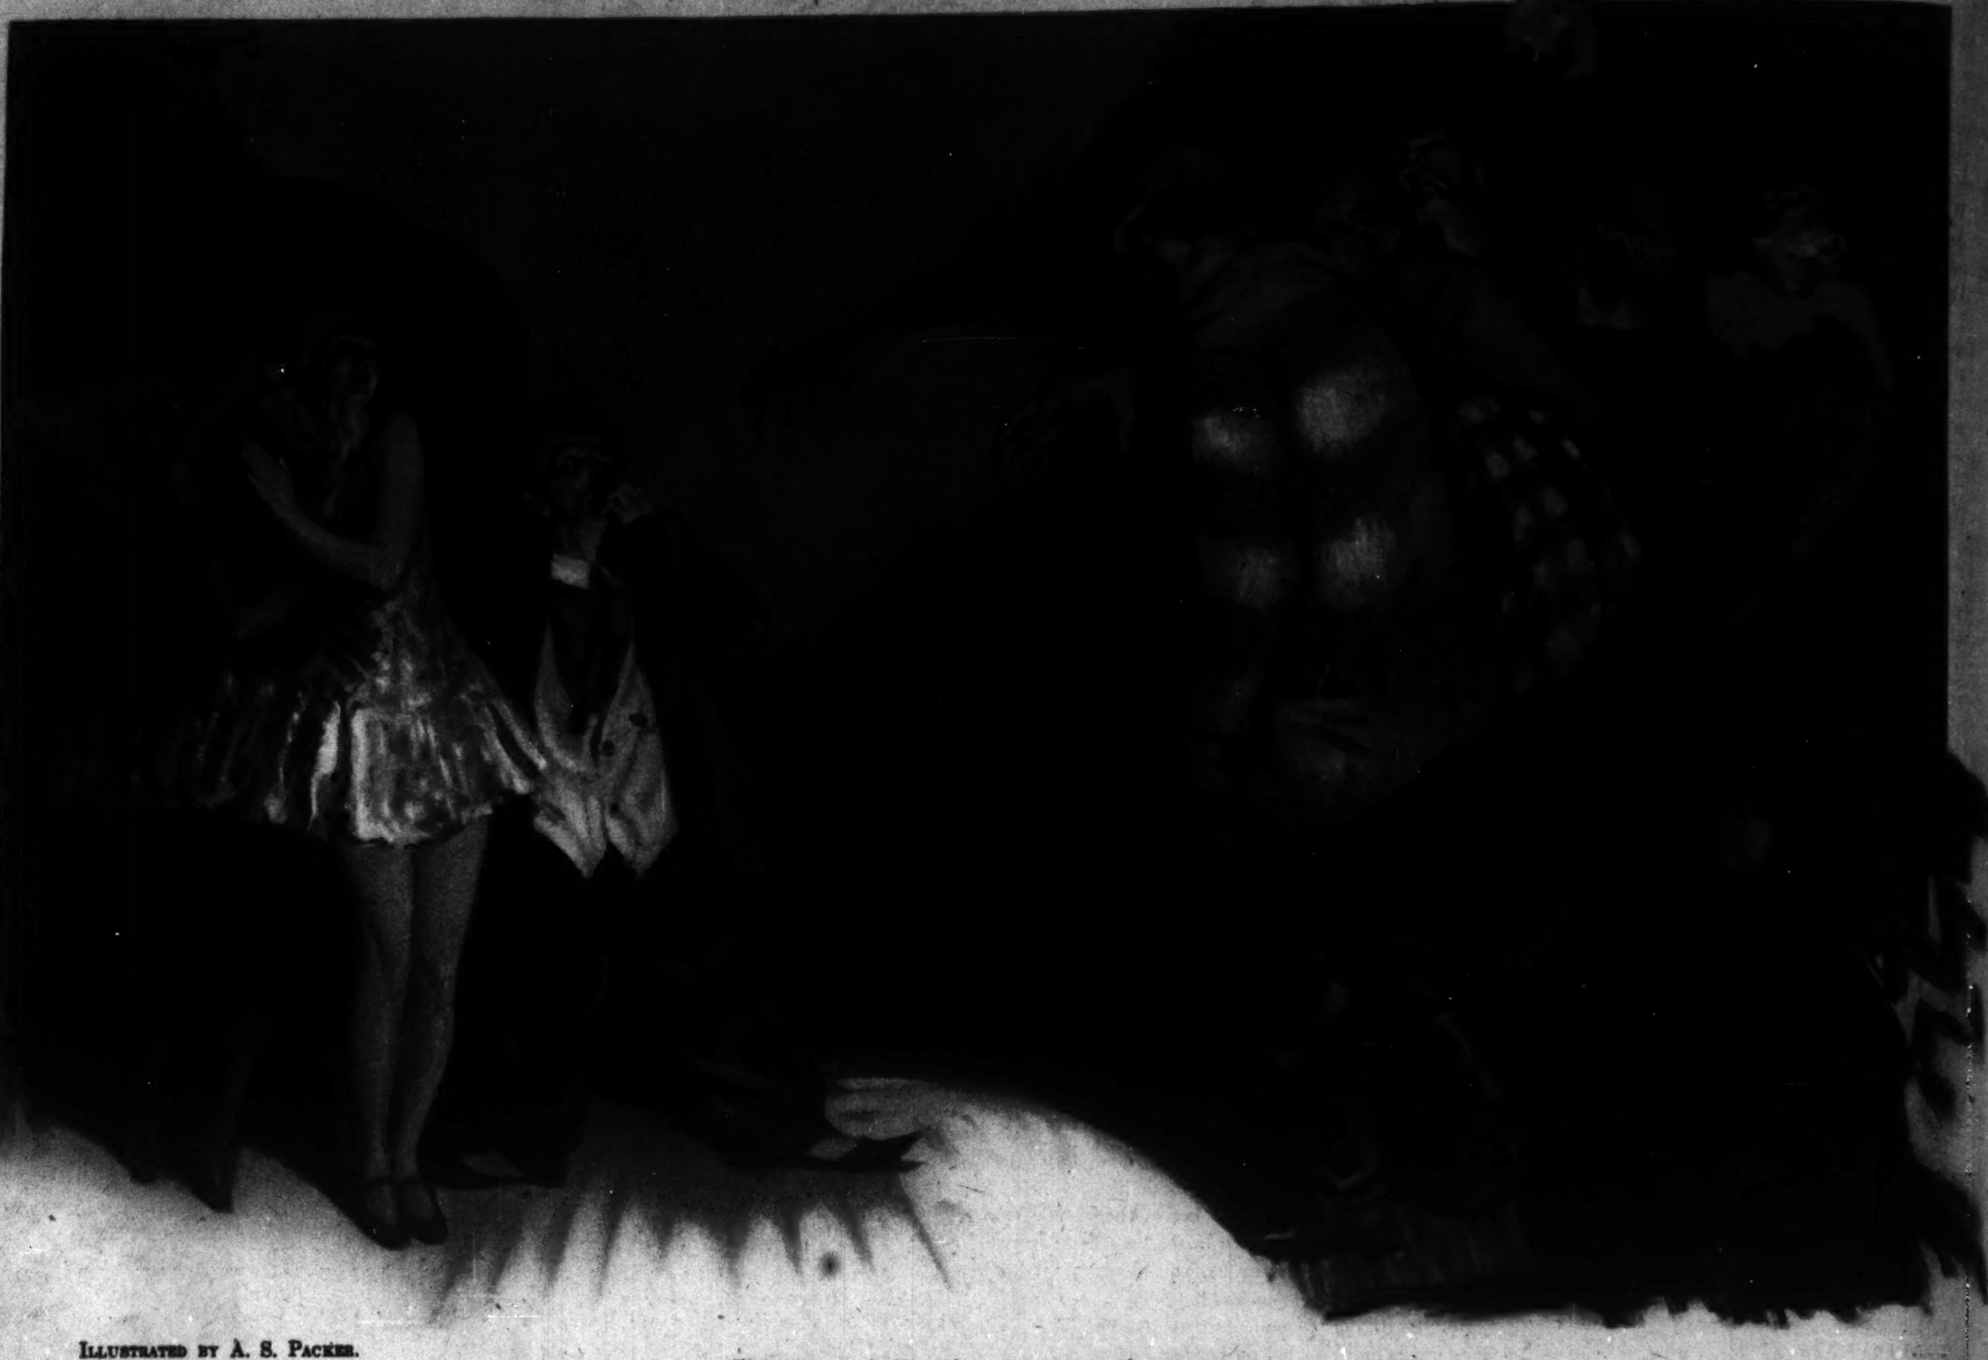
Frail in Body, and Cringing from the Thought of Physical Pain, Willie the Trouper Yet Dared to "Be a Gentleman," Dared to Offer His Life for Others.



Illustrated by A. S. Packer.

There were half a dozen men on the stage now.

CHARLIE BLUMMER and his Daisy Chain girls were playing a one-night stand in Lewiston when his low comedian drank too much home-made molasses rum and was taken to the hospital in a condition which made it impossible for him to continue his comic duties. Charlie went to Portland to find a man to replace him, and happened on Willie Means. He had never seen Willie before, but he despised him on sight and felt an almost uncontrollable impulse to step on his toes as one treads upon a worm.

It is not easy to search out the quality which made Willie thus instantly contemptible, which made men wish to kick him. He was a small man and his slight stature gave him a youthful appearance which his lined and vice-worn countenance belied. His shoulders were narrow, his legs were thin, and the unnaturally large dome of his head seemed likely at any moment to overbalance his small frame. Beneath his bulging brow his nose slumped weakly and his chin fell inward and became a part of his neck, with only a slack wrinkle to mark the dividing line. His eyes were pale and blue and redly discolored and they watered almost constantly. Furthermore, the lower lids were beginning to droop outward in that gesture which is the mark of weary age. People sometimes took the time to wonder just how old Willie was. His face looked as though he might be fifty; his slight figure was that of a stripling. His years were, as a matter of statistics, just thirty-five and a fraction on that night in Portland when he heard that Charlie Blummer was hunting for a low comedian, and ran Blummer down.

For Willie was an actor. Blummer recognised this fact as soon as he saw the little man. He knew it by Willie's clothes. His soft black velour hat was cocked at a jaunty angle, bulky and impressive above his small countenance. Against tremendous handicaps he had managed a clean collar, and so much of his silken shirt as appeared in the triangle between collar and coat was also clean. His suit, of a light check, was shrunken to a snug fit about his thin body, as though it had been incautiously exposed to the weather; and the trousers were faintly corrugated with a pattern which Blummer's experienced eye recognized as that left by a certain type of woven wire bed springs. His shoes were cracked and old, but they were polished, so that from head to foot Willie wore a deceptive elegance; he had an air, and the cane which he carried gave it conviction. His manner, Blummer at once perceived, was grave and formal and composed.

In response to Blummer's questions Willie recited some of his professional experiences. He had, he said, played every part up and down the scale. "But comedy," he added soberly, "was always my great success."

"Yeah?" Blummer prompted incredulously. Willie did not look like a comedian.

"Yes," Willie assured him. "Of course," he added, "I have played other parts. I understand you are supplied with a leading man? Ah, yes. Well, I have no wish to displace him. I only mentioned the matter to suggest the wide range of my experience."

Blummer said frankly: "You throw a good front. But I ain't got time to fool with anybody that don't want to work. We put on a pretty snappy show, and we need the laughs to fill in between song and dance stuff. I'm telling you straight that you don't look good to me."

"Well, it's of small consequence," Willie assured him. "I was willing to help you out."

Blummer eyed him acutely. "Do you hit the booze hard?" he asked. "I lost one man by the D. T.'s, and that's enough."

"I drink no more than a gentleman should," Willie replied.

"Well, that might mean almost anything since we got prohibition," Blummer retorted cynically.

"I can carry my liquor," Willie assured him. "That need not disturb you."

Blummer nodded. "Can you dance?" Willie snapped into a few steps, his cane swinging, his small feet shuffling in a rude rhythm. "Good enough for rough stuff," Blummer assented. "Sing any?"

"I can put across a comic."

Blummer sighed heavily and looked about as though for relief, then wearily decided: "Well, I got to take a chance on you. You'll have to hop back to Lewiston with me this afternoon."

Willie said gravely: "There is only the difficulty of costuming myself, Mr. Blummer. I find my professional wardrobe somewhat reduced. Did the former incumbent, by chance, leave any useful garments behind him?"

"It's a tramp part," Blummer told him. "Anything will do. You can wear what you've got on."

If this reflection on his only suit of clothes disturbed Willie he made no sign. "I have no doubt I can find something," he replied.

So Blummer got a low comedian and Willie got a job. This was routine for Blummer, but it was a matter of moment to Willie. For he was hungry.

Willie was introduced to the remainder of the company at the boarding house table. The six Daisy Chain girls and Mrs. Marnihan were already seated when Willie and Blummer arrived. Blummer said casually, "This is Willie Means. He's going to take Dave's place." And sat down and dove into his soup.

Mrs. Marnihan, a robust woman with yellow hair and white eyebrows, looked up at the name and exclaimed, "Willie Means! I thought you was in Chicago." Her tone could not be called a friendly one; nevertheless Willie accepted it as such.

"Ah, Mrs. Marnihan," he replied. "It's a pleasure to see you again."

She bridled angrily. "I can't say as much. You know you never could fool me, Willie. You're a little rat, and if you know what's good for you you'll leave my things alone."

Blummer, his attention thus forcibly withdrawn from his soup, asked angrily, "What's the matter with him?"

"Wherever he goes things get stolen out of dressing rooms, that's what's the matter," Mrs. Marnihan replied defiantly. "And he can't deny it, either."

Willie smiled ingratiatingly; there was something craven and pitiful in his smile. "Now, Mrs. Marnihan—" he protested. But Blummer cut him off with a word, leveled a warning forefinger.

"You start anything like that in my company and I'll personally kick you out of your pants, Means," he said flatly.

Willie weakly protested, "From one gentleman to another, Mr. Blummer, I hardly think——"

"Shut up," Blummer replied. "I don't care whether Mrs. Marnihan's right or not. But you watch your step with me."

He returned to his soup. Mrs. Marnihan, with a sniff of lofty disdain, disregarded Willie's presence. He stood uneasily, then touched her shoulder.

"Would you mind presenting me to the young ladies?" he suggested.

She looked up at him with blazing eyes, but something in his wistful, smirking countenance melted her. There is no profession so full of charity as that of the stage, and, after all, Willie had always been polite to her.

She said, "Why, this is Gracie next to me. And Molly and Ivy." Her finger ran along the line indicatively. "And Rose and Julie and Zara on that side of the table. Girls, this is Willie Means."

Willie bowed punctiliously to each one. The girls, who had listened with some amusement to the passage between Willie and Mrs. Marnihan, responded according to their habit.

Gracie said in a tone like ice, "I am delighted." Molly bobbed her head and assured him she didn't believe a word Mrs. Marnihan said. Ivy murmured, "Hello!" Rose bade him sit down and eat some supper. Julie, the youngest of the group, babied by them all, nodded without speaking; and Zara, whose boast it was that she never had to pay for a meal in a town that was visited by traveling salesmen, met his eyes coolly but did not speak. Her hair was sleeked back, never a strand escaping, and she prided herself on her individual style. The other girls called her Zaza or Zazz.

Before Willie could sit down Keith Kirk came in. Kirk was the leading man and he was a reasonably handsome figure, tall and broad, with dark hair and eyes and a small, dark mustache. It is not always possible to find good looking men to play leads in a wandering musical show, and Kirk was an asset.

Blummer greeted him politely, the Daisy Chain girls nodded, and Mrs. Marnihan said to him, "Keith, this is Willie Means. He's taking Dave's place."

Willie held out his hand, said urbanely, "How do you do?"

Kirk touched the hand with his finger tips and nodded a careless response before sitting down.

So Willie was able at last to devote himself to the food. He did this with a certain avidity; it was his first opportunity of the kind since noon of the day before. But even in his hunger his manners were seemly. It has been said that a successful actor must have a passionate conviction of identity with the part which he portrays. Willie had such a conviction. In spite of his vices—he drank when he could and yielded now and then to the temptation of a petty theft—he played, off the stage and on, the part of a gentleman, and he had a passionate conviction of his identity with the part. His attire had always a fashionable rake to it, no matter how shabby it might become; his language was always grave and courteous; he was forever mindful of the fitness of things.

When the company rose from the table he drew back Mrs. Marnihan's chair, while Blummer led the way through the door into the hall, picking his teeth obliviously, and Kirk crowded out ahead of Molly and Zara. Willie stood politely at one side and waited till they all had passed him. The fact that he had no baggage of his own permitted him to carry two bags to the station for the girls, and when the company was settled in a day coach for one of their jumps from town to town Willie suggested to Kirk and Blummer that they go into the smoking car.

"The ladies," he would say, "will no doubt prefer to be alone."

DURING the next weeks they came to know him and to tolerate him. In the nightly performance he played his part as a tramp with the same elegance of diction, the same graceful and courteous bearing which he wore off the stage. The effect was quite definitely comic; the audiences appreciated it and roared with delight, and Blummer was pleased with his find. Mrs. Marnihan made light of Willie's work; she insisted that he did not know he was good. But Blummer warned her to let Means alone. "As long as he gets away with it what's the difference?" he challenged.

Keith Kirk had, from the first, looked upon Willie with scorn; he continued so to do, refusing to share a room with him at the boarding houses or the hotels where they stayed and keeping aloof except when their work threw them together. When Means drew a laugh from an audience Kirk stood by—if he were on the stage—in bored indifference. Unconsciously he served as an excellent foil.

The Daisy Chain girls from the beginning made a butt of Willie. They were quick to discover that he would do them any service they required, and they took advantage of his willingness to load upon him every menial task. Willie did these chores willingly. He carried bags; he ran errands; he mailed letters and he matched ribbons. They repaid him with open derision and cruel jests. They hated Willie because he was so humble, just as they hated Kirk because he was so aloof. Kirk met their laughter with indifference; Willie winced under it, but hid his pain. Once or twice Blummer warned them to go slow, and once he threatened to discharge Rose if she persisted; Blummer was a tyrant in his small way, and thereafter Willie had a measure of peace.

One of their devices was to discuss him within his hearing and as though he were not there. They pretended to be afraid that he would steal their poor possessions. On an afternoon in the train, when he returned from the smoking car and took a seat behind them, Rose said loudly to Gracie, as though continuing a conversation long under way: "O, he's a scut, all right. He never bothered me. A fat chance he'd have. I keep my eyes open when he's around. But you can't leave a pair of baby pins on your bureau, they say."

Gracie asked cynically, "Did he ever steal your valuables, honey?"

"I'll tell the world he didn't."

Ivy, who was as sophisticated as a subway guard, asked in an affectedly timorous tone, "Don't you think I'm wise? I always push the bureau against my bedroom door."

"You're safe enough," Gracie assured her. "No man will ever break into your room, dearie."

"Well, he tried to kiss Julie on the stairs last night," Ivy insisted, and poor Willie was driven to protest. He stepped into the aisle and came up beside them and said slowly, "I didn't do that, Ivy. That's something no gentleman would do."

Zara had been sitting silently in the seat in front, but she turned around at this and looked up at him wearily. "Gentleman!" she drawled. "Why, what makes you think you're a gentleman, Willie? You're nothing but a dirty little ham!"

In the face of their mirth he was miserable with confusion and retreated to the smoking car again. But he bore no malice. At their next stop he was as polite as ever, as unwearied in little courtesies, as eager to serve.

"The man's a fool," Rose said stoutly, watching him stagger up the street toward the hotel with two suitcases in one hand and one in the other. "That's what's the matter with him. He's a fool." She was with Zara, and she added thoughtfully: "But you did hand it to him rough, Zazz. Let him think he's a gentleman if he wants to. I don't see that it does any harm."

"He wearies me," Zara assured her coldly. "Playing his monkey tricks."

"O, he's a monkey, all right," Rose agreed.

Willie had been two months with the company by the time they worked into northern Maine. As often as he could manage it he got drunk; but he was sufficiently in awe of Blummer so that he timed his dissipations not to interfere with his professional duties.

Twice Kirk found Willie trying to get into his room, and the second time he caught the little man by the wrist and jerked him away with such a cruel wrench that Willie shrieked and begged to be released. He was utterly craven, could not endure the slightest pain. Kirk reported the incident to Blummer, and Blummer manhandled Willie so roughly that the little man was deterred from further transgression. They drifted through the remote little Maine towns, and sometimes they did well and sometimes they did ill.

Blummer, rotund and bald, with a crass nakedness about him even when he was fully clad, presided over their destinies with an implacable calm and paid them when he thought it was for their own good.

They left the industrial towns behind them and came into the region where the harvesting of lumber is man's principal preoccupation. The character of the audiences changed; there were fewer women in the house; the men wore rougher garb and sometimes jeered aloud at the performance or called ribaldries to the dancing girls. If the girls ventured on the streets in the daytime it was to meet leers and rude advances.

In these rougher surroundings Willie Means found life a painful proceeding. The men in the streets laughed at him and hurt his careful dignity; they jostled him and made loud remarks behind his back. Once a drunken lumberman stepped on his toes and the man's spikes scarred the painfully polished leather of Willie's shoes and pierced the foot beneath. Willie gasped with the pain and fled to the hotel, and he limped through his dances that night.

Kirk witnessed the incident, and at the first opportunity recounted it before them all, imitating Willie's shudder and cry. He perceived how even the memory of his pain tortured the little man, so he told tales of the way the lumbermen battled among themselves and how men were scarred for life by the bite of spikes, till Willie's raw nerves quivered with scalding anguish. It became one of the jests practiced by the girls to pinch him or to stab him lightly with a pin in order that they might laugh at his pale torment. His

THE OTHER DAY

Call for Jeb, the Mountain Boy

By Donald Ogden Stewart

ON the first evening of our wedding trip to New York City and environs my wife and I decided to go to the theater.

"What theater?" asked the current Mrs. S. We were sitting in our room at the hotel resting from a strenuous afternoon at the Aquarium.

"Well," I replied, "I shall take a look in the paper and see."

"Before you do that," she replied, "I would pull down that window shade."

"Why?" I asked.

"As a good example," she replied, "to the woman across the court."

"Is it any one we know?" I asked.

"I hope not," was her answer.

I got up and walked to the window.

"It looks a little," I said, after a minute, "like Helen Cornwall."

"Will you please pull down that shade?" demanded my wife.

"If I could only see her face," I began.

"Donald," said my wife, rather sharply.

"Oh, shoot," I exclaimed. "She's gone into another room."

I waited for a minute. Then my wife came over and pulled down the blind for me.

"We'll have to hurry and dress," she said, "if we want to get to any theater on time."

I picked up the newspaper and turned to the amusement page.

"Helen Cornwall is an actress," I remarked. "At least, she left Columbus to come to New York and go on the stage. Maybe we can see her in something."

"I think I would rather go to a play," said my wife.

I looked around for a cigaret and finally found one.

"That's very unkind," I commented. "Helen was always considered very talented. She and I played the lead in our high school class play."

My wife smiled somewhat ironically.

"It was something I wrote myself," I added.

She had already begun to dress and did not seem very interested.

"It was a tragedy," I continued. "A grim tragedy of the Tennessee mountains. It wasn't bad, either."

"Don't you think you had better start?" suggested my wife.

I slowly began to untie my necktie.

"We got very good reviews in the local papers," I said.

"What?" she called, from the interior of a deep clothes closet.

"We got very good reviews in the local papers," I shouted.

She reappeared after a moment.

"I don't think the valet brought your dinner coat back," she announced.

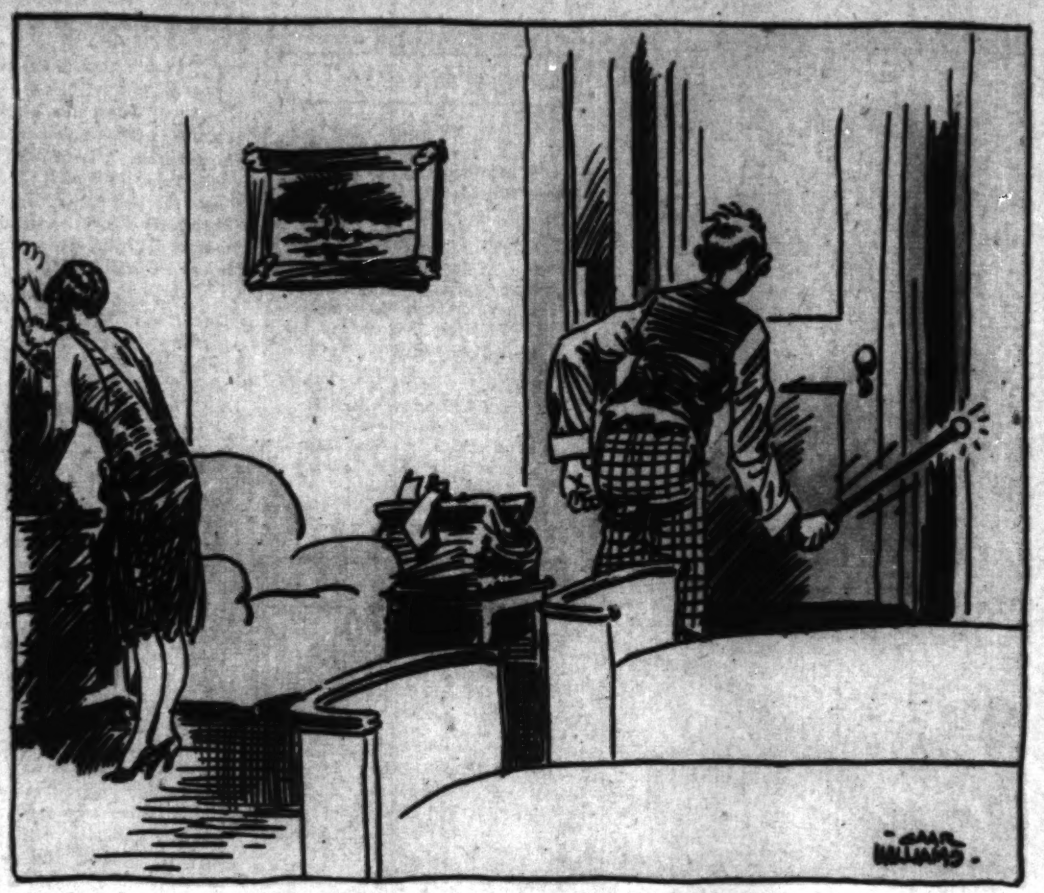
I looked around for a place to put my cigaret ash.

"I took the part of Jeb, a mountain boy," I said. "Would you like to hear me talk like Tennessee mountain folks?"

"I think you had better telephone the valet," she replied.

"Why bless you' soul, lady," I said, "Ah would sutain be glad to."

I reached for the telephone.



GAAR WILLIAMS.

"Come in," I called apprehensively.

"What sort of a tarnation all-fired 'traption is this here, now?" I asked.

"It's a telephone," she replied. "You talk right in that mouthpiece."

"Ah'm sure obleeged to ye, lady," I said, and with that I took down the receiver.

"Hallo, you all," I said. "This is Jeb, the mountain boy."

"Just a minute," came back the answer. "I think we have a call for you."

I looked at my wife in alarm.

"There's a call for Jeb, the mountain boy," I whispered. "What had I better do?"

"Get the dinner coat," she replied. "We're going to be terribly late."

At that minute the telephone clicked again in my ear.

"Hello," I said in a deep bass voice.

"Is this Mr. J. B. Crowninshield?" was the question, and it seemed to be coming from a very great distance.

"No," I replied.

"Wait a minute."

I waited.

"Listen, dear," began my wife.

"Shh," I said. The telephone had clicked once more.

"Washington, D. C., is calling Mr. J. B. Crowninshield," came very faintly over the wire.

"He's not here," I said, and I added: "We don't know any J. B. Crowninshield."

"Wait a minute."

Once more I obeyed. In a few moments the same voice began to speak.

"When do you expect him?"

"We don't expect him," I replied. "We don't know him. We never heard of him."

I hung up.

"That will be a lesson to you," began my wife, "not to—"

THE telephone bell rang sharply—very sharply. I took down the receiver.

"Mr. Crowinsheld?"

"NO."

"When do you expect him?"

"Listen," I said, as patiently as I could. "We don't know any Mr. Crowninshield except Mr. Frank Crowninshield and this is all a mistake and probably my fault because I was joking about being Jeb, the mountain boy, which I suppose sounds like Crowninshield, but God knows I am paying for that joke and will you please—"

"Wait a minute."

"I might as well, dear," I said to my wife.

I didn't have to wait long.

"Washington will talk with Mr. Frank Crowninshield," said the voice.

"He's not here."

"When do you expect him?"

"Never."

"When?"

"Tomorrow."

"Have him call the Washington operator."

"Yes," I said, and hung up.

My wife was examining her evening dress in front of the mirror.

"All right, Jeb," she said. "Now the dinner coat."

I looked at the telephone.

"I'm afraid to," I replied.

At that moment there was a knock at the door.

"Maybe it's the telephone operator," suggested my wife, "looking for Mr. Crowninshield."

I reached for a stout gold headed cane.

"Come in," I called, apprehensively.

The door opened and a meek man with several suits over his arm entered.

"I was just going to telephone for it," I said.

With his free hand he looked at his watch.

"We don't generally dine in New York," he remarked, "until somewhat later."

"I know," I replied, "but I thought that perhaps we would go to the theater."

He shrugged his shoulders.

"There's nothing at the theaters yet this season," he said, "that is worth while being on time for."

"No?" I said, disappointedly. "That's too bad. What's the trouble?"

He shook his head.

"I'm sure I don't know," he replied. "I only know that I have come out of the theaters lately horribly unsatisfied. Maybe it's only temporary," he added.

He had finished hanging up my clothes and he turned to go.

"I just don't want you to think it's New York's fault," he said, at the door. "Because it's not."

I nodded comprehendingly.

"Of course it isn't," I agreed.

"Thank you," he said and was gone. I turned to my wife.

"Hurry up," she said. "We'll just have time."

"For what?" I asked.

"For dinner and the theater," she replied.

"But you heard what the gentleman said," I argued. "There's evidently nothing very good to see."

She had picked up the paper and was searching through the announcements. I took off my bathrobe and began to pull on the trousers of my Tuxedo.

"Have you heard anything about the play called 'To the Ladies'?" she asked.

"Not for two or three years," I replied. "What's it called now?"

She glanced up at the date on the top of the column.

"Where did you get this paper?" she asked.

"It must have come out of my trunk," I replied. "And now can I ask a question?"

"What?" she said.

"Do you notice anything wrong about these trousers?"

She looked at me and began to laugh.

"You've shrunk," she said. "What did you eat for lunch?"

I tried to remember.

"Some split pea soup," I replied, "and some lamp chops——"

"Try on the coat," she suggested.

The coat was worse.

"What with a 1923 newspaper," she said, "and that suit——"

Some one knocked. It was the valet.

"The gentleman in 1029," he said, "suggests that I have made a mistake."

"What's his name?" asked my wife. "William J. Burns?"

"No," replied the valet. "I think his name is Crowninshield."

"Oh," I said. "Tell him to call the Washington, D. C., operator."

"Yes, sir," said the valet, and retired.

In a few minutes I had on my own suit and in an hour and a half we were at the theater. It was a play about the Tennessee mountain folks, but it wasn't very good.

A NEEDFUL FITNESS

By Ben Ames Williams

abnormal sensitiveness made him an easy victim.

ONE morning they alighted from the train in a town filled with men who had just brought a great drive of logs down the river. The streets were packed with them; they had found liquor and their roaring voices filled the air. Blummer, from the station, perceived the situation with satisfaction. "We'll have a full house tonight," he told the girls; and after they were established in the hotel he called Willie and they set out together to find the owner of the hall in which they were to appear.

Willie had long since been pressed into service in the work of setting the stage for their performances; he was stage hand as well as comedian. He was glad of the bulky comfort of Blummer's companionship while he walked the streets this day, for the groups of men, filled with the rude gusto of living, terrified him.

They found the owner of the hall in a doubtful mood. "I dunno," he told Blummer. "Mebbe you better call off your show. When the men are in town like this they're always apt to make trouble. Last year they rid a man out of town on a pick pole that brought a show here when they was just in."

Blummer laughed. "Probably the show was no good," he suggested.

"Nothing looks good to them when they're drunk," the man insisted. "I wouldn't risk it."

"They've got money," Blummer grunted. "We'll have a good house. Leave it to us to keep 'em in a good humor."

"You don't know these boys."

Willie asked tremulously, "What are they likely to do?"

"Well," the proprietor explained, "sometimes they'll set still and laugh and have a good time and everything's good natured. But then sometimes they start throwing things, or one of them will be feeling wild and get up on the stage. They hurt a young actor fellow pretty bad here three years ago. Course, they're just boys, not meaning any real harm."

"We'll give them something snappy," Blummer assured him. "We've got a good show and they'll eat it up. I wouldn't wonder if we stayed over another night."

"How did they hurt him?" Willie asked.

"Why, he fell down or something and they stamped on him a little with their spikes." The man chuckled. "I guess his hide will look like he was shot full of bird shot long as he lives."

"You've got to know how to handle them," Blummer insisted.

The local man shook his head. "All right. They can't hurt the hall any. It's used to it. Your girls will have to have their nerve with them, though."

"They've got a-plenty of it," Blummer told him. "You leave that to me."

He was cheerfully contented with the prospects, and this in spite of the fact that the hall itself was ill adapted for theatrical uses. The stage was simply a platform at one end, half inclosed in a recess in the wall, the other half projecting. There was a curtain that would suffice, and he and Willie improvised screens on the floor at either side which would serve as dressing rooms. Exits and entrances must be made by climbing the stairs to the platform. The back drop, which was the only scenery Blummer carried, would sufficiently dress the stage, he decided.

"These men won't be particular," he assured Willie. "We'll put it over. You and Kirk and me can dress on one side and the girls and the old woman on the other." The two put in a busy day of preparation, and at dinner time Blummer was satisfied. He had hired a piano player and had engaged one of the three policemen in town to stand at the box office; the owner of the hall would sell tickets. Blummer professed himself content, and in the hotel gave a final word of instruction to the girls.

"Snap into it a little livelier tonight," he advised. "These boys like speed. We'll show them some."

"I'll tell the world," Rose dryly agreed.

"Well, cut the lines down to the bone," Blummer directed. "Then if a song makes a hit, give 'em as many encores as they'll take. And snap up the dances. Don't be afraid to kick. They don't want style; they want action."

The girls received his harangue confidently enough; they were sure of their powers. Julie alone, the youngest, was nervous and frightened, but Rose, as they threaded their way through the crowds on the way to the hall, reassured her. "Kid them along," she explained. "Keep 'em good humored. I've got a hunch we'll put it over big."

The seats were already filling when they reached the screened recess where they were to dress.

BLUMMER was rather proud of the book of his show, because he had written it himself. It was, he used to point out, a model musical comedy. "A man comes to a show to see a pretty chorus," he would say. "And a woman comes to see a good looking man. Well, I give them what they want; and no high priced prima donna to pay, either."

He was accustomed to bill his performance as "The Daisy Chain Girls, or Adam in Eden." This title had never wholly satisfied him; he thought it lacked appeal. It served merely in default of a better. There were two acts, both to be presented on the same set, which was an open air scene with a veranda at one side.

"And we can do without the veranda," he explained.

The back drop furnished the open air. The plot Blummer had gathered from a number of sources; the songs had been written for him by a hack, at cut rates. Himself played the part of a farmer with six daughters; Mrs. Marnihan was his wife. Keith Kirk was a rich young man whose automobile broke down outside the gates, so that he had to spend a day at the farm. The daughters immediately and unanimously fell in love with him, wooing him while he scorned them. Willie Means, as a knight of the road, stopped to beg a meal and became infatuated with the daughters indiscriminately, pursuing them with his attentions and suffering their rebuffs throughout the two acts.

There were four songs in each act; the hit of the first act was the finale sung by the six girls to Keith. It was called "Won't You Please Love Me a Little?" In the second act Julie, as the youngest daughter, won Kirk and ran away with him, while the other five sang the second hit of the piece, "We're Waiting for a Nice Young Man," to bring the curtain down.

Blummer himself had the first song in the first act. It was by way of welcome to Kirk upon his arrival; and in tuneful numbers he introduced the young man to each of his daughters, expatiating upon their individual attractions. In line with his policy of reducing lines to a minimum, he had decided to ring up the curtain this night on the blast of an automobile horn, himself, Mrs. Marnihan, and the six daughters being revealed upon the stage. Kirk was to make his entrance at once.

"What this bunch wants is music and dancing," he had warned the girls. "We'll hop right into it. Keep every song going as long as they'll take it, and dance as long as you can kick. If we do a good job tonight we can pack 'em in again tomorrow."

He had had some misgivings as the hall filled, for it was apparent that most of the men had been drinking. He and Willie Means and Kirk peered around the screen which inclosed their dressing quarters and studied the faces, and Blummer tried to hearten himself by pointing out how hilariously good humored they were. The air became heavy with the fumes of the pipes the men were smoking; the odor of alcohol hung like a cloud. Willie had not had a drink for a week; and he wished mightily for one in this hour. The crowd grew more and more restless, shouting for the show to begin, and at length Blummer lumbered onto the stage, arranged himself and the girls, and signaled to Willie to draw the curtain. Willie obeyed, then crouched out of sight to wait for whatever was to come. He could see a man in the front row with a stained bandage around his head, and his heart was sick with fear.

Mrs. Marnihan was on the stage when the curtain was withdrawn. Out of the hoarse howl which greeted them words became distinguishable, and she straightened indignantly as she understood them, understood they were addressed to her. Some one audibly compared her to one of the less respectable domesticated beasts, and Mrs. Marnihan, with her head high, stepped down from the platform beside Willie and out of sight. Her eyes were blazing; and she said to Willie: "For two cents I'd go out there and give them a piece of my mind."

Willie nodded. "They ought not to act that way," he agreed. "They ought not to talk that way to a lady like you, Mrs. Marnihan."

"I'm not going to stay, nor show myself again," she told him. "You tell Blummer he'll have to get along without me. I'm going back to the hotel."

"I'll go with you," Willie offered. "You'll need some one."

She sniffed with scorn. "I can take care of myself. I'll get out by the door right in the corner here. You stay. They'll need you to help look out for the girls. That bunch is apt to pull anything."

When she was gone Willie turned his attention to what went forward. Blummer was singing, and the audience was already becoming unruly. He was desperately afraid, and he might have escaped, but, as Mrs. Marnihan had said, there was a chance he would be needed to look out for the girls. They needed a gentleman's protection. So he watched Blummer, and listened nervously to the outcries from the house.

Blummer, fondling his daughters as he presented them to Kirk, had offended the sensibilities of the lumbermen. He was so bald and old and evil; the girls were young and some of them were pretty. When Blummer put his arms around Zara's shoulders some one shouted "Keep your paws off of her." When he chucked Rose under the chin another voice advised her to slap his face; and when he encircled Julie's waist a gigantic figure in the front row threatened to throw him off the stage if he didn't leave her alone.

WILLIE trembled. So soon as Blummer's turn was done he must go out on the stage; and his knees shook at the prospect of fronting that howling mob.

But Blummer was an old hand; he knew how to temper his performance to the tastes of his audience, and before he finished his turn he had mollified the crowd. Then Willie heard his cue, and faltered up on the stage, and won a guffaw or two by the wistful dignity with which he went through his antics. The crowd sat good humoredly through the lines that preceded the next song, which the girls sang together, and which they followed by the first dance number. This was enormously successful. It would not be accurate to say that the girls were well trained, but Gracie and Zara were supple and pretty, and Rose had a mischievous abandonment at her command which pleased them tremendously. They were forced to go through the dance over and over again, while Willie sighed with relief at the respite and Kirk watched from the side of the stage and Blummer from his dressing space whispered sharply, "Faster! Faster!" The audience insisted that Rose dance alone; they kept her at it till Willie saw that she was exhausted and improvised a dance of his own, burlesquing hers, which won her a respite and carried them on to the next number.

It had become apparent that the audience wanted to watch the girls and would tolerate Willie; Blummer they met with rude remarks whenever he took the center of the stage, and Kirk had inspired their dislike from the first. Now when Kirk and Gracie had a dance together he was shouted into retirement while Gracie went on alone; and a Frenchman on the aisle bounded to the stage and offered to dance with Gracie, and Blummer had to interfere and persuade the man to get down so that the show could go on.

The temper of the crowd had been good, but this seemed to disappoint them; there were some growls and protests. Half a dozen voices yelled to the Frenchman, "Go on, Jack. Show 'em how!" The man took a lumbering step or two, but his spikes tripped him. Willie saw how the sharp points bit the boards and remembered how they had crushed into his flesh and shuddered with reminiscent pain, but his own terrors were forgotten as it came his turn to sing.

It was his part to woo each girl in turn, beseeching them to smile on him, while each in turn rebuffed him. Willie could not sing, and the crowd groaned, but when Zara put so much realism into her rebuff that she slapped his face there was a roar of delight and the other girls took their cue from Zara. They slapped him, kicked at him, kicked his hat off, pushed and pulled him this way and that, pursued him around the stage, and the men roared with appreciation and shouted their encouragement.

"Give him the boot! Give him the boot!" some one cried, and others took up the cry, and the volatile Frenchman leaped again to the platform to show how it should be done, but Blummer put him down again. Nevertheless he was willing to give the crowd what they wanted, so to the girls who winnowed Willie about the stage he whispered, over and over, "Keep it up! Keep it up! Soak him good."

Willie was fairly exhausted before they let him go; he was glad to drop off the platform into the nook, where he would have changed his costume if he had had a costume to change. He sat there and choked and gasped for breath and catalogued his bruises and wondered if it had been necessary for the girls to put quite so much spirit into their abuse. His cheek still smarted from the impact of Zara's palm. He heard her whisper to Rose, under cover of the din, "I've been waiting for a chance at him!"

THEN Kirk and Blummer were shouting the dialogue—he began to detect a new note in the voice of the crowd. The men were not so good humored as they had been; they were wearying of such tame sport. Willie knew the signs; he was an old trouper and he had seen disorder before. It was plain to him now that they were brewing a more tempestuous outbreak, and he listened with increasing alarm, and when he thought of what might happen he cringed with fear. But it did not occur to him to escape. He had the trouper's instinct to go on with the show; and besides he might be needed to look out for the girls.

They were approaching the end of the second act when the catastrophe broke upon them. The girls were singing "Won't You Please Love Me a Little" to Keith Kirk, while Kirk, as his part demanded, registered scorn, disdain, disgust. They besought him, individually and in chorus, to smile upon them, to give them a kiss, to marry them, and the crowd, already disgusted with him, resented his aloofness.

Some one yelled, "Aw, give them a kiss!"

Another shouted, "You big stiff!"

A drunken man bellowed, "Le's hang the big bum!"

This tickled them; they were willing to watch Keith's reaction to the threat, and a dozen stamped into the aisle and toward the stage. At the same time an egg in the condition sanctified by ancient custom for such usage struck the back drop with a spattering sound. Kirk looked toward the crowd, hesitated for an instant, then lost courage and leaped toward the door at one side of the platform. He was gone before they could interfere, but the swirl of men that sought to catch him blocked the escape of the others and they were left pilloried upon the stage, where other missiles now were flying. Willie, crouching in his retreat, thanked his poor fates that he was inconspicuous, and sat still.

But Blummer stepped to the front of the platform with his hands raised in an appeal for silence, and Willie stirred in restless doubt. An egg struck Blummer's shoulder. Then two men who had been seized by an inspiration panted up the stairs with a barrel of discarded apples from the store next door and Blummer was overwhelmed and beaten back by the resulting barrage. Men were crowding around

TEMPTING MENUS FOR THE WEEK by Jane Eddington

The Passing of the Joint

IT is an odd phrase to use, but they do tell us that "the styles of beef" are changing. We have known it this many moons. In fact, we once dined at the Bœuf a la Mode in Paris and the ox on the menu wore a prodigious bonnet of a sort in style a century ago. Beef is often dressed up with table skewers, which the French call hâtelet, but with the changing style the "joint," even in cold service, will not be big enough to hold the smallest skewer, no matter what its denomination. There is a skewer with a sword handle for the sirloin, and as many others, and more, as there are kinds of meat to dine on.

Yes, even before most of us living today were born, the baron of beef (in 1824 Mrs. Niblo of Niblo's famous garden, New York City, roasted the largest baron ever, which weighed 280 pounds—she prided herself on being a great cook and seemingly was) had passed. The saddle of mutton went the same way. The most insular Englishman must, perhaps, sadly admit that these and lesser joints have passed with palatial establishments and large retinues. In America the revived barbecue is trying to save them.

The word "joint," as almost a symbol of meat, is John Bull's own. The French may call the roast a pièce de résistance, or a relevé, but every substantial Victorian Englishman still loves his joint, with poultry also and a course of game—enough protein at a meal, if indulged in, to make it a precarious, even grotesque business to grow old along with him.

The experienced traveler at the mere mention of the word joint will probably think of Simpson's in London, where joints have had more of a setting, perhaps, at any rate as much, as at any place in the world. Each joint has its own table which is moved from guest to guest by its attendant carver. Over it is a mighty metal cover, and under the platter which contains it is some modification or other of the Aetna stove, built into the top of the table, which has Victorian legs and spreaders of ornate curves.

You have but to signify your choice—which, by the way, may be curried prawns instead of beef or mutton—and the austere thing is wheeled up to your left hand, and you may see the turn of the knife. Men must have been pleased to see this, with the flow of juices, whence the institution. But such equipages are no longer needed anywhere unless we take up with barons and baby beef. "Tout lassé, tout cassé, tout passé."

A Needful Fitness

By Ben Ames Williams

the stage; the girls huddled against the back drop, dodging as they could. Blummer began philosophically removing the filth from his coat.

IT was at this moment that Willie found his wavering legs had lifted him erect; found himself climbing onto the stage. He was shaking with terror; there never was a man more afraid. But Blummer had given up, and the mob was still unpacified, and the girls were helpless. He might be able to do something. He got to the middle of the stage and tried a dance step, and the crowd bellowed at him and hands reached his ankles. Something had thus far restrained the men from leaping upon the stage; they contented themselves with crowding close, groping toward Willie's heels with clutching fingers. Willie danced out of the way and shouted waveringly, "Come on, boys! We'll sing you a song."

Not one in ten heard him. A battered old alarm clock hurtled through the air and he felt the numb stab of a blow against his cheekbone and felt the blood run. He grinned bravely at that, taking hope, though the pain made him weak. He knew that such an incident often served to sober a crowd like this. They would sometimes be content with having done a hurt, would permit one scapegoat to buy immunity for the others. Willie hated pain and feared it; but he was willing to be hurt in a good cause, and there was no one else, since Blummer had surrendered.

But he saw at once that his hope was vain; the clamor was scarce interrupted by the incident. One man howled at the sight of blood; and two or three climbed up on the edge of the platform and stood irresolutely. Willie, for the life of him, could not help seeing that these men wore spiked shoes. Abject and utter panic overwhelmed him; his legs wished to run, to run desperately. His very soul wished to run away.

But Mrs. Marnihan had pointed out that some one might be needed to take care of the girls. And he knew that a single victim would often suffice for such a mob as this. There were half a dozen men on the stage now, and they were rolling with liquor. Willie wanted to run away; but he ran at them instead.

Some one had reached out toward Zara and caught her shoulder. As she shrank away Willie leaped with his light body across the man's outstretched arm, bearing it down. The man swore and flung him off, and Willie fell and some one stepped on his hand. Stepped on his hand and stood there, swaying to and fro while the spikes bit deeper. Willie was panting and sick with pain, but he got the other arm free and encircled a leg and pushed and tugged, and another man went down. Then a fight developed all about him and over his head, and he fell off the platform to the floor, among a forest of legs, beneath a thousand stamping feet. His hands and arms and legs were pierced and torn. Then a boot heel mercifully cuffed him into unconsciousness, and he suffered no more.

Willie's attack had served to start a backward swirl of the crowd; half a dozen individual fights started; those on the stage dropped off to join them. But when Willie fell some one with senses still sober felt his limp body under foot and pushed the crowd back until a little space was cleared and they could see Willie lying so helplessly. The crowd began to slink away; two or three shamed giants stayed to give what help they could, and Zara dropped to the floor and caught his head in her arms and screamed at them:

"You're a fine lot! A fine lot you are!"

Her teeth were bared and her eyes scorched, and they backed away. The other girls gathered around Willie. But he did not know they were so kind to him.

When his senses trickled back through the black walls which shut him in he was abed in the hotel and his head hurt and his arms burned with searing pain. A man, who must be a doctor, was busy torturing him. His hands were chewed and torn; he must, the doctor said, lose a finger or two.

After the doctor had gone the Daisy Chain girls scolded Willie outrageously. "What did you do it for?" Rose demanded. "Didn't you have any brains?" And Zara asked him angrily: "What were you trying to pull off, anyway?"

Willie tried to smile; his voice was wistfully apologetic. "Why," he explained, "it's the part of a gentleman to do his best to protect ladies."

Gracie called him an idiot, and Rose said he was a rat, and Molly said he was a nut, and Zara said he was a damned little fool. O, they abused Willie outrageously for the thing which he had done.

But they tended him like angels.

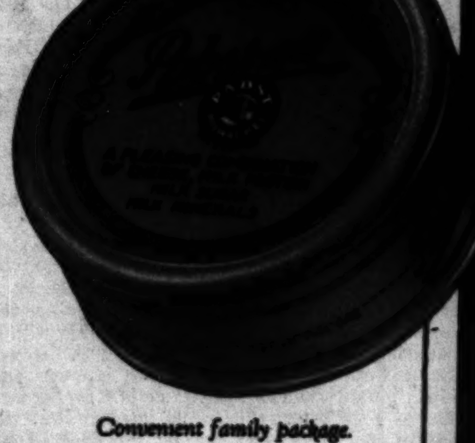
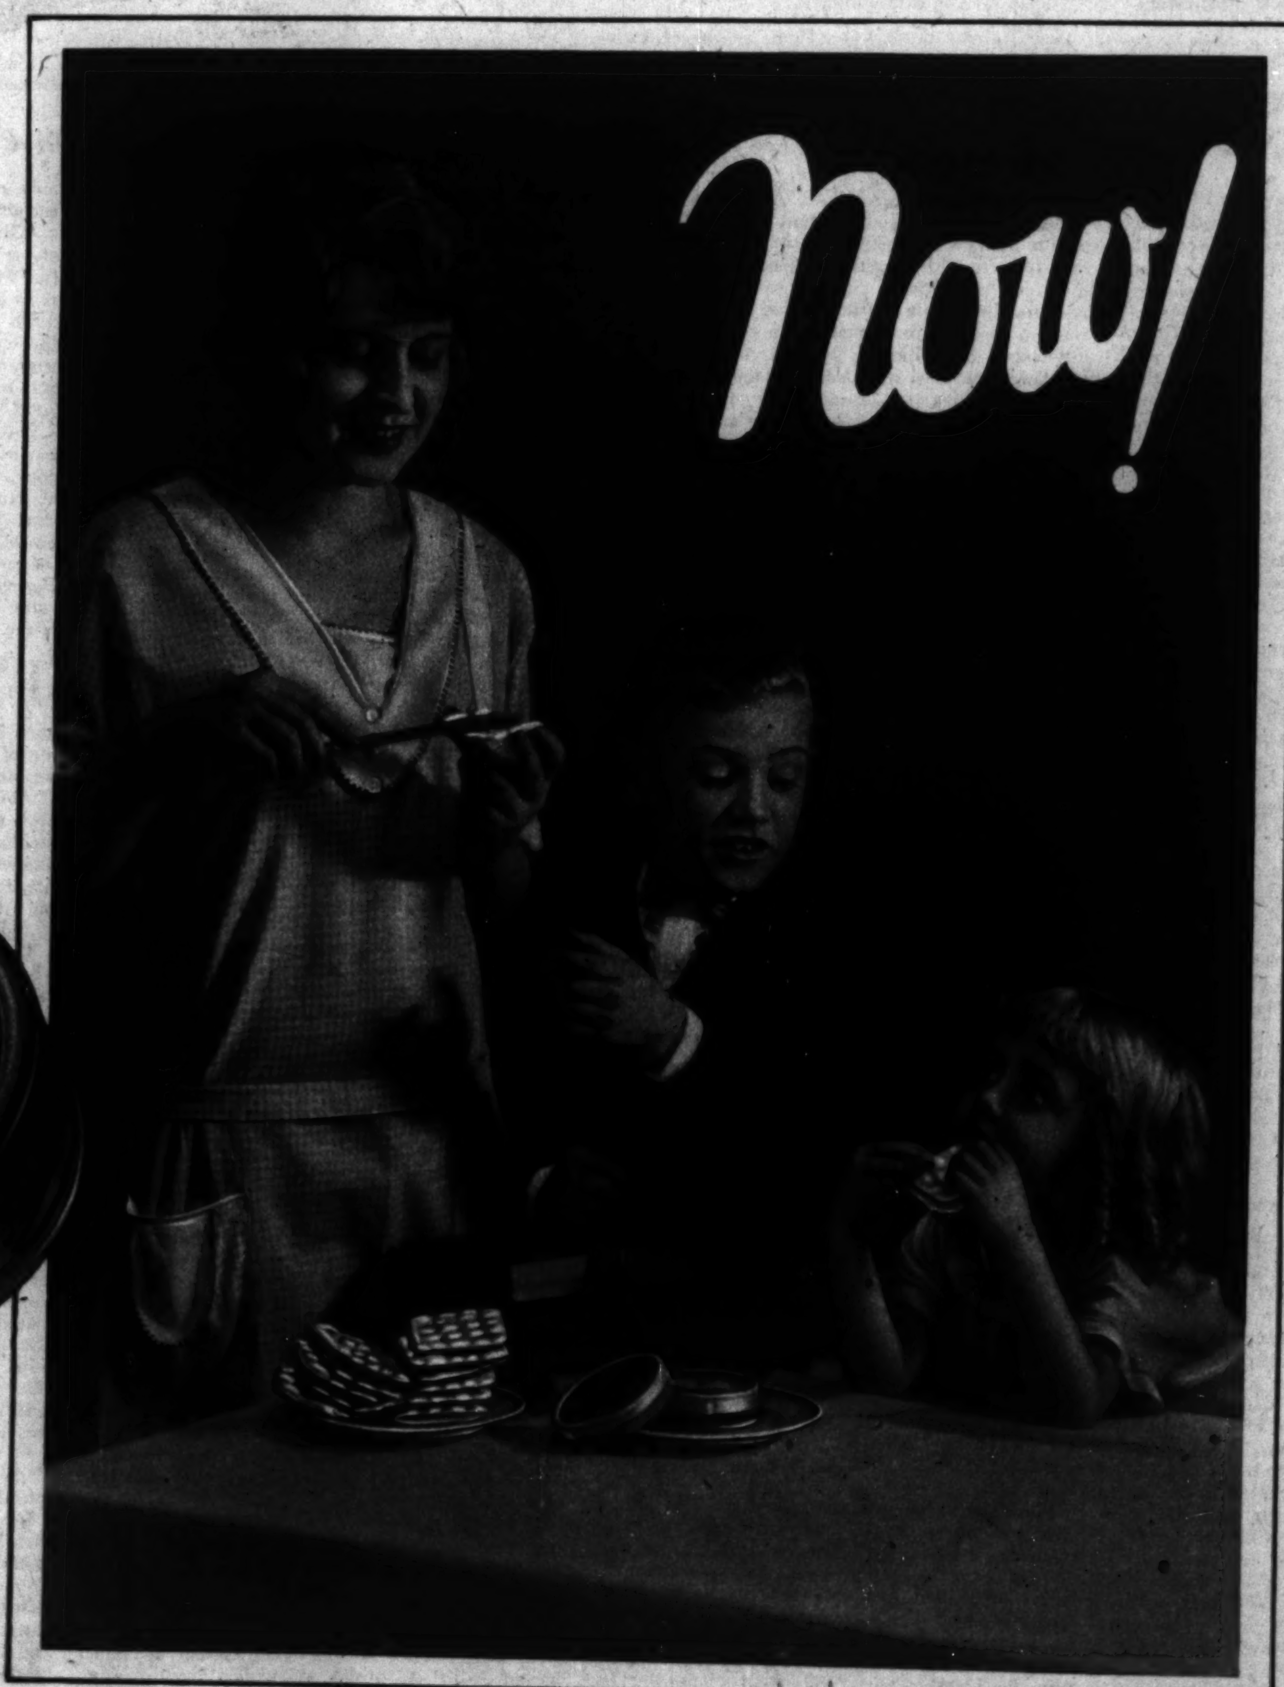
Pabst-ett Not Successfully Imitated

The popularity and remarkable success of Pabst-ett will, no doubt, bring out imitations. But, Pabst-ett is the original. Others may imitate, but they cannot duplicate Pabst-ett. Even were the formula not secret, few manufacturers of ordinary cheese products have facilities and equipment to produce this remarkable, new food. Avoid imitations. Leading dealers everywhere sell Pabst-ett. Ask for it by name.



Convenient family package.



A delicious Cheese Food that's good for children

—as digestible as Milk

FOR the after school lunch, nothing is finer for children than Pabst-ett on crackers or bread. Spread it generously. Children love Pabst-ett. It is delicious, nourishing, health-building and so easily digestible that they may eat it to their heart s' content.

Pabst-ett is a new dairy product made by a secret process which retains the nutritive value of whole milk—milk sugar, proteins and body-building mineral elements formerly lost in cheese-making. It is more than cheese.

Less than a year ago Pabst-ett was introduced to the public. Today it is a nation-wide favorite. With its rich, distinctive flavor and smooth creamy texture, it makes a more delicious and better spread for bread and sandwiches. Gives macaroni, rarebit, potatoes new tastiness. Does not become lumpy or stringy with cooking. Lends new appeal to salads, especially in combinations with pineapple or tomato.

Try this remarkable new food product now. The whole family, young and old, will enjoy Pabst-ett. It is more delicious—a new and finer food.

SPORTS CLOTHES ARE THE FIRST ENTRY IN OUR TRAVEL-TOG

by Corinne Lowe

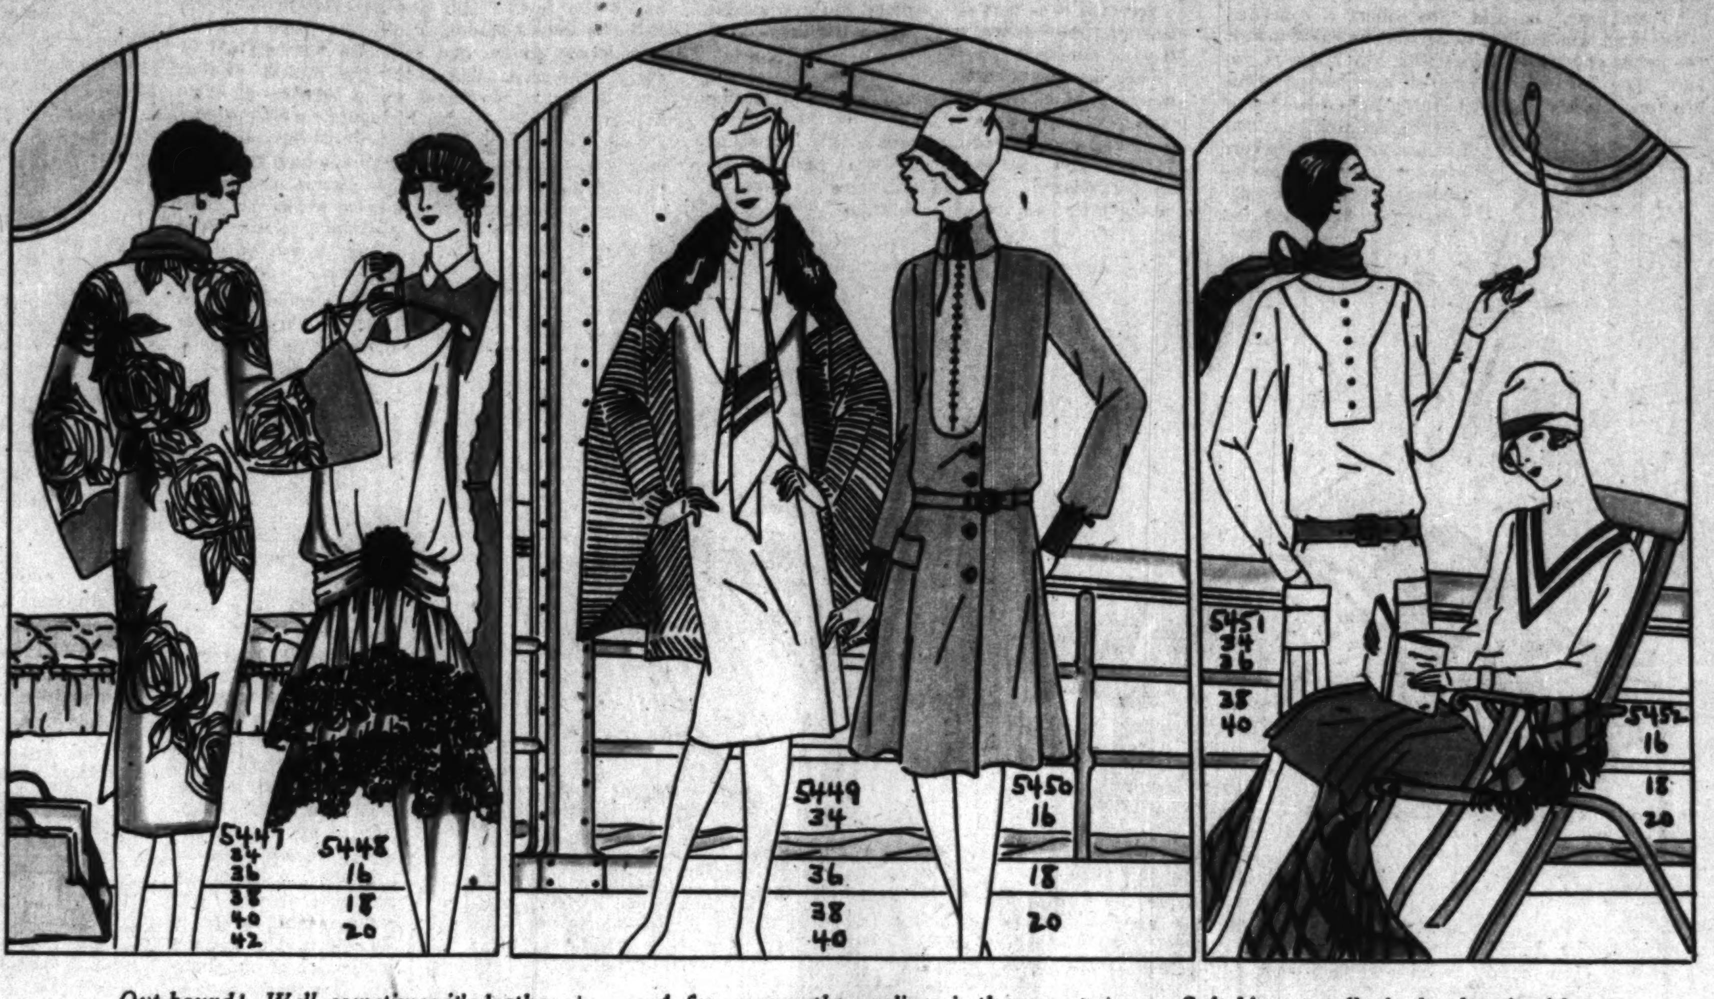
NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—"Ship me somewhere east of Suez." Here is a wish that always becomes painful in January and February. We should like to swap the skyscraper for the minaret and our slushy, wind-heckled streets for sun-soaked lands of olive and pomegranate. And of course some lucky ones among us get beyond looking at the posters of foreign railroad companies in the windows. We actually book.

But, though booking may bring you a change of scene, it will not bring you a change of attire. Impossible to ship any woman nowadays east of her everlasting sports costumes. For in these present times every deck looks exactly like a big resort hotel. It is sports clothes and sports clothes, and then sports clothes!

Yes, whether your voyage take you all around the world or whether it stops at Bermuda, the first entry in your travel-tog will be sports clothes. The only difference is that in the former case you will have to launch a whole fleet of them in order to be ready for both the Red sea and the Northern sea, and their weight must range from the inevitable crêpe to the heavier woolens.

For intermediate climes there is probably no better traveling companion than crepella. This, the beloved material of Chanel, has been steadily spreading its influence, and the spring promises to witness a greater vogue of crepella than ever before. The behavior of this elected fabric on shipboard is especially virtuous. Always it has a calm, unruffled disposition. Never does it demand constant valeting. Give it a shake and it looks well.

A picture of crepella with its sea legs on is given second from the right. Here is one of the newest models in one piece style. Its dominating points of novelty are scored by two real pockets topping side groups of plaits in the skirt, and, above all, by the unusual contour of its chemisette. This is made of the same soft blue crepella fashioning the entire frock, and its row of bone buttons occur in matching tint. The suede belt is also in self-color.



Out-bound! Well, sometimes it's leather out-bound, as is indicated by the steamer coat sketched third from the right. Here we have green leather combined in the new manner with matching wool jersey.

To the left of this is a gray suede cloth coat with full cape traversed by fine tucks.

A fine sea-worthy negligee is the one at the extreme left of black satin embroidered in gold and lined in the softest of yellow flannel.

Next to this is a dinner gown of black georgette trimmed with black lace and with a nosegay of chiffon flowers in pastel tints.

Soft blue crepella is developed with an original type of chemisette and is belted in matching suede, second from the extreme right. Last, a tan jersey skirt is topped by a knitted jumper of beige wool trimmed in the jersey.

Crepella is often made up into both jacket and skirt complemented by blouse of crêpe. This form is ideal for shipboard, and one's choice of material for such ensembles is by no means limited to crepella. There, for example, is wool crêpe. This material is being emphasized today by all the leading Paris and New York designers, and it is requisitioned for both resort and traveling wear. These three piece costumes of wool crêpe are nearly always complemented by a blouse of silk crêpe in another tone of the same color, and they are frequently trimmed with insets of the wool crêpe.

Jersey, too! Another perfectly good seafaring material and one which puts out in all manner of effects. Frequently it is restrained to the jumper topping off a skirt which may be of kasha, tweed, crepella, or contrasting material, and which frequently includes a jacket of the skirt material. Again, it composes a three piece effect and rounds out its style destiny through a cardigan of velvet, velveteen, or brushed wool. And sometimes it reserves its efforts for a skirt and the trimming on a jumper of contrasting material.

It is the last named formula which is followed in our model at the extreme right. Here is a tan jersey skirt with groups of plaits at the side front which is abetted by a sweater of beige wool trimmed effectively in bands of the jersey.

As to the cardigan and jacket in general, this is a regular Sindbad for travel. The popular calfskin is often used for this purpose as well as for a jumper completing skirt of wool. So is brushed wool. So is leather. Then there is a whole armada of velvet and velveteen jackets, both sleeveless and otherwise.

I think I was never so impressed by the pictorial qualities of this adjunct as when I saw, the other day, a one piece frock of cornflower blue jersey worn with a velvet jacket in deeper tone. Ah, dear, if we accept the premise that gentlemen prefer blondes, think how that original prejudice would be intensified by the sight of a steamer chair full of yellow locks and cornflower blue!

And blue, by the way, is one of the most favored tones these days. Choose it in any tint and you can't possibly go wrong. Its empire ranges from the lightest to the darkest of tones, and in sports clothes it is rivaled only by greens, tans, and beiges.

Personally, when I myself am ship bored, as Julian Street says, I like to be it in tweed. (Tweed-le my thumbs, as it were!) And there are today such delightful costumes of tweed which are perfectly delightful for travel of all kinds. Many of these tweeds are in checks, and I saw in one collection the other day a Carlisle tweed utilizing gray and light blue for one of these checked designs employed for plaited skirt and a belted jacket opening over a blouse of light gray crêpe de chine.

In the steamer coat, tweeds have as much influence as ever, and you see the materials of these worked out in great variety of checks, plaids, and what not. As a variant from the classic tweed traveling coat we show third from the left a coat of gray suede cloth which is developed with some interesting new details. Foremost among these is a cape, the surface of which is covered by fine "picked up" tucks. The tucks are repeated sparingly on a scarf collar of self-material fastened at the back under a collar of black fox.

The leather coat is another variant from that tweed apparition, and fourth from our left we show a sketch of a flared and belted leather wrap in one of its most novel combinations. For the material which forms the laced chemisette and standing collar is wool jersey in harmonizing tone. It would seem that the French are addicted to this odd alliance of fabrics just now, and some of the smartest new sports wraps testify to the predilection. In this model the tight cuffs are diversified by narrow strips of the same jersey completed by a tied strip of the cloth. The belt is of self-material, and the buttons are covered with leather.

There are leather jackets of all lengths which are offered for steamer wear, and they come in wonderful shades of rose, green, yellow, and blue. Some of these, too, are lined with fur.

About the only antidote to the sports clothes of a modern liner are evening frocks. Of course, if we are traveling with several wardrobe trunks we don't need to worry. We put out to sea with the same variety of dinner and formal evening gowns which we wear at home. But if we are "traveling light," then there is no more friendly spirit available than black georgette.

Wonderful, blessed black georgette, which doesn't soil and which doesn't muss—every suitcase traveler ought to offer up a votive wreath to this material! Second from the left we show a practical model in black georgette which would do credit to even the "captain's table." Its skirt is composed of two gathered flounces bordered each with black lace, and over the crushed girdle of self-material the bodice does that expected blouse. A nosegay of chiffon flowers in delicate pastel tints placed at the front of this girdle supplies the one note of contrast.

The negligee which the traveler needs must not be afflicted with much femininity. It must be warm and it should be cut on mannish outlines. A worthy nominee for this traveling negligee is encountered at the extreme left in a black satin figured in gold and lined with a yellow flannel which brims over into deep scalloped cuffs and full length revers. O, no, but this is not the usual type of flannel! It is flannel de luxe—that wonderful soft quality "beaten until light." In this form it does no wrong to even such a handsome fabric as is employed for the negligee itself.

THE ROMANCE OF NIKKO CHEYNE By Roland Pertwee

NIKKO CHEYNE, nephew and heir of the tough old Lord Cheyne of Querne, pays his uncle a visit. Baron Cheyne, to test his kinsman's courage, orders him to ride a savage horse. The nobleman gets in the way and his thigh is broken. Nikko settles in Paris to study art. He is idolized by Rosabelle, concierge at his hotel. At the Atelier Florian he is hazed by the students and then made welcome. He soon discovers he is a failure with the brush. Princess Natalie, 16-year-old heir apparent to the throne of Sciriel, studies incognito at the school of Mlle. Suresme. Natalie is the only child of Prince Carelon, brother of King Raymond of Sciriel. During a lecture tour of the Louvre she encounters Nikko. With both it is love at first sight. Natalie gives Nikko her address and one of her names, Elizabeth. Nikko chucks art for the quest of love. He gains the roof of the school by a dangerous leap from an adjoining tree and meets Natalie there. They declare their love.

INSTALLMENT III.

In Which a Gendarme Appears.

WHEN midnight struck Natalie stirred.

"I mustn't stay any longer—some one might come to my room—if we were found and stopped from meeting again I couldn't bear it."

"Yes," he nodded, "I'll go now. Good night, Bettany."

She shook her head.

"I shall watch you go."

"No, dear, please."

"I shall watch you go. Do you think I could sleep without being sure?"

"There's no danger."

"But I shall watch," she said again. "Be careful, Nikko, for if you fall I shall jump off the roof. Kiss me good night."

He took her in his arms.

"Till tomorrow," he said, mounted the coping, and leaped outward. The top of the poplar bent like a bow and straightened. Twigs and small branches swished and snapped like a rattle of distant rifle fire. Nikko paused a moment to wave a farewell and vanished, hand under hand, into the shadows of the garden below.

Bettany waited motionless until she heard the faint rasping of his feet dying away along the road, and then on wings floated down the ladder and lowered the trapdoor above her head.

For three nights Nikko and Bettany spent their wonder hour among the chimney pots. And in those hours the love they bore each other flowered and ripened and possessed them. Under all the skies was no other world or heaven than theirs. So completely had they accepted each other that they asked no questions, and were content to sit side by side sharing the intimacy of long silences, or speaking just such words as were needed for telling the story of their feelings.

Simple, happy, tender hours, whose joys were magnified by hazard into an importance beyond the worth of any other affection chronicled by man. They were concerned only with their love for each other. Birth, nationality, their different places in the world's scheme found no place even in the fringes of their talk. To him she was Bettany—his sweetheart—the girl to whom he had dedicated his whole life. He neither knew, nor, had he known, would he have cared, that she was a princess of the blood royal. What he felt for her was too great to be awed by title or position.

Bettany had told him nothing of herself, but there was no deceit in her withholding. Time was too brief to be wasted in an exchange of fiddling details. There was no future but the future they would make for and share with each other, and in that future obstacles did not exist. If here and there a jungle or a crevasse was strung across the path, their love was strong enough to trample it down or make the leap.

It was the leap toward which Bettany's mind always reverted with a jar. The nightly terror of seeing Nikko spring across space into the little branches. The sickening sag and sway of the tree top was a torture she could hardly bear. By day she would reproach her wicked selfishness in wanting him so greatly that she lacked the will power to forbid him to come by that perilous route. But when night came and the hour of their meeting was at hand, fear was lost in the joy of expectation. She would catch him to her arms and forget everything.

Nikko did not bring a rope. He had no mind to smooth dangers from his path. He gloried in the thrill of risking his neck to be with her. It was a kind of service, a tribute and a loyalty of which caution would have robbed him. Boylike, he saw in Bettany too great a wonder to approach up a flight of common stairs. The poplar—the grimy roof—the little jam jars which held his nightly offerings of flowers—all were parts of the palace built by and for their love. Their courtship was up on high, among the stars; was above the heads of the dim, earthly couples who wandered and clung to one another in the shadow of the trees below.

So the wonder nights came and went, and came again—one, two, and three.

"Until tomorrow," said Nikko, and kissed her hands, looked up, and saw that she was crying.

"What is it?" he asked.

But she shook her head.

"Tell me."

"I don't know, Nikko. It's being so happy—it's being afraid of being so happy."

"How can you be afraid of that?"

Again she shook her head.

"I don't know—but it comes over me every now and then—that each time you go away may be the last time."

"How can you believe that?" he asked, reproachfully. "Don't you know that if I were carried to the ends of the world I'd come back to you?"

"You mean that, don't you?"

"With all my heart and soul—so long as you want me, Bettany."

"That's always," she said, and, clenching her hands, beat them against his chest. "Always—always—always!"

He caught her wrists and answered fiercely:

"If ever I prove unworthy of you, may I be struck dead!"

Then he kissed her and was gone. Bettany watched his face flickering downward through the branches until it was lost to view. She heard a soft thud as his feet touched the ground, followed by a swift exclamation of surprise.

A voice, harsh and strident, said:

"Keep still, or find a bullet in your stomach. Hands out, now!"

Then from Nikko:

"But Monsieur le Gendarme——"

"Hands out!"

There was a sharp click as the handcuff bar locked home.

"So. That's better. And what have you taken, my pretty thief, eh?"

"Nothing," said Nikko.

"And was it for nothing you jumped from the roof to the tree top?"

"I—yes—no," he stammered, stopped, and went on again: "You may as well know the truth. I climbed to the roof in the hope of getting into the house, but I could find no way."

"And what did you expect to find in the house?"

Again a pause.

"It is a good house," said Nikko, doggedly. "There might have been jewelry—lying about."

Bettany smothered a half cry and ran to the trap door. He was shielding her—shielding her. She had but one thought—to reach the garden and tell the truth.

CARELESS of all else, Natalie clattered down the wooden steps and raced to the head of the staircase. A passage door crashed noisily behind her. Her feet rattled like castanets on the polished stairs. On the last landing a door was flung open and Mademoiselle Suresme stepped out.

"Natalie, you—and dressed—what is the meaning——"

Natalie tried to break past, but Mademoiselle Suresme barred the way.

"Let me go—I must—I must," she wailed.

But Mademoiselle Suresme was strong and wiry, and threw her arms about the little princess and held her fast.

"My lover—he is there—O, let me go, mademoiselle—I beg—I implore. He has been arrested as a burglar by a gendarme. He came to see me—I swear it's true—we were together——"

"Together, where?"

"On the roof. They'll take him away and——"

"Merciful mother," cried Mademoiselle Suresme, "is this true, child?"

"Yes, yes, I swear—he was climbing down the tree."

Mademoiselle Suresme's citadel tottered above her head. The unimaginable—the impossible had come to pass—a calamity too terrible to envisage—a calamity upon whose rocks the carefully built up reputation of a lifetime would inevitably be shattered.

From below came the clanging of a bell and a voice cried: "Open to the police."

Mademoiselle Suresme stiffened like a rod.

"Go into that room," she said, "and do not move until I come for you. Go!" And, lending force to words, she took the weeping child by the arm, thrust her within, and locked the door on the outside.

Then she went downstairs and admitted Nikko and the gendarme.

"Why am I disturbed at this hour?" she asked coldly.

"For the reason that I collared this fine fellow climbing down from your roof, madame."

"But that is impossible."

"He has the agility of a cat. He jumped from the coping to the tree top. I saw him with my own eyes."

Mademoiselle looked at Nikko, but Nikko did not betray the slightest gleam of recognition.

"His face," she said, "is unfamiliar to me. I do not see how he can have made his way into the house."

"I did not, madame," said Nikko. "I tried to enter, but failed."

"So they all say," said the gendarme, "but surely there is a trap door. By your leave I will take a look at that."

Mademoiselle Suresme held up a hand.

"My house is full of young ladies—it would not be discreet and would cause alarm for a man to visit the upstairs rooms at so late an hour. If you will wait in here I will look at the trap door myself."

In company with the gendarme, Nikko found himself once more in the small apartment in which his first interview with Mademoiselle Suresme had taken place. While they waited, the gendarme made an expert examination of Nikko's pockets. The result depressed him.

Mademoiselle Suresme's face was a pattern of composure when she returned.

"The trap door is double bolted," she said. "The young man speaks the truth."

"Then I shall take him to the police station and he will be charged with attempted burglary."

"Does he understand his position?" asked Mademoiselle Suresme. "From his appearance I would say he is an Englishman."

"A foreigner—but he speaks tolerably well, madame."

"You do not speak English yourself, monsieur?"

"Not a word."

"He may have some explanation to offer. May I ask him in his own tongue?"

"But surely."

"Have you any explanation, monsieur?" she asked Nikko, speaking rapidly in English.

"I think it is simpler to leave things as they are," he answered slowly.

"It will mean prison for you."

"I suppose so."

"You are prepared to face that?"

"I have no choice."

"But you have."

"None that I could take," he amended.

Mademoiselle Suresme pressed a hand to her lips. "Would you think it my duty to help you by telling the truth?"

Nikko shook his head. "No, madame."

"You are a gentleman—but why did you do this thing?"

"We cannot be kept apart," he answered simply.

She looked for a moment into a pair of eyes that were frank, innocent, and steadfast, and suddenly she was proud to have known this boy whose chivalry was strong enough to bear the brunt of any disaster that the girl he loved might be cleared of suspicion.

"What says he?" grunted the gendarme.

"That he tried and failed," was the slow reply.

The gendarme tapped Nikko on the shoulder. "Come," said he.

Mademoiselle Suresme shut and bolted the heavy door behind them and mounted the stairs to the room where Natalie waited.

"My lover, mademoiselle," gasped Natalie. "You saw him—you had him set free?"

"You have no lover," she answered.

"Mademoiselle!" the voice was pitched high in anguish.

"I saw no one but a gendarme and a rash young man who tried to break into my house like a robber."

Natalie's eyes were wide with horror.

"But you told the gendarme the truth?"

"There was no need. The young man had already confessed."

"Then I shall go to him—now—to the police. They shall hear everything."

"You forget," was the ominous reply, "you, too, are a prisoner, Natalie."

"I shall cry it from the house tops."

"The roof will be closed," said Mademoiselle Suresme, and caught the half fainting girl in her arms.

Before she went to bed that night Mademoiselle Suresme stole up to the roof and stood there in the pale moonlight. By the chimney stack she found the three bunches of flowers Nikko had brought, each in its separate jar. She took them out and raised her hand as though to scatter them upon the garden below. But a gentler impulse stayed the action and, gathering them together in a single bunch, she descended through the trap door and came quietly into the room where Natalie lay weeping upon her pillow.

"For comfort, my dear," she said, and laid the flowers beside the buried face.

THE bright jewelry of dawn was in the sky when the train which bore Baron Vilasto, chamberlain to the household of Prince Carelon and honored counselor to King Raymond of Sciriel, steamed slowly into the station of Montparnasse.

Baron Vilasto's deeply bronzed coloring was emphasized by snow white hair and a sweeping white mustache. He was of great height and superb carriage, even though his eighty-four years of life had put upon his shoulders the burden of a slight stoop. His voice, in whatever language he talked, and there were few he had not mastered, was smooth, calm, and resonant. He talked as he walked, with distinction. Further, he had a smile and a way—and left in the minds of persons with whom he came into contact a pleasant flavor—a bouquet as from an old wine.

Not because his eyesight was failing, but for the reason that he was a lover of things delicate of sound and to the touch, he held to his ear an old gold repeater and let it chime the silvery hours and minutes to him. Six hours and fifteen minutes.

He stepped upon the platform and smiled a greeting to his Scirien valet, who, surrounded by suitcases, was already at the carriage door.

"Since the train is three hours late," said he, "you will take the baggage to the hotel and I shall drive direct to the Rue d'Antibes. You will order lunch for myself and the Princess Natalie in my private room. A sole—a wild duck—orange salad—and a soufflé. You will tell the chef to decorate the soufflé with the Princess' first name. We shall lunch at half-past twelve. And now a taxi, please."

Compared with the gray faces and tousled heads of the majority of the passengers who thronged the platform at that early hour, old Baron Vilasto looked like a rosy cheeked schoolboy. He had shaved on the train, his huge black satin cravat was precise and orderly—his linen immaculate. The circular cape with its lining of crimson corded silk hung from his shoulders in creaseless folds.

As the taxi moved away he nodded farewell to his servant and settled back on the cushions, a white gloved hand resting on the knob of an ebony cane.

There is no more beautiful city than Paris, when seen in the pale silences of early morning. Baron Vilasto, despite the delicacy of the task that was before him, smiled contentedly. He did not believe in approaching difficulties with a face of gloom. His lifelong policy had been to smile his way through defenses into favor. After winning his opponent's confidence, experience had proved that right would usually prevail.

He was unlike his master, Prince Carelon, who, on receipt of Mademoiselle Suresme's letter, had stormed and raved and beaten the air with the traditional and temperamental rashness for which he was famous.

The baron's methods were humane and conciliatory. He had made a study of the world and the emotions of men and women, and he knew that sentiment is not driven out of the system by harsh words and threatenings. Therefore, he smiled, and was still smiling when the taxi drew up before Mademoiselle Suresme's house and the chauffeur set the great bell clanging.

Baron Vilasto was shown into the salon, and when mademoiselle fluttered in he was sniffing at and smiling over a single carnation which he had taken from a vase.

"A distressing indifference to the time table on the part of those responsible for running the trains is the excuse for presenting myself at this outrageous hour," said he. "We arrived so late, and consequently so early, that I abandoned the intention of first visiting the hotel. Mademoiselle, I salute you," and, stooping, he brushed her fingers with his lips.

"Thank God you have come, Monsieur le Baron," she replied, "for things have happened this night which, even in a nightmare, I would have believed impossible."

Baron Vilasto shook his head.

"Surely not," said he. "An indiscretion, perhaps, but we who have reached the season of life where indiscretions are rare are apt to magnify these matters out of their proportion."

"Monsieur le Baron, I will tell you everything."

And this, without exaggeration or concealment, she did.

Baron Vilasto allowed the story to proceed without interruption.

At the part which dealt with the hours spent by the lovers on the rooftop, his brows had moved restlessly and he caught a film of skin from his lower lip between close shut teeth. But he kept his silence until the end. At the end he nodded briskly.

"Mademoiselle," he said, "let me hasten to say that I hold you innocent of all blame. Indeed, in the whole affair I find it hard to blame any one. The young man, Nicholas Cheyne, has proved himself a gallant and chivalrous lover and our little princess is guilty of no greater sin than following the dictates of her heart. That she cannot be allowed to do so is a tragedy with which persons of royal birth are all too familiar. The princess will return with me to Sciriel tonight. In her own country with the landscape of what one day will be her future responsibility spread before her I have hopes that this very natural madness will be forgotten. As to the young man, Cheyne, who will be an English lord, you say, steps must be taken at once to bring about his release. It is unthinkable that such a boy should go through life overshadowed by the stigma of a vulgar crime he has not committed. I will attend to that myself, and immediately. Will you, mademoiselle, see that Princess Natalie is escorted to my suite at the Crillon, where I shall await her at half-past twelve."

He rose and held out a hand.

"I regret that her education under your careful guidance is to terminate so abruptly, but you, I am sure, will appreciate the necessity. I myself have a granddaughter who is at present studying in Florence, but I hope you may perhaps be able to find a vacancy for her next term."

"Monsieur le Baron, how can I——"

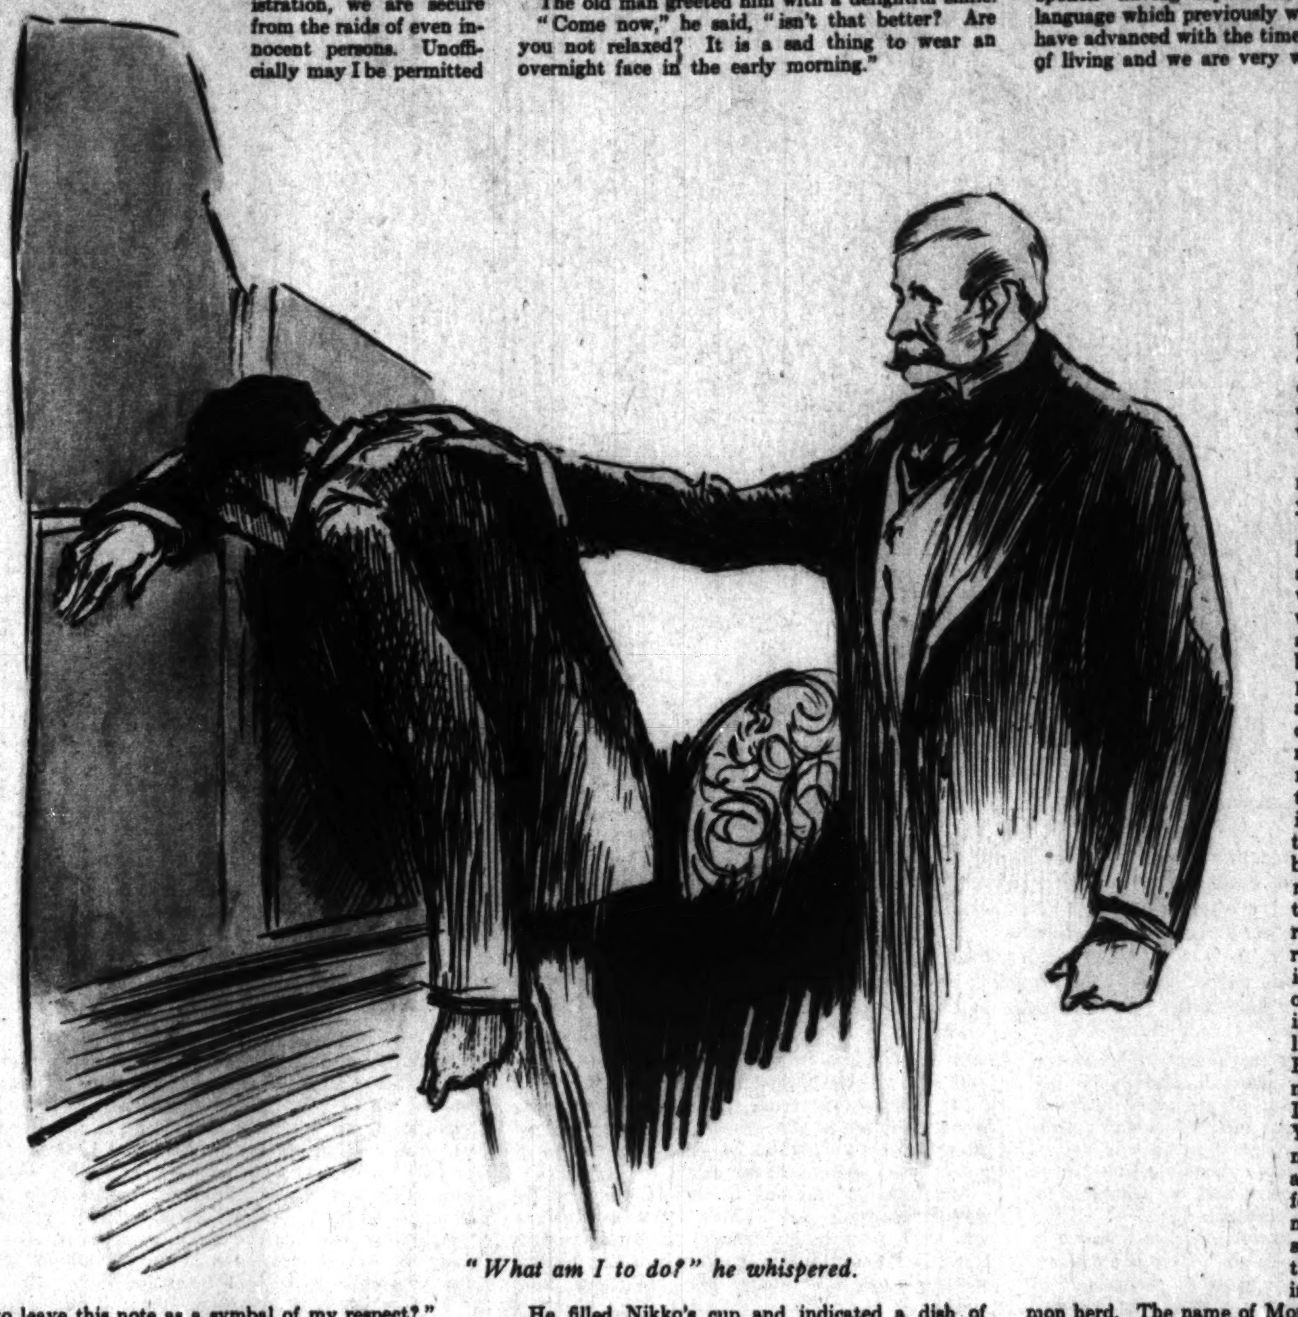
"Please, mademoiselle! I have much to do—my taxi is at the door ticking up ha'pence—and we Sciriens are a thrifty people. I have the honor." He bowed—kissed her hand, and took his departure, tipping the concierge generously as he passed out.

It is unknown by what means Baron Vilasto brought about the release of Nikko Cheyne. He was a statesman of singular charm and address and, even though the country from which he hailed was but a dot—a beauty spot upon the face of Europe—he was known and respected by the governing classes of the great powers. Persons in high places were glad to win a smile from the old man and would sometimes stretch a legal or even an international point to do so.

Perhaps the baron told the truth. It may be so, for in diplomatic circles truth is no sooner heard than forgotten. The method does not matter, it only remains to be said that he succeeded and presented himself with the necessary authority at the gendarmerie.

While waiting for Nikko to be brought from his cell the baron engaged the chief in conversation.

"I am here," he said, "to collect a conceited young man who made a boast that he could outwit the police and steal a garter from any house in the city. The jest from his point of view has proved a grim one. It is a comfort to rest assured that, owing to your admirable administration, we are secure from the raids of even innocent persons. Unofficially may I be permitted to leave this note as a symbol of my respect?"



"What am I to do?" he whispered.

Unofficially the note was accepted.

After his night in the lockup, Nikko presented a wild eyed and unbrushed appearance. Baron Vilasto stepped up and wrung him warmly by the hand.

"Come," he said, "a taxi waits us, and I am eager for coffee and a brioche. Good-day, gentlemen."

Nikko was swept into the taxi and found himself planted beside a white haired stranger who seemed to have taken charge of his destiny.

"Who are you," he asked, speaking in French, "and why have I been released?"

"It is so long since I talked in English," was the reply, "that it would be a pleasure to do so, Mister Cheyne."

"Then why have I been released, sir?"

"Because, though love may be an indiscretion, it is not a crime."

Nikko half rose. "But I deny——"

"Tush, tush," the baron interposed. "Save for myself and one other, your secret is still a secret."

Nikko sank back in silence, but his eyes under dropped brows were flashing inquiries.

"We must have a long talk, Cheyne, where shall it be—at your lodging or at mine?"

"Where you will, sir. At yours, perhaps. There are a great many stairs to my room."

"A thoughtful reason," the baron nodded. "As an old man, I am no lover of stairs." He put his head through the window and addressed the chauffeur. "To the Crillon."

Nikko hesitated, then: "In fairness, sir, you should understand that nothing you may say will alter my feelings for Mademoiselle Montressor."

Baron Vilasto nodded. "I would neither ask nor expect that," said he. "We cannot alter our feelings, either by self-will or the dictation of other persons. But our conduct, inspired by these feelings, may sometimes be modified. However, a taxi is the worst place in the world for a discussion."

The rest of the journey passed in silence. At the Crillon they ascended to the baron's suite in a lift.

"I have been traveling for three days and nights, Cheyne, and a change of clothes attracts me. You, too, after your unpleasant experience, would perhaps enjoy a shave—a bath and the comfort of a dressing gown."

Boylike, Nikko answered: "I'm in a frightful mess, I'm afraid."

"Then half an hour to relax. My man will attend you."

It was very soothing to be shaved by the dexterous silk fingered Scirien and afterward to luxuriate in a steaming hot bath and to feel the twitch and stiffness relax from overstrained nerves. It was delightful, too, to put on a clean soft shirt that had been laid out for him.

But that there was no room in his mind for any thought other than Bettany, Nikko would have been bewildered by the whole business. As it was, he accepted it as part of a strange and inexplicable chain of circumstances with which the accident of love had confused him.

When he re-entered the salon, Baron Vilasto was already at a table, upon which were laid shining coffee pots and dishes.

The old man greeted him with a delightful smile.

"Come now," he said, "isn't that better? Are you not relaxed? It is a sad thing to wear an overnight face in the early morning."

He filled Nikko's cup and indicated a dish of bacon and eggs.

"I did not dare order any other fare for an English guest. We of Sciriel only peck after the continental fashion at this hour."

"Thanks, but I'm not hungry, sir," said Nikko.

Nevertheless, he swallowed some food and felt the better for it.

When the covers were cleared away the baron gave orders that they were not to be disturbed. Moving two chairs into the sunlight, he bade Nikko be seated and put cigarets at his elbow.

"And now," said he, "let us talk freely and without restraint. I know your name, as you will have noticed, but you are a stranger to mine. I am Baron Sidimir Vilasto, master of the household of Prince Carelon—Grand Duke of Montressor, which is a department of Sciriel."

"Montressor," Nikko echoed.

"Yes. The Prince is the father of Natalie Meliora Maria Elizabeta."

"Elizabeta—Bettany!"

The old man's face twitched into his magic smile. "Bettany? Ah, your name for her. To me she is Princess Natalie."

Nikko's mouth half opened and closed again. He did not trust himself to speak.

"Go on," said he. "I did not know of this, but—go on."

"You have heard of Sciriel?"

"No—yes—as a name, sir. I was always a fool at geography."

"And yet we are a country of some thousand square miles—and half a million population. We are not unmentioned in the history of central Europe."

Nikko moved uneasily in his chair.

Baron Vilasto went on: "You will remember, perhaps, how one of Napoleon's divisions, weary of war after the disastrous adventure of Moscow, broke away en bloc from the retreating army and, striking southwest across the Carpathians and plains of Hungary, and passing through the Sanjak of Gouri-Bazar, came at last to Sciriel and settled there. Stamping out the Moslem influences, feuds, internecine strife, and civil wars which had wrought such continual havoc with us, they restored the ancient royal line and founded the basis of what is today one of the happiest, most prosperous, and self-contained states in all Europe. You need not reproach yourself with ignorance, Cheyne, for it is not the contented peoples of this earth who force a way into the newspapers and talk of foreign nations. We are of that happy condition, a self-supporting state, living and prospering on the natural products and resources of a fertile soil and of willing service. We do not quarrel with our neighbors after the fashion of all too many Balkan states, nor do we intrude in their hasty quarrels with each other. Nature has guarded our frontiers with rugged mountain ranges, forests, and roaring torrents. We live secure and not in the shadow of war. But, though we are thus protected against the dangers of raid or invasion, we Sciriens are neither a fat nor easy nation. Our love of country runs high—our patriotism is second to none. We are constant in love, but swift to take offense, and our personal honor and dignity we defend in the old and gentlemanly fashion—at the point of a sword."

He looked up and saw that Nikko's hands were opening and shutting and that he was biting his lip with a kind of nervous restraint.

"You must stop me, Cheyne, if in my enthusiasm I am led into an old man's failing of being a trifle long-winded."

"No sir," said Nikko. "Go on."

"With the coming of the French in the fall of 1812, as I have said, there started for Sciriel a new and better form of life and government than she had ever known before. A system of education was introduced; schools and gymnasia were started in every town and village. At our capital, Djevo, there is a university which would bring credit even to a great power. Today French is almost entirely spoken—having superseded the old Serbo-Crotian language which previously was in common use. We have advanced with the times to a graceful standard of living and we are very wary to avoid the error of slipping back into the slough where once we wallowed."

Nikko could stand no more. Throwing his cigaret into the grate, he sprang to his feet.

"What has all this to do with me, sir?" he demanded.

"Nothing," said the baron, smoothly. "Nothing at all, my dear young friend, nor can have aught to do with you."

Nikko's eyes narrowed dangerously. "If you mean by that——"

Vilasto held up a hand. "Bear with me a little longer and I will try to show you why. The whole fabric and edifice of Sciriel has been woven and is supported by the throne and a theory, false or otherwise, in the divine rightness of our royal rulers. The throne is the government and the inspiration of our country. Our constitution is built upon faith in the royal house. Listen. In the veins of Montressor runs the blood of Europe's oldest royalty. It is blended by the princes of twenty nations. There is in it a strain of English Stuarts—of the Bourbons of France and many others with which I will not weary you. You, yourself, are a man of too old a lineage, Nicholas Cheyne, for the need to arise for me to emphasize the significance this question of blood assumes in the eyes of the common herd. The name of Montressor is like a magic working among our people, and if from time to time, as happens, that magic may have worn a uniform somewhat black and shoddy, the defect has passed unseen by reason of the name of its wearer."

Nikko began to speak very swiftly, but without raising his voice Baron Vilasto drove him back to silence.

"In the heat of passion and of ardor—in the strong light of devotion—young people lose track of vital issues. What I have contended is susceptible to argument and possibly to ridicule, but its simple truth remains. None but a Montressor could ever hold the throne of Sciriel, nor would the people countenance the intermarriage of a throne heir to a person other than of royal stock."

"Sir," said Nikko. "This is statesman's talk. We love one another, Natalie and I. If she were the queen of—of the universe, it would not stop her belonging to me."

The smile still played about the baron's mouth, but he tapped the table top with the least shade of irritation.

"Let us avoid extravagant phrases," he said. "I am paying you the compliment of taking you seriously."

"Seriously! How else could I—could we—be taken?"

"In a variety of ways which I leave to your imagination. How old are you?"

Nikko hesitated.

"I shall be twenty next year."

"Not yet of age, and only a boy would add a year to his total."

"Boyhood or manhood is not all to do with years," said Nikko, flushing.

"Agreed; but only a boy would so readily accept and face the impossible."

"Impossible?"

"Ten minutes ago you were unaware of the identity of Natalie. Yet you accept the fact that she is a princess as lightly as you might accept a handful of confetti that settles and is blown away."

Nikko clasped his hands so that the knuckles shown white.

"Why not, sir? Our love has nothing to do with title or position. It belongs to ourselves."

Vilasto nodded.

"But how do those stand who cannot claim to belong to themselves?"

"I don't understand."

"Those who belong to their title or position, who are ruled by the foreordained responsibility of birth."

Nikko moved uneasily.

"But the world has grown up—is ahead of such old conventions—in America——"

"The argument of convenience will not avail you, Cheyne. The world is many worlds and is governed by many rules and codes—not by one."

"But there are other princes and princesses of Sciriel."

"Alas! There is none. The king is childless. Prince Carelon, his brother, is a widower and has but one daughter, Natalie. In her the future of the line reposes."

A black specter rose up before Nikko, blotting out the light. "That isn't true," he cried, brokenly.

Baron Vilasto said nothing.

Like a caged animal, Nikko strode from wall to wall of the little salon. Suddenly he turned, and said, wildly:

"But I need her—we need each other. Nothing—nothing shall keep us apart."

"By which you mean you refuse to abandon hope, Cheyne?"

"Hope," he echoed, "something more real than hope. Call me a boy—a fool—what you will, but Bettany shall be mine, I tell you, in spite of everything."

For the first time the kindliness waned from the old man's features.

"I am afraid," he said, "it is not in my power to offer you the kingdom of Sciriel, even though you propose to—snatch it."

The fire of enthusiasm died out of Nikko's eyes, and his body went limp.

"This morning when first I heard of you, it was of a youth whose chivalry was strong enough to accept imprisonment rather than allow his lady's name to be smirched with scandal. Instead, I find just an average selfish young man whose love is not strong enough to keep him from an act which, were it to be realized, would mean the ruin of a whole state and the inevitable contempt of the woman in whose service he had boasted enlistment."

Nikko Cheyne moved to the window, and, resting his forehead against the cool glass, shut his eyes in agony.

"What am I to do?" he whispered, and it was more to himself than to Vilasto he put the question. "O, God, what am I to do? Is love like ours given us to be wasted and thrown away?"

The old man moved to his side and slid an arm gently across his bent shoulders.

"Neither wasted nor thrown away," said he. "It is not the greedy ones of this earth who are remembered, but those who were not afraid to sacrifice themselves for an ideal—or, as Virgil would put it—for the good of the hive."

A sudden rebellion of the blood flung back the retort:

"I am not made of martyr stuff."

"Are you sure? A great idea needs getting used to."

Her Hair Fairly SPARKLES Now!

The woman who knows what to do after waving her hair doesn't fear the effect of hot irons. Nor of frequent washings. A few drops of Danderine—on comb or towel—and the hair is soft and lustrous, and behaves beautifully.

A bit of Danderine rubbed lightly into the scalp, is the one sure way to dissolve every particle of dandruff. But a few drops more make a dressing that is simply marvelous. A sheen that rivals brilliantine, and no grease! Any permanent wave or water wave lasts much longer and looks much nicer when Danderine is used instead of water to "set" the wave.

Ask Your Druggist

Get a bottle of Danderine and start its benefits today. Every drugstore in America has it, for only 35c. For the finest dressing you could find, and the best aid to hair health yet discovered just try—

From a Garden of American Beauties

Flashing vividly among the thousands who sought entrance to Paramount's first School of Screen Acting, the beauty, talent and charm of Ivy Harris of Atlanta won her a place among the chosen few, and then made her a "bright particular star" in their debut picture, "Fascinating Youth!" No wonder girls everywhere want to know how she cherishes the radiant petal fairness of her complexion. These she delights in telling: "I always protect my skin, before going out, with an invisible film of Black and White Peroxide (Vanishing) Cream, which prevents the darkening, roughening effect of sun, wind and dust, and also serves as the daintiest of powder bases."

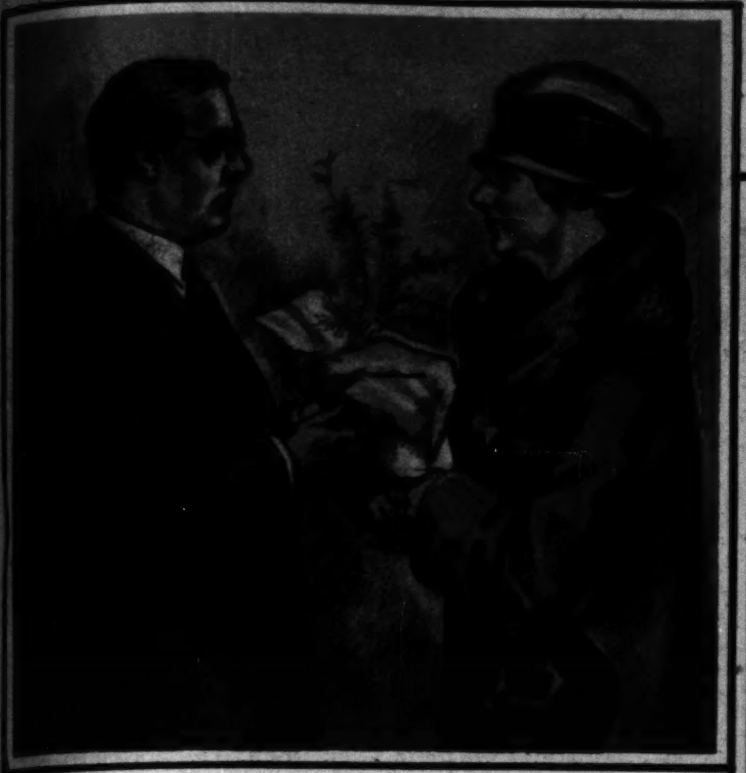
You can get the generous 25c jars of this pure, snowy cream from dealers everywhere. It whitens, softens and refines your skin and keeps it lovely to look at and touch.

If your dealer doesn't have the Black and White Beauty Creations you want, send his name to Plough, Dept. T, Memphis, Tenn., and you will receive FREE, a copy of the Birthday and Dream Book, containing many interesting facts on beauty, dreams and fortune telling.

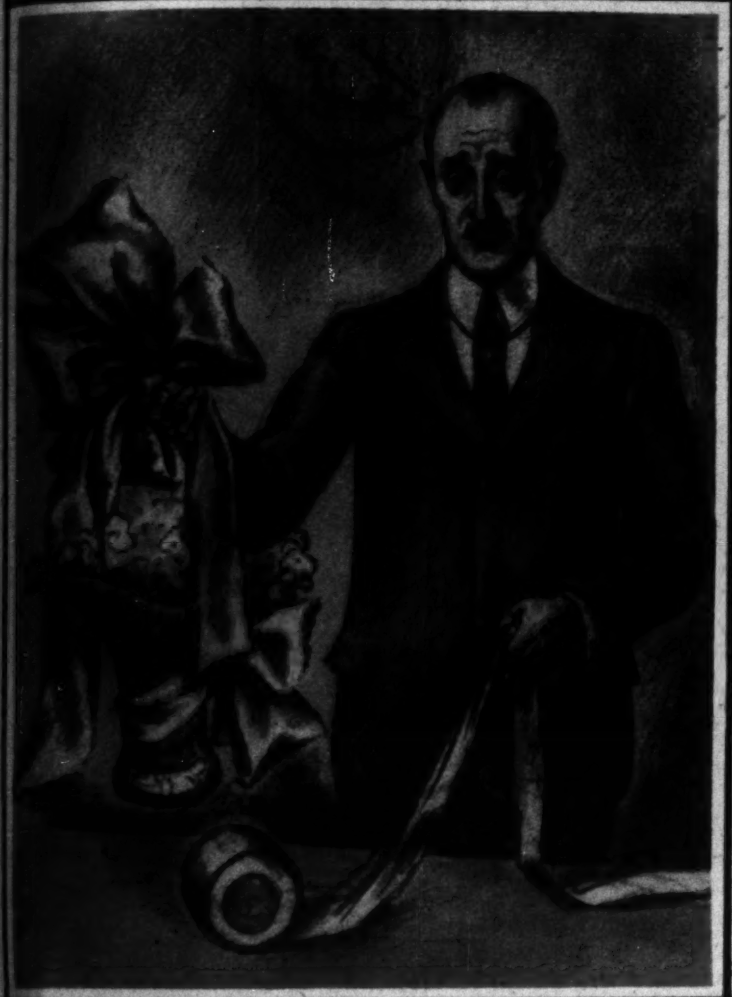
BLACK AND WHITE Beauty Creations

They Said It With Flowers

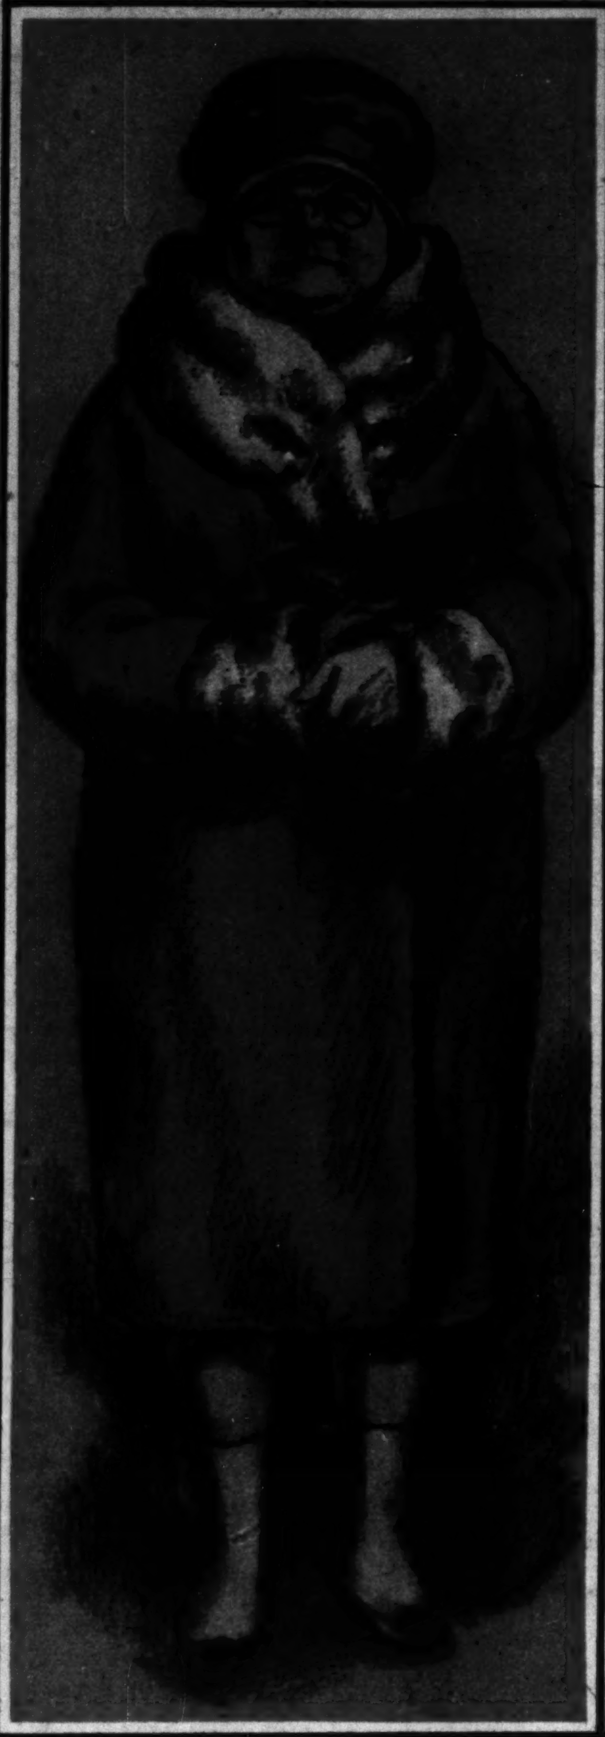
By W. E. Hill



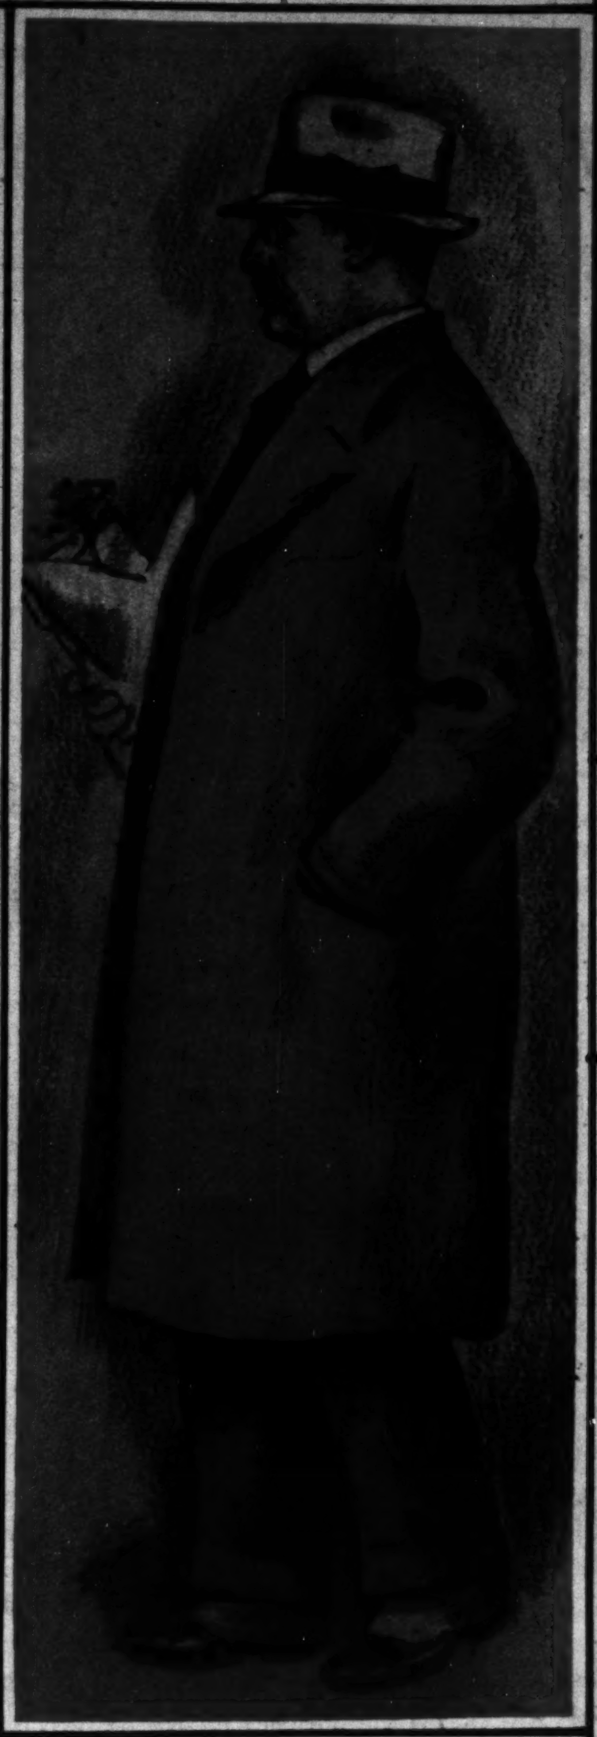
Mrs. Filligree is bringing back her Boston fern to be made well and strong once more. "It wouldn't do a thing in the apartment," laments Mrs. F. "I don't know what ailed it, unless it was that our kitty nibbled the leaves too much!"



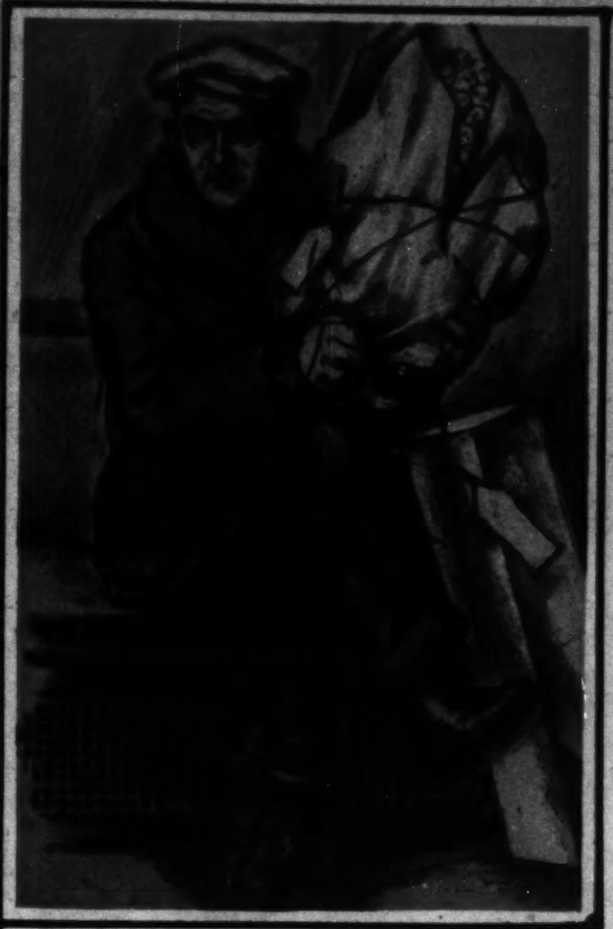
The Ritzie florists have a fondness for big ribbon bows, and unless restrained will completely lose their heads when handed a length of ribbon or a strip of tulle.



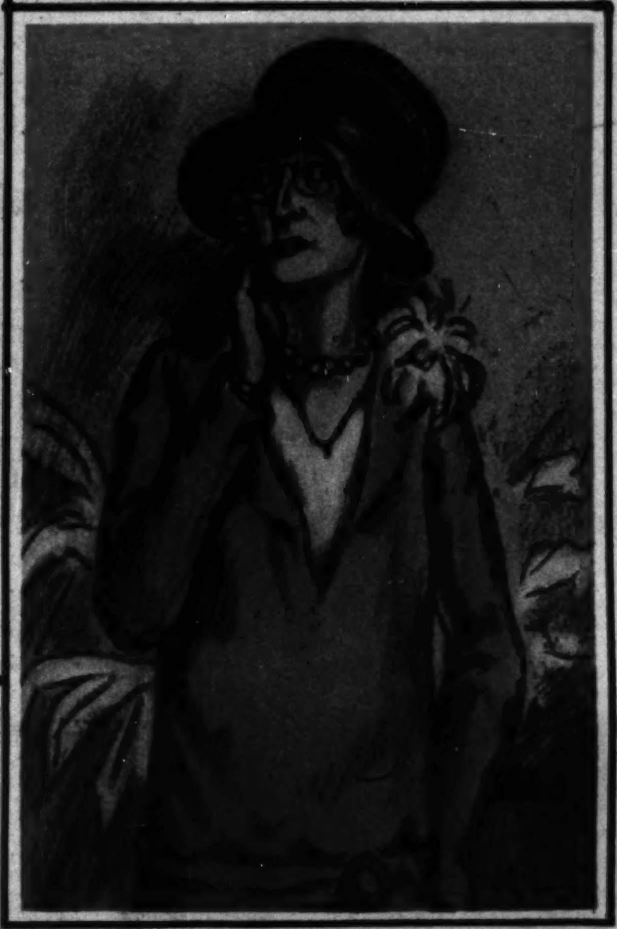
Mrs. Beule is on her way to hold a little argument with the florist who sold Mr. Beule the little orange tree. Believe it or not, every orange, and there were five of them, dropped off the day after it arrived.



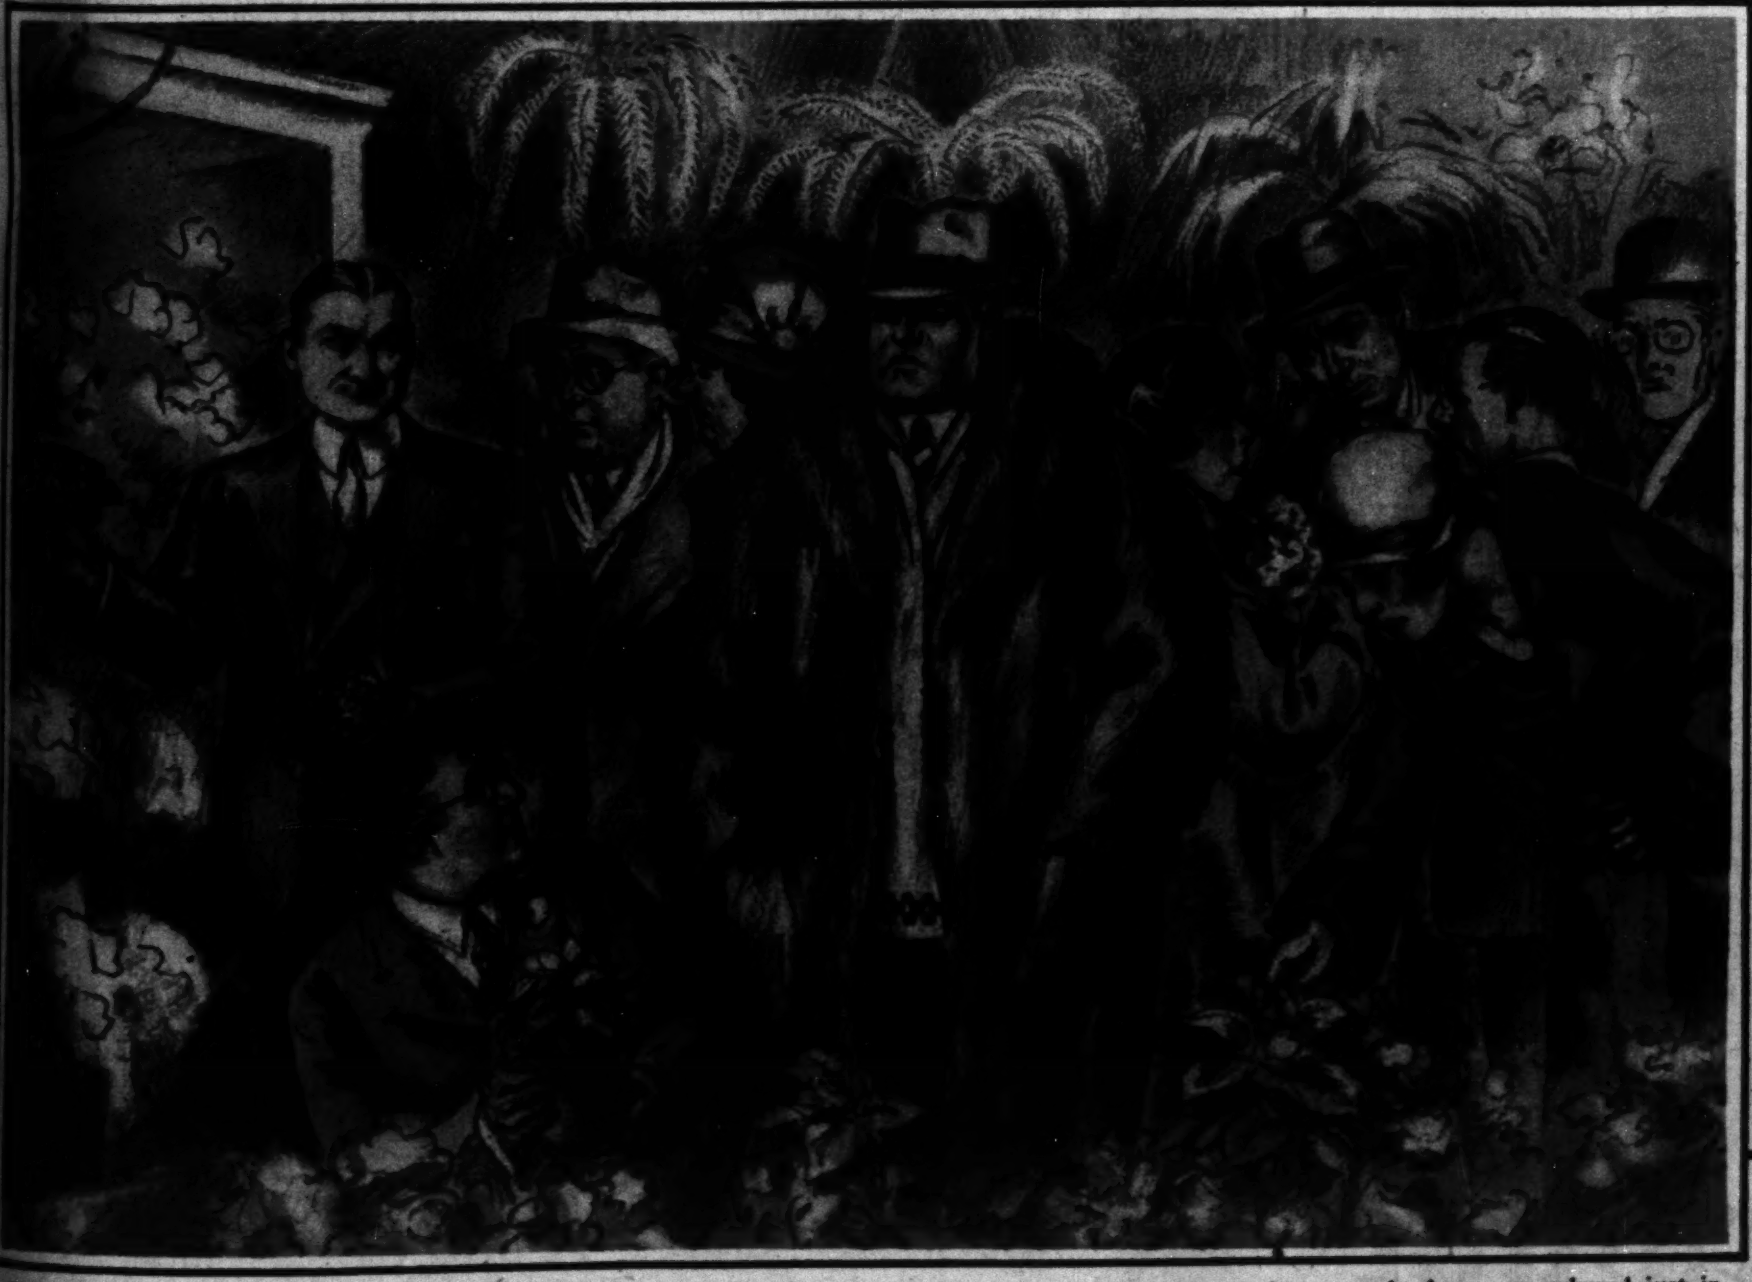
Morton is a very thoughtful boy. He's taking a little potted primrose to his wife's mother. They had a slight difference of opinion the other day and there's been a coolness.



Walter, the delivery boy from Ginsberg & Gunn, the florist shop de luxe, is on his way to a late bereavement with a pillow of rose buds and a dozen cut roses. Walter's family is trying to get him a new job. "Mr. Ginsberg," complains Walter's mother, "is always sending Walter to deliver something to a mortuary chapel, and it's making him sullen. He used always to be singing around the house when he worked for the reducing corset concern. Now it gives me the dismals to look at him."

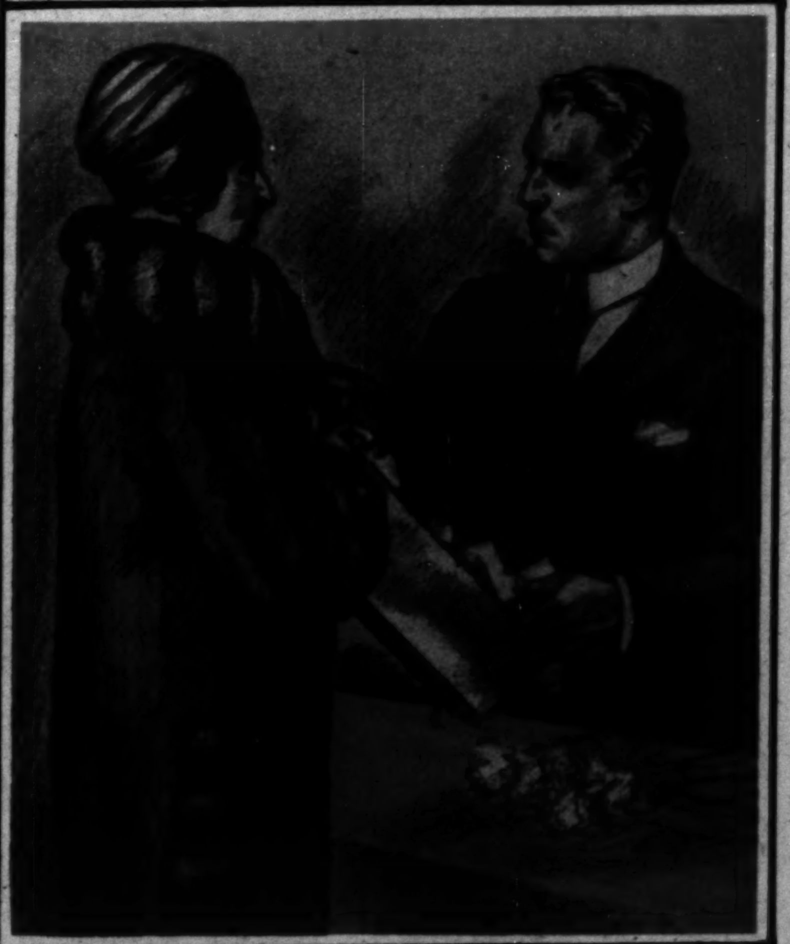


Just a charming young hostess out to get something for the center of the table. Something for about a dollar. A bunch of something that will hold together till dinner is over.



Four out of five forget. A scene at any florist's on the eve of something or other, showing the last minute shoppers who have remembered just in time that tomorrow is Aunt Caddy's birthday, Mother's day, St. Patrick's day, or that Julius is to have his operation at noon. And one and all they will say: "Be sure to put in plenty of green!"

[Copyright: 1927: by The Chicago Tribune.]



Flowers for the sick. A minor operation, such as floating tonsil, will bring not more than a dozen carnations to the sufferer. This, in the language of the flowers, means, "You don't need much sympathy, you're all right." On the other hand, an operation for gall stones, or a siege of double pneumonia will call out big, long stemmed roses. This means, "When you come back, if you do come back, there's the whole world waiting for you."

NEWS and comment about Chicago Tribune features— The Greatest Group of Daily Features in the World

Tickling Funnybones . . . . Good Fictio
. . . . Political Cartoons . . . . The Line . . .
. . . . Health and Weal

World's Greatest Newspaper

SIDNEY SMITH—impresario comique to the nation. 430 daily and Sunday newspapers buy the Gumps from the Tribune and print this comic in their own columns. Andy thus has a following of 25 million readers.

Tickling the Funnybones of Millions . . . .

FRANK WILLARD

CHICAGO TRIBUNE comics have attained their tremendous popularity because they are created by artists who not only draw funny pen pictures, but make their characters enact daily playlets that are hilariously true to life. Yet each of the seven Tribune daily comic strips is utterly different from the others . . . . .

HAROLD GRAY

ANDY GUMP with his constant volley of apt and original wise cracks . . . . little ORPHAN ANNIE, the beloved child philosopher of Harold Gray's cartoon comedy . . . . . Contrast Annie's level headedness with the adolescent HAROLD TEEN, leader in his own "collegiate" set, fluent spouter of high school slanguage. WALT, famous fat man, who recently forsook a comfortable bachelorhood, and his pretty and petite spouse. He is beloved for bringing up SKEEZIX, the world's most famous comic strip child . . . . . And then there is SMITTY, the typical bright kid, the much abused office boy, just at the age when life is the most fun, and when a little failure seems blacker tragedy than is ever felt again.

FRANK KING hobnobbing with HAROLD LLOYD somewhere in Hollywood

Decorating another office is WINNIE WINKLE, The Breadwinner. She struggles valiantly to support the family—Pa's hardest work is trying to make Winnie marry a rich man. Winnie's waiting for one who's young, rich, handsome, brilliant and prominent.

And, of course, there's MOON MULLINS. Moon is not so old, his mother wouldn't call him handsome, he'll never be rich unless he marries Emmy Schmaltz, and his popularity is confined to the better pool halls. But his popularity is unconfined in the hearts of the millions of Tribune readers . . . . for he furnishes great gobs of hearty laughter every day!

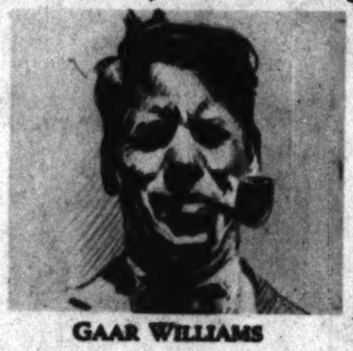
Fiction . . . .

There's nothing like a well-written, exciting nibble of romantic fiction each morning . . . . . The Tribune was the first newspaper to buy and print for its readers, first-run fiction by noted authors . . . . . another piece of Tribune trail-blazing . . . . For a number of years, each issue of the daily Tribune has carried an installment of a serial story by some well-known writer . . . . . And quality! . . . . . Several recent "best sellers" in the bookstores had their first printing in the form of Tribune daily serials . . . . . Choice, first run fiction, bought in the open market in competition with the highest class publications is an important feature of the Daily Tribune.

JOHN T. McCUTCHEON

McCUTCHEON—ORR—and WILLIAMS. In addition to its generous family of famous comic strip characters, there is a daily cartoon by America's leading cartoonist and two noted runners-up in the same field. John McCutcheon, Carey Orr, and Gaar Williams compose the most talented and versatile triumvirate of cartoonists on any one newspaper in America. McCutcheon and Orr confine themselves most of the time to the realm of politics and economics, though frequently both bring their pens to bear upon the virtues and short comings of humanity in general . . . . Gaar Williams, another Hoosier, has been called the James Whitcomb Riley of the drawing board. He finds his chief inspiration in people . . . . . Humor just slides off Gaar Williams' pen . . . . . . clean, wholesome, with a great deal of the milk of human kindness . . . . .

CAREY ORR

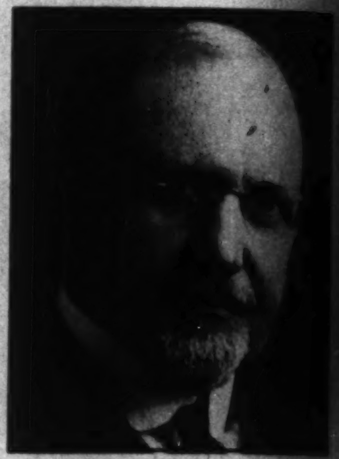


GAAR WILLIAMS

THE LINE. My dear! did you read the Line this morning? . . . . . the loveliest bit of verse! . . . . . and R. H. L.! . . . . my dear, he's just too funny for words!

There's only one "LINE"—"A LINE-O-TYPE OR TWO" —The Tribune's famous daily editorial page column of humor and verse and sentiment, conducted by Richard Henry Little. Reading THE LINE each morning has become a daily habit with a million and more Chicagolanders . . . . it is one of the most famous of all daily Tribune features . . . . . in it you will find some of the best verse and short prose produced in America.

Health—



DR. W. A. EVANS

In this hustling, careless life of today, the question of health deserves all the consideration one can give it . . . . The Tribune, realizing this some years ago, established as one of its daily features, a department call "How to Keep Well", conducted by a noted member of the medical profession—Dr. W. A. Evans. Hundreds of thousands of Tribune readers make reading it a daily health habit . . . . thousands of persons write to this department each year for medical advice . . . . "How to Keep Well" is always vitally interesting and reliably instructive reading . . . . on the editorial page of your daily Tribune each morning.

and Wealth! . . . .

"The Investor's Guide," is another daily Tribune feature . . . . . . how to avoid undue strain on the bank balance . . . . . "The Investor's Guide," special service to business men and investors, giving each day accurate, unbiased, reliable advice on the latest investment offerings . . . . . a feature of the daily Tribune financial page . . . . . more than 200,000 Tribune readers have used "The Investor's Guide."

* * *

The features which you see in The Tribune each morn-ing are the most carefully selected and best balanced grou found in any newspaper in the world. Each was creat to answer some reader need—humor, entertainment, info-mation, advice.

To start the day with a hearty laugh, read The Gump . . . . . Moon Mullins . . . . . Gaar Williams. If you fe the need of a bit of poetry or subtle humor, read "Th Line." If you want to know the latest in Paris fashions, read Corinne Lowe.

No matter what you expect from your daily newspap besides the latest reports of local or foreign news—you' find it in the pages of The Daily Tribune. . . . .

THE POST OF HONOR
FOR EACH UNWORTHY ACTION CHESTER MUST DRIVE A NAIL INTO THE POST— THE NAIL MUST REMAIN UNTIL HE PERFORMS A GOOD DEED WHICH GIVES HIM THE RIGHT TO PULL A NAIL OUT—
HATS + COATS CHECKED 10¢
SIDNEY SMITH
HOW MANY TIMES DO I HAVE TO ASK YOU TO PUT UP THAT CLOTHES LINE IN THE BASEMENT? HERE A WHOLE WEEK HAS GONE BY AND YOU HAVEN'T LIFTED A FINGER—WELL— I'M GOING TO FIX IT— WHAT ARE YOU HOLLERING ABOUT?
I'M SORRY— BUT YOU HAVE TO GET OUT OF THE EASY CHAIR— UNLESS YOU EXPECT ME TO BRING THE BASEMENT UP HERE AND SET IT IN YOUR LAP— IF YOU ARE TOO LAZY TO PUT THE LINE UP JUST SAY SO AND I'LL DO IT MYSELF—
ALL RIGHT! ALL RIGHT— YOU SIT HERE FOR TWO MINUTES AND READ SHAKESPEARE'S BEAUTIFUL STORY "MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING" AND I'LL FINISH THE GIGANTIC TASK—
DON'T FORGET— YOU WON'T GET A BITE OF DINNER UNTIL THAT LINE IS UP—
OH MIN! WHERE ARE THE NAILS? I HAD A BOXFUL— NOW THEY'RE GONE— I'VE LOOKED ALL OVER THE BASEMENT FOR THEM—
I'LL GET NAILS IF I HAVE TO MAKE THEM LIKE THE OLD PURITANS USED TO DO— I'LL CHOP UP A COUPLE OF FLAT IRONS AND MAKE MY OWN NAILS—
GET A CARPENTER WHO CAN DRIVE A NAIL BETTER THAN THAT— WHEN I DRIVE A NAIL IT HAS A LEASE THAT ENTITLES IT TO STAY IN THE SAME PLACE FOR 99 YEARS—
I'LL HAVE TO FASTEN THIS CLOTHES LINE TO THE WALL WITH GLUE— THERE IS NOT ANOTHER NAIL IN THE HOUSE— AND THAT LINE MUST GO UP—
WELL, NOW AT THAT— WHEN I STOP TO THINK IT OVER— I DON'T THINK CHESTER MEANT TO BREAK THAT WINDOW— I WAS A LITTLE BIT HASTY WHEN I TOLD HIM TO DRIVE THAT NAIL IN THE POST OF HONOR— A WISE JUDGE ALWAYS TEMPERS JUSTICE WITH MERCY—
AND ANYHOW IF I DON'T GET THIS CLOTHES LINE UP MIN WILL KILL ME—

I BEG YOUR PARDON, LADY- BUT I'VE JUST BEEN PASSIN' HAND BILLS AROUND THE NEIGHBORHOOD AND NOTICED DR. JONES' NAME ON THE MAILBOX = I WONDER IF HE'S TH' SAME DOC JONES I USED TO KNOW.
I'M SURE I DON'T KNOW, SIR- DR. JONES IS AT HIS OFFICE IN THE BUMP BUILDING. PERHAPS HE COULD TELL YOU.
I CAN'T IMAGINE TH' DOC JONES I KNEW EVER COPPIN' OFF A QUEEN LIKE THAT- BUT YOU NEVER CAN TELL
BY GEORGE! IT'S A LUCKY THING YOU CAME IN WHEN YOU DID, MOON. I WAS JUST LEAVING = COME OUT AND SEE US SOME TIME, YOU KNOW I'M MARRIED NOW.
YEH- I MET TH' MISSUS, DOC. AND I GOTTA GIVE YOU CREDIT- SHE'S CLASS, KID. ALL CLASS.
OH HON.
WELL, IT'S TIME YOU WERE GETTING HOME = SOME BUM WAS HERE THIS AFTERNOON AND WANTED TO KNOW IF HE KNEW YOU = I THINK HE WAS A NUT.
FOR TH' LOVA MIKE! PIPE DOWN, HON- THAT'S AN OLD FRIEND OF MINE-AND HE'S DOWN STAIRS NOW.
WELL, I DON'T CARE IF HE DID HEAR ME- YOU HAD NO BUSINESS BRINGING THAT TRAMP OUT HERE AT MEAL TIME. BESIDES THE MAID WALKED OUT ON ME NOT TEN MINUTES AGO.
OH- ALL RIGHT, HON. I'LL TELL HIM TO GO- BUT I HATE FOR HIM TO GET A WRONG IMPRESSION OF YOU AFTER THE WAY HE'S BEEN RAVING ABOUT YOU ALL THE WAY OUT. HE SAID HE'D MET YOU AND THAT YOU WERE HIS IDEA OF A SWELL QUEEN.
HE DID? WELL, MY STARS! I GUESS I WAS A LITTLE OUT OF SORTS, PET- BY ALL MEANS TELL THE GENTLEMAN TO STAY.
THE MAID WALKED OUT JUST BEFORE WE GOT HERE, MOON- BUT MY WIFE SAYS SHE WILL BE GLAD TO COOK DINNER FOR US.
AW- I WOULDN'T THINK OF LETTIN' HER DO THAT, DOC.
I'LL TELL YOU WHAT. LET ME RUN DOWN TO THE STATION AND TALK THE MAID INTO COMIN' BACK- I UNDERSTAND WIMMIN, DOC. WHAT DOES THIS COOKIE LOOK LIKE, ANYWAY?
I THINK WE HAVE A SNAP SHOT OF HER HERE- LET ME SEE WHERE IS IT.
BY THE WAY, MOON- WHAT DO YOU THINK OF THAT ONE?
WHOOEE!
HO HO HO HOOOO OOOOH!
WOW! WHAT A PANIC SHE IS! I WOULDN'T ASK YOU TO TAKE THIS COOKIE BACK ON MY ACCOUNT ! YOU GOT MORE NERVE THAN DANIEL IN TH' LIONS' DEN IF YOU DO-DOC. SHE LOOKS ABOUT AS PEACEFUL AS A PACK OF WILDCATS, KID.
SIR!
PET- PLEASE PUT DOWN THAT POKER- OW!
DOC OUGHTA HAD SENSE ENOUGH TO TELL ME THAT WAS HIS WIFE'S PICTURE IN TH' FIRST PLACE.

NEVER HEARD OF HER-
WELL, SANDY, I RECITED SWELL IN CLASS YESTERDAY- I'M SURE LEARNIN' A LOT- I BETCHA DADDY'LL BE TICKLED WHEN HE HEARS HOW WELL I'M GETTIN' ALONG HERE-
WELL, IT'S CERTAIN THAT ANNIE PERSON IS NO CREDIT TO HAPPY HOLLOW SEMINARY- I OVERHEARD HER YESTERDAY TELLING A GROUP OF OTHER CHILDREN HOW SUPERIOR THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS ARE TO PRIVATE INSTITUTIONS- JUST IMAGINE-
BUT, MISS BRUSSELS, SHE IS VERY BRIGHT IN ALL HER CLASS WORK- UNUSUAL, I MIGHT SAY-
BRIGHT! HUMPH- SHARP-WITTED, PERHAPS, AS MOST LITTLE STREET-GAMINS- BUT NO CULTURE- NO REFINEMENT WHATEVER-
OF COURSE YOU KNOW SHE IS AN ORPHAN- MR. WARBUCKS SEEMS TO BE VERY FOND OF HER THOUGH WHY IS A MYSTERY TO ME- IF GIVEN A CHANCE SHE'LL DISRUPT THE WHOLE SCHOOL- A COMMON HOODLUM, I SHOULD SAY-
I'D SEND HER PACKING IN A MINUTE BUT MR. WARBUCKS IS SO LIBERAL AND VERY WEALTHY- I'M HOPING HE MAY MAKE A VERY HANDSOME GIFT TO THE SCHOOL IF HANDLED PROPERLY-
OH- OH- OH- I COULD TAKE A BAT ON TH' NOSE, I COULD, AND NOT MIND IT SO MUCH-
BUT THAT HURT ME WAY INSIDE, SANDY- IT DID- IT DID- OH--OH--
BUT I MUSTN'T CRY- I MUSTN'T- B--B-- BUT GEE WHISKERS! I'VE TRIED SO HARD TO DO JUST RIGHT- IT ISN'T FAIR-
